WIFE MURDER AT BOYNE CITY

Charles Hopkins Kills His Wife by Brutally Beating Her

ATTACK TOOK PLACE ON THE STREET

Couple Were Separated—Victim Had Applied for Divorce.

Crime Was Committed by Pounding Her Head With a Stone—Other People Injured.

Sunday afternoon Charles Hopkins, of Boyne City, viciously assaulted his wife in that city causing injuries which resulted in her death Tuesday morning.

Hopkins and his wife have been separated for some time, Mrs. Hopkins having applied for a divorce on the grounds of extreme cruelty. Hopkins was employed at the Big mill, while his wife was housekeeper at the sanitarium. They were the parents of three children, two of whom are in the Beulah Home.

Sunday afternoon Hopkins went out to the Beulah Home to see the children, and while on his way back saw his wife, coming evidently on the same errand.

Hopkins picked up a large stone and made for her, when she tried to escape to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Huggard, who were her friends and lived nearby. However, she was overtaken, and Hopkins dealt her a terrible blow, with the stone between the eyes, felling her to the ground, when he jumped on her and continued pounding her. Rev. Fean's Black, who was a short distance away and saw the assault, hastened to the woman's assistance, when the enraged man turned and struck him a terrible blow on the side of the head. Mr. and Mrs. Huggard also went to the assistance of the prostrate woman, and both were dealt blows. By this time Officer Rogers had arrived, and with the assistance of Rev. Blair, the prisoner was placed in the city jail.

Mrs. Hopkins was removed to the home of Mr. Huggard and doctors hastily summoned, who found it necessary to take twelve stitches to close the wounds. She was removed to the Boyne City Sanitarium, where she died Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Hopkins was a member of the Salvation Army, and their differences arose over religion.

The next car to the engine dragged him for about ten feet, when it caught him and threw him end over end several times, striking his head against the car, and throwing him to the side of the track where the wheel cut his foot. The Turning of the Glass

It has come once more to the turning of the glass. The sand is all but spent, and the days of the old year are as chaff in the wake of the wind. By the gray light in the western shack, at the heaped tables of the rich, within the great places of exchange, and even amongst those who go out upon the high seas, men will give pause. For it is the time of reckoning, and sober thought must go to the balance against mirth and merrymaking. It is the supreme hour of resolution. May the trend of worship be not towards the god of gold. May men not overlean towards the side of materialism. May there be reverence for simple things, for the young babe in the cradle and the old man nearing the valley. May the milk of human kindness and the good hand of common sympathy go forth to the natal feast. Then might the New Year dawn bright, and people the world over could repeat with the poet:

"Turn again the wasted glass,
Kingly crown and warrior's crest
Are not worth the blade of grass
God fashions for the swallow's nest."

FIRE AT THE BELLAIRE JAIL

Was Not Set by One of the Charlevoix County Prisoners.

Statement Furnished Us by One of Our Men From Here.

Last week the state papers had an item in regard to the setting fire of the Antrim county jail, saying it was done by one of the Charlevoix county prisoners, who was taken there for a few days after the fire. The prisoners from here, naturally, feel that they have troubles enough without having that laid to their charge, and have given us the following statement in regard to the occurrence, which is pronounced correct by the officers.

We are glad to deny the statement in the Grand Rapids Herald and other papers implicating the four boys from here with the setting afire of the Antrim county jail at Bellaire. Four of the boys from here who were transferred to the Antrim county jail on account of the recent fire of our court house, were suddenly aroused in the night by loud shouts and whistling. Fire was the cause of the alarm.

Bill Hines, a prisoner held there for thirty days on a charge of drunk and disorderly, learned on the evening of his last day, that he was to be taken back to Jackson for breaking parole. He immediately began to plan a scheme to gain his liberty.

Five of the men were sitting around the table when Bill Hines said he would burn the thing down; they, of course, did not think he had any such intentions. The sixth prisoner was not present, he being reading and ignorant of their conversation.

After being locked in their respective corridors for the night, the boys went to the one who was ignorant of the situation and told him the jail was going up in smoke. After hearing what they had to say he made preparations to set up and watch. Along about eleven o'clock he could hear the rattling of papers, but it being on an opposite corridor made it impossible to see what was going on.

After putting another on guard he went to sleep, and when he was awakened he discovered the rear end of the jail was afire. He quickly gave the alarm and awakened the sheriff, who extinguished the flames with a few pails of water.

Hines denied setting the fire that night but made a clean breast of it to Sheriff Kittle en route to Jackson.

The boys from here, it is reported, behaved with all the genial grace of gentlemen, and will probably gain the respect of the Hon. Judge Mayne.

Echoes from the Fire.

County Treasurer Payton and Register Embrey are located in the building across the street.

The circuit judge and judge of probate hold forth in the firemen's hall, County Clerk Lewis is doing business at the old stand. The prisoners were brought back Saturday night.

On taking inventory one pen, a bottle of ink, and the roof of the building were found missing besides what was mentioned last week.

DEATH OF C. M. CHRISTY.

We have just received word that Calvin M. Christy, of St. Louis, Missouri, who has made his summer home in Charlevoix, for the past twenty years, died suddenly of apoplexy, at his winter home in Daytona, Florida, Friday forenoon, December 27.

Mr. Christy was one of the trustees of the Charlevoix Summer Home Association, and a member of the committee on lots and grounds and the owner of a fine cottage on Promitory Point.

During his residence in Charlevoix he had made many friends, and too much cannot be said of him as a typical American gentleman, whose loss will be greatly felt by our summer residents.

FIRST YEAR'S EXPERIENCE

N. O. Larabee Gives the Figures From 2¼ Acres of Beets.

Is Well Satisfied With the Profits—Expenses Could Be Reduced Nearly Half.

Below we print a letter and statement received by the West Michigan Sugar Company from N. O. Larabee, of Central Lake.

This statement covers all the expenses of growing a crop of beets on two and one-fourth acres of ground and shows a net profit of $28.57. Comment on the figures are unnecessary, all will agree that most of the items could be reduced nearly half. Taking into consideration the knowledge which would be gained by continued beet growing, not counting on the increased tonnage, which could be secured, and a net profit of double the amount could easily be made.

Mr. Larrabee brings out one point which farmers should take into consideration, and that is that and un reased acreage can be taken care of more cheaply than a small one, also that a well kept field of beets means death to the farmers' worst enemy, weeds.

Central Lake, Mich., Dec. 25, 1907.
West Michigan Sugar Co.,
Charlevoix, Mich

Dear Sir: I enclose you a statement of the first beet crop I ever raised. I paid a big price for the land but even at that it gave me a profit of nearly $13 per acre, and I think I could care for another crop cheaper than I did this year, and by hoeing the crop more I think it would have increased the tonnage. It seems to me our soil in this part of Michigan is particularly adapted to beet growing, and when we get so we can grow them as cheaply as they are grown in other localities, where they have passed the experimental stage, we will find them the best paying crop we can grow, and when we get to growing from five to ten acres to each farm, there will be less weeds and more cash for the farmer.

With best wishes for the future prosperity of the sugar factory, I am,

Sincerely yours,
N. O. LARABEE.

FALL PLOWING PAYS.

Put Ground in Better Shape for Spring Seeding.

I plow my land very deeply in the fall and then leave it. It absorbs a good deal of rain during the winter and does not wash as badly as it would were it left packed down. Not only this, but I usually turn under some green growth that will decompose during the winter, adding humus to the soil and improving the physical condition, writes a correspondent of Orange Judd Farmer. If this is left over till spring it will lose much of its value as a green manure.

The good start which an early seeded crop gets is a strong argument in favor of fall plowing, for it enables me to get a good, strong stand before the dry, hot months come, when the crop suffers much from drouth.

From years of experience, I believe that land plowed in the spring packs much worse than that plowed in the fall, and when plowed in the spring it is usually a little wet and hard to handle. I have seen much land ruined by its owners being crowded in the spring and thus forced to plow when the land was far too wet for such an operation.

If you discard every bird that shows signs of sickness, your chances will be better for keeping the flock healthy.

MANY ARE SICK AT PITTSBURG

Worst Epidemic Since 1889 Being Experienced in Smoky City.

PNEUMONIA, TYPHOID AND GRIP

Nearly Every Home Is Affected by Sickness of Some Kind or Other.

Street Railway Company Having Difficulty in Manning Its Cars—Warning Issued by the City Physician.

Pittsburg, Dec. 28.—What is said to be the worst epidemic of sickness since 1889 is being experienced in Pittsburg and physicians estimate that thousands of persons are prostrated by pneumonia, typhoid fever, and, especially, the grip. Throughout the city probably every home is affected in some manner and a scarcity of employes in the large office buildings is seriously felt.

Difficulty in Manning Cars.

The Pittsburg Railway company is having difficulty in manning its cars on account of conductors and motormen being laid up with the grip. City Physician B. A. Booth, says the present epidemic of grip exceeds in scope and severity all but that of 1889, the worst in history, and may yet break that record. He considers it contagious and believes the germs of disease may have originated far from here. In 1889 the malady's start was traced back through Europe to Asia and finally located in Hongkong, China.

Pneumonia Follows Grip.

Dr. Booth says people affected do not give up quickly enough and go to bed. His attention was called to the fact that thousands have given up and gone to bed, but he said others who are struggling along with groans and complaints should do likewise. Pneumonia is likely to follow the trail of the grip if prompt and proper attention is not given it. Chronic affections of the eyes, ears and throat are also among the possible after-developments.

SEVERE TEST FOR PIGEONS

Will Attempt to Carry Greetings by Relays from Minneapolis to Boston.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 28.—New Year's greetings from Mayor J. C. Haynes, of Minneapolis, will be sent to the mayor of Boston by carrier pigeons. It is thought the birds can complete the long journey of 1,200 miles in about forty-six hours.

The entire trip, however, will not be made by the same pigeons. Two birds will be liberated here, each having the message tied to its legs, and they will fly to their home town, Aurora, Ill., where the message will be transferred to a bird that understands the trip from there to Philadelphia, where another transfer will be made and the message fastened to the pigeon that is expected to deliver it in Boston.

CHARGE PLOT TO ROB RICH WOMAN

Strange Case Brought to Climax by Swearing Out of Warrants.

STARTLING FACTS REVEALED

Woman Said To Be "Doped" to the Point of Death With Whisky.

Transfer of Valuable Property for a Consideration of Five Dollars Is Alleged by the Police of Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—Charging the existence of a conspiracy similar to the famous Patrick murder in New York, the Englewood police brought the strange case of Miss Anna Nolan to a climax.

Warrants for conspiracy were served on Attorney Moses D. Brown, A. S. Kelly, a broker, and Ruth E. Laughlin who nursed Miss Nolan until the police went into the Nolan home and removed the aged and wealthy woman to St. Bernard's hospital.

The warrants were served when Attorney Brown, Mrs. Laughlin and Kelly appeared in Municipal Judge Petit's courtroom to answer charges of resisting an officer, made against them by the police when they sought to prevent the removal of Miss Nolan last Wednesday night.

Lawyer Protests Against Arrest.

Attorney Brown, after the warrant had been served upon him, pleaded with Captain Storen of the Englewood station not to have him locked in a cell. Brown was permitted to remain in the courtroom in custody of a detective while awaiting bail. Kelly was placed in a cell and Mrs. Laughlin was given into the care of the matron at the Englewood police station.

Discovery that the suspects purchased poison while the old woman was in their hands and that they caused her to transfer valuable real estate at Aberdeen and Fifty-Ninth streets to Mrs. Laughlin for a consideration of $5 caused the police to secure the new warrants.

Their original action in raiding the Nolan home at 1221 Fifty-Ninth street was inspired by reports of neighbors that the friendless old woman was being held in a helpless condition and "doped" to the point of death with whisky.

Cannot Make Statement.

She was found so stupified that she has not yet recovered ability to make a coherent statement, although under the best of hospital treatment since last Wednesday. The warrants against the trio is that they unlawfully and feloniously did conspire and agree together with fraudulent and malicious heart wickedly to obtain money or other property on one Anna W. Nolan by false pretenses."

Captain Storen says he may prefer a more serious charge against each of the defendants.

"I am in possession of evidence that Attorney Brown, Mrs. Laughlin and Kelly purchased poison," Captain Storen said, "and I expect to be able to prefer even a more serious charge against the prisoners."

"Hell" on at Jackson, Mich.

Jackson Mich., Dec. 28.—Mayor B. J. Glasgow has issued a proclamation intended to clap a "lid" on the city such as has never before been attempted. All saloons will be closed after legal hours and on Sundays, all resorts are to be wiped out of existence in the city, all slot machines are to be removed, cigar stores are to be closed Sunday and as many of the "blue laws" enforced as are practicable.

Famine Appropriation Passed.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 28.—The last session of the Russian parliament before the beginning of the Christmas holidays was held here, and a famine appropriation of $7,500,000 was passed. There was only a bare quorum present, and the measure was practically not debated. This appropriation, with a few local bills, comprises the entire legislative product of the first six weeks' work of the third duma.

Will Change Location of Dams.

Washington, Dec. 28.—For strategic reasons and to prevent their bombardment and destruction by a hostile fleet the isthmian canal commission has determined to change the location of the dams and locks which it was originally intended to construct at La Boca and instead they will be built at Miraflores, four miles inland and within the zone of safety. President Roosevelt has approved the plans.

Engineers Seek More Pay.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 28.—The engineers and firemen upon the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad have asked for an increase in pay reported as 10 per cent. The passenger engineers of the company have been receiving 38½ cents an hour, the firemen 22½ an hour and freight engineers and firemen slightly larger pay.

World Abolish the Office.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 27.—Governor Hughes will recommend that the office of state superintendent of insurance be abolished and the work done by three commissioners at salaries of $12,000 to $15,000 each.

Cultivate Good Manners If You Would Rise

By DR. MADISON C. PETERS.

Good manners often do more for a man than money or influence. They open many a portal to the aspiring which would otherwise remain closed, and lead the way to recognition and success. The man of polish, of suave and courtly bearing, has a much better chance of getting along in the world than the man of a rough, overbearing disposition who endeavors to attain his ends by brute force regardless of the feelings or rights of others.

The art of pleasing may be said to be synonymous with the art of rising in the world. Of course there have been some notable exceptions of men who surrounded themselves with a nimbus of gloom after they emerged from the chrysalis of genius, but these, after all, missed the brightness and beauty of life. Michael Angelo was a stern, cold, forbidding man, and though people admired his works they did not admire himself; he had few friends and fame did not bring him happiness. Columbus was unsocial and taciturn, and to this disposition may be attributed the mutiny of his crews, which with difficulty was allayed on his voyage of discovery to the New World. Dante was never invited out to dinner in his life and during his exile from his home and his wanderings throughout his native land, was never welcomed at any fireside; he remained a hermit to his countrymen.

On the contrary, the brilliant men who had warm hearts and polished manners worked their way into the love of the multitude. Charles James Fox, even when he had gambled away his last dollar, was beloved by the people because of his gracious manner. Gladstone was the idol of the English race, despite political hatred, owing to the charm of his personality and winning ways, which also gained for him many a vote and won many an election. The genial, kindly, lovable life of William McKinley endeared his name to the homes of the American people and his untimely death plunged a nation into tears regardless of all political affiliation.

The "I don't know," "I don't care," "None of my business" kind of man stays where he starts. More than their ability, their manners have put most successful men where they are today.

The American Girl's Training

By Viscountess Maitland.

The English girl is brought up to play and to sing and to paint, while the American girls in society, the daughters of the affluent, are brought up to observe rather than to do those things. An American girl says: "Oh, I dislike amateur playing and painting; there are so many people who do those things well, and why not hear people sing and play who are professionals, and who can make music worth while?" I have often heard your girls express themselves that way, and no doubt the professionally paid artists who entertain the guests at American social functions are better to hear than the guests.

On the other hand, I contend that we have a better system of bringing up our girls, for if a girl only plays or paints indifferently well she has a better understanding of these things and is better able to judge than the girl who only hears professionals, and who has no technical knowledge of these things.

Another advantage is that in the event of any financial misfortune we can put those accomplishments to some practical use, as I have done with my miniature painting, for instance. Why, whatever in the world should I have done when I found myself practically without any money at all, if I had not had my music or my painting? American girls, instead, must go into office work, become typewriters, clerks, etc., which is so much harder and so much less pleasant a way of earning a living.

HURLED A LAMP AT FATHER.

He Would Not Let Her Wear Peekaboo to Dance.

New York.—Because Patrick Clancey, 80 Eagle street, Williamsburg, refused to allow his daughter, Mary, 15 years old, to go to a dance wearing an open work shirtwaist she threw an oil lamp at him, severing the artery in his right arm and setting fire to the house.

Mr. Clancey was taken to a hospital in a critical condition and the girl was arrested and turned over to the custody of the Children's society.

Miss Clancey for several days had been making preparations for a "shirtwaist dance" and had made for herself a shirtwaist that offered very little protection against inclement weather. When she was about to leave the house her father told her the garment was not sufficient for a cold, rainy night and that she could not go to the dance unless she put on a chest protector.

Mary insisted she would not wear any other protection and Mr. Clancey locked the door, saying to his daughter that she must remain at home. In her anger she seized a lamp, hurled it at her father, cutting his arm and setting the house on fire.

Screams of the family brought the neighbors and the police and the fire was extinguished. At first the extent of Mr. Clancey's injuries was not known, but after the fire was extinguished it was found he was unconscious from hemorrhage. An ambulance was called and his condition at the hospital was said to be critical.

DR. HEX CURES COLIC.

Authentic Case of the Relief of a Sorrel Horse.

Tamarind, Mo.—Dr. Thomas Hex has cured another horse of colic, and added to his reputation as a veterinary who eschews the use of drugs.

While not exactly a pawwow doctor, Dr. Hex uses methods which in any other country might be considered amusing, but so long as he gets results and fees and the farmers have faith in him he can well afford to ignore the jeers of his professional brothers.

Here is the process by which he cured the sorrel horse of Henry Jupe. Convinced that the animal was suffering from colic, Dr. Hex announced that he would commence his treatment at midnight.

He went to the home of Jupe and, learning that the animal was still suffering, the doctor seated himself on a bushel basket and placed on the floor in front of him, arranged in the form of a triangle, a bunch of hair, cut from the tail of a horse, a copper cent and a plug of tobacco. Bending over these he mumbled a few words.

Then, taking the arm of Jupe, the two walked backward to the stable. Here the doctor made a few passes over the sorrel, and the two men, backing out of the stable, returned to the house, without uttering a word.

Next morning the horse was well.

Navy Tests Hardest of Steel.

Washington.—"Vanadium steel" is the latest naval experiment at the various navy yards. It is said to be the toughest of steels as well as the hardest. Still it can be wrought under the hammer and in rolls and presses like the softest of Swedish iron. So far the navy has succeeded unexpectedly in producing an alloy so hard that no ordinary tool will touch it. There is a suggestion that such hard metal might make a good face for armor plate. But it is suspected of brittleness in this condition—a fatal defect.

Never until a man is 35 does he begin to boast that he once was a country boy.

For Treatment of Burns.

The best way to treat burns is to cover the injured part with a poultice of soap as thick as a shilling, so as to exclude the air. An application of flour or finely ground starch dredged thickly on the burn may be used in an emergency.

COSTS TWENTY-SIX MILLIONS

The Publisher Pays Much More for His Stock Than He Did Last Year.

Today there is general complaint among publishers that printing paper is constantly growing dearer. In the middle west many local papers are raising their subscription price 50 per cent in order to pay for the paper. From the time when Guttenberg first used movable type, made of wood, to the present day of metropolitan papers, some of which consume the product of acres of spruce in a single edition, printing has in a very large degree depended upon the forest.

In the face of a threatened shortage of timber, the amount of wood consumed each year for pulp has increased since 1890 from two million to three and one-half million cords. The year 1906 marked an increase of 93,000 cords in the imports of pulpwood, the highest average value per cord for all kinds, and a consumption greater by 469,053 cords than that of any previous year.

Spruce, the wood from which in 1890 three-fourths of the pulp was manufactured, is still the leading wood, but it now produces a little less than 70 per cent of the total. How well spruce is suited to the manufacture of pulp is shown by the fact that during a period in which the total quanity of wood used has doubled and many new woods have been introduced, the proportion of pulpwood has remained nearly constant in spite of the drains upon the spruce forests for other purposes. During this time three different woods, from widely separate regions, have in turn held the rank of leader in the lumber supply.

Since 1899, popular, which for years was used in connection with spruce to the exclusion of all other paper woods, has increased in total quantity less than 100,000 cords, and is now outranked by hemlock. Pine, balsam and cottonwood are used in much smaller amounts.

New York alone consume each year over a million and a quarter cords of wood in the manufacture of pulp, or more than twice as much as Maine, which ranks next. Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Michigan follow in the order given. Sixty per cent of the wood used in New York was imported from elsewhere, and even so the supply seems to be waning, since the total consumption for the state shows a small decrease since 1905, whereas the other states named have all increased their consumption. Other states important in the production of pulp are: Massachusetts, Minnesota, Ohio, Oregon, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

The average cost of pulp delivered at the mill was $7.21. The total value of the wood consumed in 1906 was $26,400,000. The chief item determining the price of paper is the cost of pulp. An example of the increased price of paper is found in the case of a publisher of a daily in the middle west, who recently paid $1,200 for a carlord of paper. The same quantity and grade of paper cost a year ago but $800.

The chemical processes of paper making, which better preserve the wood fiber, are gaining over the mechanical process. In 1899, 65 per cent of the wood was reduced by the mechanical process; in 1906 less than 50 per cent.

All importations of wood for pulp are from Canada, and comprised, in 1906, 739,000 cords, nearly all of which was spruce. Four and a half million dollars' worth of pulp was imported in 1906, a slight falling off from 1905.

Circular 120 of the forest service contains a discussion of the consumption of pulpwood in 1906, based on statistics gathered by the Bureau of the Census and Forest Service. The pamphlet can be had upon application to the Forester, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Do not tell your troubles this year, because the fewer people who know of the things that have handicapped you the better it is for you. You will then be spared the influence of the unfortunate suggestions which your hard luck stories make upon other people's minds.

Then, again, every time you repeat the story of your misfortunes, your troubles, your trials, your failures, you etch the dark picture a little deeper in your mind; make a little more real to you what you ought to erase forever. What cannot be cured should be erased forever. What cannot help us, what can only hinder, should be forgotten, discarded once for all.

Many people hang on to their old troubles; they cling to their old sorrows and misfortunes and their failures, their past sufferings, until they become a terrible drag, a clog, a fearful handicap to their progress.

The only think to do with a bad piece of work, with an unfortunate mistake, with a sad experience, is to let it go, wipe it out, get rid of it forever. Never allow the hideous image to come into your presence again to mar your happiness or sap your strength.

It is a good time to resolve that whatever has happened to you in the past, which has caused you unhappiness, which has disgraced you, which has made you think less of yourself, and made others think less of you, you will drop it, you will not drag it through the door of the new year, that you will lock it out with the old year; that you will clean house, that you will only take with you the things which can brighten, cheer and help you.

No matter what slips you have made, no matter if you have made a fool of yourself this last year, forget it, blot it all out of your mind. Remember that every time you rehearse these unfortunate experiences you only revive the sad memories and make them so much more real to you and so much harder to get rid of and to forget.

It is wonderful what a strange fascination one's mistakes, failures and unfortunate experiences have for most people. I know people who seem to take a morbid delight in sitting for hours and thinking over the terrible things that have happened to them; rehearsing their old troubles, their misfortunes, their mistakes. A wound which is constantly probed never heals.—Orison Swelt in Success.

SUMMER SCHOOL IN FORESTRY

State Board of Agriculture Will Have One in Iosco County.

At a meeting of the state board of agriculture recently held at the Michigan Agriculture College, it was determined to establish a special summer school of forestry at the big state reserve in Iosco county.

There are about 42,000 acres in all in these wilds which affords splendid facilities for wood study, research and demonstrations in practical forestry.

The two upper classes who are now taking this study at the college will continue their work on the reserve and as many more as care to take it, and it will be a taste of the old time backwoods pioneer days, as there are no buildings on reservation, and all will have to rough it, sleeping in tents and cooking their own grub.

It seems to be a capital move on the board's part in establishing this summer school as it means actual experience in the forests and for those who have never taken the study, it would mean a splendid summer's outing and an opening later for a good position. This school will open immediately after vacation and remain open eight weeks.

BUTTERFLIES BALL FEATURE

Beautiful Insects from Abroad Contribute to Make Debut of Girl Notable Affair.

Philadelphia, Dec. 27.—Five hundred beautiful butterflies, gathered in Peru, Brazil and even in India, were turned loose over the heads of half that many gorgeously dressed women at the ball given by James W. Paul, Jr., to mark the $100,000 debut of his daughter, Mary Astor Paul, into society.

The insects fluttered about helplessly, rested upon the shoulders of the women, perched on the flowers and incidentally fell into the plates. This was the star feature of an affair in which Mr. Paul, who is a member of the Drexel banking firm, eclipsed the famous ball which he gave to his elder daughter, Mrs. Paul Dencla Mills, four years ago.

Collectors, it is said, spent months getting the butterflies, many of which died on their way to this country. Scores dropped to the floor during the dancing and were crushed under the dancers' feet.

FROM PANAMA WITH PROTESTS

Merchants Say Government Is Selling Goods So Low That They Cannot Compete.

New York, Dec. 27.—Two parties from Panama have arrived in New York, one composed of ten disgruntled steam shovel men, who threw up their jobs on the canal because they thought that several of their fellow employes who had been discharged for incompetency had not received the "square deal," and the other a delegation of merchants who are going to Washington to protest to President Roosevelt against the government stores established on the isthmus for the accommodation of the canal workers.

The merchants state that the government stores are selling goods practically at cost and that they cannot compete with them, as they are obliged to pay duty on everything they import. The merchants say that many of the employes of the canal purchase goods not only for themselves, but for others not employed on the canal and therefore not entitled to trade at the government stores.

Economy is Wealth

There is nothing like a savings account to keep poverty at arm's length.

Lots of people think it is of no use to try to save up unless they have a large lump of money to start with. A mistake. It is the little amounts saved systematically from week to week that make up the strongest barrier against need.

A dollar saved brings a fortune one dollar nearer, and helps to form a habit of saving.

A SLAVE TO CAPITALISM.

The Independent Farmer is Behind the Procession.

The farmer does not live as well as the average mechanic. He works longer hours, and his wife works still longer. He does not have as good a house, is not accessible to any amusements or recreation. The farmer works twelve to fifteen hours a day and his wife works eighteen. The mechanic works eight or ten at most, and the wife of the mechanic dresses better, has more leisure, more neighbors, attends more theaters, entertainments and socials than the farmer's wife. The children of the mechanic have better opportunities to develop, to see and learn, than the children of the farmer, whose isolation leaves them undeveloped as to the meaning of the great world they live in.

The "independent farmer" has not kept up with the procession. He is a slave to capitalism. The capitalist class puts the price on everything he raises and puts the price on everything he buys. He is given a mean living for fifteen hours' work for himself and whole family. The mechanic by organization gets as good or a better living for not over ten hours' work.

The tenant farmer or the hired farm hand does not get as good a living as the common laborer of the cities, except in the matter of food alone. Great is the independent farmer! I would not own a farm as a gift and take his long hours and isolation for the sake of having a perpetual "job" of work. I would prefer the dependence of the wage earner to such "independence."

Will the farmers not wake up to see the great hunko game that is being played upon them by the capitalist class? The farmers feed themselves and feed the whole world besides, and what do they get? Why, they get food and a little shoddy clothing! Socialism will give them everything that the world produces for not over six or eight hours average work per day. Their isolation and lack of association with their kind have prevented them from organizing as have the city workers. But they can join the Socialist party and thus work together against the common foe—capitalism. The ownership of a farm means only a mean living for the farmer. The city worker gets that without the ownership and with less labor. Their interests are identical. Will the farmer see it?—William C. Green.

NEED OF SOCIAL MORALITY.

Lack of Moral Order Makes Our Civilization a Joke.

The time is not far when men will look back with incredulous amazement at our crime and folly of compelling and being compelled to work for bread in the twentieth century of human history. Mankind, still trembling under the whip of money klud, still crouching, whining for bread! It will seem to be a folly too vast, too incomprehensible, for the new time to realize it.

In an empire of immoral chance what shall we call failure? What can you fathers tell the children to do in order to insure bread and the dignity and the delight of right living through the coming years? If any moral order prevailed in our civilization we could give the child a chart as accurate as the shipmaster's.

It is said that it takes a wise child to know its own father. Yours, not knowing your moral bankruptcy, may think that you can tell him how to live. With your knowledge of life he thinks you can tell how honor and comfort may certainly be attained. Now, what will you say to him? Will you tell him about this competitive, cutthroat, devil-take-the-hindmost philosophy of ours and recommend it as a sure moral foundation for honor and competence? None of us would want to deceive the child that way. If we were to tell the truth a generous natured child would shrink from us disgusted.

Until we have a social morality that we are not ashamed of we had better own up that we are living in a morally anarchist era and that he must "do as others do and drop with them into the muck swirl. Bid him find something to buy at one price and some one to buy it from him at another. He will find it necessary no doubt to be a liar, but he won't mind that after a little while, for competition is a great moral transformationist as it swings us into the crime of chance.—Peter E. Burrowes.

A SHIFTING CLASS.

Importance of the Small Trader and Shopkeeper in Germany.

The small trading and shopkeeping class is exceedingly numerous in Germany in consequence of the situated development which the large capitalists and manufacturers as a class have had in that country. In the larger towns it forms almost the majority of the inhabitants; in the smaller ones it entirely predominates from the absence of wealthier competitors or influence. This class, a most important one in every modern body politic and in all modern revolutions, is still more important in Germany, where during the recent struggles it generally played the decisive part.

Its intermediate position between the class of larger capitalists, traders and manufacturers—the bourgeois, properly so called—and the proletarian or industrial class, determines its character. Aspiring to the position of the first, the least adverse turn of fortune hurls the individuals of this class down into the ranks of the second.

Thus eternally tossed about between the hope of entering the ranks of the wealthier class and the fear of being reduced to the level of proletarians or even paupers, between the hope or promoting their interests by conquering a share in the direction of public affairs and the dread of rousing by ill timed opposition the ire of a government which disposes of their very existence because it has the power of removing their best customers, possessed of small means the insecurity of the possession of which is in the inverse ratio of the amount, this class is extremely vacillating in its views. Humbly and cringingly submissive under a powerful feudal or monarchical government, it turns to the side of liberalism when the middle class is in the ascendant. It becomes seized with violent democratic fits as soon as the middle class has secured its own supremacy, but falls back into the abject despondency of fear as soon as the class below itself, the proletarians, attempts an independent movement.—Karl Marx in "Revolution and Counter Revolution," 1848.

Private Ownership.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wageworkers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit and the schools and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subserviency and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wageworkers and make all mankind into a brotherhood.

Makes the World Boiler.

If Socialism is true, it must radically change our ideas in the fields of ethics, religion, business conduct and family life. Individualism in religion has made personal salvation the one great aim. The moment a man becomes thoroughly permeated with the social spirit he will not only seek to apply his religion to making this world better, but he will also put a less exaggerated importance upon his own personal continuation in the future world. Socialism must transform the conception of immortality, not to blot it out, but to socialize it.—Exchange.

Jerome K. Jerome a Socialist.

Excerpt from an interview with the great English humorist in the New York Times:

"I don't call my lectures Socialism, because people don't like the word, you know, but I manage to introduce the doctrine without their knowing what it is, and they always agree with me," he explained. That was the satisfying thing about it all—they always agreed with him. If they didn't, would he go on lecturing?

We Want to Live.

The great practical claim of Socialism is essentially a religious claim. It is that we shall have a beautiful world to live in. We have already the beautiful external world of nature, but our social order and organization deprive us of opportunity to so live in it that we may make its beauty our own.

SOCIALIST SHOTS.

Socialism is not a theory, but a logical sequence. It is not a guess, but a further development of a well tested principle.

If half the capitalist papers report of crime, poverty and oppression under capitalism is true the system is already damned out of its own mouth.

The only kind of religion that Socialism opposes is the political kind that apologizes for the evils of capitalism and goes out of its way to antagonize and misrepresent Socialism.

There is absolutely no regulation and punishment of the trusts proposed that does not have as its primary object the perpetuation of the system that robs the laborer and creates a class of idle rich.

Our forefathers rebelled against paying tribute to the king of England, yet we are paying tribute of profits to the king of England and the emperor of Russia, both of whom have financial interests in this country.

Private ownership of the sources and means of existence has reduced one class to living merchandise and another to heartless hawkers of such merchandise. Social ownership will elevate both to the dignity of equal freedom and noble manhood.—Appeal to Reason.

William Morris—I feel sure that the time will come when people will find it difficult to believe that a rich community such as ours could have submitted to live such a mean, shabby, dirty life as we do.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "Socialism promises to be a force with which American statesmen may have to reckon."

The subject of Socialism is not one to be ignored nor to be sneered out of discussion by the beneficiaries of the oligarchy of wealth. It is receiving the best thoughts of the best minds of the most enlightened nations of the earth.—Editorial, in Seattle Daily Times.

School Time.

The summer days have glinted out;
'Tis now the time for school.
The time for lessons, long and hard,
The time for rote and rule.
Upon the village quietude,
There breaks a solemn knell!
Our Willie hustles 17) out of bed—
It is the "second bell!"

With sleepy eyes and tangled hair,
He climbs into his shirt—
And gets the thing on wrong-side-to—
Next he attacks the dirt.
A lick, a promise—and he rubs
A towel o'er with grime—
Meanwhile, his mother cautions him
About the flight of time.

He rushes madly to his food
And gulps it down like sin;
Once more he cannot find his hat
And calls his mother in.
"For goodness sake!" the mater cries,
"You have not combed your hair!
The stockings that you wear are mut
And never were a pair!

"Where is your collar and your tie?
Your shirt is wrong-side-out!
Oh, Willie, will you never learn
To not throw things about?
Where did you put your hat last night?
There! Right there on that nail!
No wonder it was lost to you!
Now hurry! Here's your pail!"

Then Willie dashes down the path
To reach the school on time.
Alas! Alack! When near the goal,
He hears the "last bell" chime!
Then backward with a laggard step,
He takes his sobbing way—
And soon the teacher gets this note:
"Our boy is sick to-day!"

Rag Time.

The wise physician never advises a poet to sleep after his meals. The poet needs sleep at regular intervals, the same as other workers.

Wives, don't press your husband's trousers. Let them go baggy. Young women will note that the wearer is married and not flirt with him.

In our new house, which is 70x22, I have a corner 8x10 all for myself—and while it isn't much, I think it's going some for a married man. Don't you?

A Chicago newspaper writer has turned up his nose at a $20,000 salary. We might add that he has turned up his toes, also.

I advised a friend of mine to buy a safety razor. He did and cut his face terrifically the first time over. Some men would get their coattails wet crossing the Sahara desert.

My new pup had an awful fight with himself in a mirror the other day. The mirror won and now the pup is afraid to look himself in the face.

By the rules of the union, no man should love his wife over eight hours a day.

Find that last year's snow shovel NOW. Don't wait until old Boreas is abroad in the land and the neighbors have tracked your walk into a pack so hard you cannot remove the beautiful without cussing. Take time by the whiskers and be prepared for the first snow fall. Then while the admiring neighbors are watching you, get out and give a living example of your foresight and your industry. Be a model husband and get even with a lot of fellows who have been held up to you by your wife as the real thing in husbands. Revenge is always sweet. "Do it now."

A good husband should be liberal with his alimony.

And this reminds me, that some women are drawing more money as alimony than they ever received as wives.

Well, I've got my new house plastered without a mortgage. Luck, ain't it?

Some young men would rather receive a package of cigaret papers than the papers entitling them to a new job.

The cottage which inspired "Home, Sweet Home" is fast crumbling to decay, but at that, it has lasted longer than many a "sweet home" started by sons of millionaires and their actress wives.

...en as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Friends of Julian Duprront, of Provemont, wonder who is trying to make him appear foolish. Duprront plowed up a stone in one of his fields and it bears a date six years later than the time when Columbus discovered America.

The stone is almost skull shaped and is of a large variety common along the beach of Lake Michigan. On it was carved a rude portrait of a man's face and below this is the date "1498" while above it are the initials "J. A. T." On the other side is a poorly drawn picture of a bird and implement resembling a sword. There are numerous other marks, but the action of water or other agencies has rendered them illegible. The figures, lettering and portrait are apparently of great age. Duprront would not have noticed it as stones are common in the fields, but the image side happened to be uppermost.

Duprront believes the find is genuine and will eventually make him rich. He says it means that a portion of Columbus's expedition was left behind and in some manner made their way to the main land and pursued by Indians, or still seeking the northwest passage, wandered into this region five centuries ago.

TELLS HOW TO MIX IT

Directions to Prepare Simple Home Mixture.

Tells You How to Overcome Rheumatism With Simple Recipe, Which is Easily Mixed.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

"Mr. Martin Maloney's daughter, Helen, is with him at the city residence in West Logan Square. Beyond saying that the rumors about the precarious condition of his daughter's health are unfounded, neither Mr. Maloney nor any member of his family has anything to say for publication.

GOLD LYING AROUND LOOSE

Bags in the Corner of a Refrigerator Car Contain $19,000—Owner Is Not Known.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 28. — Nineteen thousand dollars in gold and silver, tucked away in frozen bags and lying in the dark corner of a Soo Line refrigerator car that passed through Menominee a week ago attached to a Northwestern railway freight train, is reported to have been found in the same car while it was lying in the Soo yards at St. Paul several days ago.

It is thought it may be the booty of a gang of safeblowers that visited Marinette, Oconto and Brown counties during the past month, or a portion of the money stolen from the express office in Milwaukee. The car, it is alleged, was lying in the Milwaukee yards when it was coupled to the Northwestern freight and pulled to Marquette. Whether the money was deposited in the refrigerator during this time no one but the mysterious party who put it there knows.

Courier Grange Column

Last Thursday night I had the pleasure of nttending the meeting of Marfon Center Grange, the 6rst grange meeting I have been nble to nttend in Charlevofx county. If I had expected to find (which I did not) grange conditions different here than where I had previously done grange work, I would have been disappointed. Barring the fact that some of the faces were strnuge, I could easily have thought myself in my home grnnge; the friendly manner in which everybody was greeted, the feast which followed the work of the meeting, nnd, most of nll, the nrrnngements which were mnde for a bee on the hall, all took me back to the days when I, too, could take an nctive part in the bees for work on our grnnge home, when we considered it a regular part of the winter's work to spend a day or so a week at work on nur grnnge home.

One very interesting feature of he meeting wns the report of the stnte grnnge, given by Brothers Ward and Burns, in showfng the respect with which the 'deliberntions of nur order is wnlched. Not only hns our pnst been a pnst of achievements, but the grnnges of Michigan have work to do in the future, nnd having gnined our power by the high standard which we have set, let us continue to use thnt power for the highest good of nll the people.—Ed.

This meeting will take the plnce of the regular children's meeting, that is held every three months especially for the children of the nefghborhood.

A very interesting talk on the ship subsidy bill which has been before congress for several session, was given by some of the older members of the grange.

A debate: "Resolved, That the New Tnnney School Law is Unjust," wns the most interesting part of the lecturer's hour. Anna Murphy, Bert Olney and Clara Liskum had the nffirnntive side of the debate nnd John Murphy, Cecil Burns Reuben Murphy had the negntive. The negntive side won. The grange voted to have a dance New Years night.

One brother applied for a withdrawal card, but the grange took no nction on his application

January Woman's Home Companion

The Woman's Home Companion for January begins well with a handsome and showy cover design by James Montgomery Flagg. It fs a notable number from the standpoint of illustrations. In addition to Flagg's striking cover design, there fs a full-psge reproduction of W. Balfour Ker's painting, "Forgotten." It represents a winter farm scene, the house and barn in the distance, and the family horse standing drearily by the pasture bars, ankle deep in the falling snow—forgotten.

Dr. Hale's Monthly Talk is on the subject of "New Year's Wishes." Jack London contributes the first letter of his important series of first-hand impressions for which the Woman's Home Companinn sent him aronnd the world; it is the record of a marvelous adventure among the lepers of Molokai In the January number begins a series of programs and selections of the music of to-day of the great music-loving nations. The January program, which is American, is supplemented by the music and words of two songs by Clayton Johns, hints as to the making of a program, by Madame Nordica, and instructions as to the rendering of each piece on the program by the composers themselves.

Among the fictiou is an important installment of Mrs. Elizabeth Stnart Phelps' great novel, "Though Life Us Do Part;" "The Adjusted Honeymoon," by Anne Warner; "A Lesson in Consequence," by Mary Wilhelmina Hastings; "Rose Mary," a Quaker love story by Carrie Hunt Latta, and "The Lamps of Psyche," by Zona Gale, author of the new popular novel, "The Loves of Pelcas and Ettarre."

An interesting feature of this issue of the Companion is a new department entitled "Teens and Twenties," conducted by Lucy Norman. The horticultural authority, Samuel Armstrong Hamilton, contributes a valuable article on "Plants for the Winter Window." Anna Steese Richardson's p... ment for The Girl Who Earns Her Own Living is as valuable as ever, as is Mrs. Sangster's Home Page.

A new departure is a study of Three Important Successful Plays, by Anne Peacock.

TRAINS CRASH DURING A FOG

Accident Occurs Just Outside Pennsylvania Station at Camden, N. J.

THREE DEAD, SEVENTEEN HURT

Wreckage Catches Fire and People Under It Are Saved by Prompt Action.

Entire Family of Five Persons Cremated in Their Burning Home Near Boston—Several Lives Lost While Skating.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 27.—Three persons were killed and seventeen injured in a collision on the elevated tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad just outside the station here, when a Pemberton accommodation train ran into the rear of an Atlantic City express. A heavy fog was the principal contributory cause of the accident.

The dead are: C. P. Souljen, Stanwick, N. J.; J. L. Gaebarful, Mount Holly, N. J.; T. L. Webster, Merchantville, N. J. All those killed or injured were passengers in the first car of the Pemberton accommodation.

Trains Running Slowly.

Both trains were due in the Camden station at 8:31, the Atlantic City express having precedence. The fog was so thick that the engineers of the two trains were running cautiously and just outside the station the Atlantic City train was signalled to stop. The engineer of the Pemberton train failed to see the Atlantic City train in time to avoid a collision, but he instantly jammed his brakes down hard when it loomed up through the fog.

The sudden jolt forced the tender of the Pemberton train into the first car, wrecking it badly and either killing or injuring everybody in the coach. The train, however, did not come to a full stop, but slid into the rear of the Atlantic City express, causing the tender to still further telescope the first car.

Wreckage Catches Fire.

The force of the collision was slight and no one was injured on the forward train.

Hot coals from the wrecked locomotive of the Pemberton train set the wreckage on fire and it was at first feared that many of the injured passengers who were pinioned under the heavy twisted iron and wood would be burned to death, but the prompt action of the Camden fire department in extinguishing the flames and the efficient rescue work of the uninjured passengers undoubtedly saved many lives. Several of the injured may die.

ENTIRE FAMILY CREMATED.

Father, Mother and Three Children Perish in Burning Home.

Boston, Dec. 27.—Five persons were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the house of John Clark at Watertown, a suburb, early in the day. Every member of the Clark family met death in the flames. The dead are John Clark, his wife and their three children, John, aged eleven, Philip, aged nine and Doris, aged two.

The flames had made great headway when first discovered by a neighbor, shortly after 1 o'clock. The house was two miles from the center of the town and by the time the firemen reached the scene, the house had been burned almost to the ground.

The firemen were able to locate the bodies of the father and two boys, but the mother and little girl were not found until the ruins of the house had cooled sufficiently to permit a more thorough search. Mr. Clark was a salesman in a seed store on Faneuil Square, Boston. The house was valued at about $5,000.

Three Drowned While Skating.

Rutland, Vt., Dec. 27.—Three were drowned and six barely escaped the same fate because of the breaking of thin ice on a skating pond at Castleton. Kate, Mary and George Clark, all under ten years of age, were skating on the pond and ventured onto unsafe ice. The ice broke and they went into the water. Six young people who were on another part of the pond went to their rescue. All six were thrown into the water by the further breaking of the ice. Milkhands heard their cries and succeeded in saving all but the three Clark children.

Workman Is Boiled Alive.

Ashland, Wis., Dec. 27.—Falling into a vat of boiling hot water, John Lind, an employe of the Ashland Stave company, was literally boiled alive. He was in the water but a few seconds, but died ten minutes after being taken out from the terrible burns he received. The unfortunate man was working on top of the vat when he fell.

Onions Sold at a Bargain.

New York, Dec. 27.—Onions were sold at a bargain in New York yesterday. The chief of the seizure division of the customs house auctioned off 4,475 boxes of Spanish onions which arrived on the steamer Erika and on which the consignees refused to pay $880 duty. Spanish onions ordinarily sell at from 75 cents to $1.10 a bushel, but these only brought from 11 to 13 cents, the total amount realized being $199.70, only a little over half the amount of the duty.

John Hogan Dead.

Word was received today from Escalon, California, that John Hogan, formerly a citizen of Charlevoix, had recently died at his home at that place.

Mr. Hogan was a victim of consumption, having removed to California from this city about two years ago in the vain hope of recovery from the disease to which he has at last succumbed. He was, at the time of his death, nearly 51 years of age. His remains were buried at Burrwood cemetery, near Stockton, California.

Mr. Hogan leaves three young children, his wife having died some two years ago.

TRIP TO THE GREAT WEST.

Rev. Ewald Soland Describes It For Charlevoix Friends.

From Michigan to Colorado—Will Be Further Continued Next Week.

Rev. Ewald Soland, O. F. M., box 582, Hood River, Wasco County, Oregon.

To all dear friends of Charlevoix, Beaver Islands, Boyne City.

Often and often have I remembered my promise to describe to you my trip to the great west and of what I should see and experience. I have delayed so long, not because I did not think it worth while to write, but rather, in the first place, to let me write more coolly and soberly, so that no one might say it were overdone in the first enthusiasm; and then, to get, personally, and through others, thoroughly acquainted with things new, as most things were to me.

With the help of the written description and the map and Hood River pamphlet, I hope you will get a good idea of the great northwest.

With best wishes to all my dear old friends of Michigan, I remain in loving remembrance,

Yours truly,
REV. EWALD SOLAND.

P. S.—If anyone desire further information about land prices or any other information, let him write to my address as given at the head of this letter, and I shall answer when time allows. I hope that all my old friends will look upon this entire correspondence, map, cards and pamphlet, as a personal correspondence to each one, as it would be simply impossible for me to write to each one singly.

Greetings to all old friends and acquaintances of Beaver Island, Charlevoix and Emmet counties from the wild and wooly west.

The West, the Wild West! What romantic pictures are again enlivened in our memory when hearing this word. The land of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, the home of the Indians and of the wild buffalo that roamed over the vast prairies in countless numbers, now gone like his copper-skinned master. The West, the Wild West! Traversed it is not more than sixty years ago by the daring pioneer in a heavy cart drawn by the slow ox-team, the home of the prairie dog, of the coyote, of the grizzly bear, the death dealing rattlesnake. The West, the Wild West! The home of silver and gold, horses and cattle and sheep, of the horse-trainers and cowboys, the home of the Rocky and Cascade Mountai

But "civilization, beautiful civilization" as people are wont to call today's national progress, has marched westward, "civilization" that conglomeration of factory smoke and electric glare, of boodle and divorces galore, has reached the west and has absorbed to a great extent what was old and wild and romantic. And yet there is enough of the grand and majestic, of the wild and romantic, of the high snow-covered mountains, of mountain streams and valleys—of busy restless life, of wild and of civilized life, from Michigan to the shores of the old Pacific Ocean to make the trip one of combined varied interest and keen enjoyment.

Popular Charlevoix Business Man Weds Missouri Lady.

The many friends of Levi Shea, the popular harness dealer of this city, who noted his absence from his accustomed place in our city, were surprised when he returned Thursday, accompanied by a wife.

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY

Prominent Business Man Stricken in Prime of Life

Byron W. Miller Passes Away After Illness of Few Days Duration

Byron W. Miller died this afternoon at his home, corner of State and Mason streets, from inflamation of the bowels, with other complications, after an illness of but three or four days,—so brief that many of his friends had not yet learned of his illness.

Mr. Miller was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, and was born in St. Lawrence county, New York, in 1856, coming to Charlevoix with his parents in 1866. He was 52 years of age at the time of his death.

Since arriving at manhood he has been prominent among the business men of Charlevoix, being first a member of the firm of Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co. and later succeeding to their general merchandise business. He has been honored a number of times by being elected to positions of trust and responsibility in the community, having been a member of the village council, township treasurer, under sheriff and deputy sheriff, and as indicative of the esteem in which he was held, was considered one of the strongest candidates who could be named in the city.

Mr. Miller leaves a wife, and two grown sons, Milo and Earl, and a young daughter, Miss Margery, all resident in this city.

Of an impulsive outspoken nature, Mr. Miller was yet possessed of a kindly disposition and abundant good nature, and had many friends and few enemies. It is doubtful if any man in the city is more widely known in this section, or will be more sincerely mourned than will "Bill" Miller.

Mr. Miller was a member of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., and Pine Lake Lodge No. 122, Knights of Pythias.

FROM SASKATCHEWAN

Isaac Mills Writes to The Courier of Life in the Northwest.

How the Charlevoix Colony Spent Christmas—Year Has Been a Bad One.

Elstow, Saskatchewan,
Dec. 23, 1907.

Editor Courier:

Some time ago I promised to write the Courier a letter.

First, I want to ask all our Charlevoix correspondents, as well as the Courier, to change our address from Saskatoon to Elstow, Saskatchewan, which is our new town, seven miles from our homestead. The long looked for railroad has the steel all laid, and we are hoping to have at least a mixed train this winter.

I will go back a year and give an account of weather, crops, etc. January was the coldest and most stormy month on record, the thermometer going as low as 45 degrees and I think never got up to zero. February was a little more moderate; March we began to count the weeks till seeding time, and that is when one went slow. May 10th there were snow banks around our buildings three and one-half feet deep, but we were beginning to do a little on the land. May 14th Will Trimble sowed some wheat. May 24th I finished sowing my wheat; May 28th finished sowing my oats; 30th planted potatoes; June 6th commenced breaking and kept at it pretty steady for six weeks. During this time we had some rain, but it never wet down more than four inches. This is generally our wet season, and we had more rain this year than any time since we came here.

After about the middle of July we put in our time backsetting (plowing the second time), discing, and putting up prairie hay; August 31st had quite a frost; September 13th had an inch of snow, which made us begin to fear for our wheat; September 25th finished cutting grain which was badly frozen; October 7th commenced to stack; on the same day a threshing machine started up at a neighbor's.

Since our grain was cut we have had the most beautiful weather.

November 7th it froze up so as to stop work on the land.

Nov. 13th at five o'clock a. m. it was four below zero. Well, it has been about there most of the time since, but I think not more than ten below.

Our grain turned out about one-half what we had hoped for, and then it is only fit for feed.

Our friends in Charlevoix will begin to think this is a very poor country, but this has been a very unusual year.

Ordinarily seeding begins about the first of April, and harvesting about the middle of August. Wheat usually turns out from twenty to forty bushels to the acre, and oats from forty to eighty bushels. During the threshing season we can see as many as four machines at one time, and at night we often see six or eight straw stacks burning. I often wish that the straw that is burned here could be shipped to Michigan, and I am sure it would be put to a better the land will not wear nearly as long on that account.

Well, since I started this letter, Christmas is past. We spent the day in a bachelor's home, with the rest of the Charlevoix colony, thirteen in all, and had a very pleasant time. A dinner fit for the president and there were no officious neighbors to order liquor put on the table.

Wishing the Courier and all our old friends a happy and prosperous new year, I remain,

Very truly yours,
ISAAC MILLS.

ACCIDENTAL POISONING.

Beaver Island Correspondent Tells of Fatal Accident.

A fatal case of accidental poisoning occurred at High Island Friday last. A half-drunken Indian named Joe Pete went to the company store there which is in charge of a man named Wilson and asked for three bottles of Jamaca ginger to warm up his stomach. He was given aconite instead of ginger, the clerk not noticing the label, in fact did not know of the presence of this deadly poison on the shelves, the ginger being put up in bottles identical in appearance with the aconite, though with proper label.

After treating himself liberally, he passed the bottles to his friends, who all partook. In a short time afterwards Joe Pete was dead and three or four of his friends were suffering from the effects of the poison until medical help could be secured.

The remaining victims will recover.

MORE FROM BEET GROWERS

D. E. Ingalls and Ed. Boss Give the Amount They Received.

Both Believe That This is Destined to be a Great Beet Section

This week the COURIER has received calls from D. E. Ingalls, of Banks township, Antrim county, and Ed Boss, of Marion township, who wish us to publish the result of their experience in sugar beet culture, feeling that the statement of Mr. Larabee, which was published in the COURIER last week did not go into the indirect profits of the business enough.

Mr. Ingalls from four acres of beets received in round numbers $220 as pay for his crop of beets. Further he believes that the beet-tops, which are left after the beets are topped, are worth at least $10 an acre as feed for stock, coming at a time when the need of something besides dry feed is necessary, their feeding value is the next thing to ensilage.

Ed. Boss from one and one-fourth acres of beets received $76.85, and his father, John Boss from one and three-fourths acres received $111.80.

Both Mr. Ingalls and Mr. Boss are enthusiastic believers in the future of this region as a beet producing section, and by these figures they have good reason to be.

Not only as in the case of Mr. Larabee do they show a better profit per acre, than almost any other crop, but experience has shown that hardly any other crop, suitable to this region, is able to stand both wet and dry seasons as well, and the indirect benefits of the necessity of the successful beet-grower keeping his fields free from foul stuff, cleans cleaner and better kept up farms, better roads are needed for transportation, and more stock is kept to consume the tops and pulp, which means the maintaining of the fertility of the soil.

RALPH BINGHAM NEXT.

Second Number of Lecture Course Will be January 17.

Humorist, Violinist, Vocalist and Raconteur—Strong Testimonials.

Friday evening, January 17, Ralph Bingham will give the next number of the lecture course. Dr. Vincent, who was to have been the second speaker on the course, will appear April 10 to close the course. This means a little delay in the lecture by Dr. Vincent, but otherwise the course has not been changed. There are four numbers more to be given, and these are available to the public for the price of the course, $1.50. The attractions are of high grade, and $1.50 is a very low price for attractions of their quality. Single admission to the entertainmeot giveo by Leland T. Powers is 75 cents, and to each of the other numbers, it is 50 cents. It appears, therefore, that by single admission, these entertainments will cost $2.25. If you do not have a course ticket, buy one at once. The reserve seat sale for Ralph Bingham will opeo at the Ivy Drug Store Wednesday evening January 15 at 7 o'clock.

This entertainment by Mr. Bingham deserves more than ordinary mention. He is a humorist, violinist and raconteur. From first to last he holds his audience and delights everyone. He gives an evening of song, music and story in a charming manner. Notice what Ex-Governor Bob Taylor says as well as Paul M. Pearson, editor of "Talent":

Bristol, Tenn.—"I consider my friend Ralph Bingham to be the finest all around entertainer on the American platform."—Ex-Goveroor Bob Taylor, of Tennessee.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"Ralph Bingham is funny because he can't help it. If he went into the undertaking business he would be expelled from the union in a week. He was born to drive dull care away, a doctor who cures by the good old rule of 'laugh and grow fat.' And he is one of the few doctors who seem to take their own medicine. On the platform or off, with an audience of one or five hundred, if Mr. Bingham's audience is not shrieking with laughter, you may take it for granted that it is composed of deaf-mutes who have not yet learned to read lip movements.

"But what does he do, anyhow? Well, he monologues and plays the violin. His monologues are either original, or might as well be; their rendition, at least, is original and inimitable. His face changes with every shift in the humor; you hardly need to hear the story, for you can see it. He uses many puns, and the pun is said to be the lowest order of wit. But there are puns and puns, and Mr. Bingham's are as near the highest wit as it is possible for a pun to be. He makes use of remarkable metaphors and similies; there is a constant crackling of jokes throughout the monologue, and last, but not least, the monologue itself is always new."—Paul M. Pearson, editor Talent.

Charlevoix County Pioneer Dies at an Advanced Age.

The total salary of the ninety-six delegates is $960 a day, or $6,720 a week. The official reporter's contract for a stenographic report of everything spoken on the floor of the convention is $500 a week; but he has to divide with a staff of associates. The clerical force, messengers and janitors, of whom there are about fifty, draw all told, approximately $1,200 a week. Then there is the printing. Also to the gross cost must be included the delegates' mileage and the expenses of their election. As the convention can run a few days over fourteen weeks the gross cost will be between $130,000 and $150,000, probably nearer the latter figure. Figured on a per diem basis, $1,500 is a fair estimate of the convention's cost to the state.—Lansing Republican.

Literary Notes

Doctor Hale on Woman's Work.

In his monthly talk in the Woman's Home Companion Dr. Edward Everett Hale says:

"Will you please remember that the bottom rock of American success is the habit or determination that every place, village, town, neighborhood, or whatever you call it, shall have home rule. If I and Mr. Goodchild want to have a road and a bridge which shall go back to the rhododendron swamp, we build the road and we build the bridge with such help as we can from Mrs. Tucker or from Mr. Champlin, and do not write to a sub-prefect who writes to a prefect who writes to an assistant Commandant who writes to another Commandant who writes to an Intendent who writes to a secretary of engineers who sends word to us from the seat of government whether we may build the bridge and how we may build it. Lift where you stand expresses the foundation principle, the subsoil, the hard pan, the bed rock of American life.

"Now, a very queer thing has developed in the evolution of this principle. It has proved that where the men of the country have been too busy, or have thought they were, to attend to their own affairs, the women have been able to attend to them better than the men do.

"Take this business which I have referred to, of a neighborhood library, feeding a region of not more than four or five thousand people. The affairs of that library, if they are well conducted, are conducted by the women of the neighborhood. They know what their children want, they know what their husbands need. And it is very fortunate for the neighborhood and the library that they can harness the horses and can drive themselves to the meetings of trustees and select the books and tell Miss Dorcas how many she may buy."

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement in a New York daily newspaper, that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe; try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

TRAIN CAN'T WAKE HIM.

But When a Doctor's Summoned He Says "Wazzer Mazzer?"

Allentown, Pa.—Bringing his Reading railway train to this city at ten o'clock at night, Engineer Thomas O'Neill rounded a curve to be shocked by the discovery of a man sitting on the track. O'Neill blew his whistle and reversed his engine, but without avail, for the man was tossed by the cow-catcher into the air, and turned a somersault.

When finally the train was stopped the limp form was tenderly lifted into the engine cab and taken to Blandon, where men were sent post haste for a doctor.

While the little group at the station anxiously waited for signs of the flickering life they hoped might remain, the injured man awoke from his slumber, pulled himself together, yawned, then stretched and grunted as if with sheer disgust:

"Wazzer mazzer you? I can walk all right—walk a rail, if nezzary!"

Whereas he arose and did walk out of the station, as if he thought that nothing had happened. Before he disappeared in the darkness they asked his name, and the laconic answer, comparatively sober now, came back: "Shally Burke!"

Digs His Own Grave.

Paris, France.—An unusual method of committing suicide has been adopted by an architect at Lyons. He had been missed from his office in the city for ten days, but it was supposed that he was spending a holiday at his place in the country near to Tour de Salvagny.

Here his body has just been discovered. He had apparently dug the pit where it was found, and settled himself down at the bottom, and had then blown out his brains. A note in the architect's handwriting was lying among the loose earth requesting that the body might be buried in the grave which he had dug.

SEEKS CAUSE OF LOVE

PROF. HALL TAKES CENSUS FROM HAPPY YOUNG COUPLES.

Learns That Eyes, Hair and Sometimes Freckles Attract Young Ladies—Says Half of College Women Don't Marry.

Boston.—Precisely what it is—what attribute or physical characteristic, in the youth or maiden, the man or woman, that most attracts one of the opposite sex, is the problem of which Dr. G. Stanley Hall, professor of psychology in and president of Clark university, Worcester, Mass., has set out to find the solution.

To this end he has taken a census of young lovers, with a view to learning what in each case has most endeared to him or her the particular object of the affections.

It was Dr. Hall who recently declared that 50 per cent of college women failed to marry, thus contributing to race suicide. The complete result of this census of sweethearts Dr. Hall has not yet given to the public, but he has made known an abstract of what he has learned.

With hundreds of sweethearts heard from, Dr. Hall states that the characteristics specified by them are, in the order of their frequency, as follows:

Eyes, hair, size or stature, feet, brows, complexion, cheeks, form of head, throat, ears, chin, hands, neck, nose, finger nails and contour of face.

Which is to say that more of those lovers interrogated have found the loved one's eyes or hair the chief attraction than anything else.

The women replying to Dr. Hall's questions have also specified these charms in the men they loved best:

Regular teeth, broad shoulders, and white teeth; and most popular among men have long lashes and arched brows.

According to some of those replying, a retrousse nose, freckles and a long neck have been the chief charms.

The voice cuts an important figure among the charms. With some it is a high voice; with others a low voice. Even a lisp has been stated as a charm. Laughter, carriage, gait, gesture, movements of the eye, poses of the head and shoulders have also been specified in the replies.

FINDS PHANTOM BRIDE OF WILL

Woman to Whom Aged Recluse Left $75,000 Is Known to Sister.

Providence, R. I.—The mystery of old William B. King's bequest of a small fortune to Louise B. Blankenburg, whom he designated in his will as his "intended bride," has been in part disclosed.

It was at first thought, for the reason that no one in Johnston, where King lived, could recall such a person, that she was a myth, the mere figment of the disordered brain of a sick old man who was permitted to make a will on his deathbed that he might thus be kept quiet.

While all the residents of Johnston refuted the idea of the existence of the lost "bride" of the 77-year-old recluse, the fact has been ascertained that King's aged sister, Abbey A. King, who has shared his hermit-like existence, knows of the woman and can tell where in this city she may be found, but she won't talk on that point.

Miss King admitted today that she has known Miss Blankenburg since the latter was a little girl, and that twice her brother had called upon Louise, who, she says, is now 33 years of age, a dressmaker, and lives with a grandmother. She will not say just where the grandmother lives, for fear that that disclosure will add to the sensational stories which have already found publication, and for fear that [illegible]

AIR IS TO FEED THE FARM,

Edison Predicts Success of New Fertilizing Process.

New York.—Thomas A. Edison, is quoted in an interview as predicting that before long science will enable the farmer to enrich his lands by means of nitrogen from the air. He said:

"Until recently the utilization of atmospheric nitrogen was regarded as merely a laboratory demonstration. Business men said it would never be obtained cheaply enough to sell to the farmer as fertilizer. In Norway a plant has been established which has been conducted with such good results that I expect to see atmospheric fertilizer on the market in this country within the next ten years.

"That such a product will soon be imperatively necessary there is no doubt. Every shipload of wheat and corn which goes abroad leaves the United States so much poorer, not in gold, but in nitrogen.

"Another scientific discovery which I expect to see before I die," continued Mr. Edison, "is the direct generation of electricity from coal. This has already been achieved in an experimental way. I have heard of several men who have done it.

"Imagine what will be the consequences! At the present time nine-tenths of the power obtained from coal is lost by the use of boilers, wheels and dynamos. With the direct generation of the electrical current, therefore, the world will have ten times more energy than now."

CURE FOR SPINAL MENINGITIS.

New Serum Discovered by Berlin Professor Gives Surprising Results.

Berlin.—Marked success has been attained with a cure for spinal meningitis in Berlin with the aid of a new serum discovered by Prof. Wassermann, successor of Prof. Koch as the chief authority on infectious diseases.

The cure was effected under the direction of Dr. Herman Schmidt, chief of the First Army hospital, of Berlin, in the case of a soldier lying at death's door. The worst features of the ailment disappeared after three injections of the serum given within one week. The serum was obtained from horses after the animals were inoculated with large quantities of meningococci, or germs responsible for spinal meningitis. The curative action takes places following contact between meningococci and so-called leucocytes, or white corpuscles of the blood.

Similar experiments, likewise successful, are reported to Wasserman from New York in the newly founded Rockefeller Institute for medical research by Prof. Simon Flexner, one of the best known American medical scientists.

STOLE A TRAIN FOR A LARK.

Village Joker in a Washington Town Almost Caused a Wreck.

Bellingham, Wash. — The Great Northern - Seattle - Bellingham local train was stolen the other night from the depot where it was left for a few minutes while the crew went to lunch by Barkley McCutcheon, a town character. Jumping into the cab, McCutcheon threw open the throttle and away the train shot, going north at high speed. The bell was ringing and the whistle blowing.

The train crew rushed for the speeder and followed until it was discovered that the man at the valve had reversed the train and was returning south. He had the train under full speed, and it was only by a narrow margin that the pursuing crew was able to get off the track. McCutcheon later stopped the train, bringing it to an abrupt stop.

McCutcheon, who is about 22 years old, was very much pleased with his experience. He was [illegible] the city prison and locked [illegible] hours fine.

There is nothing like a savings account to keep poverty at arm's length.

Lots of people think it is of no use to try to save up unless they have a large lump of money to start with. A mistake. It is the little amounts saved systematically from week to week that make up the strongest barrier against need.

WHAT are the policies for which Secretary Taft stands that segregate him from Speaker Cannon, Vice-President Fairbanks, Senator Foraker and others whose supporters are "pooling their issues" in the hope to defeat the nomination of the war secretary? Secretary Taft stands, in a broad way, for the policies of the Roosevelt administration; but these are many and varied—including Panama canal, waterways, Cuba, Philippines, preservation of national resources, etc. But it is not because of differences over these policies that an influential element in the Republican party is now lining up against Secretary Taft on account of his commitment to what are termed "the distinctly Rooseveltian policies."

What are the distinctly Roosevelt policies which have made his two administrations famous, and which have roused such bitter opposition in some influential quarters, a backward glace at political history will emphasize. A quarter of a century ago the interstate commerce law was passed by congress, and seventeen years ago the Sherman anti-trust law. But until President Roosevelt's first administration both these laws had remained practically dead letters. In 1903, on President Roosevelt's recommendation, congress enacted three important laws, all as aids to the repression of rebates and other trust abuses—the Elkins act, the act creating the department of commerce and labor, and an act greatly enlarging the powers of the interstate commerce commission and the courts in dealing with secret rebates in transportation charges.

Within a few months after the enactment of this legislation four important lines of attack had been successfully opened against combinations in restraint of trade—the injunctions on railroads against rebates; the overthrow of railroad traffic pooling in the cotton cases; the indictment and defeat of the beef trust; and the dissolution of the Northern Securities merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads, the purpose of which was to strangle transportation competition in the northwest. In 1905, on the president's recommendation, these statutes were further strengthened by the railroad rate law, giving the interstate commerce commission and the courts still further powers.

When the numerous successful prosecutions are recalled against gigantic trusts and railroad combinations during the Roosevelt administration—and all in the interest of honesty and square dealing, and to protect the smaller shippers and dealers from destruction by unlawful combinations—the importance of the reforms on this line, either accomplished or in course of accomplishment, can be at least partially realized. Besides the prosecutions heretofore alluded to, the more recent convictions and fines of the Standard Oil and sugar trusts for receiving rebates, and of numerous railway companies for granting them; the pending prosecutions of the anthracite and other coal trusts; the decisions obtained in the United States courts forcing the production in evidence of trust books; the abatement of the scandalous abuses in the great packing houses of the country—these and scores cognate suggested by them are the distinctive policies which have given the Roosevelt administration the hearty support of the people, while at the same time inviting the wrath and opposition of law defying monopoly combinations.

And it is because Secretary Taft is known to stand for these distinctively Roosevelt policies that the people are rallying to his support. It is because of this, too, that the monopoly corporations are rallying to the support of other candidates known or believed to be opposed to these policies. The opponents of railway and trust regulation have, in fact, adopted as their campaign cry, "Anyone to beat Taft"—an opposition which will, as it should, add greatly to his popular strength.—Grand Rapids Herald.

THIS week we have sent out statements of our subscription accounts to all our subscribers, who are a year or more in arrears.

We trust all our friends will accept them in the same spirit in which they are sent, a desire to know exactly how our list stands. If it is not convenient to pay just now, please let us know when you will pay.

It has now been three months since we took charge of the COURIER. Up to this time we have made no effort to collect out subscriptions, because we wished to demonstrate to our readers that all our energy would be devoted to making the COURIER one of the best papers in northern Michigan. We realized that the COURIER already had a place in your affections and what changes we might make would possibly not be approved by all our friends. We feel, however, at this time that its high standard has not been lowered, and in some things we have been able to give you more. Believing firmly in the development of the agricultural resources of northern Michigan, We had established a Grange Department and have a staff of ten grange correspondents, who report week by week the proceedings of their great farmers' organization. Not only through this department do we hope to advocate the interests of Charlevoix county farmers, but we are arranging for a series of articles, which will appear from to time on the resources of Charlevoix county.

We have increased our staff of local correspondents, and have arranged for clubbing rates, whereby we can save you money, on any paper or magazine you wish to take. We have made mistakes, but everybody is apt to err.

We hope by this time, we have been able to demonstrate to you that we are serving you to the best of our ability, and if we have succeeded in sending you, week after week, for the past year or more, a welcome visitor, you will accept our reminder of your obligations to us in the same kindly manner in which it is sent, and place in our hands, more money for this further improvement of your favorite home paper.

ON re-assembling, after the holiday recess, the constitutional convention got down to real work.

The delegates have, since then, taken action on several very important matters, and have voted to place in the new constitution many things which means a radical departure from the present documents.

One new proposition, which will cause much comment, is the clause prohibiting cigarettes, which will be the first time such prohibition has been considered, anywhere as a constitutional provision. While the COURIER is in hearty sympathy with any move to stop the use of cigarettes, we believe that to be a matter which could be safely, and should be left to the legislature.

Another matter is the pay of the members of the legislature, which was fixed at $1,200. While the people at all times are apt to look with disfavor upon any proposition to increase salaries and it may endanger the ratification, we are inclined to consider it a wise move. If the salary paid is enough to make it an object for our best men to leave their homes, and spend the winter in Lansing, then the class of men which are sent there to make our laws will be better, and another thing, the sessions of the legislature with its expense, for everything except the salaries, will be shortened.

The proposition to limit the terms of office to which county officers could be elected to two terms, out of three was defeated, with the exception of sheriff. While we can see no reason why the sheriff should be left out, we believe that with the general adoption of the primary system, the people are fully competent to fix the time for which they will employ their servants.

The Yarmouth case is entered in the defended list for trial at the coming sittings of the divorce court. It will be heard in camera.

Causes Little Surprise.

Pittsburg, Jan. 3.—The news from England that the countess of Yarmouth, formerly Miss Alice Thaw of this city, had begun proceedings for the nullification of her marriage, did not create much surprise, as it has been known here for some time that all was not well between the couple.

It is said here that the estrangement resulted from two causes. The first cause is said to be the action of the earl of Yarmouth during the first trial of Harry K. Thaw, a brother of the countess, who is to be tried Monday next for the second time for the murder of Stanford White at New York.

Yarmouth Went to Egypt.

It is said when the trial was about to begin Yarmouth went to Egypt and lived, in seclusion in the select colony of English folk who reside there during the winter months. The second cause is said to be the action of the Thaw family in determining upon an insanity plea for Harry Thaw.

From reports received here from London during the past month it is said Yarmouth objected to insanity figuring in the New York Thaw trial, on the ground that it would have a direct influence on the succession of the Yarmouth estate in the event there was an issue from the marriage.

Delay in Wedding Ceremony.

The wedding of Lord Yarmouth and Miss Thaw was an event in Pittsburg society. It was planned that her eldest brother, Harry, should give her away, but he was absent. The ceremony was delayed several hours to await his coming, but he did not put in an appearance. Josiah C. Thaw, another brother, acted in his place.

It was also reported that the delay in the ceremony was due to further negotiations with regard to the marriage settlement from the Thaw family. The earl is declared to have insisted upon an increase and the papers had to be drawn up before the marriage proceeded.

Had Their Nerve with Them.

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 4.—Thieves entered the house of C. W. Ball, in a fashionable district of the city, cooked a supper on the kitchen range and then ransacked the house, stealing $20 in money and jewelry. They pulled down the curtains and even went to the trouble to light gas all over the house. Passersby thought the family was at home.

HOLCOMBE LEAVES NO TRACE

Missing Justice of the Peace and City Clerk Has Dropped Out of Sight.

Portland, Mich., Jan. 4.—No trace of H. W. Holcombe, the aged justice of the peace and city clerk, who disappeared and whose books are being examined by the city council, has been found. It is believed that Holcombe may have gone to Albuquerque, N. M., where his son-in-law lives.

A son, Claude Holcombe, of Jackson, believes that his father may have been temporarily unbalanced by severe pains in his head from which he had been suffering. Those who know Holcombe think that if there is any shortage in the city funds it was due only to carelessness on Holcombe's part, and not to any intentional peculations.

Chinaman Marries a Negress.

Jackson, O., Jan. 4.—Miss Nannie G. Buckner, daughter of a colored man, and Charles Stew, a full-blooded Chinaman from New York, were married here and left for New York after the ceremony. Some years ago Stew ran a laundry here and courted Miss Buckner, but her father said he had not enough money to support a wife. Stew went to New York and became well-to-do.

Divorce Suit Follows Quick Wedding.

Baltimore, Jan. 4.—Another chapter has been added to the romantic marriage of George F. Brouson Howard of this city to Miss Dorothy Skinner of Norfolk, Va., last March by the filing of a suit by the latter asking an absolute divorce. She charges Mr. Howard with infidelity. The courtship of the writer and Miss Skinner was a brief one, lasting only two days.

EVERY MAN A PRODUCER.

How Industry's Process Will Be Directed Under Socialism.

What, first, under Socialism, is to be the standard of right and justice? To this the Socialists say that the workers' law will be "No product, no income;" that every man must be a producer or he actually useful to the producers or else be scorned and denied share in the product. One puff of the giant's breath will blow away all that fine mechanism of law and business through which we now mulct the product of the worker on all sides under such guises as rent, interest, profit, fee and salary. The only citizenship held honorable will be economic citizenship—coursdeship in production and in the sharing of product.

The next question we ask of the Socialists is how this fine canon of justice is to be put into action—in what way is industry to be carried on? The answer of the Socialists is that that will be the affair of the experts who will have it in hand when the time comes. The proletariat, familiar with machinery and with its exact sequence of effect from appliance, reverent also of science, will entrust to scientific men the direction of its processes precisely as now do the stockholders of a corporation. There is now developing in various parts of the world—notably in England and Belgium—a science of cooperation which is producing a corps of specialists in that best and finest of all sciences and an army of workers disciplined in applying it. And it is to such trained hands that the task will be intrusted of replacing our present antiquated, clumsy, indirect process of production and distribution by a simple, direct process.—Rufus W. Weeks.

TAKE AWAY THEIR TOOLS.

The Right and the Wrong Way of Punishing Robbar Trusts.

The great United States government, mistress of the seas and monarch of the commercial world, has demonstrated that its army of deputy-marshals can run down an old man and compel him to come into court and testify like a citizen.

But to get around to the point, will you kindly tell me just what is accomplished by humbling John D. and Ruling the Standard Oil robbers?

The Standard Oil company can wind the fine right out of [illegible] ting up the price of oil. It can take every penny of it back and more.

What good does it do us to see an old man humiliated so long as they don't take his kit of burglar's tools away from him?

Yet not exactly like a common citizen, either. Come to think about it, if a common citizen had dodged the summons like Rockefeller did the court would have put him through a merciless examination as to why he evaded service and would have sent him to jail for contempt of court.

When we Socialists get into power we will deprive the Standard Oil capitalists and all other capitalists of their burglar's tools, so that they can rob us no more. That will be much better than getting a little cheap vengeance by humiliating an old man.

Revenge is useless.

Hatred is foolish.

A Socialist hates nobody. He simply recognizes the facts and acts accordingly. He goes after something substantial.—W. M. Ash in Organizer.

Thoughts to Ponder.

There is a profit-string on everything the workers need. When they eat, tug goes the string before they have satisfied their hunger, for the most of the food belongs to the capitalist class. When they clothe themselves, tug goes the string again before they have satisfied their barest needs. And so, with their home comforts and everything else, there's the string that keeps them from an even whack-up with the master class, even though labor produces all.

Yes, capitalism promotes the purity of the home, don't-cher-know! There were only 150,000 divorces in the United States last year.—Social-Democratic Herald.

With the Thinkers.

Economic equality among individuals creates the democratic virtues; economic equality among nations can alone prepare the way for international peace and justice.—Edwin R. Seligman.

One class accumulates in utter idleness enormous and ever increasing revenues; the other, far more numerous, labors lifelong for miserable wages. One class lives without working, the other works without living—without living a life, at least, worthy of the name.—Achille Loria.

AIMS OF SOCIALISM.

Complete Political Democracy Based on Adult Suffrage.

And the right of man to labor and his right to labor in joy—
Not all your laws can deny that right nor the gates of hell destroy.

Socialism does not propose to surround life with a network of laws in the vain hope that it will make men perfect and remodel human nature by legal enactment, but it does propose to destroy, as far as this is possible by collective effort, all those antisocial conditions which compel men to live vain, hopeless, sordid, brutal and unworthy lives. It does not expect nor will it attempt to overrule the great laws of human nature and make men equal, but it does make the proposal that all those things which deny equal opportunities and create unnatural inequalities should be destroyed. It claims for every child born into the world its heirship to the vast resources of wisdom and knowledge so painfully gathered by the race through long ages. It claims for every child equal opportunity for the fullest and freest development of all its powers, leaving only natural inequalities to manifest themselves. That is the "equality" of Socialism. To be more specific, the form of government at which Socialism aims, the form of government essential to its very existence, is a complete political democracy resting on the broad basis of adult suffrage. It thus elevates woman to the plane of political and social equality with man. Industrially the state—no longer representative of a class, but of the whole nation—will be as democratic as it is politically.

In a schoolroom a wise teacher placed a beautiful rose to brighten the day for her children. Soon the boys and girls began to clamor for the rose, each begging the teacher for the sole possession of it. "To give it to any one boy or girl would be unjust to all the others," said the teacher. "Besides, it would be unwise, for whoever obtained it could not get more of its beauty than now. I cannot divide it, for if I do the rose will be destroyed, and each child will have a worthless petal only. There will be no rose. Together we can enjoy it. In a real sense each of us owns the rose." Social property is like that. It cannot be owned by any individual without robbing all other individuals. It cannot be divided without ruin. Yet each individual can own the whole of his utility and enjoy its full benefits.—John Spargo.

A Paradox.

The present system is a fine mechanism and also a clumsy process, according to the point of view. As a machine for abstracting from the worker the largest possible share of his product, mainly in insensible ways, it is a marvel of ingenuity and effectiveness, while, on the other hand, looked at with regard to its economic function, its contribution to human welfare, its only true reason for existence—which is the production of the largest possible volume of useful commodities and the distribution of these commodities as wisely and as evenly as possible—it is a rude and clumsy machine.—Weeks.

Political Action.

Jaures, the French M. P., said: "We are in favor of political action because we want to gain freedom.

"You may have traitors in any party, but the worst traitor and most dangerous foe is he who as you go out in war says, 'Leave your weapons at home.' The most powerful weapon of the working class in their struggle is political action, and the most dangerous enemies of the working class are those who advise them not to use that weapon."

The Contemptible Neutral.

The world was full of battle—
The whole world, far and wide.
Men and women and children
Were fighting on either side

I was sent from the hottest combat
With a message of life and death.
Black with smoke and red with blood,
Weary and out of breath.

Forced to linger a moment
And bind a stubborn wound,
Cursing the hurt that kept me back
From the fiery battleground—

When I found a cheerful stranger,
Calm, critical, serene,
Well sheltered from all danger,
Painting a battle scene.

He was cordially glad to see me,
The coolly smiling wretch.
And inquired with admiration,
"Do you mind if I make a sketch?"

So he had me down in a minute,
With murmurs of real delight.
My "color" was "delicious;"
My "action" was "just right!"

And he prattled on with ardor
Of the moving scene below,
Of the "values" of the smoke wreaths
And the "splendid rush and go,"

Of the headlong desperate charges,
Where a thousand lives were spent;
Of the "massing" in the foreground
With the "middle distance" blent.

Said I: "You speak serenely
Of the living death in view.
These are human creatures dying.
Are you not human too?

"This is a present battle
Where all men strive today.
How does it chance you sit apart?
Which is your banner, say?"

His fresh cheek blanched a little,
And he answered, with a sadle,
That he fought not on either side;
He was watching a little while.

"Watching," said I, "and neutral!
Neutral in times like these!"
And I plucked him off his sketching stool
And brought him to his knees.

I stripped him of his traveling cloak
And showed him to the sky—
By his uniform, a traitor;
By his handiwork, a spy!

I dragged him back to the fold he left,
To the fate he was fitted for.
We have no place for lookers-on
While all the world's at war.

A Scientist's View.

I am looking to the coming year with no expectation of any great change, political or social, but with a hope and belief that the great movement among the workers in favor of a more rational and more equitable system of government and of social organization will continue to grow as it has been growing during the last few years.—Alfred Russell Wallace.

To Lovers of Liberty.

Those who love the liberties already won must open the door to the new unless they wish to see them all take flight together. There can be no single liberty. Liberties go in clusters like the Pleiades.—Henry D. Lloyd.

Altruism.

To love our neighbor is to submit to the discipline and arrangement which make his life reach its best, and so do we best love ourselves.—Henry D. Lloyd.

COURT-MARTIAL ASKED FOR RIXEY

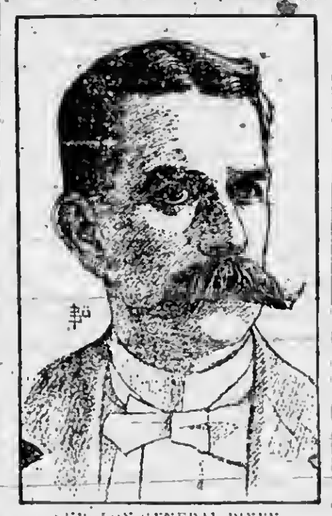
May Suffer for His Criticism of Rear Admiral Brownson.

CONTROVERSY WILL NOT DOWN

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf Will Take the Matter Under Consideration.

Acting Chief of the Bureau of Navigation Winslow Takes Action on Solicitation of Several Naval Officers.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Surgeon General Rixey, of the navy, and the president's physician, is in danger of being tried by court-martial for criticising Rear Admiral Brownson, his brother officer, in connection with the controversy between the president and



SURGEON GENERAL RIXEY.

Admiral Brownson over the question of placing a medical officer in command of the hospital ship Relief.

Violation of Regulations.

It is in violation of the naval regulations for one officer to criticize the conduct or utterances of another officer. Captain Cameron McRae Winslow, acting chief of the bureau of navigation, formally called the attention of Secretary Metcalf of the strictures which Surgeon General Rixey passed upon Admiral Brownson, and the bureau of navigation in the statement made by Surgeon General Rixey in criticism of Admiral Brownson, who insisted upon a staff officer being placed in command of the Relief.

Brownson Resigns as Chief.

Surgeon General Rixey, favored staff officer for this command. But President Roosevelt disapproved the recommendations of Admiral Brownson, who resigned as chief of the bureau of navigation, and wrote a sharp letter to President Roosevelt. Captain Winslow acted on the urgent solicitation of a large number of officers, who are in sympathy with the policy of Admiral Brownson. The bitterness will be engendered between the line and staff officers as the result of the recommendation of Captain Winslow.

Secretary Metcalf Silent.

Secretary Metcalf declines to discuss the subject, but he will take the matter under consideration, and after looking into the facts, may order the appointment of a court of inquiry to make an investigation. Upon the findings of this court of inquiry will depend whether or not Surgeon General Rixey will be court-martialed. If this chances of being ordered before the court are excellent, as he prepared and made public the statement in which the criticism of Admiral Brownson was made, and this fact is so well known that it can not be denied.

Haggin Seeks Futurity of 1910.

New York, Jan. 4.—James B. Haggin, the famous horse breeder, has nominated 300 colts for the Futurity of 1910, the nominations for which have just been closed. This is the largest number of nominations ever made by one owner. A check for $1,000, or $10 for each nomination, has been received by the club. The foals will be born and trained at the Elmendorf stud in Kentucky and the Rancho del Paso in California, Mr. Haggin's breeding farms.

"Incubator Baby" Case.

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 4.—In a decision just handed down here, Judge John C. Pollock, of the United States circuit court, announced that he could had no jurisdiction in the "incubator baby" case. This leaves the child in charge of Mrs. Charlotte E. Bleakley, the mother. Mrs. James Barclay of Illinois who was given the child by adoption papers at the St. Louis World's Fair, will appeal to the United States federal court.

Believed To Be Illinois Man.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble; because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

It was in the summer of 1906 when I left old Michigan—to me the home of many fond recollections—on the trusty "Missouri," manned by faithful Capt. Finncan and his most nobly behaved crew. Ideal was the day, a clear sky and calm waters. That day I made my peace with old Lake Michigan, showing itself to me on my parting so beautiful and kind, even though I remembered many a cold and rough ride over its awfully ruffled waters.

And then after twenty-four hours, I stood in the heart of the great Chicago. Not long did I linger there, for if I were to learn Chicago's inner life it would have taken a long stay, her outward garment and appearance I had already seen and learned to admire. A side trip to Indianapolis, my home city, and from there to St. Louis, Missouri.

From Chicago to Indianapolis, all along the railroad as far as the eye could search, there was a fairly level country, covered almost without a break with corn, and corn and corn, with but very little variety excepting the towns and their immediate vicinity.

From Indianapolis to St. Louis there was a little more change in the country, corn and wheat predominating, with woods and creeks and many little and larger towns in between to make it interesting. And the towns, well they are without exception all made according to the same pattern with but very little change—and so the cities; the rich and the poor, the clean and the careless are found alike everywhere. And now we come to the great Mississippi, rolling its muddy waters slowly oceanward, a river boat here and there and then a large number lying at the banks, St. Louis once more reminded me of beautiful, but sometimes ugly Lake Michigan. There she lies, the beautiful St. Louis, stretched carelessly on the beautifully sloping west bank of the great river. Some fifty years ago people would have said that I was now already on the outskirts of the wild west, for I had crossed the boundary line between the civilized east and the wild west, but time has wiped out that boundary; you must go further if you wish to go to the west.

And I was eager for "the west" and so St. Louis had no further attraction for me and away I was on the fast moving train, speeding towards Omaha in Nebraska, to find that "wild west." And as I rode along my memory recalled the famous old prairie schooner in which the brave pioneer of the fifties and sixties had gone the same way, drawn not by the mighty fire-horse, the modern engine, but by the old reliable, although most provokingly slow ox-team. And when memory grows vivid, I recalled some of the stories about Indians waylaying the train, or Jesse James and his desparate gang of outlaws getting on board, with a dark mask over the face, holding the revolver to your face and calling "hands up"—and then, in the middle of all these dreams, there steps into our coach, a large man with a big black face and, calls out—didn't he say "hands up?" I listened again. No, he was only saying "last call for supper," and then I noticed a grin on the face of the modern train robber and saw that the mask was not put on, but just given that way, and I felt relieved. We had been travelling quite rapidly for over twenty-six hours, when at last we arrived in Omaha, Nebraska. Now and again we had a glance at muddy waters of the Missouri, twice crossing it before we stepped on the streets of Omaha. If Rome deserves to be called the city of the hills, then Omaha deserves the name of the city of 700 hills. Having the features of a great and busy city of the ordinary kind, I strove to find some of its peculiarities and I did not have to search long. Instead of finding its greatest peculinrity in the things about, I found it clinging to the heel of my shoes, for Omaha's floor is good sticky clay which needs but a little water to prove to you that Omaha has plenty of attraction. But there are many things more enjoyable in Omaha than "earthly attraction." From the window of our train from St. Louis to Omaha many beautiful scenes presented themselves to our view, large fields of corn, wheat and oats, large numbers of cattle and horses and even the famous Missouri mule did not fail in the tableau. And passing through the southwest corner of Iowa, little that was new showed itself.

In Omaha, the first Indians appeared since I left Michigan. They were fairly numerous about the depot, and resembled the Indians of Michigan very much. After two days rest in Omaha, having seen all its beauty, and having become thoroughly acquainted with its most noted attraction, we boarded the train for Denver. Soon after leaving the 700 hills of Omaha, the train came into a flat country, and lest you forget, I will speak, into a flat, flat country, as far as the eye could reach, to your right and to your left, here and afar, you could not even with a magnifying glass, looking through it from the train, see an elevation to the ground which could fairly rival a good sized mole-hill. And this beautiful diversion and change in scenery from a flat country, to a more flat country, to almost flat country, we enjoyed for fully 300 miles, almost to the very boundaries of Nebraska. Just farms, oh yes, farms, and don't forget, big farms, there were from Omaha all the 300 miles, with just enough vacant space between to squeeze a town here and there, and a farmer's home now and then. And the track of the Union Pacific railroad seemed to be as straight as the path of the sun. And along this track there slumberously moves a river called the Platte. They ought to have called it in plain English—Railway. You look in vain for a bank, its bed seems to be some 30 feet narrows placed in a phaze sway over the prairie, sometimes a current was had water and sometimes not, but at least so it appeared in the window of the car, and oft we passed by the Platte river's side. For every engine train was passing by and now the scenery began to change. Long low ridges, distinct the Rocky Mountains, and the tall giant sentinels to the right and to the left of the iron horse's path, coming now within a mile and receding to twenty miles distant. Farms now appear more frequent. Wide, wide streets as only grassy plains, devoid of all life excepting here and there a solitary rising settler who was ever ready to push the busy farm implement further west. And I thought here is the end of civilization, now starts the "west."

TROOPS CONTROL AT MUNCIE, IND.

Twelve Companies Indiana National Guard to Awe Rioters.

MARTIAL LAW IS PROCLAIMED

Major General McKee, Backed by His Soldiers, in Control of the City.

Muncie Officials Appeal to the Governor After Two Days of Rioting and Militia Is Sent at Once.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 4.—Martial law has been proclaimed in this city by Governor Hanly, and Major General McKee is in complete control. The troops here consist of the four Indianapolis companies and the battery from that city, four companies of the Second battalion from Martinsville, Franklin, Greenfield and Winchester and the four companies from the Third battalion at Columbia City, Kokomo, Crawfordsville and Warsaw.

Two Days of Rioting.

The assembling of troops is the result of two days of rioting on the streets here, during which eight cars were wrecked and eleven men were injured by bullets, stones and other missiles. Tired out with their long contest with the disturbing element the local officials appealed to the state authorities and the troops, which have been held in readiness for two days, were immediately ordered to assemble here. They number 350 officers and men. The street car company is running cars on nearly all the lines. There has been no interruption of interurban service. The trouble is with employes on local lines who belong to a different union organization.

Starting of the Trouble.

According to the state factory inspector, there are 8,000 idle men in Muncie. When the Indiana Union Traction company, which owns the city and interurban lines, refused to renew its contract on Jan. 1, with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, the ninety-six men employed on local cars here struck. Other union men out of work in sympathy began taking part in the agitation and resulting disturbances until the situation got beyond the power of the Muncie authorities and Governor Hanly took action.

Strike Begins at Marion.

About half of the employes of the Indiana Union Traction company at Marion struck during the day. Only part of the local cars are running there. The trouble has begun to interfere with interurban traffic. A meeting of the men was called to decide whether all would strike. Strike-breakers have been sent out of town by the traction line officers at Marion and it is stated they will not be brought back unless necessary.

BOMB EXPLOSION AT KANSAS CITY

Attempt to Blow Up Magnificent First National Bank Building.

NO CLEW TO THE PERPETRATOR

Bomb Is Set Off in the Toilet Room in the Basement of the Building.

Bank Crowded at the Time of the Explosion and a Panic Results —Only Three Persons Receive Injuries.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 4.—A bomb was exploded in the basement of the magnificent three-story marble building of the First National bank at the corner of Tenth and Baltimore, in the business center, a few minutes after the noon hour. The force of the explosion was terrific, and caused much damage. Three persons were injured, none fatally. There is no clew to the person who placed the bomb and set it off.

The bank was crowded with customers at the time, these together with the employes, numbering perhaps two hundred and fifty persons. A panic ensued and there was a wild scramble for the doors.

Bomb in Toilet Room.

Investigation developed the fact that the bomb had been placed in a toilet room in the northwest corner of the basement twenty feet from the main vault. The toilet room was 18 by 20 feet square, and was separated from the adjoining room by a three inch plaster partition. This partition was supported by a steel post.

The bomb struck this post with such force that it bent it a foot out of position; wrecked the partition and the plumbing, and sent a cloud of dust up the wide stairway leading to the banking rooms. Half a dozen basement windows with the steel rods protecting them were blown out into Baltimore avenue and across the street.

Shaken as by Earthquake.

The building was shaken as if by an earthquake and its force may be appreciated from the fact that it was felt in all parts of the city. Mr. Pelletier, superintendent of the fire insurance patrol, who was standing at the paying teller's window when the explosion shook the building, said:

"Following the explosion there was a great volume of smoke and dust, which poured up the stairway into the banking room. The bank was unusually well filled with people. At the moment of the explosion the crowd turned and rushed for the south door, leading into Tenth street. I called out in a loud voice for quiet, shouting that there was no danger, and rushed for the stairway.

Rescued the Negro Porter.

"When I reached the stairway powder and smoke was pouring up the entrance way. I groped my way down stairs and at the bottom found Ward, the negro porter. I carried him upstairs, where others took care of him, and returned to the basement, where I was soon able to make an investigation.

"The smell of powder and the hole in the basement made by the explosion made it certain that the explosion had resulted from a bomb being set off. There was no trace of the bomb thrower and as yet I have been unable to find any tangible clew to the manner in which the missile was placed."

Blown Across Basement.

Logan Wilson, another of the injured, was in the basement at the time. He was blown clear across the basement, and probably through the partition, a distance of twenty feet. When picked up he was unconscious. He was removed to the Emergency hospital and so far has been unable to give any account of what happened.

J. Donaldson, the third person injured, was working in his cage in the banking room. He was cut by glass that had fallen from a chandelier.

Attempt to Blow Up Residence.

Wellsville, N. Y., Jan.—The residence of Justice E. H. Carpenter at Andover was badly damaged by dynamite early in the day. The explosive was placed in a cellar window, under a bedroom usually occupied by Justice Carpenter. Fortunately, the family slept in another part of the house and were unhurt. The damage will exceed $1200. Justice Carpenter has rigidly enforced the liquor law and the crime is attributed to some one angered by this action.

Pettibone Not Guilty.

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 4.—After fourteen hours deliberation a verdict of not guilty was reached by the jury trying George A. Pettibone charged with complicity in the murder of Ex-Gov. Frank A. Stennenberg. No demonstration of any kind marked the reading of the verdict, which made Pettibone a free man after two years' awaiting trial.

Reduction Affects Thousands.

Philadelphia, Jan. 4.—Announcement is made that the Baldwin Locomotive Works of this city will run on an eight-hour instead of a ten-hour basis. The reduction in time will affect 15,800 men and boys and is equivalent to the suspension of more than 3,000 persons.

SAUSAGE IS SAUSAGE

Must Always Be Made of the Same Ingredients, Is Judge Wiest's Decision.

NO CEREALS MUST BE PUT IN

Advises the State to Wait, However—Basic-Law Makers Discuss Solons' Salaries.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 4 — Circuit Judge Wiest in an opinion holds that the use of cereal and water in sausage is an adulteration of the product and brings it within the scope of the state pure food law prohibiting adulterations. The decision was made in the application of Armour & Co. for an injunction to restrain the state dairy and food department from interfering with the sale of their sausage because cereal and water are used in its manufacture.

Advises the State to Wait.

Judge Wiest said: "With the general public of this generation largely reared on farms and in small villages, and remembering homemade sausage, there is no occasion to look at a dictionary to define sausage. The common definition is that it is composed of chopped meat, seasoned, and the definition must prevail as against a manufacturer's process of adding cereals and water." The judge, however, recommends that the state dairy and food department refrain from issuing bulletins on the subject and carrying on further investigations until the matter has been settled by the courts as to whether there is adulteration or not.

Pay of Solons Considered.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 4.—The compensation of members of the legislature was the special order of the constitutional convention. The original proposal made the salary $500 per annum for members from lower peninsula districts, and $650 per annum for members from the upper peninsula. Burton, of Wayne, offered an amendment making the sum $650 for the term, and Delegate Flannigan, of Dickinson, favored $1,200 for the two terms, and no decision had been reached at the end of the session.

Millionaire for Taft.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 4.—R. E. Olds, the millionaire manufacturer, has declared himself in favor of Secretary Taft for president. "Olds will be a candidate for delegate from the Sixth district at the Republican national convention.

Since you have required the example of incorrect pronunciation, "It was 'and' I sold, not 'of.'" It would be as well to give that even better example, "That that is is that that is not is not is not that it it is." AN ICE HOUSE FOR FARM.

When Planning It, Be Sure and Don't Get It Too Small.

The farmer in planning his ice house should not make the mistake in building too small, especially if he lives in my locality, excepting the extreme northern states. It is not so much a question of how much ice he needs for family use, but how much is going to waste and whether it will last through the hot season until cool weather arrives again. A large block of ice will last much longer relatively than one somewhat smaller. Fifteen feet square on the outside should be about the size to build an ice house for the farm. Allowing 1½ feet for the space between the two walls and the space between the inner wall and the ice, this will give a block of ice 12 feet square, and if it is 12 feet high it will contain theoretically 52° tons, but in practice not more than 40 to 45 tons, according to how closely it is laid. The loss of ice from melting is very great in all ordinary ice houses, and especially is this true where it is taken out daily in such small pieces as is usually the case.

The house should be built above ground and if it can be placed where it will be protected from the noonday sun by shade trees, it will be found to be of advantage, says the Orange Judd Farmer. A low cost ice house can be built with ordinary lumber and by any one handy with tools. The essentials to be observed are: First, drainage below and ventilation above; second, a perfectly tight foundation. Warm air rises and if a current of warm air gets started through the ice it will cause quick melting. Third, a reasonably double wall surrounding the ice on sides and top.

The foundation should be made of brick, concrete or stone masonry, and in which sills 2x8 should be bedded in cement. On this erect 2x8 studding 24 inches apart. On the inside for the inner wall ½-inch sheathing material may be used of almost any kind of lumber. Some durable wood is to be preferred, as these boards are apt to decay quickly. For the outside good novelty siding may be used. It should be free from knotholes and cracks. The rafters should be 2x4, with sheathing on the underside. It is important to have air space between shingles and sheathing beneath the rafters, as everyone knows how hot it gets under a barn roof in summer. The space between the two walls on the four sides may be left empty if the outer inclosure is very tight, as a dead air space is one of the best nonconductors. But it will not be a dead air space if there are holes or cracks in the siding, but the air will circulate and prove of little value as a nonconductor.

If the ground on which the house is situated is of a gravelly, porous nature, no provision need be made for drainage, as the water will be absorbed as fast as the ice melts. Otherwise, the floor should be graded off, so as to slope to one point, where surplus noted may be taken off by means of a trapped outlet pipe to exclude all air while allowing the water to escape.

The opening of the house should begin about four feet from the ground and extend upward nearly to the top of the roof. The outer may be made in two or three sections, and the inner inclosure supplied by boards crosswise, put in as the house is filled and taken out as it is emptied. It is a mistake to provide too much ventilation. For an ordinary house 1-foot square openings at each end under the apex of the roof are sufficient, and it would be of advantage to provide for closing these on warm days.

In filling the house never lay the ice on the ground. The warmth of the earth will melt the ice continuously. The cakes of ice should be laid on old rails or any kind of timber. Straw or cornstalks are not good, as they crush tightly to the earth, and get wet, and water is a good conductor of heat.

The ice on the pond should be worked out carefully and the blocks made of uniform dimensions. In laying, the joints should be broken, and a space of 8 to 12 inches should be left between the ice and the wall. This may be filled with straw, the same material being used to cover over the top of the ice after the house is filled. The house should be painted white.

An ice house 15 feet square and 12 high will require approximately the following amounts of lumber: 26 pieces 2 by 8 inches by 12 feet, eight pieces 2 by 8 inches by 15 feet, 11 pieces 2 by 6 inches by 10 feet, 720 feet sheathing, 850 feet siding, 900 feet shingles. It will cost at present prices of lumber about $80, independent of the foundation.

Prices.

A farmer entered one of our stores the other day and asked the price of sulphur. When told it was ten cents, he said: "I can get it from the mail order house for seven cents." "Yes," replied our merchant, who had evidently heard that argument before, "and you can get it in hell for nothing, and won't have to pay the freight." He sold him the sulphur all right.—Anderson (Kan.) Headlight.

CHIPPEWA RUSTIC COMPANY

Charlevoix Manufacturing Institution Which Is Growing.

Products Eagerly Sought For in Large Centers—Novelties for Easter.

Last week a COURIER representative paid a visit to a Charlevoix industry which is out of the ordinary line of manufacturing institutions,—the plant of the Chippewa Rustic Co.,—which is located on Nettleton street, just off Dixon avenue.

The company, which is composed of Fletcher E. Turrell, John A. Linn and Titus Vettaw, began a few years ago, in a small way, the manufacture of rustic furniture, and has gradually increased its business and worked into new lines until now it occupies a four story building with over 8,000 feet of floor space, and has at the present time eight employes.

The products of the factory, being sold to the leading florists of the east, the people of Charlevoix and vicinity, without a visit to the factory, cannot realize the many beautiful things which are now being turned out for the Easter trade.

All through the year new ideas are being studied upon, oftimes representatives of the eastern firms being present and assisting in the work. This year the use of corn husks has been enlarged upon, and few have any idea what a beautiful basket can be made by the combination of split wood and corn husks. Another new design in the same work is a tomato, which cannot help but be a winner on the market. Clover-leaf baskets, the shape of a clover-leaf with the stem attached, is another design for the Easter trade, which will prove a hit, as will the pussy willow baskets, the pussies for which were gathered last spring and stored until now, when they come out as fresh as when first cut.

Sets of hall furniture is also being made of cedar, a new idea to be put on the market for the first time.

The raw material, which the firm uses consists of birch bark, cedar, corn husks, rushes, willows, black ash, sweet grass and other common things which are worked up by their designers into very beautiful creations. The firm caters only to the best trade, and has an enviable reputation as being leaders in their line. The largest florists of New York, Philadelphia and other large cities being large buyers of their ware.

If any one wishes to see a most beautiful array of articles, they will be rewarded by paying a visit to the plant of the Chippewa Rustic Company.

MRS. FRANK PEARSON

Former Charlevoix County School Teacher Died Sunday.

Leaves a Husband and One Child, Father, Brother and Five Sisters.

Mrs. Frank Pearson died at her home in Boyne Falls on the morning of January 12, 1908, about 2:00 o'clock, aged 35 years, 4 months, 28 days. She was born at Pontiac, Mich., and moved to Springvale when 13 years old. She is survived by her father, John Mackie, one brother and five sisters. She was one of the best known school teachers in Charlevoix county, previous to her marriage when 19 years old to Frank Pearson. She was the mother of five children, one of whom survives with the husband. The three oldest, a boy and two girls, perished in the fire when the home at Springvale burned one cold winter's morning in February three years ago. Since then the mother's health has been failing. She was a patient sufferer. Many warm friends of family who knew her cheerfulness and kindness mourn her death.

The funeral was held at Springvale, conducted by Rev. A. W. Baker, of Boyne Falls. She was a member of the United Brethern church, also of the Maccabee and Gleaner orders. Interment took place in the cemetery at Springvale beside her deceased children.

TRIP TO THE GREAT WEST

Rev. Ewald Sniand Describes It For Charlevoix Friends.

From Denver to Cheyenne—A Trip in the Mountains—On to Salt Lake.

But "The West" had many surprises for me in store. It was about 10 o'clock at night when our train rushed into Denver, and what was my surprise at this western town: When I stepped out of the car into the depot and from there into the street. I was fairly dazed by the brilliancy of the illumination of the streets. A large arch, dotted over with brilliant electric lights, stood at the entrance to the grounds of the depot and spelled "Welcome" to the stranger, and looking down the street it appeared all light. Denver certainly aimed to make a good impression upon the stranger at night. But in daytime it is no less beautiful. The next day we visited the mint, passed along the main streets and avennes, and then visited the state house, going up into its cupola from where a door leads out onto a balcony about six feet wide encircling the entire dome. Ah, that was a beautiful sight. My eyes rested upon the most beautiful city I have yet seen, and its surroundings make it still more beautiful. To the east the eye wandered far, far out into the unbroken plains of eastern Colorado and Nebraska; to the west and southwest and north stood the giant Rockies, some twenty miles back from the city, grand and imposing, showing here and there their cold blankets of pure white snow. We stood there and looked and looked—'twas beautiful! And as I stood there an ever stronger and stronger desire to see the wonders of the Rockies at close range took hold of me, and next day my wish was gratified. I shall never forget that day.

'Twas a beautiful day in the beginning of August, ideal for the trip. At 8 o'clock a. m. the train, consisting of a mighty engine and baggage car and six coaches, all well filled, started for its mountain trip, leaving Denver at an elevation of 5,170 feet. Fairly straight was its path for the first 10 miles until it approached the foothills of the Rockies, and then its path seemed more the path of the winding serpent or the loops in the cowboy's lasso. Then for thirty miles the road passes through and along the brow of sublime mountains, until beautiful Boulder park is reached at an elevation of 8,880 feet. The continual change of scenery is one of the greatest delights of this wonderful trip. Instead of following slavishly the water courses, the track leaves them at times to run along the lofty crest of the mountain range. One moment an enchanting view of the plains and valleys holds the traveller spellbound; then he is locked in the fastnesses of the mountains, surrounded by their rugged peaks; then he passes through canyons, beside rushing streams, until at last a beautiful wooded park is reached at the foot of the snow-capped continental Divide. On emerging from tunnel No. 8, a beautiful, incomparably beautiful view is presented to the eye. At this point the train is already over 2,700 feet above Denver and the plains—to your right, without further ceremony the mountain seems to drop at least 2,000 feet straight down to the low foothills to your left stands the mountains—whose sides far up are covered with immense boulders and rocks seemingly arrested in their downward tumble by some mighty hand, ready however, it would seem, to continue their downward rush, and they almost make you tremble as you look at them, it seems as though they must come down, and—you look out to your right and in your enchantment at what you now see, you forget what is to your left. Far out can you see, far across the plains, with its dots of streams and towns and city. That is the last view of the plains, after that you are immediately imprisoned from all sides by walls of solid granite several thousand feet high. Along Boulder creek, a typical mountain stream, now goes the path. At every turn huge mountains of rock seem to have been placed by nature as a barrier to the onward march of civilization. But courage and skill has overcome it all through the solid granite walls the tunnels were driven, and so you are passing actually the entire way over a solid granite way.

And then the train enters Boulder Park at 8,880 feet elevation. 'Tis a little, typical mountain valley, this Boulder Park. Flat as the face of the table there lays right between huge mountains a little green valley, about five miles long and three miles wide, dotted by two little lakes connected by the now placid waters of Boulder creek, which seems here to rest awhile before it starts on its wild rush down the mountains. A little station and hotel are here for those that wish to tarry longer in this beautiful spot. And also the engine stops here for about 15 minutes, as though tired from its long climb and resting for the hard work before it. We step out of the train and look about us to see some opening in the mountains for our train to go further. But mountains to the right of us, mountains to the left of us, mountains ahead of us, mountains in back of us, with but a small opening for the mountain stream and the engine's trail. And as the train sped on we were seemingly running to the foot of a sheer granite wall, more than 3,000 feet high. But as if frightened by its daring, the train swings back with a noble curve and creeps along the foot of its giant captor, but always higher, higher up the steep wall. Of a sudden you see again the little depot in the valley, almost below you it seems, but you are standing now over it several hundred feet higher. And upwards creeps your train, till, having reached the end

Soon after seven o'clock, the business meeting was called to order, and excellent reports were presented from the different departments of the church work for the past year.

MRS. WILLIAM COOPER DEAD

Charlevoix County Pioneer Dies Suddenly Sunday Night.

Was Resident of Charlevoix County for Nearly Twenty-Eight Years.

Death has again entered the ranks of Charlevoix county's pioneers. Mrs. William Cooper having died suddenly at her home on Mason street, this city, Sunday evening of paralysis.

Mrs. Cooper, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Conwell, was born in Dublin, Ireland, and at the time of her death, was over seventy-five years old. When a small child she came with her parents to Canada, where she was married to William Cooper. They came to Washtenaw county, Michigan, in 1861. After a few years residence in Washtenaw county, they moved to Kent county, coming from there to Charlevoix county in April 1880, moving first to the city, where they resided until fall, when they moved onto a farm in Marion township, where with the exception of one winter spent in Charlevoix, they have resided ever since, until last November when they moved to the city on account of Mrs. Cooper's failing health.

Mrs. Cooper was the mother of seven children: Oliver, of Charlevoix; James, of Bellaire; Mrs. A. C. Fessenden, of Boon; William H., of Charlevoix; Mrs. George Beaman, of Parma, and Minnie, of Charlevoix, who with her aged husband survive her. One daughter, Bertha having died in Washtenaw county.

Mrs. Cooper was a very highly esteemed lady of a retiring disposition. Recently she has been in failing health, having suffered two strokes of paralysis, besides the fatal stroke, which came suddenly Sunday night.

Mrs. Cooper has been a member of the First M. E. church of this city since the family first came to this part of the state.

The funeral took place at the Methodist church Wednesday morning at 10:00 o'clock, Rev. R. A. Wright officiating.

A CITY OF SHADE TREES

Charles Peaslee Writes the Courier From Memphis, Tennessee.

A Hustling City, Which Compares Favorably With Northern Ones.

Memphis, Tenn., January 10, 1908.

Editor COURIER—We left Charlevoix Friday, December 27, at 3:15 p. m. and arrived in Memphis Saturday night about 11:45, so we are now in the so-called sunny south and are as well as usual.

As this is one af the seceding states, there is much to remind one af the south as it was forty years ago, ald tumble dawn fences, dilapidated buildings and muddy roads, but what I have seen of the business part of the city, it compares very favorably with our northern cities. As I walk along the streets I find the walks thronged with hustling people, street cars, automobiles, fine carriages and busses and an innumerable number of carts, truck wagons and farm wagons of all descriptions, and see no difference in crossing the street than what I faund in Detroit.

So far as I have been able to see the city is making many improvments, such as we have in the north. They have a place they have been fitting up the last two years for wild animals. They have quite a number now and are preparing for more. I think it is about three miles out that the large ball grounds are located, in connection with a line park, which is a great attraction, the street cars passing every few minutes, and about four miles further is the poor farm, which would be a credit to any city, with good brick buildings, much like the Soldiers' Home in Michigan. Most of the city and its surroundings are practically in the woods, and these out places are all in the woods, mostly white oak trees, many of them measuring three or four feet through. The trees are left for shade in summer. There are front yards where we are that have large trees enough to make fifty to one hundred cords of eighteen-inch wood. This may look large to northern people, but there is one yard, not a hundred rods from where I sit, that has twenty-five trees, which I venture to say would make one hundred cords of eighteen-inch wood. These are old places that were here before the war, probably an acre in a lot.

There are a good many negroes here, some of them quite smart and well-dressed, but many lazy, shiftless and poor, that will steal everything they can get hold of.

Where we are it is two hundred feet above the city level, two hundred and fifty above the river. It is dry and rolling here, and I think would be as healthy as many of our northern cities if there was more cleanliness.

So much for Memphis, Tennessee.

C. L. PEASLEE.

Byron Winter, who disappeared last April and was located a short time ago in Canada, has returned to Cadillac and resumed his position in the firm of Winters & Baker of which of which he was the senior partner.

Winters says he remembers nothing of his departure from Cadillac. His first recovery of consciousness was in a hospital at Blind River, Canada, where he found himself ill. He had once before, a number of years ago, suffered a brief lapse of memory.

During his absence Mr. Baker found it necessary to file a trust mortgage on the general stock of the firm. Winters will now devote himself to straightening out the affairs of the company.

The annual report of State Labor Commissioner McLeod covering the fiscal year ending the first of last November, shows an increase of about 500 factories in the state during the year and an increase of about 20,000 men employed in the factories. It also showed an increase of about .02 cents a day in the average wages paid to the men employed in the factories.

In discussing the condition under which the factory employes work. Mr. McLeod says they have much improved during the year. Manufacturers have obeyed the the state law in providing safeguards for machinery, and better sanitary conditioos in the plants. Generally the showing is good for the manufacturing industries of the state.

The Traverse City canning factory has closed after the longest and most successful season since it was built, the pack being almost double that of previous years. The plant began early in July and ran almost continuously. Two big crops handled by the factory are beans and apples. The beans canned this year run into the hundred thousand bushels, while 32,000 bushels of apples were put into 20,000 dozen gallon cans. The factory ran continuously except a few short stops to await the arrival of cans. The plant will be enlarged this year.

Michigan ranks second in the production of rye and second in the production of potators. It is in the latter crop that COURIER renders are more particularly interested.

In the United States the acreage for 1907 was 3,121,000; yield per acre 95.4; production 297,942,000 bushels; average price per bushel $.617; total farm value $183,880,000.

In Michigan the acreage was 200,000; yield per acre, 90 bushels; production, 26,910,000 bushels; average price, 45 cents; value of crop, $12,100,000. New York only exceeds us in production, her output in bushels was 41,748,000.

SEXES OF PIGS.

Boars Seem to Be Slightly More Numerous Than Sows.

George A. Rommel, animal husbandman of the United States Department of Agriculture, reports:

In response to requests, the Animal Husbandry office of this bureau has recently collected information regarding the relative proportions of the two sexes of pigs at birth, with quite interesting results. This information is not to be obtained from the herdbooks for the reason that while the total number of pigs farrowed is usually given, the number of each sex is given only for the pigs raised.

Reports were received from eighty-two breeders, located in twenty-three states and two territories (Indian Territory and Oklahoma). Eight breeds were represented, as follows: Berkshire, Chester White, Duroc Jersey, Hampshire, Large Yorkshire, Ohio Improved Chester, Poland China and Tamworth. In a few cases the record of litters of grade and mixed breeding was given; these are included in the results.

The number of sows whose litters were reported was 1,477. The number of boar pigs was 6,660; the number of sows, 6,625, and the total 13,285. The average per sow was as follows: Boars, 4.52; sows, 4.48; total, 8.99. The figures are mainly for litters farrowed during 1906. In 49 cases second litters during the year were reported for the same sows, which somewhat raises the average per sow.

Boars are seen to be slightly more numerous than sows, but for all practical purposes the sexes may be regarded as equal in number at birth. The relative proportion was found to be 1,005 boars to 1,000 sows. Expressed in another way, the proportion is 100.53 boars to 100 sows, which in lowest terms of whole figures is 201 boars to 200 sows.

FAT ON THE HOG.

Only Put It on When Fitting the Animal for Market.

The hog that is to be kept on the farm for breeding purposes does not need much fat. The more fat he has the more expense of muscle and energy there is required to carry it around and the more food must there be expended for that purpose alone. The hog stores nothing on his body except what may be used for some other purpose than to please the butcher. In fact, the butcher is not looked out for by Nature. The object Nature has in storing up fat is to give a surplus to be used as fuel in the lungs. This fat is to be burned up in the creating of energy to keep the machinery of the body in motion and in the creating of heat to keep up the temperature of the body. There is, therefore, no reason for putting on the back of the hog a lot of fuel for him to carry about with him till the time he needs it. It would be like piling onto the tender of an engine more coal than could be used in a single trip. The extra weight would be carried for nothing and would only be in the way. The hog that is to be kept should therefore have only a small amount of fat on him at any time. This will make it more natural for him to exercise and the exercise will improve his health.

The fat on the hog that is to be sold is worth money in the market and should be put on freely. The hog should not, however, have so much fat that he is likely to go down when on the journey to market. The buyers of hogs like to have fat hogs, but they do not want them too fat. An overfat hog on a hot day has a good chance to die before reaching the end of his journey.

A simple arrangement which will allow stables to be kept thoroughly aired and kept cool on hot days is shown in the sketch. Make a light gate of railings and hang it just inside of the stable door so that it may be used when the door is open. This permits the animals to be in the stable without danger of their getting away and also with plenty of sunlight.

FINDS MORE SPOTS ON SUN.

Latest Discovered Group Has Length of 82,000 Miles.

Washington.—An enormous group of solar spots has been observed for the first time by Prof. George H. Peters of the United States naval observatory with the photo-heliograph.

"They probably appeared on the sun's eastern edge two or three days ago," said Prof. Peters, "but owing to clouds the observations were unobtainable here until now.

"The group at present consists of two large spots connected by a somewhat smaller one. There are a few outlying spots. The total length of the group is 82,000 miles, while its breadth is about 30,000 miles. It is nearly one-tenth the apparent diameter of the sun and can be easily seen through smoked or colored glass.

"This group is in the southern hemisphere in the part known as the spot zone, as was the enormous group announced last February."

Carnegie Gives More Libraries.

New York.—Andrew Carnegie has notified the trustees of the New York public library that they may increase the number of branch library buildings erected under his gift of $5,200,000 by 22, and he will pay the bills. This will bring the total of his gift to the city up to $6,750,000, and will increase the number of branch library buildings from 78 to 100.

DEATHS IN THE ARMY

TUBERCULOSIS LEADING CAUSE WITH TYPHOID NEXT.

Facts Gleaned from Annual Report of Surgeon General O'Reilly—Effect of Abolition of the Canteen.

Washington.—Interesting information regarding the health of the army last year is contained in the annual report of Surgeon General O'Reilly.

The total number of admissions to sick report was 72,051, equal to an admission rate of 1,275.88 compared with 1,205.07 for the previous year and 1,833.11 for the septennial period 1898 to 1904.

There were 258 deaths from all causes, equivalent to a rate of 6.11 per 1,000 of strength, compared with 6.28 and 14.02 per 1,000, the corresponding rates for the previous year and the period from 1898 to 1904, respectively. The death rate for disease 3.28 is the lowest attained since the occupation of tropical countries, and compares favorably with the rates prior to 1898.

For disability there were 1,523 men discharged, equal to a rate of 25 per 1,000 of strength, compared with 25 per 1,000 for the preceding year and 22.81 for the septennial period 1898 to 1904.

The constantly noneffective rate of 49.79 for the year was a slight increase compared with 48.03, the noneffective rate for the preceding year.

As a cause of death tuberculosis again led, with a rate of 0.77 per 1,000, compared with 0.68, the corresponding rate for 1905. Typhoid fever was second. Pneumonia, with a death rate of 0.24 showed a decided improvement. The mortality rate for diarrheal diseases was not quite half as great as for 1905.

There were 229 admissions for gunshot wounds, with 55 deaths, and 2,053 admissions for wounds other than gunshot, with 12 deaths. Twenty-one enlisted men were killed in action and 78 wounded, of whom 5 died as a result of their wounds, and 1 committed suicide. Of the killed 16 were by gunshot and 5 by bolo. There were 28 deaths from drowning, 10.6 per cent. of the total deaths from all causes, a slight increase compared with the proportion of last year.

Thirty-nine suicides and 9 homicides were recorded during the year, compared with 31 and 20, respectively, the corresponding figures for 1905. There were 3 admissions for snake bite in the year 1906, with no fatal result.

Alaska as usual had the lowest admission and constantly noneffective rates, and, next to Cuba, the lowest discharge and total loss rates.

The Philippine Islands had as usual the highest admission, death and constantly noneffective rates, and all the rates were a little higher than for 1905.

The rates for Hawaii were not as good as for last year.

The admission rate was highest in the field artillery and lowest in the hospital corps, while the death rate was highest in the infantry and lowest in the engineers.

The high admission rate of 30.22 per 1,000 men recorded in 1905 for alcoholism was increased to 32.27 in 1906. Gen. O'Reilly says that his office concurs in the opinion expressed by most medical officers of the army that the abolition of the sale of beer in post exchanges has as much to do with the increase of disreputable diseases and alcoholism in the army by driving the soldiers to disreputable resorts outside of the post and beyond the control of the post authorities.

As usual, all rates for colored troops, except the death rate, were considerably lower than those for white soldiers. All the rates for colored troops, except the noneffective figure, were much lower than those for the previous year.

Shocked to Death on Fence.

Greensburg, Pa.—Two men were killed and two others seriously injured here as a result of a severe storm. The dead are Jesse Weaver and Louis W. Long, both of Arona, Pa. The men were on their way home from work and had occasion to cross a field and go through a barbed wire fence. Lightning struck a heavy feed wire of the West Pennsylvania Railway company, splitting the cable and causing one end of it to drop on the fence, giving the wire a high voltage. Weaver and Long were instantly killed when they touched the fence, and Richard Smith and Henry Long, who were in the rear, received terrible shocks.

ALFONSO, THE SNORER.

Spanish King to Have Operation for Mouth Breathing.

Paris.—Alfonso is coming to France for a little operation. It is known to the medical world as submucoid section of the nasal septum. The operation is not a severe one and the results to be hoped for are that it gives a freer passage to the air going to the lungs through the nasal orifices. At present Alfonso is what is called a "mouth-breather." The air entering the lungs is not warmed by the nasal passages, and so there is a greater liability for him to catch cold. But in addition to this it is more than probable that Alfonso snores at night, and no doubt the advice of his young and beautiful spouse had something to do with his decision to see a specialist.

Alfonso has evidently suffered in his youth, and probably does so now, from adenoids, that is an overgrowth of tonsil-like tissue, situated higher up in the throat and more to the back than the tonsils. It is that that has given to his face its long, awkward outline. Its protruding lower jaw, its open mouth and its expression that hardly does justice to his intelligence. Historians tell us that he has the "Hapsburg mouth," but physicians know that his facial conformation is much more the result of an inherited weak constitution.

Be Good to the Cows.

Do not excite the cows or expose them to sudden change in the weather. Feed them liberally with fresh, palatable feeds. There is nothing made by denying the cows all they will eat. In addition to this allow them all the water they can drink. It should be pure, but not too cold.

Separate Them.

Separate the cockerels from the pullets at once for both will make better growth if they are on separate range, or in separate yards.

Use a Separator.

The farmer that owns a few cows should investigate the matter of hand separators.

Swain Smith and wife, of Charlevoix, are in East Jordan for a few days' visit with his mother, Mrs. Will Smith.

Owing to stormy weather and sickness of some of the members, Rock Elm Grange did not hold a meeting Saturday evening, January 4.

Mrs. Slack, whose home was on the Ellsworth road, has been very ill for some time, but is reported to be recovering rapidly at present. She is now living with and being cared for by her sister, Mrs. Fred VanGurder, who lives on the G. L. Swanson place.

Farmers here are signing their contracts for the growing of seed peas, beans, also for raising sugar beets. While the past season was short at both ends, still crops were fairly good excepting oats and hay. Our experience with both beets and beans this year was quite satisfactory, considering the weather conditions.

School began again January 16, after a fortnight's vacation. All the former and some new pupils were on hand to greet the teacher, Mrs. Alida Hutton on the opening day. Let us hope that all will be as regular in attendance as possible so as to get the utmost benefit from the opportunities offered for a common school education.

Mrs. John Stevenson, of this neighborhood, died Wednesday morning, January 8, aged 68 years. She was one of the pioneer settlers here, having lived on the old homestead about forty years. She leaves a son and a daughter, Abe and Ellen, to mourn her death, as well as a host of friends and neighbors, all of whom will sincerely miss her. But our loss is her eternal gain.

Will Ask For Special Pension.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The fact that Commander H. H. Hosley, who died suddenly in New York recently, was practically without means and left a family unprovided for, has led his friends in the navy to initiate a movement to secure from congress a special pension for his widow and daughter. The small service pension of $30 per month would, it is held, be utterly inadequate in this case.

Burglars Apply the Torch.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 11.—Disappointed at not finding money after they had broken into the Butterfly grocery in the heart of the business district, burglars saturated the place with kerosene and set fire to it and left through the rear door, which they had broken down to gain entrance. The firemen had a hard fight to check the flames, which had been started in several places at the same time.

Staunton, W. Va., Jan. 11.—John F. Via, charged with the murder of his wife, Cora, at Craigsville, Oct. 16 last was found guilty and sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary. Via, it was charged, had been drinking when he committed the crime. He claimed his wife killed herself. He is forty-nine years old and his wife was twenty-three.

There is nothing like a savings account to keep poverty at arm's length.

Lots of people think it is of no use to try to save up unless they have a large lump of money to start with. A mistake. It is the little amounts saved systematically from week to week that make up the strongest barrier against need.

A dollar saved brings a fortune one dollar nearer, and helps to form a habit of saving.

Man-Jury Swayed by Pretty Woman

By MAGISTRATE LEROY B. CRANE, New York City.

Are jurors swayed by psychological or physical influences in rieting out justice in the case of a young and beautiful woman?

This is a question that has been brought to my mind of late, but it is in reality a subject as old as the thoughts of men.

How far are 12 men physically able to act as unbiased judges of facts where a weeping and attractive young woman is concerned? How far can they be trusted to render a fair and impartial verdict when she sits downcast at the bar of justice? I say the majority of jurors cannot be trusted at all.

The majority of men are liable to be swayed from facts where the sentimental side of life is shown. Whether a woman is attractive or not men are often inclined toward clemency, with the fairer sex, especially when the prisoner has an appearance of trouble and care and when her history shows the burdens of life cast upon her.

In the case of pretty women jurors are physically unable to withstand the onslaught of a woman's smiles or tears.

The tendency of men toward women—physically, mentally, morally—is to act in her favor in a court of justice. It is only natural. There is some subtle physical influence which, I believe, in many cases creeps from the beautiful woman in distress at the bar and to the men sitting in judgment upon her. And, after all, it may be but the innate sense of chivalry. In America, at least, we hold our women so high that our first feeling is one of chivalrous desire to aid them.

In England, it is true, there are few women acquitted or dealt leniently with in comparison with the number in America. The Englishman regards woman as a chattel; he is stirred by no generous, chivalrous impulse to aid her. On the other hand, he looks down upon woman to an extent that he would scarcely consider her rights at all.

The psychological significance of a woman's testimony upon American jurors is apt to be averaged by a casual reading of the testimony in the case. I am not psychologist enough to go into the details of these effects, but you have only to look up the number of acquittals of pretty and attractive women to realize that men jurors are loath to convict a beautiful woman, or, as far as that goes, any woman who shows sufficient signs of womanliness.

To state the subject too baldly may shock the sensibility of righteous men who have served as jurors and who consider themselves eligible to serve in that capacity. However, there is nothing for any one to take offense at the statement that the physical influence to some extent takes precedence over the mental.

APPEALS FOR BEET SUGAR

Attorney for the Michigan Interests Comes Out in Opposition to Taft.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 11.—Watts S. Humphrey, attorney for the Michigan beet sugar interests and their spokesman in Washington, has issued an appeal to Michigan voters, "who believe in the protection of home industries." "Some of the professional politicians who have modestly tendered their services as delegates have declared themselves as in favor of Taft's candidacy," he said. "The evident purpose of these declarations would appear to be a seat in the administration band wagon.

"It is a well known fact Secretary Taft has been selected by the throne, and if the people only take kindly to dictation of this sort the formality of calling a convention to ratify presidential succession may soon be dispensed with. The Republican party had its birth on Michigan soil. Let us see that the death blow to one of its most vital principles be not given by the hand that nourished its infancy, and that no man shall receive the vote of the Michigan delegation who is pledged to strangle any of her manufacturing or agricultural industries, or who in any way seeks to reduce the earnings of her wageworkers."

LAST week the constitutional convention put in several days' work on the initiative and referendum proposition, finally adopting on second reading, the measure known as the Hemana proposal, which provides in substance that amendments to the constitution may be proposed by a petition of 20 per cent of the qualified electors of the state, such petitions to be signed at a regular election place, at a regular election, under the supervision of two inspectors.

The debate on the measure, which was participated in by a majority of the delegates, was marked for earnestness of purpose, and a desire to settle this great question in a manner which would be right. At only one time was personalities engaged in, when an attempt was made to discredit the standing of the Charlevoix county delegate, Mr. Knowles, but which he easily explained away so the delegate offending withdrew his remarks.

The prosopal, as passed ought to be satisfactory to both sides. To the ardent advocates of the measure, a chance to demonstrate the great advantages which they claim for it is given. Its opponents must believe is 20 per cent of the qualified electors of the state, of their own free will, at the polling place, sign a petition asking for a chance to vote on a certain measure that there is need of some kind of legislation along that line.

THE season for farmer's institutes having again come around, it is a good time to consider whether they are being made of the value that they might be to the people of the state.

While I fully believe that there never was an institute held yet, but what value was received by the farmers in attendance, I do believe that a vast amount of valuable time is thrown away. The question is often asked, why is the attendance less, and the interest shown growing smaller than formerly?

To one who has been a regular attendant the answer is easy. Year after year the same questions are disensed. Perhaps some new questions are placed on the program, but, in the main, the majority of the state speakers are talking along the same lines they were a score of years ago, and while we all desire to receive the benefits of the new discoveries which they are making year by year in the field of agricultural science, by the time we listen to an hour's talk on something that has been threshed over annually, what is new takes up mighty little time.

At all institutes the chief interest is always in the local speakers, they realize what are live subjects, what is of particular interest in their own section, and talk on that line, while often the state speakers are talking on something that is of no particular benefit to the people whom they are addressing, interesting though it may be. I have no desire to criticise the officials of an institute society—having been one myself, I know is largely a labor of love—but it seems to me, they should be conducted along new lines. What is of particular local interest should be the main topics, local speakers being in the lead, and the state speakers to get in their work during the discussions. As it is now, what is of the most interest is always brought out by the question box.

Then it seems to me it would be a good plan to divide the time into sections, have an afternoon devoted to sugar beets alone, and another to fruit growing. Then let every farmer make it a point to attend, and the institutes will regain their former high standing as one of the chief aids to profitable farming.

MAKE THIS YOURSELF

Says Many Persons Here Can Be Made Happy Again.

Tells How Any One Can Prepare Simple Home-Made Mixture, Said to Overcome Rheumatism.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are a few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after awhile.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

IROQUOIS FIRE OUT OF COURT

No One to Suffer for the Loss of Six Hundred Lives.

LAST OF INDICTMENTS QUASHED

End of the Struggle to Fix the Responsibility for the Frightful Holocaust.

George Williams, Who Was Building Commissioner at Time of the Fire, Will Not Have to Stand Trial.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The last court echo of the Iroquois theater fire horror of Dec. 30, 1903, died away when the indictment charging George Williams, former city building commissioner, with palpable omission of duty was quashed in Judge Windes' court.

This is the final one of a number of indictments that were voted following the fire and marks the end of the struggle of the state's attorney's office to fix the responsibility for the nearly 600 lives that were lost.

Counts in the Bill.

The motion to quash was argued in defense of Mr. Williams by Attorney Joseph David. He was opposed by Acting State's Attorney Barbour. The true bill against Williams contained four counts. It charged, first, that he had failed to notify the law department of the city of Chicago of the violations of the building ordinances at the Iroquois theater. This count was quashed by Judge Windes on the ground that no time limit was fixed in the ordinance within which the defendant should have done so and upon further ground that judicial notice could not be taken of the city law department.

The second count charged that Williams, as building commissioner, had failed to record the rules and regulations for the conduct of his department. This Judge Windes ruled out also, because no time limit had been set.

Third and Fourth Counts.

The third count alleged that the building commissioner had failed to construe the building ordinance as required by the municipal code. The court held this count invalid because it practically vested the building commissioner with judicial power.

The last count, alleging that Williams failed to license the Iroquois theater was quashed because the indictment did not contain any date prior to which Williams should have inspected the theater according to law.

STATE A HEAVY LOSER

Has to Give Up Suits That Involved a "Wad" of Corporation Money.

Mysterious Affliction Becoming Murder—Attempt to Bribe a Basic-Law Maker—Two Stories.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 11.—Attorney-General Bird has dismissed the cases brought by him against the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, the Quaker Oats company, the Crucible Steel company and other corporations to recover the penalty of $1,000 a month for their failure to file articles of incorporation in the state while transacting business here. The action was taken because of the decision of the supreme court last week to the effect that the amendment of the law by the legislature rendered it impossible to collect the penalty.

State Loses a Big Wad.

Penalties of over $125,000 were sought to be collected and some of the companies proceeded against had made offers to settle for many thousand dollars, of which the state will be deprived.

Epidemic Is Nearly Over.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 11. — Lansing's strange epidemic which broke out a few nights ago and the cause of which has not yet been determined seems to be nearly over. Although a large number of new cases have been reported, the disease has become milder. A large number of young children are still severely ill.

Grait in the Con-Con?

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 11.— Charges that corporations have been endeavoring to defeat the initiative principle by offering positions to attorneys and other members of the constitutional convention, Delegate A. L. Moore, of Oakland, caused a sensation in the convention. Moore declared in his speech that Delegate Knowles, of the Charlevoix district, had informed him that he had been offered the attorneyship of a new surety company now being organized to furnish bonds to liquor dealers if he would use his influence against the proposal.

Final Bone of Veracity.

Delegate Knowles answered Moore by declaring that the proposition to make him attorney for the surety company was made before the constitutional convention was called or he was a candidate for delegate. The question is one of veracity between the two members.

LADIES' HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS

Ladies' Home Journal Patterns

After a full year's trial, these patterns have proved themselves most satisfactory and successful. The sales have been larger than our most sanguine expectations.

We believe that we are giving women what they want when we include these excellent patterns as part of the store service.

They present the new styles in advance; pay great attention to the correct "lines;" and are cut to fit the average figure in all sizes without the need of alterations.

In addition to this, the directions furnished with them are simple and easy to understand by the home dressmaker.

Children's clothes, practical clothes for the business girl, street and house gowns, blouses, etc., are included among the patterns, as well as underclothes of many sorts and numbers of the attractive accessories of dress.

Socialist Column.

Conducted Under the Auspices of the Socialist Party of the United States.

Socialism is a system of social organization which would abolish entirely or in great part the competition on which modern society rests and substitute for it co-operative action, would introduce a more perfect and equal distribution of the products of labor and would make land and capital, as the instruments and means of production, the joint possession of the members of the community. Socialism does not wish to abolish private property or accumulation of wealth, but it aims to displace the present system of private capital by a system of collective capital which would introduce a unified organization of national labor.—Professor Schaffle

WHENCE COMETH WEALTH.

Doctrine of "the Productivity of Capital" Is a Fallacy.

A purely academic proposition which I tried to explain to university students has been made material for heavy headlines in the press. The proposition, in a word, was this: The economic doctrine of "the productivity of capital" is a fallacy. No instance can be cited of "capital," clearly distinguished from "land" in the economic sense, producing anything without the help of labor.

The idea that a capitalist is entitled to an income from his capital over and above security of his property in the principal always gets its force by confusing the capitalist merely as owner with the capitalist supposed to be also in some way a worker. If he is a worker either with head or hand that fact constitutes his ultimate claim to an income. If he is not a worker his claim to an income rests upon social convenience, which makes it more desirable to pay exceptional killers a bonus than to arrest the industrial process by absence of inducements to keep wealth employed as capital.

In other words, the only incomes to which individuals as such have an essential moral claim are virtually the wages of labor, whether they are drawn in the form of daily payments, business profits, salaries, interest, dividends or otherwise. A wage [illegible] title of the relative value of the work performed is due on this basis to Mr. Ryan or Mr. Morgan or Mr. Carnegie or the least skilled laborer in the shovel gang. All incomes which are not virtually wages or which are out of proportion to the service value of the work performed by their recipients are either without moral justification or they stand for some sort of general public utility of which a certain percentage of unobserving persons will always get the benefit in spite of the wisest laws that can ever be passed.—Professor Albion W. Small.

PLANLESS PRODUCTION.

The True Cause of Extensive Financial Panics.

The extensive modern crises which convulse the world's markets arise from overproduction, which in its turn arises from the planlessness that inevitably accompanies the modern system of production.

Overproduction in the sense of more being produced than is actually needed may occur under any system. But such could, as a matter of course, cause no injury so long as the producers produce for the satisfaction of their own wants. If, for instance, in generations gone by a farmer's crop of corn happened to be larger than he needed he stored up the surplus against poorer years, and when his barn was full he would feed his cattle with the residue or, at worst, let it lie and spoil.

It is otherwise with the modern capitalist system of production. In the first place, in its well developed form no one produces for himself, but for some one else; every one must buy what he needs. Moreover, the total production of society is not carried on in a planful way. On the contrary, it is left to each producer to estimate for himself the quantity of the demand there may be for the goods which he produces. In the second place, just as soon as the modern system of production has outgrown its first stage no one except the producer of coinable metals can buy before he has sold. These are the two roots out of which the crises shoot up.—Kautsky.

Is a Social Question Now.

A minister with the usual stock in trade ideas says, "Save the individual, and you save the race." He pictures the human race on a vast ocean, each directing his frail bark toward a distant shore, and wants to aid each bark to reach the desired haven. But the preacher is out of date if he adopts such methods. We cross the ocean on steamships together now, and our destinies are more closely bound together than the majority realize. To save the individual we must work to save the ship we all ride in. "No man liveth to himself." The minister who preaches simply to save the individual fails to let his life be an example of what he preaches. No man should expect from his preaching to inspire others to do, what he himself is unwilling to do. If he is unwilling to lose his position if need be that he may battle for an unpopular cause then his preaching is indeed vain.—Rev. G. C. Porter.

Economics and Ethics.

The economic interpretation of history . . . endeavors to show that in the records of the past the moral uplift of humanity has been closely connected with its social and economic progress and that the ethical ideals of the community, which alone can bring about any lasting advance in civilization, have been erected on and rendered possible by the solid foundation of material prosperity. In short, the economic conception of history, properly interpreted, does not neglect the spiritual forces in history; it seeks only to point out the terms on which the spiritual life has hitherto been able to find its fullest fruitions.—Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman.

Brain Joggers.

It has been figured that the machinery of the nation equals over 11,000,000 horsepower. As ten men equal one horsepower, the machinery in the nation does the work of about 113,000,000 men. Ask yourself the question, Have the working people got the benefit of this tremendous displacement of labor power? We do not blame the capitalists for discharging men when they have no further use for them, but we blame the men for voting for a system that puts their security of livelihood in constant danger.

NOT PATERNALISM.

Socialism Means the Rule of the Many Instead of the Few.

No: Socialism is not paternalism.

Capitalism is paternalism.

We have had paternalism for many centuries, and we have it now.

Paternalism is the rule of the few. It is a man or a clique of men governing the people.

Under absolute monarchy one man did the governing. After the lords compelled the king to divide up his authority with them the king and the nobility did the governing. When the common people secured the right to vote it was thought that this would put an end to paternalism.

It did put an end to political paternalism.

We now get what the majority votes for.

But we still have industrial paternalism, a paternalism of the most cruel and unjust character.

A few men own the industries of the country.

They have the masses under their control.

They can starve them to death or freeze them to death or work them to death.

They can and do dictate for the most part when they shall work, where they shall work and what incomes they shall receive.

That is paternalism gone to seed.

So long as it continues emancipation from political paternalism is useless except as a means of accomplishing emancipation from this industrial paternalism.

By voting the Socialist ticket industrial paternalism can be abolished.

No, Socialism is not paternalism.

Socialism will complete and perfect political emancipation by introducing equal political rights for men and women, by introducing the initiative and referendum, proportional representation, the recall and home rule, by abolishing the veto power on the part of the executives, by abolishing the usurped power on the part of the courts to nullify the will of the people by declaring laws unconstitutional and by making the national and state constitutions amendable at any time by majority vote, so as to do away with what has been called "the tyranny of the dead."

Socialism will accomplish industrial emancipation by abolishing industrial paternalism and introducing industrial fraternalism—in other words, by abolishing private monopoly and introducing the public ownership and the popular management of the industries now used to exploit the people out of the bulk of the product of their honest toil.

In the Socialist commonwealth the people engaged in any industry will elect the managers, foremen, superintendents, etc., of that industry.

That is the rule of the many instead of the few.

When the few cease to rule and the many begin to rule paternalism will breathe its last and fraternalism will take its place.

When these changes are brought about by Socialism we will have both a political and an industrial government of, for and by the people. These changes will enable the people to govern themselves, both politically and industrially, for the first time since civilization began.

And when the people govern themselves, both politically and industrially, paternalism will cease and fraternalism will begin.—John M. Work.

Cut Throat Competition.

I believe there is good in every human heart. I believe that people are naturally good, but they can be perverted under the present industrial system. Greed is the dominating motive—every man for himself and every man against every other man not working in his interests.

You have got to knock down your fellow man under our system in self defense. It is a fight for self preservation, and in the fight the honest, conscientious and scrupulous man goes down. There is no longer anything like conscience in our commercial system. Absolute honesty is impossible. I know it from observation and experience. Everything is fair in business, and business is war.—E. V. Debs.

Now and Under Socialism.

A Socialist government would be a pure democracy, and if the people decided to have a deep waterway their public servants would proceed at once to carry out the will of the people.

Today it is necessary to send numerous special trains and special boats loaded with grafters and other cheap politicians to make speeches and to carouse at champagne suppers.—Peoria Socialist.

CASE OF PEOPLE WILL BE BRIEF

Everything Is in Readiness for the Trial Proper of Thaw—Jury Is Complete.

New York, Jan. 11.—The jury which is to try Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White has been completed. The trial proper will be opened with a brief address by Assistant District Attorney Garvan, and then the people's case will be put in. The case will be brief. The killing will be proved and evidence will be introduced to show that the shot which killed Stanford White was fired by Harry K. Thaw. It is not likely that more than two or three hours will be required. Then the prosecution's direct case will be closed and the defense will begin.

The jury as finally completed stands as follows: Charles F. Tiemmels, ship broker, foreman; Arthur R. Nauth n.g, employing baker; George W. Cary, dry goods; George C. Ruppersdt, saf sman; John H. Holbert, mineral waters; David E. Arrowsmith, manager; William F. Hoddtile, auditor's clerk; William H Mellugh, clerk; Frank J. Howell, manufacturer; William Burck, assistant secretary, Y. M. C. A.; Francis Bovale, real estate; James A. Hooper, ments and provisions.

CURRENCY NOW DRUG ON MARKET

Savings Banks Turn Surplus Over to Their Depositories, Who Make Protests.

New York, Jan. 11. — Currency, which was at a considerable premium a short time ago, is now something of a drug on the market, according to officials of savings banks, which within the last ten days have been flooded with deposits by part-time money hoarders.

The large amounts of currency received have in many instances caused the 10 per cent limit, which these institutions are allowed to carry in cash to be exceeded. The surplus has been turned over to their depositories, state and national banks and trust companies. Savings bank men now report protests from these institutions, which are asking for deposits by check instead of cash, which they find inconvenient to handle.

SIXTEEN LIVES COST OF PANIC

Frantic and Senseless Stampede of Crowd to Leave Theater Building Ends in Disaster.

Barnsley, York, England, Jan. 11.—The senseless stampede of a crowd of people in a theater of this city resulted in a shocking disaster. Sixteen persons, including a number of children in arms, were crushed to death by the frantic efforts of the crowd to get clear of the building, and many others were injured.

And all for no reason. There was no danger, no fire; only the unaccountable panic of the crowd that found its egress from the theater hampered by its own numbers.

Brilliant Wedding at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Basil Gordon, formerly Miss Lelia Sinclair Montague, of Virginia, was married to Lieutenant Colonel George Barnett, U. S. M. C. Christ church, in which the ceremony took place, was filled with guests from Washington, New York and Baltimore. Congressman John W. Weeks, of Boston, attended the groom as best man and the ushers in the full uniform of their rank were Colonel Lauchheimer and Major Charles McCauley, of the marine corps, and Commander A. E. Culver, Commander Dombaugh and Paymaster J. C. Fulton Lovell, retired, of the navy.

Stabs Wife and Kills Himself.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Following a quarrel with his wife George Danvig stabbed her several times and then shot himself, dying almost instantly. Mrs. Danvig is in a serious condition.

FIREMEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPES

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 10.—Five firemen were injured at a fire which caused about $100,000 damage in the Forrester & Cheney Knitting mills, at the corner of Porter and Third streets. The loss is thought to be covered by insurance. The fire broke out in the basement of the four-story plant from an unknown cause. Fireman James Donnelly was swept off a ladder at the third floor by a stream from a hose and badly bruised.

Four other firemen had narrow escapes from being burned to death and in addition to suffering slight burns, inhaled quantities of smoke. Firemen Henry O. Traver, A. J. Petersmark, E. Lockman and W. F. Waterloo climbed the fire escape to the fourth floor and were working in the building there when the flames burst out over the escape at one of the lower floors and rapidly mounted toward them. It was five minutes before a ladder could be raised from the ground and the fire by that time was burning all about the men. Firemen on the ground played streams of water on the men as they stood on the fire escape waiting for rescue. One of the men became frantic with fear and had to be forcibly restrained from jumping.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths

There is a disease prevailing in this county most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

of the wall, it turns nobly back and on the same side of that wall it creeps further up—till having reached the opposite end it again turns about, nothing daunted, and creeps still higher—till, when you are on the fourth level of tracks on the same side of that wall, you have passed in front of your little depot away down there in the valley, four times, and see the three giant steps of tracks up which we came, till at last, the train having gained the top of the wall it leaves the valley to meet another little lake, just around the corner, at 10,800 feet elevation. This little lake, it seems hardly more than a thousand feet across, and which is nothing but an extinct volcano filled to overflow with pure soowwater, is encircled by the steel ribbons of the train's path.

But we cannot tarry, there are yet 1,000 feet to climb. And panting along snowbanks and treeless rocks and hugging hard the side of the mountains lest we fall into the chasm to our right that opened wide its gaping mouth and sent up to us the roar of the angry stream some 2,000 to 3,000 feet below. We climbed to the highest point along the route, just 11,660 feet above ocean-level. From there the train rapidly descends for we are now on the continental divide, to the top of the watershed for the east and the west. At this point almost all left the train, which should come back in two and one-half hours to take us back to Denver. It was 8:00 o'clock when we left Denver, and noon when we reached "Corona," as this point is called. Stepping off the train we stood in a large soowshed, which shelters the track, and stepping out we stood on banks of snow, although it was the first week of August. All about us were still higher peaks, inviting us to climb to their summits to listen to the wonderful stories that they would tell us of nature's grandeur and sublimity. A nearby peak little more than 400 feet higher seemed most inviting and there we wended our way, and then stood 12,000 feet above the cares and sorrows of man, looking into scenery that is wild and romantic, fierce and untamed. And far down on the other side of the mountain we could catch a glimpse of the path we had just come upon—far, far below.

Standing on the brow of the mountain, one side of which seemed to drop almost abruptly some 3,000 feet down, we threw some large rocks over its dizzy precipice, but could hear only the slightest noise when it struck the rocks far below. And there we remained enchanted, walking to and fro amid the wonders of nature.

At about 9,000 feet elevation all timber ceased to grow, just a little grass now and then, till we reached about 10,000 feet where even this grew no more.

But snow was not everywhere. Only on the more shaded sides of mountains and in the deep ravines and crevices was snow left, from which poured forth in continuous streams small creeks, which soon united to form the creek along which we had come for a long distance. We could walk safely over these banks of snow for on top they were heavily crusted, giving a sure footing. Neither was it very cold up here. At Denver that day, it had been about 75 degrees and at this highest point, standing in the warm sunshine it was about fifty-five degrees, but in the evening and at night there is always heavy frost. Neither did I feel any discomfort on account of the rarity of the air, although decidely noticeable, neither did I see any of the large party affected, excepting a few who complained of headaches which they claimed was the result of their two hours stay on the mountains.

At 2:30 the train took us on again, to return over the same glorious path, fully to be enjoyed again, arriving at Denver at 6:30 the same evening.

'Twas a most glorious day, never to be forgotten, and worth a long trip to see. The railroad is called the "Moffat Road" and is building through to Salt Lake City, as yet only partially completed.

The next day the Union Pacific had me again in charge, speedily bearing me on now to Salt Lake City of Mormon fame. Not as during as the "Moffat Road" the Union Pacific road ran about the Rockies, going north to Cheyenne in Wyoming, staying on the plains all the time. Cheyenne is the typical wild west, at least at times, when a bunch of cowboys and horseriders come in from the country around after the pay day, and after having drawn plenty of courage and daring from the whiskey flask and the beer barrel begin to "shoot up the town," by riding horseback on the sidewalks at breakneck speed, shooting off their pistols and setting up a general howl, then to disappear again on the immense ranches, and the town is then like any eastern town of its same size, quiet and peaceful. But the day of cowboy and horseriders, at least of the wild and wooly kind is fast dissappearing in the "Wild West."

LIVELY TIME AT GERMAN CAPITAL

Socialists Make a Demonstration Before Parliament Building.

PRINCE VON BUELOW IS HISSED

With Hoots and Shouts the Mob Makes a Demand for Manhood Suffrage.

First Sitting of Vice-Regal Commission to Investigate Disappearance of State Regalia from Buildin Castle.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—The most intense excitement has been aroused here by an interpellation, presented recently to the Prussian landtag by a Liberal member, demanding the introduction of manhood suffrage in the elections of members of the lower house of the Prussian landtag. During the night no fewer than thirty-five Socialist mass meetings were held in Berlin, as well as many others in the country districts, in favor of the movement. Before the landtag convened, Socialists to the number of 1,000 marched in procession before the parliament building. This demonstration assumed a somewhat threatening aspect and a large body of police was called to the scene. The crowd increased rapidly and soon numbered many thousands.

Attempts to Enter Building.

When the doors were opened the nearest to them attempted to force their way into the building. The police resisted and managed to keep the people back. A dozen men did force an entrance, but they were quickly hauled back by the police. The police were still trying to maintain order when Prince Von Buelow drove up. His presence was greeted with loud and frantic cheers, accompanied by much hooting and shouts of "We want manhood suffrage."

The police in the meantime had been strongly reinforced, and fearing that the rising excitement of the crowd would lead to violent disturbances, they decided to clear the approaches to the building. They drove the crowd before them into the side streets. As the people were being hustled away they hissed continually. The police did not draw their weapons and no arrests were made. The manifestants were finally driven from the vicinity of the building.

Crowd at Imperial Square.

After being driven away from the neighborhood of the leading building, the crowd made its way in the direction of the Imperial palace. The police barred the streets leading to the palace, but they did not clear the square facing the Imperial residence, where the family of the emperor are now living. The crowd was composed principally of the unemployed, of which it is estimated that there are at present no less than 50,000 in Berlin. In the square some of the demonstrants became disorderly and were at once arrested.

The entire police force of Berlin has been called out for duty in the principal parts of the city. A serious encounter occurred at the Kurfuerstein bridge. Here the police had to charge with drawn sabres.

DUBLIN CASTLE JEWELS

First Sitting of Commission to Investigate Their Disappearance.

Dublin, Jan. 10.—The vice regal commission appointed recently to sift thoroughly the disappearance from Dublin castle last July of a part of the state regalia, valued at $750,000, held its initial session in the office of Sir Arthur Edward Vicars, Ulster king-of-arms, the custodian of the missing jewels. The hearing was private.

Much to the surprise of everybody concerned, the proceedings were terminated abruptly by the withdrawal of Sir Arthur and his two legal representatives, Timothy M. Healy, M. P., and James Campbell, who all protested against the limited scope of the inquiry. They declined to participate in the investigation or give evidence on the ground that the commission did not have the power to compel the attendance of witnesses or take evidence on oath. Counsel for Sir Arthur declared that their client was anxious that there should be an exhaustive judicial inquiry and that nothing short of this would satisfy him. He wanted the inquiry to be public.

The commission adjourned to consider the points raised.

Demonstration Against Peters.

Cologne, Jan. 10.—The Peters libel suit brought out expressions of popular liberality and when Peters left the courthouse at lunch time he was followed by an excited crowd shouting "murderer!" and other unpleasant epithets. Herr von Perbandt who testified in behalf of Peters, received similar treatment at the hands of the people. Dr. Peters, who was at one time governor of German East Africa, is suing the Cologne Gazette for libel, charging that certain published statements alleging misconduct on his part in Africa are untrue.

Terrorists Resume Operations.

Warsaw, Jan. 10.—The terrorists of this city who have been quiet for some time past have resumed operations. An attack was made on the postoffice station at Sokolow, on the Vistula railroad. A bomb was thrown at the car, killing two and wounding ten soldiers and railroad employes. After looting the safes the terrorists made their escape with a large amount of money.

Dies Performing Operation.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—While performing an operation on a child at Birkenfeld lahrmary, Dr. Martin died suddenly from heart disease. There being no other surgeon present, the child also died.

BLAST OF POWDER JARS FOUR TOWNS

Many Are Hurt in Explosion Near East St. Louis, Ill.—Car Partically Wrecked.

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—The Dupont company's mills, two and one-half miles from Edgemont, midway between East St. Louis and Belleville, Ill., were blown up at 10:30 o'clock at night. Nobody was killed, but many were hurt. Eighteen men had just left the mill, and seventeen men were preparing to take their places in the mill at the time.

The shock was felt sixty miles. At Edgemont fronts of business houses were wrecked. Plate glass windows in St. Louis and other cities were shattered. At Alton, Ill., there was a stampede to get out of a theater.

A suburban car entering Edgemont was partially wrecked. Several passengers were injured and cut by flying glass. Motorman Charlie Barnes, of Belleville, was blown from his post and picked up unconscious ten feet away. Conductor Abel Ramot was also hurt.

Rent Strike Near an End.

New York, Jan. 10.—Eighty evictions of east side rent strikers took place during the day and Monroe street was filled with a picturesque litter of displaced furnishings. It is believed that the strike situation is now near a solution and claims of victory are being made by both sides. Indications are that the strikers are about even, for although most of the tenants paid the rents asked when they saw that eviction was inevitable if they longer refused, others obtained concessions from the landlords varying from $1 to $2 a month.

This Was Not on the Bills.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 10.—Furious over the treatment accorded by the villain to the heroine in a play at a local theater, George Munroe jumped on the stage and, after driving the actor who played the part of the villain off the stage, seized the heroine in his arms and declared he would defend her. Stage hands attempted to drive Munroe from the stage, but he seized a fire axe and refused to leave until he was overpowered by six policemen.

Life Sentence for a Robber.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Life imprisonment was what Richard Johnson got for robbing Welsman's restaurant, 86 State street, Nov. 26. "You are a dangerous type of man," said Judge Kersten, "and I am going to give you the maximum sentence." Johnson admitted pointing a revolver at the cashier, Cella May Rogers, and taking $56. He was captured after a lively chase in which police and citizens took part.

Three Killed in a Wreck.

San Jose, Cal., Jan. 10.—Southbound train No. 10, Sunset express, on the Southern Pacific railroad, was wrecked at Rucker, twenty-five miles below here, and Mrs. A. P. Royal and little son, of Portland, Ore., were killed. An unknown tramp, stealing a ride on the brakebeams, was also killed. Eighteen injured were taken to a Gilroy hospital, where their injuries were treated.

Maine Railway Manager Dead.

Portland, Me., Jan. 10.—George F. Evans, vice president and general manager of the Maine Central railroad died at Vanceboro while on a tour of inspection.

Courier Grange Column

Advanced programs—Paper given in lecturer's conference at state grange:

It is very evident to me from past experience as lecturer, that the question of advanced programs is entitled to more than just a passing notice. The lecturer's work in grange is of the utmost importance. It is the educational department of the organization; through this part of our grange work, we are brought closer together upon questions of vital interest to us in in our order. If a program can be issued from the head of this department for each month, and put into the hands of the lecturer of the subordinate grange in time to be placed in the hands of each member before its next regular meeting, I am sure an increased interest in grange work will bring results that will surprise every member. It will bring out and develop the talent in the grange, that would otherwise be neglected and lost.

If we expect to get the best [illegible] in the grange, we must take advantage of all these opportunities and put forth our best efforts. We would not just plough a field and drop the seed here and there, and expect a bountiful crop. No, indeed; we must plant systematically, harrow, cultivate and prune, then the result we desire will be obtained. The grange was organized to cultivate the farmer as well as the farm.

In these days of great inventions and great enterprises, every effort is being put forth to put them into practical use. We cannot afford to stand still and see the procession go by. We must let the state, the nation, the government know that we are here, and that we are a part of this great commonwealth, and that we propose to let it be known. It is a fact that we have not taken advantage of nor used the means within our reach for the public good.

I might name many things that have been done by wild speculation and what is termed nowadays, graft, that has been, and now is of a serious nature. I trust that some plan may be suggested and adopted that will make grange work tell more effectively than ever before for benefits that we all might enjoy. Our worthy lecturer has done valiant service for the order. Just what her plans may be, I am unable to say, but it is evident from what she has done in the past that her heart and soul is in the work. In my own grange, the advance program has been used for the past two years, with better results than we have been able to obtain by any other plan; a larger attendance, a large increase in membership, greater interest in the work, and each member assigned work taking pride in its complete preparation.

FLAMES DESTROY BIG SKYSCRAPER

Thirteen Story Parker Building in New York City Is in Ruins.

LOSS PLACED AT $6 000,000

Three Firemen Fail to Respond to Roll-Call When Flames Are Subdued.

Sensational Rescues by Firemen of Imperiled Comrades the Feature of the Blaze—Tenants of Building.

New York, Jan. 11.—With the first streaks of dawn scores of firemen began the task of searching in the ruins of the Parker building at Nineteenth street and Fourth avenue, for the bodies of the three firemen who were reported missing after the calling of the roll of the companies that took part in fighting the spectacular fire that destroyed the thirteen story building, causing a loss variously estimated at amounts reaching $6,000,000.

Although accounted fireproof, the great building burned almost like tinder, the fire in the upper stories gaining great headway unchecked, as it was far beyond the reach of even the fire department's great water towers.

Rescue of Five Men.

Sensational rescues were the feature of the fire. Five men who were at work on the top floor of the building were cut off from rescue from below and sought the roof, where they stood silhouetted against the flames which had broken through the roof. From the top of an adjoining building, several stories lower than the blazing one, a line was shot up from a mortar and with this line the beleaguered men drew up a stout rope which they fastened to a chimney, sliding down to the lower roof in safety.

Three firemen were caught in the sixth story when a floor below them dropped and were forced upward to the seventh and then to the eighth story of the building. From below it seemed that rescue was impossible until several firemen seizing scalding ladders began to swing themselves up the face of the tottering wall.

Escape Was Narrow.

Climbing to a window ledge, the ladder with its great hook was drawn up and swung to a higher ledge, the men working heroically until their endangered comrades were reached. Down the smoking wall the men came slowly, almost painfully, until they were near enough to the ground to drop into their comrades' outstretched arms. So narrow was the escape for rescuers as well as rescued, that the ladders themselves were burned where they hung when the firemen dropped from their rungs.

When the fire had burned itself out and the firemen's roll was called, three men of engine company No. 72 failed to respond.

Opinion of Fire Chiefs.

Fire Commissioner Lantry and Assistant Fire Chief Binns said that the disaster proved the inability of the New York fire department to cope successfully with flames in the city's skyscrapers at a greater height than eight stories.

A large number of publishing concerns, including Collier's and the Judge Publishing company, had quarters in the building. One of the biggest concerns occupying offices was the rug firm of Karaghensign & Co. of Constantinople. In their stock were antique rugs of almost priceless value. Their loss alone is estimated at $1,000,000.

Many Rescued from Fire.

Ashtabula, O., Jan. 11.—More than a score of persons were rescued in a sensational manner late at night in a fire which gutted the four-story Warren building. All of the inmates got out alive, but several were badly hurt. Mrs. Klitzler, who lived on the third floor, had to be taken out of a third story window by firemen. Coming down the ladder she fell twenty feet to the sidewalk and was sent to a hospital badly injured. A number of other persons were overcome by smoke, while several were more or less burned before they were carried out of the building. The pecuniary loss is estimated at $20,000.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 11.—Walter Jones, a sixteen-year-old schoolboy, met a strange death at Jellico. He had climbed an electric light pole. Falling a short distance, one of the iron steps on the pole so caught his clothing that he hung head downwards. NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Will Heath Found Exhausted on Ice of Pine Lake.

R. A. Emrey and Morris Ackert skated to Boyne City last week Tuesday and when returning late that evening about 5½ miles from Charlevoix, opposite Peninsula point, they heard a cry for help, which was repeated.

They skated about a mile in the direction of the sound where they found Wilt Heath of this city, lying exhausted upon the ice after what must have been a very severe struggle to save himself from drowning under the ice.

Heath had skated into a crack about ten feet wide and after a vast amount of effort had succeeded in drawing himself out upon the ice by the aid of a bunch of keys, which he succeeded in driving into the ice and pulled himself out a few inches at a time, completely exhausting himself in the effort.

Messrs. Emrey and Ackert carried Heath about a mile and a half to the home of W. C. Grandy on the Boyne City road, where he was put to bed and rubbed and warmed, and was able to skate home next day.

The experience was a rough one for Mr. Heath, and if he had not been found just as he was, might have easily had a fatal termination even after the young man had succeeded in rescuing himself from drowning, as he was in such a weak and exhausted condition when found that he could not possibly have reached home without assistance.

EMREY-GALBRAITH.

George Emrey and Miss Anna Galbraith Are Wedded in Chicago.

News comes of the marriage of George Emrey, eldest son of Mrs. J. Reed Emrey of Grand Rapids, to Miss Anna Galbraith, daughter of Mrs. Kate Galbraith of Chicago, at the latter city last week.

George Emrey was born in Charlevoix and spent his boyhood here, only leaving a few years ago to follow up his work as telephone constructor.

Mrs. Emrey lived in Ironton during her girlhood and graduated from the Charlevoix high school. Since she has been living in Chicago, she, with her mother has visited Charlevoix each summer, and is one of the most popular guests with the young people of the city.

The young couple will have the best wishes of a host of friends in this city and vicinity, for their happiness and prosperity wherever they may decide to make their home. The COURIER extends congratulations.

DEAD WHEN FOUND

Body of James A. Shay Found by Neighbors Last Monday.

James A. Shay, who lives near Dufore's mill on Six Mile lake, in South Arm township, was found dead Monday, December 13, by Mr. McKinnon and two other neighbors. He was last seen alive a day or so previous, when he led his horse to water. Monday it was noticed he had left his doors unfastened, and upon investigation the neighbors found Mr. Shay on the floor near a table. Judging from the appearance of the body, he had suffered a great deal after falling.

The coroner was notified and at the inquest it was decided that death had taken place ten or twelve hours before, from heart disease.

Three hundred and sixty dollars in currency and a note for $60 were found in his pockets.

Mr. Shay was 70 years old and leaves one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Brown, of Antrim county.

The funeral was held Thursday morning from the Grange hall in Jordan township. Interment in Jones cemetery.

Bitten by a Cat.

A peculiar accident happened to William Black of Marion township. Mr. Black was out doing his chores when a pet cat sprang up and bit him on the wrist. Prompt medical assistance probably saved Mr. Black from serious result.

Birthday Party

A HANDY ARRANGEMENT.

"I say, Rhino, that's a handy arrangement you've got there. Glad I brought you along."

TRIP TO THE GREAT WEST

Rev. Ewald Soland Describes It For Charlevoix Friends.

The Land of the Mormons—Completion of the Journey.

From Denver to Cheyenne, from Cheyenne for several hundred miles farther west we passed now through a country that was anything but beautiful, at least for the eye of the passenger in the train.

Large, vast tracts of land, rocky in places, and in many places for miles and miles in fact, nothing but rocks. As we began to climb over the Rocky Mountains on the path of the Union Pacific—but unlike of the grand mountain scenery ouy, more, excepting at times, when immense rocks and palisades stretching for miles and miles into the country like the two dozen ribs of a giant laid bare.

The highest point reached by the Union Pacific is 8,000 feet at Sherman's pass about 50 miles west of Cheyenne. From there the road deseends into a country that is about as dreary looking for many many miles as I fancy the great desert of Sahara in Africa, a few cattle here and there, a few sheep, plenty of gophers at times, that is about all one sees now along the track, otherwise only rough and in August, desert like looking country.

A few towns here and there, to all appearance thriving certainly plenty of room for many more who have the courage.

All day and night we sped along before we arrived at Ogden, yet 50 miles from Salt Lake City.

Through a beautiful, although very narrow canon, where winds a swift flowing mountain stream, for about fifty miles thus between high hills and mountains we entered Ogden, a most beautiful western town, the rival of any city of its own size in the east. Right between the lake and a high ridge of mountains, standing it seemed about 4,000 feet high right in back of it.

At Ogden one of the queer things in life occurred. An old man, about 75 years of age and his wife of same age stepped from our car here, to transfer to the California train. As he stepped from the car to the platform, he fell down touched by heart failure. There he lay on the platform beside the car, and before the ambulance reached him, he had already breathed his last—they had sold out in the east and were now on their way to California to enjoy the rest of their days. What a fleeting, uncertain thing life is!

From Ogden to Salt Lake City of Mormon fame, only at a distance could one see, the Salt Lake from the train. And now Salt Lake City. There is very little of the romantic about it now any more, for it is now a modern city, where the Mormons are hardly half of the population, the rest like in all great cities.

In the four hours stay in Salt Lake between trains, I had ample leisure to see its greatest attraction. The Mormon Assembly hall, the Tabernacle and the Temple. The Assembly hall is much like any other large building for assembling purposes in other large cities, outside having somewhat the appearance of a gothic church.—The Tabernacle is an immense hall, some 250 feet long and nearly 200 feet wide, much like the shape of a huge egg, cut in half and placed on brick walls about 20 feet high. This building seats, all told with large gallery, about 10,000 people. It is really remarkable for its good acoustics—you can hear a whisper distinctly from one end to the other inside the building and there

REMOVE TO THIS CITY

The A. Booth Packing Co. Make Charlevoix their Headquarters

Will Erect New Building in the Spring. Olaf Nordrum will be Manager.

During the past two months there has been many rumors of the removal of the main offices of the A. Booth Packing Co. from Petoskey, but the COURIER was requested not to mention it until the arrangements were completed.

But now we are glad to announce that all arrangements are completed, and in the spring, the company will erect on the Round Lake frontage, known as the Donnelly property, which they have leased, all the nessecary buildings for their large trade. Five men will be employed in the offices, the territory managed from here will embrace all Northern Michigan.

The change is made because Charlevoix is the most convenient point to manage their immense business, which at Petoskey had a pay roll of $8,000 and will be much increased here.

The business will be under the management of Olaf Nordrum, who will move his family here in the spring. The Petoskey News in speaking of Mr. Nordrum says: "Petoskey will lose one of her best citizens and business men. Mr. Nordrum has been in the city a great number of years, commencing a promising business career in the year of 1891 with the R. Connable & Sons Fish Company here. With that company and with the Booth Company succeeding, he has steadily risen to his present good position. In his residence here he has made a great number of friends, who will wish him the best of success wherever he is located."

This will be a very important addition to the business interests of our city and we believe is but the advance guard of the many industries, which must be attracted here by our superior advantages.

FRACTURED HER LIMB.

Mrs. Peter Block Falls on Steps With Serious Results.

Mrs. Peter Block, who lives one mile from Barnard church, had the misfortune last Friday to slip on an icy step, striking the ground with such force as to break her leg just below the hip.

Mrs. Block has been an invalid for some time, being only able to move about the house with crutches. Her condition at this writing is very serious.

Death of Philip L. Lanway.

Philip L. Lanway, one of the best known men in East Jordan, died at his home at that place on Thursday of last week. Mr. Lanway during life held many responsible public positions, and was respected by all who knew him. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn their loss.

The funeral was held from the L. D. S. hall, Elder Dudley conducting the services. Interment at Jones' cemetery.

HIGH SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Fine Exhibition of the Work Being Done in Our Schools

Parents are Urged to Visit the Schools and Note the Progress the Students are Making.

The high school exhibit, which was held in the music room of the Central high school last Friday afternoon, was well worthy of praise, but, as usual, the attendance was small.

The English department was comprised of the four grades, and consisted of note books and drawing. One of the nice features of the English literature class, was the original drawings, which were designed to illustrate some characteristic of the author. For example: A collection of books in a very neat design, was drawn to denote the chief characteristic of Bacon.

There was also a fine collection of note books and drawings from the tenth grade, physical class, eleventh grade, chemistry and twelfth grade physics.

The mechanical drawings, which were from the four grades, consisted of mission tables, sideboards and sectional book cases. These drawings were very good. This is an elective course.

The Latin and grammar departments were well represented.

The departments of mathematics and history consisted of the examination papers of the algebra classes and note books on American history.

In the commercial department, we found the daily work being done by the commercial arithmetic class, bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting and example of different business methods.

This work is not especially prepared for these exhibits, but it is chiefly comprised of the daily work of all of the students, and if parents desire to see what their boys and girls are doing in their school work, they will benefit themselves and encourage the teachers and pupils by attending these meetings.

NEW ROOF IS NOW ON.

Repairs on the Court House Are Being Pushed During Fine Weather.

The fine weather is helping Contractor Jones in the repairs on the court house. A full force of men are at work, and at noon Wednesday the roof was on. County Treasurer Payton stated to a representative of this paper that he would be in his old quarters by the first of February, at least, at the rate the repair work is being pushed.

The insurance adjusters were here last Friday and everything was settled in a satisfactory manner. The insurance received on the contents and fixtures was $2501.52, from ten different companies.

Judge Mayne received $500, the full amount of insurance carried by him on his private library, but this only covers about half his total loss.

ACCOUNTS MUST BE SETTLED

All persons owing the firm of Wm. Vandercook & Son are requested to call and pay their accounts at once. The books must be closed at once. 4tf

A QUAINT SPANISH TOWN

L. D. Bartholomew Writes Courier of New Smyrna, Florida.

Historical Recollections Hover About the Town—Many Ruins of Ancient Date.

New Smyrna, Fla., Jan. 10, 1908.

Editor COURIER:

As I am located here for the winter, will give you a brief description of this quaint Spanish town. It is situated on the west bank of Indian River North, four miles south of New Smyrna inlet light, and 125 miles south of Jacksonville, on the Florida East Coast railroad. It is built on what is called "High Hummocks," which is covered with a dense growth of beautiful trees such as palmettos, magnolias, holly, live oak, water oak, hickory, red cedar, pine, etc., which must have grown up within the past one hundred and fifty years, for at that time these rich hummock lands were being cultivated for the manufacture of sugar and indigo.

The town has fine shell streets, making beautiful drives in every direction. Date, palm, orange and grape-fruit trees loaded with their golden fruit, roses and tropical flowers in bloom surround the cottages, and although the town has been known as New Smyrna ever since its first settlement, "Park City" would now be a more appropriate name.

New Smyrna is historically famous for the Greek and Minorcan colony of 1500, established by Dr. Andrew Turnbull in 1765, and was named from Smyrna, a town in Asia minor, which was the birthplace of Turnbull's wife.

Scattered along the banks of the Hillsboro, or Indian River North, as it is now called, for several miles, are the ruins of the old Minorcan houses, with coquina stone floors, chimneys, and wells curbed with hewn stone. What still remains of the drainage canals and the ruins of the sugar mills indicate that the plans for this enterprise were made on a large scale.

Other ruins known as "Rock House" and the "Columbus Chapel," or Spanish mission, are by some authorities though to out-date the advent of Turnbull. For nearly four hundred years before the English settlement at New Smyrna it was recorded in the musty archives at Madrid under a musical name meaning a mission in the new and strange "Land of Flowers." Back of all this for untold periods, the red men dwelt here, leaving behind him the immense shell mounds upon which the greater portion of the beautiful village now stands.

The COURIER is a welcome visitor once a week which keeps me posted with the home news of "Charlevoix the Beautiful." Yours truly,

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW.

A battle is on between Rev. B. F. Fowler, pastor of the United Brethren church of Elmira, and Charles B. Hurd, a teacher in the public schools. Both men are popular and seemed to be the best of friends until a short time ago, when the minister delivered a strong sermon against the "vices" of card playing and dancing.

As a result of putting on the social ill Mrs. Charles Hurd withdrew from the church, and now both pastor and teacher have vowed to run the other out of town if possible. The quarrel is occasioning a great deal of comment. Rev. Mr. Fowler but recently came to his present field and has made a good impression. On the other hand, Mr. Hurd and his wife have always lived here and are perhaps the most popular young people in the community.

THAW'S MOTHER AS A WITNESS

Testifies in Behalf of Her Son at the Trial in New York.

REPEATS STORY OF LAST YEAR

Wife of the Prisoner Also Goes Up on the Witness Stand for Him:

Practically Every Question Asked Her by Attorney Littleton Regarding Her Early History Is Objected To.

New York, Jan. 17.—The defense at the Thaw trial continued to build up its overwhelming net of irrationality around the man accused of the murder of Stanford White. Two important witnesses at the morning session were Miss Alice C. Fletcher, of the archaeological bureau of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, a longtime friend of the Thaws and a frequent visitor at their home; and Miss Catherine O'Neill, who nursed Thaw during six years of his childhood. They both declared he was an irrational youth and detailed the many incidents in his life which had led them to the conclusion.

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, unexpectedly, was called to the stand just before noon, but was withdrawn a moment later to make way for other witnesses.

Thaw's Mother on Stand.

Mrs. William Thaw was called to the stand at the afternoon session. As she took the oath she gave her name as Mary Copley Thaw, and her residence as Pittsburg. She was questioned by Mr. Littleton. Thaw looked intently and earnestly at his mother, who was very pale and weak in sharp contrast to the ruddy good health which marked her appearance of year ago. Her testimony closely followed that of the last trial beginning with the return of her son to his Pittsburg home in November, 1903, after Evelyn Nesbit had told him her story in Paris, that summer.

"Usually Harry came home buoyant and joyously," she declared, "but this time there was not a smile."

Mrs. Thaw said she asked her son what was the matter.

"I can't tell you, mother," he replied. "I never can tell you."

Cried and Moaned in Night.

The mother then repeated what she had related on the stand last year as to her son crying and moaning during the night of his frequent playing on the piano, when the music would become loud and then die away until finally it would stop. Thaw's head was bent down.

Mrs. Thaw said she frequently asked her son what was worrying him and finally he declared that a beautiful young girl he was interested in had had a terrible experience in New York. The mother told him he should not worry about such matters; that the girl had a mother who should care for her. Thaw replied that the girl's mother had not looked after her and that was why it all had happened.

Harry Thaw eventually told his mother the young girl's name was Nesbit.

Not Responsible for Others' Sins.

"The name meant nothing to me," declared the witness. "For I had never heard of the young woman before. Harry said it had all occurred when Miss Nesbit was a little girl. It was in New York, he said. I tried to impress upon him that he was not responsible for the sins of other men."

"Did you call in a physician?" asked Mr. Littleton.

"I did not, but Harry called in Dr. Klingman, our old family physician."

Mrs. Thaw next told of the day she and her son went to Thanksgiving Day service at the Presbyterian church in Pittsburg, when Thaw broke down and cried when the choir was singing Kiphug's "Recessional."

"Just to think," Thaw sobbed. "If it hadn't happened she might have been here with us today."

Mrs. Thaw described Harry's crying as a "perfect shower of tears."

Sensational Return to New York.

Thaw said to her that the Nesbit girl had been put on the stage by her mother. "But she will never be able to make a living," he exclaimed, "she will never be a great actress, and poor actresses, mother, go under."

In Rome the family went abroad and Harry was left to a watering place in France.

"When did you next see him?"

"Not until after the sensational return to New York of the two on the same steamer Evelyn and Harry came on the same steamer."

Mrs. Thaw pronounced her daughter-in-law's name the same way the young woman did when on the stand with the long "E" accent on the first syllable. Mrs. Thaw said she was not pleased with the notoriety and sent for her son. He declared there was nothing wrong in anything he had done and that the young woman had been very ill.

Consented to Son's Marriage.

Mrs. Thaw next told of her consent early in 1905 to her son's marriage with Mrs. Nesbit when the parents that the girl's past history never was to be mentioned again. The marriage was performed at Pittsburg in April 1905, and the two went on their wedding trip.

"Harry in all his talk never suggested at any time that it had been the girl's fault," said Mrs. Thaw.

The examination was temporarily suspended here. Mrs. Thaw had to be assisted from the witness' chair. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw then was called to the stand. She said she was the wife of the defendant and was born Christmas day, 1884. Her father died when she was ten year old.

District Attorney Jerome objected to practically every question Mr. Littleton asked the witness as to her early history and was sustained in many of them.

Rush to Europe Continues.

New York, Jan. 18.—The rush of emigrants to return to Europe keeps up and the figures for January will show an enormous increase over the same month last year. Already 30,656 steerage passengers have left New York so far this month, as against 9,478 last year. During the same period this year only 7,138 steerage passengers have arrived at this port.

Burglars Chloroform Fourteen.

New York, Jan. 18.—Burglars chloroformed the seven members of Herman Grongner's family in their home in Twenty-Second street and carried away $1,650 in cash. Shortly afterwards the seven members of James Berghi's family, who live in Twenty-First street, were also chloroformed. The burglars here only secured a watch and chain and $14 in money.

Well Known Fraternity Man Dead.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 18.—Colonel John I. Handley, supreme vice president of the Fraternal Union of America, is dead at his home, of appendicitis. Colonel Handley was seventy-four years of age, and was one of the best known fraternity men in America, having been one of the founders and incorporators of the Fraternal Union of America.

Dancing All the Physical Exercise Woman Needs

By DR. ROBERTSON WALLACE.

It appears to be very generally taken for granted that the practice of athletics by woman is necessary for the physical salvation of the race. She is urged to go in for a bewildering variety of physical culture movements, active and passive forms of exercise, ball punching, lawn tennis, golf, cricket and hockey, with a view to preserving her own health, and preventing the degeneration of posterity. The modern woman is to save mankind by retrieving the fallen physique of the race. The white woman's burden is the cradle of humanity, which in future is to be filled only with the offspring of mothers who possess the beauty of Helen of Troy, the symmetry of Venus, the endurance of Diana, and the mental powers of Minerva. The future of mankind is to be assured by the immensity of the maternal muscular development and the child's grip on life to be fostered by dumb-bells and perfected with punch-balls.

So far as women are concerned, the methods of physical culture are being boomed just a trifle too loudly. Ever since Eve first stepped upon the planet women have done very well indeed. Primitive woman expanded her chest and contracted her biceps without the use of any apparatus, and from sheer force of necessity. Probably she jumped for joy and danced in rags just as her daughters do to this day. She had need to be fleet of foot to escape the attentions of undesirable saurians and ineligible suitors. In a word she got all the muscular exercise that was good for her. She practiced physical culture as M. Jourdain talked prose, without knowing it; and that her methods were quite satisfactory is proved by the enduring qualities of most of her progeny, many of whom are perhaps to their surprise, still extant.

The world has been made what it is, and history has been not only made but made possible by those great men whose names are familiar to every schoolboy. Those strong men who have carved the world into its present shape, and left the impress of their powerful personalities in every quarter of the rugged globe, were the children of mothers who, so far as we can ascertain, gave no particular heed to the scientific culture of their muscles, and neglected to take, I fear, a well-balanced diet.

I am often tempted to wonder what substitutes for the ling exercises, or the different kinds of Home Exercisers, were devised by the strenuous mothers of Julius Caesar and Alexander the Great.

How is it that in what we are pleased to call the dark ages, their women were supposed to take no muscular exercise and almost to draw their breath only at a venture, the race did not degenerate and altogether die out? The truth of the matter is that human nature is the same to-day as it was when humanity first made its bow to the planet. There were as many light hearts in the dark ages as there are heavy hearts in the days of legit. Woman's first step on this planet was taken, we feel sure to the music of the spheres. It was the first step in that dance which she was subsequently to lead all mankind. Woman's development began in a dance; it will be maintained and perfected by the dance, and it will end in a dance. In a word, dancing has been woman's chief delight since her ... first touched the springy turf in the dim beginnings of time. All the little mothers of great men ran, leaped, skipped and danced, as all but poor crippled children do to this day. Dancing is the one exercise never figural to, and last to be given up by, women. The grande dames of history were great because they danced.

No amount of lawn-tennis, golf, cricket, or hockey, however assiduously pursued by women, will make the race one iota stronger to-day than it has been in the past before athletics for women were dreamed of.

The large and appreciative audience showed that our lecture course will be an unqualified success, and that means that it will become a permanent feature of our Charlevoix winters. Mr. Bingham in the course of his entertainment took occasion to speak very highly of the following numbers on the course, particularly of Leland T. Powers.

The next number of the lecture course will occur Friday evening, February 7, and will be a lecture by Dr. Monroe Markley. Notice what was said of his lecture at Genesco, Illinois: Rev. W. Millard said, "The town is yours. In my six years here I never heard anyone captivate them all the way you did. You can return any time you wish and be sure of a crowded house."

GIFT OF GARTER CAUSES ASSAULT

Present to Girl in College Days, Fifteen Years Ago, Given as Explanation of Fierce Attack

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 18.—A garter with a pretty silk ribbon and "fraternity" engraved buckle is said to have been the cause of the assault which Carl Lane Clemens, of Snohomish, Wash., made on R. H. Dosh, of Scurry, in the statehouse. The garter was given by Dosh to Mrs. Clemens twelve or fifteen years ago, according to old friends and classmates of the two, while they were students at Simpson college, Indianola.

Neither man had ever seen the other before when they met by accident on business in the attorney general's office. Clemens heard Dosh give his name to the clerk, asked him his initials, invited him out into the corridor and knocked him down. Then the two men walked out into the street, where Clemens knocked him down again, Dosh's head hitting the sidewalk with such force that he is still in the Methodist hospital here in a critical condition.

Scotland Yard Detective at Last Locates His Men at Merced, Cal.—Took $200,000 in Gems

Merced, Cal., Jan. 18.—A Scotland Yard detective arrested in this city two men accused of a $200,000 jewel robbery in London nearly five years ago. The accused men waived extradition and the detective and his prisoners left for New York on the Santa Fe overland.

Four years ago last April the home of a wealthy resident of London was robbed of a large amount of jewelry valued at $200,000. Simultaneously with the burglary the groom and butler employed in the house disappeared. The detectives of Scotland Yard traced the men around the world, and finally found them here. It is said none of the jewels was recovered.

Many Funerals at Boyertown.

Boyertown, Pa., Jan. 18.—It was another day of funerals in Boyertown, the scene of the theatre fire in which 173 persons lost their lives. About sixty funerals took place, and so great was the demand for undertakers and hearses that additional assistance and vehicles had to be impressed into service from neighboring places.

To Observe Child Labor Day.

New York, Jan. 18.—The national child labor committee has just issued through the religious press of the country a letter to pastors and churches requesting the observance of Saturday, Jan. 25, or Sunday, Jan. 26, as child labor day. Last year a large number of churches considered this subject on child labor day.

Arrest of Alleged Freight Thieves.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 17.—The arrest of eight switchmen on the charge of robbing freight cars, has probably broken up a well organized gang, which has caused the Peoria and Pekin Union Railway company a great deal of annoyance for some time. The method of looting the cars, it is said, was to place them on an isolated siding on the other side of the river, on what is called the "Hump," remove merchandise and then place the cars in an outward bound train.

Support Home Trade.

If you send your money away from home does it not occur to you that you are not helping to build up your own community, or make it pay your home storekeeper to stay in business where you live, and where he helps you to pay taxes, but that you are building up some concern in a distant city that has no interest in you or your property.

Remember that your home merchant accomodates you often by delivering your goods at your door, by extending credit to you when cash is not at hand; he helps to support the schools, churches and other public institutions, including the helpless and unfortunate ones in your locality; he is your neighbor, working shoulder to shoulder with you, and helps to increase the value of your own farm or real estate by making your community more active and vigorous.

The tendency for the past few years has been for people to congregate in large cities, and the more the farmer helps to centralize the distribution of goods in large cities the more he helps to cut down the value of his farm and the farm products. It is for the interest of the farmer to have a number of villages, towns and small cities throughout the country rather than a few large cities. By building up his own community and helping to make it progressive, working shoulder to shoulder with his neighbor, the merchants and local business men, each helping the other, conduces to the best development of the country.

As might well would be the case, the state system of guaranteeing bank deposits, inaugurated by Oklahoma, is rapidly finding advocates in other states. Michigan among others. Lansing advices report several members of the constitutional convention as busy drafting provisions empowering the legislature to make compulsory on state banks the guaranty of depositors, and permitting national banks to take advantage of this insurance system on substantially the same terms. Ex-State Banking Commissioner Moore, a convention delegate from Port Huron, heartily indorses the general plan and declares that a one-mill tax on bank deposits would pay all losses through Michigan bank failures during the last five years, as the total losses during that period were only $350,000, while the deposits are $350,000,000. The convention should certainly give the legislature power to deal with the deposit-guaranty problem; but it should beware of attempting to bind it as to details. The field is new, and Oklahoma's experience may furnish important object lessons before the Michigan legislature meets in 1909. —Grand Rapids Herald.

ONE of Michigan's most successful tillers of the soil has enlisted in The Free Press and his state-ments are epitomized to insure the wide attention to which they are entitled.

He can accomplish many times as much now as twenty years ago because of improved labor-saving machinery. Markets are more numerous and the way to reach them easier. He can treble his production because of better live stock in every department, a more scientific knowledge of how to keep the soil at its best and an intelligent rotation of crops.

But all this, insists this informant, does not account for what is accomplished by the most prosperous farmers. The secret lies in knowing how to dispose to the best advantage of what is sold from the farm. The name "Rube" no longer applies to the live farmer. Not many years back the foxy buyer of live stock and crops had easy sailing. He would perhaps deal squarely with a few farmers under promise from them not to quote his prices and then have them toil for him with his neighbors.

Some went innocently into the conspiracy while others, says this Michigan man, deliberately took the bribe and helped the schemer to buy for much less than the purchases were actually worth.

Now, the many farmers who pile up annual profits read the papers. Only those in the rear of the profession are content to slouch along in the old manner, allowing those with whom they deal to get prices both ways. There are country merchants who speak of the farmers who do not keep posted through the papers as "angels." They sell at what is offered and buy for what is asked.

It is the man who has his morning paper with the market reports that gets all that is coming to him, and to him the rural free delivery is an incalculable aid to fortune.

THE farmers that have stored their potatoes for a fifty-cent price now can dispose of them and by their shrewdness make a handsome profit. The fact that they were able to hold their crop shows that they are in a prosperous condition and because of that are able to realize still more for their labor. In striking contrast with this is the situation which has existed for years in some portions of the country where it was necessary to mortgage the crops in order to live while they were being raised.

Death of Mrs. Jane Reid.

Mrs. Jane Reid, mother of Mrs. B. F. Hartsig, who has been residing with her daughter on Petoskey avenue, was suddenly stricken with apoplexy last Thursday and after unconsciousness of only four hours breathed her last.

Adam Reid and a sister from Troy, Michigan, came here Saturday, and after brief funeral services at the house, conducted by Rev. H. A. Putnam, the remains were taken to Troy for burial.

The deceased was 71 years of age at the time of her death.

DYEING OF GARMENTS.

How Women Can Do It Successfully at Home.

If a little time and thought are given to the fixing up of things that have begun to look dowdy and soiled, you cannot imagine how it will repay you, says the Chicago News. The process of dyeing has become so easy that almost any woman can do it successfully at home unless the garment be extremely intricate in its style and elaborate as to trimmings. However, the small things of a girl's wardrobe can be handled at home very successfully. Take, for instance, your chiffon veils that are soiled and faded. These veilings should first be washed in a warm suds and dried. Any druggist carries a full line of reliable dyes, and a ten cent package will dye a pound of goods. The dye should then be prepared and the veils dipped to the desired shade and ironed dry.

Another thing that can be successfully handled at home is the coque feather boas, which fade so quickly in the summer and have become soiled from the dust. Wash these first as you would the veils by making a suds, and dip the boa up and down until all the dirt has disappeared. Now dry it and then dip it in the dye. Take it out in the open air and keep shaking it until it is quite dry. This will require fifteen or twenty minutes, but if you do not shake it dry the feathers will hang heavy and lose their fluffy appearance.

Ribbons dye very easily at home, and all the soiled ribbons left over from the summer season can be dipped a dark shade and worn as belts, hair ribbons, etc. This is pre-eminently a season where one tone is being carried out in gowns, and this means that all laces which go to trim a dress must be dyed that color. Lavender dresses are trimmed with laces dyed the same shade. Brown laces are seen made up in entire gulmpes to be worn with the new shades of brown broadcloth suits. To carry out this idea you must first buy the goods; then buy the amount of lace you want in pure white or ecru. Take a sample of the goods and the lace to any reliable dyeing establishment, and they will dye it the desired shade. Hats are made of this dyed lace, and much of it is used in trimming the fashionable Japanese sleeves.

Let the woman at home who wants to try her hand at this work get a ten cent package of dye at any drug store and begin on something that is not particularly valuable. Make the dye and test its color with a piece of old rag that is clean. Go slow at first, and with each time you will find that your success has grown and that in this way you can keep your little accessories in a nice, fresh condition.

How to Clean White Gloves.

Nothing is so economical for ordinary wear as white doeskin gloves, for they last well and wash almost unendingly, but their success lies in the secret of careful washing. The gloves should be put in warm water, not too warm, and gently rubbed with a good soap. Take each glove singly and soap it into a ball in the palm of the hand. Rinse by gently shaking in the water. When the rinsing is well accomplished, soap them again, and then without being rinsed squeeze them until all the water has run out. Straighten the gloves, don't pull them, and hang to dry where there is a current of air; do not put them near a fire. The drying takes rather a long time, and at first the gloves look spoiled, says Home Notes. But they are a real success when once dry, and they must be briskly rubbed together to get rid of the stiffness; then they are ready to wear and as good as new.

WHAT A FARMER SAYS.

The Trusts Have the Idea; the Rest Suffer Because They Have Not.

Trusts are not altogether bad, as most farmers think. The long headed men who constitute the trusts are organizing the industries of the world. They are showing farmers and wageworkers how to do business. They are systemizing production and distribution. They are using machinery to advantage, and, remember, the full use of machinery can only be had by organization and system. The more complete the organization the better will machinery perform its service. The machine is a social institution, and Socialism proposes the completest possible organization of these social forces in the interest of the useful citizenship.

For this social service the trusts are charging their own price. Farmers and wageworkers are not paying enough attention to their side of this social contract. They are producing abundantly, but they leave the entire management of the business, particularly the transportation and distribution departments, to the trusts, and for their own useful services as working people they more or less meekly, more or less grumblingly, take just what the trusts are forced to leave them. Instead of $1,000 or $8,000 per year, they manage to subsist on $437.

It is well known that "the law is a part of every contract," and Socialists at least understand that political parties are the social representatives of the economic classes—workingmen and capitalists. That the laws are made and administered by the politicians of both old parties in the interest of capitalists, of labor exploiters, is plain, and when a farmer or wageworker votes for the politicians of either old party he votes for $437 per year instead of $1,000 or more. He votes into every contract laws in the interest of the exploiting capitalist class, and these laws fix the relations with the masters of the "big stone." If the giant Labor be in chains it is because he votes to wear those chains.

The secret of the success of big capital is not so much of a secret after all. Big capital organizes and systemizes its business. It doubles, trebles and quadruples the productive power of labor. It cuts off waste. It commands the use of the best machinery against which small capital using inferior machinery and in poorer system cannot successfully compete. It causes goods to be produced cheaper, dispense and thus takes the market from the little old shops who hang to the old methods. Also the trusts are creating a small class of capitalist owners and a large class of wageworkers. The little independent producers, who are mostly farmers, are being squeezed out. Capital is socializing industry. Let labor now proceed to the socialization of capital. Toward this we are rapidly proceeding in the due course of social growth. The air is full of Socialism. It is all around us. Even now we are in the midst of the social revolution."

But capitalists now dictate the terms upon which labor produces and exchanges. Labor scarcely has a voice in the matter. Capital takes the cream because we consent to this one sided business arrangement. We protest, we grumble, we kick, but we consent. How do we consent? We consent with our ballots, and we can only withdraw our consent by casting our votes for more complete Socialism—by the rearrangement of the terms upon which labor serves society the ballot is labor's only voice. If he is satisfied that the present capitalist class shall absolutely dictate these terms he does well to vote either old party ticket. If he wants the $1,000 per year standard of living instead of the $437 standard he must vote for it. Farmers and wageworkers get just what they vote for.—From "Letters From a Farmer," by C. J. Lamb.

FOR THE INDIVIDUAL.

Socialism Insures the Fullest Freedom to Every Human Being.

Let no one be astonished that we bring forward the idea of a national community now, whereas at first we set ourselves to establish the liberty of the individual. The nation, and the nation alone, can enfranchise all citizens. Only the nation can furnish the means of free development to all. Private associations, temporary and limited in character, can protect little groups of individuals only for a time. But there is only one universal association that can guarantee the rights of all individuals without exception, not only the rights of living, but of those who are yet unborn and who will take their places in the generations to come.

If, then, we invoke the nation we do so in order to insure the rights of the individual in the fullest and most universal sense. Not a single human being for a single moment of time should be excluded from the sphere of rights. Not one should be in danger of becoming the party or instrument of another individual. Not one should be deprived of the sure means of laboring freely without servile dependence on any other individual.

Social ownership of property is merely opportunity of action brought within the reach of all.

Socialism will exalt and ennoble humanity. It will bevel up all men and give new meaning and dignity to life.—Jaures.

Industrial Depressions.

Those who believe that there are indications that a severe industrial depression is due will find by an inspection of the monthly issuance of building permits that in the month of August the building operations in Chicago were $1,000,000 less than in the corresponding month in 1906 and that for the past eight months of the present year there was an aggregate decrease operations of capitalism can only be abolished when the industry of the country is freed from the anarchistic organization that now prevails and is systematically run by the workers.—Chicago Daily Socialist.

Socialism Against Anarchy.

Socialism or Collectivism is definitely set over against anarchy as its legitimate opponent, as its opposite. Anarchism contends that the working class is incapable of emancipating itself. Anarchism declares only for revolution and refuses any statement of what it would do. Anarchism always relates itself to the present state, not as a good citizen seeking justice, but as a rebel promoting disorder. Anarchism is a programme of destruction. Socialism contends that the working class must and will emancipate itself and by securing power to government introduce collective ownership of great productive and distributive enterprises of the nation. It has a definite programme in accord with natural evolution. Its votaries are good citizens working through the lawful agencies of our civilization to change what is bad in our present system. Socialism puts forward a constructive programme that challenges the trust and confidence of all men. People confound Socialism and anarchy, and yet will themselves confess that in very many respects the present system is absolute anarchy. The Socialist strives to get rid of the anarchy in the present system. We must surely be in sympathy with their efforts in this respect.—G. H. Strobell.

Worth Considering.

When Socialism is adopted farmers will not be serfs and peasants; they will not work twelve hours a day; they will not have to live isolated lives; they will be stinted to receive the benefit of every improvement that is produced; they will have all the advantages that any other class of citizens enjoy; they will not have to take any chances of drought, famine or failure; they will not be subject to the ups and downs of any market prices; they will not be taken advantage of by a thousand sharpers; they will be able to travel as much as other citizens; they will dress as well and live as well. If they only knew!—Appeal.

A FEW WON'TS.

You can afford books when Socialism comes.

There will be no blacklists under Socialism.

There will be no police under Socialism.

There will be no militia lists under Socialism.

There will be no tenters or evictions when Socialism comes.

There will be no boodling and no grafting under Socialism.

You will have time for reading and study when Socialism comes.

Men will not work all their lives and then be made paupers in a day by a fire or panic when Socialism comes.—Appeal to Reason.

The World Is Learning How to Keep in Health

By DR. H. W. WILEY,
Chief of Government Bureau of Chemistry, and Director of Pure Food Investigations.

The health of the people of this world is growing better all the time. Fifty years ago the average length of human life was only 33 years. Now it is between 35 and 40, and nearly 40. In a couple of hundred years we ought to have increased it to 50 years.

Disease is being suppressed more and more. It is still the fashion to bring children up on the bottle. When mothers come to understand that their own milk is free from germs and that the milk used out of bottles carries cultures of diphtheria and cholera infantum the children will have two chances of living where they only have one now.

The education of the people is going forward every day, so that they are constantly increasing their armor against disease. In the end centenarians will be commoner than blackbirds.

For instance, see what has been done at eliminating typhoid, which, with tuberculosis, carries off more people than any other disease. Vienna, having a seperate system of water supply for drinking purposes, has brought the typhoid death rate down to one in 100,000. Vienna gets her drinking water direct from the Alpine snows.

While the education of the people, particularly the mothers, is to be the principal factor in bringing more favorable conditions for the health of the people, the fight for legislation should be continued.

Better Eyes and a Better World

By HORACE TRAUBEL,
Literary Executor of Walt Whitman.

The world is growing better because more people in the world are getting eyes. Growing better is seeing better. Civilization is sight. Not saintship. Not puerile moral self-satisfaction. Not superiority. Civilization is democracy. It is the open road and the open mind. It is the equal chance. It is salvation for all, rather than security for a few.

The world is growing better because growing better is more natural to it than growing worse. The individual is beginning to see himself in social perspectives. In the communal. Because that he can do nothing alone. Is helpless without the crowd. No storms of indefinite virtue will press the gage beyond. The world is going to be set forward by social rebellion. Nothing can frustrate the drift.

Man comes first. He is the unrequitable consolation. All who would build securely must build on man. All who mold books. All who build houses. All who build cities. All must build on man. No one shall hereafter build on rent, interest or profit. These three made one in greed are the inherited enemy. They must be destroyed. There shall be no consequent ownership of man by man. Of any worker by a boss. Of any child by a parent. Of any wife by a husband or husband by a wife. Of any author by a publisher. Of any editor by a proprietor. Of even the lowest by the highest. Ownerships will be universally abolished in order that ownership may be universally assisted. The person must give in to the mass in order that the enemy may be reborn in the spirit of the brother.

This has always been the dream of the saviors. It is now going to be the fact of the saved. Once the crowd looked outside of itself for salvation. Now it sees that it will be saved from within. It is not contradicting the isolated saviors. It is only confirming their prophesy. We are producing a world of saviors identified with a world of the saved.

The world must grow better because the existence of this devotion is an evidence that the vision of the world is improving. It is all a question of eyes. We become better by seeing better.

For the first time in history we see the progressive political forces of different countries unified in their adhesion to an international philosophy. That means the end of war. That means the end of patriotism. That means the end of classes. That means the end of superior and inferior. Of up and down. Of the master and the slave. Of the employer and the employed. That means that the social structure will celebrate service rather than sacrifice. And explains why our world is growing better.

The enfranchising spirit of this vision is being made flesh in the every day of labor and conduct. If you do not see this, you may look about you and find that the world, notwithstanding its vanities and physical glories, is a blank. If you do see this, you have your gaze fixed upon the face of revelation.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and one dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.

are no pillars inside to support the roof, which is double roofed—(the roofs being about 6 or 8 feet apart,) and all the timbers in this unique roof are tied together with raw oxhide and no nail of any kind was used. There is nothing specially beautiful about it otherwise, but it is certainly unique in its plan.

The third building in this group however is magnificent. It is called the Temple, and is the second building of the Mormons, where the foot of the Gentile is not allowed—you may look at it from the outside, but the inside will remain a mystery to you unless you be a Mormon. It is an imposing building shaped much after the fashion of some of the magnificent old Cathedrals of Europe. Its sides are nearly 200 feet high and flanked by about a dozen small towers everything is of native hardest granite, and was more than twenty years building.

Next Brigham Young's old mansion, called the "Bee Hive" is of historical interest: a stately mansion where Brigham Young certainly practised what he preached.

All these buildings are in one large square surrounded by an old adobe wall about 8feet high. At the main entrance to this square stands a smaller, but very neat stone structure, where is located the information bureau, where there are always a few of the Elders of the church to show the visitors around.

Of interest to many people of northern Michigan and especially Beaver Island and immediate vicinity will be the fact that quite a number of the old and young Mormons of Beaver Island fame are still living in Salt Lake City, and their history seems to be still fresh in the memory at least of the Elder that showed us about the place. But when I mentioned to him the fact that I had been on Beaver Island for a length of time and had heard a great deal of their local history and of the death of their King James, he seemed not anxious to speak further on the history.

The religionic of the Mormons is still quite great in Utah and in the neighboring state of Idaho both in religious and political and commercial influence and even in Oregon their commercial influence is felt. But the day of the Mormon church is nearing sunset, for the youngest generation as a whole seems quite indifferent to the visions of Joe Smith their founder and of Joe Smith their present president.

Late in the afternoon the train carried us away again from Salt Lake City—the collossal monument of a gigantic religious imposter, like Zion City on the shores of Lake Michigan stands a monument, to the ravings of a Dowie.

Towards Idaho now lay our way. A country of extensive grazing land for its many cattle and sheep and the home of many silver and lead mines. What one sorely misses in Idaho, as already in Wyoming, Utah and Colorado excepting a few isolated places, are the large cultivated farms of the east. Here almost the entire country is given over to the sheep and cattle, and the general aspect of the country in consequence is of large dreary looking plain, covered with a short growth of a very dry looking grass, and here and there a town or a few straggling houses generally many, many miles apart.

At last Oregon is reached. The eastern boundary of this vast state is guarded by a long ridge of the Blue Mountains, through which flows from Idaho into the Oregon country the famous Snake River, whose shores, not many years ago were the homes of many wild Indian tribes now no more. Shortly after entering Oregon we are again passing through an interesting stretch of agricultural and mining country surrounded however all about us by mountains several thousand feet high forming thus large and small, but most fertile and beautiful and healthy mountain valleys—several of these valleys are from 50 to 60 miles long and from 10 to 30 miles wide, others again are but a few miles long and broad. Having left now the path of the Snake River, the railroad now leads us over the quite picturesque Blue mountains, winding around and climbing upwards until seeing a beautiful valley ahead, it again descends downward to carry its resources. Soon the train begins, however, to ascend the main ridge of the Blue mountains, the foothills of which are well timbered with pine, tamerack, spruce and fir, while the higher ravines are more densely covered and abound with game, the deer and bear and coyote predominating.

To the right and left as the train climbs and descends again are grand wild mountain scenery. Close by are babbling springs and natural mountain springs, which make rythmical music and sparkle and shine as the water dashes over the rocks and through the woodland and shrubbery along the way. After crossing the Blue mountains the way of the train lays through one of the richest wheat countries in the entire United States. Indeed, from the Blue mountains on the east to the Cascade mountains in the middle west and between the Cascade mountains to the Coast mountains on the shores of the Pacific, the Oregon country wherever it has been cultivated and there is enough moisture in the ground, the average yield of an acre of wheat is from 25 bushels to 45 bushels, leaving most of the rich eastern states with their 15 to 20 bushels per acre far behind.

SHAKE IT IN A BOTTLE

Noted Authority Gives a Simple Prescription.

Tells the Readers of This Paper How to Prepare the Mixture at Home and Other Advice.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that rheumatism and kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kurgoo, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this sample home-made mixture at the first sign of rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

MINERS ESCAPE AWFUL DEATH

Battle for Life for Five Long Hours Deep in a Burning Colliery.

EXPERIENCE MOST FRIGHTFUL

Forty Men Make Their Way for Seven Miles in Fear and Darkness.

In Constant Danger of Death by Cremation, Suffocation or Explosion of Gas—Were Given Up as Dead.

Monongahela, Pa., Jan. 18.—Miraculously escaping death by cremation or suffocation or being blown to pieces by an explosion, forty miners employed in the Catsburg mine of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company made their way through the dark headings for a distance of seven miles and finally reached the open air. Without lights to guide them, and given up as dead, the men battled for five hours with fire, and when they reached the surface their faces were blackened, clothes torn and all were severely bruised from stumbling in their flight for safety.

Little Gas in the Mine.

Fortunately, the mine contained very little gas or another mine disaster would have been recorded in western Pennsylvania.

The mine was fired some time during the day by a "blow-out" shot and when the fire was discovered at 9 o'clock at night by the forty men all escape to the surface through the Monongahela entry was cut off. Momentarily expecting an explosion with its horrible consequences, the men stormed, panic-stricken, for the entry at Charleroi, seven miles away.

Experience Was Frightful.

In their frenzy they stumbled and fell, but only to jump up again and continue their mad rush for safety. The experience was probably the most frightful a body of coal miners has ever had. When the men reached the surface at 2 a. m., a majority of them were sobbing like children.

A large force of men are fighting the part of the mine which caught fire and it is believed the damage will be small.

JOHN R. WALSH FOUND GUILTY

End of One of Most Bitterly Contested Trials Ever Held in Chicago.

DRAMATIC INCIDENT IN COURT

One of the Jurors Weeps as He Reluctantly Agrees to the Verdict of Guilty.

Motion for a New Trial at Once Made by Walsh's Attorney—Convicted Banker Says Fight Has Only Begun.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—John R. Walsh has been found guilty on fifty-four counts of the indictment against him, charging mis-application of the funds of the Chicago National bank with intent to defraud the bank, by the verdict of the jury which for thirty-six hours deliberated on his guilt or innocence. Punishment is fixed by law at from five to ten years. Seldom has a more dramatic scene been witnessed in any courtroom than that which followed the reading of the verdict by District Court Clerk C. A. Buell.

JOHN R. WALSH.

Juror Is Moved to Tears.

When the jury was polled at the request of Attorney John S. Miller, counsel for Mr. Walsh, Elbert Palmer, juryman from Harvard, was overcome by emotion and wept as he said. "I have to answer 'yes,'" In reply to the formal question: "Was this and is this now your verdict?"

Mr. Miller made a great point of the incident and it was rumored he would seek a new trial with the unwillingness of this juror to vote for "guilty" as a basis. A motion for a new trial was made before Judge Anderson as soon as the last of the twelve jurors had been quieted. The court set Jan. 28 as the time for hearing arguments on the motion.

John R. Walsh and his two daughters and two sons were in court when the verdict was read. Mr. Walsh was unmoved when Clerk Buell read the word "guilty." He stood sternly erect.

Afterward he said "the fight is only begun."

Bitterly Contested Trial.

The trial just ended was one of the most bitterly contested legal struggles known in the history of the federal courts in Chicago. From the beginning the defendant and his attorneys contested every move of the government and before the books of the various Walsh corporations would be produced in court it was necessary for the government to make a most emphatic demand for them.

The main charge on which John R. Walsh was placed on trial is in effect that he on Nov. 18, 1905, in sworn report to the comptroller, understated the amount of the bank's loans to its officers and directors by nearly $3,000,000, and overstated other loans to a generally similar amount. The result was to hide the fact of $3,000,000 loans by Walsh to himself.

Defendant Fights Hard.

Objections by counsel for the defendant marked the trial throughout, and the court frequently became impatient at the objections and upon more than one occasion was compelled to declare that he would consider further similar objections contempt of court.

The trial opened Nov. 12, after having been postponed from Oct. 24. Ten days' postponement was necessary during the trial because of the illness of jurors, but practically eight weeks were consumed in getting the evidence before the jury and in making the final arguments. Twice the illness of jurors threatened to make a new trial necessary. Both times it was feared that the illness would result seriously and that a mistrial would be declared by the court in consequence.

Mysterious Case at Frankfort, Ind.

Frankfort, Ind., Jan. 18.—The body of Mrs. Samuel Dukes, aged forty-five years, was found at 4 o'clock in the morning on the back porch of one of her tenement houses in which lived George Henge. It was Henge who found the body when he went on the porch to get a poker. The woman was lying on her back. Three handerchiefs were tied over her eyes. By her side was a revolver. When her dress was unbuttoned a bullet hole was found over the heart. The dress had been buttoned over the body after the shot was fired.

Cheering His Father.

A promising youth recently surprised his father by asking:

"Father, do you like mother?"

"Why, yes, of course."

"And she likes you?"

"Of course she does."

"Did she ever say so?"

"Many a time, my son."

"Did she marry you because she loved you?"

"Certainly she did."

The boy scrutinized his parent closely and after a long pause asked:

"Well, was she as nearsighted then as she is now?"—London Tit Bits.

Courier Grange Column

South Arm Grange No. 815.

South Arm Grange met in open meeting, January 18, for the purpose of installing their officers.

A large number of visiting members were present representing several of our neighboring granges, and also a goodly number of non-members. Brother R. A. Brintnal, of Wilson Grange, installed the officers in a very able manner, going through the entire form without the aid of the ritual, and rendering the work so excellently, that all present were made to see and appreciate the beautiful thoughts contained therein. This is the fourth year that brother Brintnal has installed the officers of our grange, always doing the work in a manner perfectly satisfactory to all present.

Brother and sister Rhulling, the delegates to the state grange, were present and reported on the work of the several committees of the state grange.

A bountiful supper was then served to all present. About one hundred and twenty five were present.

South Arm Grange met January 11 and was opened in due form by the worthy master. It being an open meeting for the children all secret work was omitted.

The brothers of the grange with the help of a number of the children furnished an excellent program consisting of songs, recitations and a number of selections from two different graphaphones.

A treat was furnished consisting of pop corn, cookies and doughnuts, and then several of the older members organized and conducted such games as all the children could take part in, and for the next two hours a large majority of the children within a radius of three or four miles of the grange hall had a lively, jolly time.

Nearly one hundred were present. These children's meetings have been very successful and are always looked forward to by the parents as well as all the children. They help to create a more social and friendly feeling between the members and those who do not belong to the order, and they bring children together, who would seldom if ever see each other.

Barnard Grange No. 689.

Barnard Grange No. 689 met in regular session January 15. Grange was called to order by Master S. Godbold, with balance of the officers in their respective places with the exception of two vacant offices. After routine of business, the vacant offices were filled as follows: Lecturer, Allen J. Bolinis, assistant steward, Walter Ball. Discussion by some of the members for the good of the order. Secretary Edmund Shapton was elected purchasing agent. The newly elected lecturer, not having time to prepare a program for the next meeting, decided that each member have a speech, song or reading. Number present seventeen. The meeting closed in regular form.

Norwood Grange No. 1291.

Norwood Grange installed their officers Tuesday night, January 14, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Burns, of Marion Center, doing the work. There were twenty-three present, four visitors from Marion Center and four from Barnard. Mr. Godbold gave us a good talk on the work of the grange. We also received an invitation to attend Marion Center Grange, January 22. Our lecturer, sister Louise Gennett was reported ill and it was voted to send her some flowers. Grange closed and all enjoyed refreshments.

FLAMES DESTROY MASONIC TEMPLE

Handsome Building at Baltimore Nothing but a Hollow Shell from Second Story Up.

Baltimore, Jan. 17.—The Masonic Temple, on North Charles street, between Lexington and Saratoga streets, was gutted by a fire which was discovered shortly after 4 o'clock in the morning. All of the structure above the second floor is a hollow shell. Loss, $250,000. For a time old St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, which is separated from the temple by a narrow space, was threatened.

The building, which is owned by the Grand Lodge of Masons, is insured for $300,000, and the contents for $35,000. The first floor of the structure was occupied by several stores, all of which were damaged by water. The upper floors were devoted to lodge rooms, all of which were elaborately and sumptuously finished in marble and hard woods while the walls were exquisitely decorated in oil colors. There were also in the building many rare and fine old paintings. The records and archives of the grand lodge are believed to be intact, as they are all kept in a huge vault in the cellar.

FALLS HEAD FIRST INTO A WOODBOX

Major Taggart's Uncle Unable to Extricate Himself and Is Frozen to Death.

Orrville, O., Jan. 17.—His limbs frozen in a night spent wedged in a woodbox, into which he had fallen head first, at his home here, James Taggart, ninety-two years old, uncle of Major Elmore Taggart of army divorce fame, died of exposure. His plight was not known till morning, when a neighbor found the white-haired man wedged, head down, in the box. He was unconscious and did not rally.

Taggart and Horace Greeley were close friends, the Ohioan visiting the New York editor frequently. Taggart had been wealthy, but signing of bail bonds for a score of men who fled wrecked his fortune.

GOOD ROADS QUESTION

Beginning of a Series of Articles on a Question of Vital Importance.

Drainage the First Essential - Questions on the Subject Invited by the Courier.

United States Department of Agriculture, Office of Public Roads, Washington D. C.

The U. S. Office of Public Roads will supply this paper with practical articles on various features of road building and maintenance, which will be published from time to time. Our subscribers are urged to give this matter careful consideration, and are requested to forward to this office for transmission to the Office of Public Roads any practical question which they desire answered relating to road construction and maintenance. Questions and answers will be published by this paper at suitable intervals.

THE MAINTENANCE OF EARTH ROADS No. 1, Series A.

We may recognize the value of hard and durable roads in all parts of the country, but still the fact remains that for a long time to come the majority of the roads will be composed of earth. Furthermore, in about nine months out of the year, the earth road, if properly cared for, is reasonably satisfactory, for many agricultural districts, it is the only road at present available. Hence these communities should set themselves seriously to work to learn the best methods of maintaining earth roads and of getting the maximum service from them. Prosperity comes to the country to a great extent through the prosperity of the farmers. This fact strongly suggests the importance of giving the earth road every possible care and attention in its location, drainage, construction and maintenance.

An earth road composed of water holding soil should be exposed to the sun and air as freely as possible, in comparison between the shaded and sunny portions of a road will easily illustrate. ... should be accomplished by clearing a sufficient amount of trees and undergrowth away from the road. It must be remembered, however, that sandy and gravelly roads require moisture, and in these cases some should be retained. Furthermore, trees are beneficial, along river banks and on steep grades subject to washing.

Drainage is one of the most important points to consider in connection with an earth road. The majority of earth roads in all mountainous and hilly districts have too much drainage. Occasionally a road will be found with five ditches, three in the middle made by the horses' hoofs and by wheels of the vehicles, and two on the sides. All well-constructed earth roads are supposed to have no more than two ditches, one on each side of the traveled roadway. Keep the water out of the middle of the road by giving it a crown or elevation in the center of 7½ inches above the top of the inner slope of the ditch for a 20-foot road, and where the hills are a little steep make the crown 10 inches. With a crown of about 1 inch to the foot from the center to the sides, the ditches which are often built across the road on steep grades to deflect the water will not be needed. Instead of carrying water across the road in open ditches, tile or concrete drains should, if possible, be provided. They should have sufficient capacity and fall to carry the maximum amount of water that is expected to flow through them at any one time. The capacity is increased in proportion to the fall or grade; for instance, 12-inch pipe laid on a one per cent grade will carry 1,800 gallons per minute, while the same pipe laid on a 2 per cent grade will carry 2,500 gallons per minute. Furthermore, a culvert laid that will soon fill up, while one having a good incline will keep itself clear.

In the maintenance of an earth road, avoid the mistake of changing the natural order of things. Naturally the soil is found on top and the clay on the bottom. If this order is reversed in constructing a road, the result will be less satisfactory than if the soil be left at the top of the road, for soil makes a better surface to a road than clay. If the road bed is largely clay to start with, it will be well to place sandy soil or clean sand on top. A covering of 6 to 10 inches of sand upon clay that persists in breaking up into deep mudholes will usually be satisfactory, and if sand enough be added, this clay will cease to make mud. If the roadbed is composed of sand it can be improved by an application of clay.

The rule for a serviceable earth road, then, is as follows: Make ditches on each side and keep them open; haul sand and gravel upon sections needing this treatment; use a road machine and a split log drag judiciously (a full description of which will be contained in a later article); follow the "stitch in time" rule, and give an earth road the same careful persistent attention you would give your prize acre, factory or store, and it will pay as large a profit in proportion to your individual outlay.

SOLONS TO SAVE TIME

Municipal Provision in the Proposed State Constitution the Time-Saver.

MUCH ABOUT PUBLIC UTILITIES

Towns Can Go into Several Kinds of Business—Killed by His Stepson—Michigan Items.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 18.—Home rule for cities and villages was the subject discussed as the special order in the constitutional convention. The proposal was in the nature of a substitute for eighteen other proposals and contained the best features advanced by the introducers of the eighteen proposals. Interlined with the proposal is the removal from the legislature of the necessity for enacting local legislation, which has in the past taken up a great deal of the time of the legislature.

Grants to Municipalities.

The proposal provides for the enactment of general laws for the incorporation of cities and villages, the limitation of their rate of taxation for municipal purposes and their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Under general laws the electors of cities and villages are empowered to frame, adopt and amend their charters, and to pass laws and ordinances

Restrictions on the Same.

The restrictions are that cities and villages shall have no power to abridge the right of elective franchise, to take private property for public use without just compensation, to loan its credit, to surrender or suspend the power of taxation by any grant or contract not to assess, levy or collect any tax or assessment for other than a public purpose. They shall not acquire any public utility, grant any public utility franchise, borrow any money or contract any debts beyond 1 per cent of the assessed valuation—unless such proposition has first received the affirmative vote of the taxpaying electors, and upon proposition of the sort indicated women taxpayers have the same right to vote as men taxpayers and electors.

May Go Into Business, Too.

Municipalities may acquire, own, establish and maintain, either within or without their corporate limits, waterworks, parks, boulevards, cemeteries, hospitals, almshouses and all works involving the public health or safety, and can also own and operate public utilities for supplying water, light, heat, power and transportation to the inhabitants of the municipality, and may sell and deliver these things outside their corporate limits.

MICHIGAN MAN'S CRIME

Goes to Idaho to Live, but There Enacts a Three-Fold Tragedy.

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 18. — Mayor James B. Balkema, of North Muskegon, has received a message from Lane, Ida., telling of a tragedy enacted by Henry Bythorn, aged thirty. He shot and instantly killed his sister-in law, Rhoda Norton, aged twenty-one, fatally wounded his wife and after stepping over the bodies of both, fired a bullet into his own heart and died instantly.

Bythorn lived in North Muskegon until about four years ago and about three years ago moved to Saginaw with his wife, who was formerly Clara Norton, an attractive North Muskegon girl. Her sister, Rhoda, lived with them. The family, including Lyman Norton, father-in-law of Bythorn, moved to Idaho last October to engage in lumbering. There is a large Muskegon colony there. No motive for the shooting is known here. The bodies will be brought to Muskegon for burial.

He Kills His Step-Father.

Detroit, Jan. 18. — Edward Madgefran, a saloon keeper at 63 East Larned street, was shot through the head by Avery Haggerty, aged twenty-five, the victim's stepson, and died later in St. Mary's hospital. Haggerty after being arrested said that he tried to commit suicide afterward with the same revolver with which he had shot his step-father, but that all his other cartridges missed fire. Haggerty said he shot Madgefran because the latter called Haggerty's mother vile names.

Called Them "Cackling Parrots."

Tekonsha, Mich., Jan. 18 — The members of the Presbyterian church of this village have for some months been growing restive under the criticism of their pastor, Rev. William McPheters. The last straw came when, in the course of a sermon, he referred to the young women of the congregation as "a flock of cackling parrots." This was too much and a meeting of the congregation was called and Rev. McPheters lost his job.

Rag Piles Are Bonanzas.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 18.—For the second time within a week a valuable diamond has been found by an employe of the King Paper company in a consignment of rags. Thursday J. Neary, millwright, found a precious stone weighing 2 1-16 karats and worth about $100. It was of similar size and appearance to one found last week by Herman Hlaes. It is the custom to give the property to the finders.

VOL. 25. NUMBER 5 — CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1908 — PRICE $1.50 PER YEAR

HAD GOOD ATTENDANCE

Sugar Beets the Principal Question at the Farmer's Institute

Fruit Growing, Dairy Cattle and the Use of Fertilizers also Topics of Discussion.

The one day farmer's institute held at the Salvation Army Hall, Monday was well attended, and spoke well for the farmers of Charlevoix county, in showing the interest they take in a meeting of this kind.

At the afternoon session twenty-one were in attendance. After the introductory remarks by E. B. Ward, president of the society, the subject of "The Requisites For Success in Fruit Growing," was talked upon by A. L. Hopkins, of Bear Lake, and was well discussed.

Hon. R. W. Paddock opened the discussion of the subject, "The Care of the Dairy Cow," which also was well discussed. In the afternoon the hall was well filled. First, W. L. Bradbury, of Chicago, gave a very instructive talk on "The Maintaining of the Fertility of the Soil by the use of Commercial Fertilizers," explaining the different elements of plant food needed for different soils, and giving interesting accounts of different experiments.

"The Sugar Industry" was the subject assigned to F. H. Hubbard, who gave figures showing the magnitude of the industry in the United States, and the world, and the growing increase in the consumption of sugar, which bids fair to soon reach 100 pounds per capita.

Arthur Beattie took up the subject "Sugar Beets from a Farmer's Standpoint," believed they were a very desirable crop; fitted nicely in the rotation, could produce a crop much cheaper next year than he did this, could make a saving in nearly all the different branches; thinning, harvesting and cultivating; was beginning to realize the value of the tops as feed, also the pulp; would firm his ground more; roll after thinning, would rather have seed too deep than too shallow.

Alois Bolter, of Austria, talked on "The Preparation of the Soil and Care of the Crop," plow deep in the fall, in the spring plow again, and continually drag; use special tools; clean your seed; use care in choice of drill; then continually cultivate. Use fertilizers, but you must have humus in the soil. It was the very best crop for the farmers.

F. H. Hubbard told how the factory must have more acreage to continue to hold on until the territory outside took hold as good as the territory in the immediate vicinity was doing, although more was expected from them also, which was agreed to by Mr. Marting. Beets for the Charlevoix factory tested on an average of 16-1 percent this year.

The institute was a very successful one from start to finish, proving, as the COURIER said a few weeks ago, that when the program is filled with matters which are of local interest, the attendance and interest can be secured, and the discussions will be animated.

Auction Sale Advertising

More and more the value of newspaper advertising, as the proper method of bringing to the attention of buyers, what you have to sell is being realized by the people.

The COURIER has advertised many sales and has yet to hear of a dissatisfied patron.

Lewis Boyer, whose sale we advertised for January 9 says:

I realized between two and three hundred dollars more from my sale than I estimated it at. I attribute it to the COURIER advertising, which I cannot recommend too strongly.

CHARLES M. HULL.

This week, on page 2, we advertise the sale of Charles M. Hull, Tuesday, February 4, 3½ miles south east of Charlevoix, and 2 miles straight south of the sugar factory. E. B. Ward, Auctioneer.

FOR THE BEULAH HOME

Old Age and Youth Unite in Making it a Present.

Mrs. Ann Ackert, aged seventy, and Miss Margaret Saunders, aged seven, of this city, recently collaborated in the making of a quilt, which was sent to the Beulah home. That their work was most kindly received, the following letter which they received from there proves:

Boyne City, January 21, 1908.

Mrs. Ackert,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Dear Grandma Ackert:

We have received the comfortable that was made by you and Margaret Saunders, and we wish to thank you for it. It certainly is fully appreciated and we can see loving interest in every tiny block. What patience and labor it must have taken to have made it!

We would be pleased to have you come over and see our boys in the summer time if you have never been here and if you have you would both be most welcome again.

Just now the boys are interested in skating and making ice boats and are having fine times after school hours.

With many thanks to you and little Margaret for the helping hand you have so kindly extended us and with best wishes, I remain,

Yours for the boys.
Grace Swift.

Notice to R. F. D. Patrons.

Postmaster Meech desires to call attention to the practice of some patrons of rural delivery of placing loose coins in their boxes each time they desire to dispatch letters instead of supplying themselves with postage in advance of their needs.

This practice imposes undue hardships on rural carriers in removing loose coins from boxes and delays them on the service of their routes.

The postmaster, therefore, urgently requests that patrons of rural delivery provide themselves and keep on hand a supply of stamps consistent with and in advance of their needs. It is also very desirable that rural patrons place in their mail boxes small detachable cups of wood or tin in which to place coins, when necessary, in purchasing supplies of stamps.

"INLAND ROUTE" NAVIGABLE

Secretary of War Places Water Under Lake Navigation Laws.

In a recent communication to Col. C. L. Marinette, deputy customs collector of Cheboygan, the secretary of commerce and labor states that the secretary of war has ruled that the "Inland Route," known to every summer visitor to the northern end of the lower peninsula of Michigan, is navigable water and boats plying thereon are subject to the United States navigation laws.

The ruling will mean loss of employment to a large number of men who have operated the boats on the inland water for years without licenses. Many of them will be unable to meet the requirements.

Her parents are seperated, Mrs. Morse being a resident of this city, where Inez formerly lived with her, Mr. Morse coming here a few weeks ago and taking her away with him.

IS NOT A CANDIDATE

Hon. A. B. Darragh Announces His Decision to Retire From Congress.

An Opportunity for the People to Choose a Live Congressman.

Hon. A. B. Darragh, for four terms representative from this district, has announced in letters to friends throughout the district, that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself. While, perhaps, Mr. Darragh has made an average congressman, in the opinion of the COURIER, there is a great opportunity for improvement, and it is now up to the people of the eleventh district to make choice of a man to represent them who will advance the reputation of the district to a par with the rest of the state. We believe that a man in the prime of vigorous manhood, who has a future to make, but who has been able to make good in the past, who has ideas and the ability to express them, and who is heartily in favor of the measures advocated by the president should be chosen as the candidate of the Republicans which means the election of the eleventh district.

Every county in this district ought to be able to supply men of this stamp, but we further believe that, inasmuch as during the sixteen years since the district was organized, the southern part has had the representative twelve, that this year choice should be made from the northern part, not only because this section has not had the honor in the past, but because the interests of the north are those which are the most apt to be brought to the attention of congress.

We also believe that if two years ago the northern candidate had pushed his campaign in the south in a different manner and put the vigor into it that Mr. Darragh did, the result might have been different.

The COURIER is committed to no candidate but does wish to see one chosen who meets these requirements, and hopes that choice will be made of a man who will make the eleventh as well known as some of the other districts of the state, which it has not been in recent years.

D. E. Alward of Clare, F. H. Dodds of Mt. Pleasant, and George G. Covell of Traverse City are already in the field, and so far as we know, at the present writing, all are capable men and the choice of either would be a step in advance.

Neighborhood Notes

A contest is in sight between two mighty eaters for the championship of the state. Joe Sheets, a Schoolcraft county man, having recently achieved fame by getting away with a prodigious amount of food at a single sitting, a challenge directed to him has been issued in behalf of a lower Michigan wonder, who is declared the possessor of a capacity for storing away provisions unrivaled in the commonwealth. A forfeit has been deposited by Felix Flynn, of Cadillac, backer of D. Schellenberger, of that city, binding him to enter his man in the event that Sheets is agreeable to a match for the championship belt, and as it has been asserted for the upper peninsula representative that he is willing and ready to meet all comers, it is expected that the contest will soon be arranged.

The dog was the property of Wm. VanCamp, and after repeated absent from home and giving symptoms of rabies, he was shot and the body sent to Ann Arbor, where analysis showed that the dog had rabies. Mr. and Mrs. VanCamp, a daughter and niece, who had been more or less in contact with the animal, went to Ann Arbor for treatment and they were accompanied by Erick Game, who was bitten in the face by the rabid animal.

Short wheat crops in Michigan for the past few years was considered by the State Millers' association indicating an alarming situation. Plans were discussed for encouraging the production of wheat and it was suggested that millers offer prizes at county fairs to farmers raising large yields in order to encourage production.

A number of interesting papers were read and discussed at the meeting and a resolution was adopted favoring the uniform bill of lading proposed by the interstate commerce commission.

It was decided to divide the state into four sections for the formation of millers' clubs auxilliary to the state association. Headquarters for the northern club will be at Bay City; for the western, Grand Rapids; the eastern at Detroit, and the central at Lansing. Tonight the association members and ladies enjoyed a banquet. Officers were elected as follows: President, R. T. French, Middleville; vice president, Robert Henkel, Detroit; treasurer, J. P. Thoman, Lansing; directors, F. N. Rowe, Grand Rapids; R. J. Hamilton, Coldwater; Fred Henry, St. Louis.

J. C. Knox, secretary of the Michigan Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, has returned from a trip to Minneapolis and Eau Claire, Wis. At the latter city he attended a convention of the Wisconsin association. He considers the lumber business is in better condition in the southern peninsula of Michigan than in the northern or in Wisconsin. Business is curtailed there vastly more than in this peninsula, and more companies have closed down their mills.

Eugene Huntley, millwright at the Reed City veneer and panel works, while taking measurements to cover a dangerous piece of machinery, was caught and pulled in and only for his own presence of mind and that of a fellow workman would have been crushed. Huntley braced himself and was caught and held by the other man. Nearly all the clothing was torn from the lower part of Huntley's body and he sustained some very severe cuts on his legs, but no bones were broken.

URGENT DEMAND FOR CALDWELL

Great Britain Insists He Be Handed Over to Her at Once.

INDICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE

Testified in Druce Case That Coffin Contained Lead Instead of a Body.

Solicitor for George Hollanby Druce Trying to Locate Letters Offered by Miss May Paterson of New York City.

New York, Jan. 25.—Great Britain demands the body of Robert Caldwell, the man who testified in the Druce case in London, and was afterward indicted on charges of perjury. Caldwell has been ill at his home on Staten Island and the case has been continued from time to time. Counsel for the British ambassador appeared before United States Commissioner Alexander and demanded under the treaty between the two countries that Caldwell be produced in court without further adjournment of the application for extradition.

ROBERT CALDWELL.

Caldwell's Testimony in Case.

Caldwell testified, in the hearing of the Druce case in London that Druce and the duke of Portland were one and the same and that he superintended the supposed burial of Druce, the coffin containing a roll of lead instead of a body. The opening of the grave showed that the coffin contained a body which answered the description of Druce. Caldwell left England suddenly after the lawyers for whom he testified practically admitted that they would not depend upon his testimony to uphold their contentions that Druce was in fact the duke of Portland.

Another Sensation in Case.

London, Jan. 25.—The Druce case which has been so prolific of sensations, has just offered still another. The solicitor for George Hollanby Druce, who claimed to be the son of the duke of Portland in the latter's dual personality of Thomas Charles Druce and as such to be heir to the title and estate, has made public the correspondence he has had with the public prosecutor in which he asks that official to assist him in locating letters offered him by Miss Mary Paterson, of New York, but which have fallen into the hands of a man purporting to be his representative.

How Letters Were Obtained.

In a letter to George Hollanby Druce Miss Paterson said she had several letters written by Thomas Druce to her mother, in which Druce referred to himself as the duke of Portland. George Hollanby Druce sent Miss Paterson money to come to England, but, according to her later letters, a man representing himself as an agent of George Hollanby Druce's solicitor called on her and got the letters. The solicitor is anxious now to find the letters, as he says they are necessary in the defense of a Miss Robinson, who is on trial for perjury in the case.

Guard for Picture Machines

Madison, Wis., Jan. 25.—Owing to the frequent fires from explosions of moving picture machines in Wisconsin during the last few weeks, State Fire Marshal T. M. Purtell has issued a warning to owners of places where such machines are used. He calls attention to the dangers and advises local authorities to require these machines to be inclosed in fireproof booths.

Gould and Harriman at Peace.

San Francisco, Jan. 25.—E. H. Harriman and George J. Gould have ended their war over the rival interests of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific railroads. It is said that under the peace agreement the two roads will cease fighting each other and the pending law suits will be settled.

Death of "Angel" Demuth.

Stockton, Cal. Jan. 24.—Alfred W. Demuth, known throughout the country as "Angel" Demuth, who amassed a fortune through a chain of lunch rooms in many of the larger cities, is dead. At one time reported to be worth more than $5,000,000 he died poor, a victim of financial entanglements which were imposed by relatives and friends.

THAT the adverse verdict of President Snyder of the Michigan Agricultural college, given before the federal house committee on agriculture which requested his judgment on some of the features of the Davis bill in aid of the establishment of agricultural high schools in the states and territories, is well founded, at least so far as Michigan and similarly situated states are concerned is clearly shown by his statements to the committee. Michigan has already over 500 high schools in cities and towns, no village of any size being without one. The plan, therefore, of giving federal aid to the extent of ten cents per capita of population for the establishment of new agricultural high schools in cities and villages of less than 2,000 population the state to provide such schools with the usual high school studies, is impractical. Such federal aid, as President Snyder suggests, should be given for the establishment of agricultural courses in high schools already existing or hereafter established. In states poorly proviced with high school facilities the Davis bill plan would be beneficial, but for such states as Michigan, it would be a mistake.

It is likewise a mistake in the Davis plan to limit federal aid for agricultural high schools to cities and towns under 2,000 population. The larger the town, up to a certain limit, the better the regular high school course, which course includes much, as for instance chemistry and botany, that is essential to an agricultural course.

That feature of the Davis plan, too, which limits federal aid in teaching the mechanic arts to high schools in cities and towns having over 2,000 population, seems open to objection; though this feature of the bill President Snyder does not discuss. In fact, so far as Michigan is concerned, it would seem that the federal aid proposed should be offered alike to all high schools for the establishment of courses in agriculture, mechanic art and home economics. President Snyder, it may be well to add, does not oppose the principle of the Davis bill; but simply urges that, for such states as Michigan at least, such federal aid for the encouragement of agricultural instruction will be productive of far better results, for the same outlay, if devoted to the establishment of agricultural courses in high schools than to the establishment of new distictively agricultural high schools.—Grand Rapids Herald.

LAST week the con-coo again took up the subject of the initative on constitutional amendments and passed a measure, by a vote of 49 to 47, which bears as little resemblance to what the people have been petitioning for as a thoroughbred does to a scrub; the form is there but that is all.

The measure, as passed, provides that the people may petition for amendments at the regular place of holding elections, at a regular election day, and if twenty per cent petition, the legislature may, by a majority vote, refuse to submit the proposition, may submit a substitute or an alternative proposition.

The agitation for direct legislation and the initiative was born from the distrust which the people have conceived for the legislature, and nothing has occurred in recent years to make them believe that future legislatures will be any more responsive to the wishes of the people than those which have gone before.

Although I would not vote against the new constitution because of it, I do believe that the adoption of this farcial measure means it will be rejected, for the people are becoming a force to be reckoned with, and no sensible argument was advanced to show why a majority of the state legislature would be any more competent to judge of what should be allowed to be voted upon than twenty per cent of the people.

However the plan has some advantages, inasmuch as it only takes a majority to submit an amendment and if twenty percent petition for the same, a more intelligent vote will be cast than has always been the case in the past.

Ghost Plant of Oregon.

The ghost plant was known and much praised by the Indians of Oregon in times past and is somethoes known as the Indian pipe plant. It is said the Indians believed that it had great remedial qualities and made from it a lotion which they considered curative for diseases of the eye. It is a tall, waxlike plant about eight inches high, and its bloom resembles a waxen cup.—Portland Oregonian.

UPLANDS CELERY.

A Marsh Crop Successfully Raised on Dry Soil.

Celery we all know is a plant that likes humus laden moist land; hence people who have not tried calmly state as a fact the cheerful fiction that celery cannot be raised on a market garden soil much above the water level. Having raised the sweetest and crispest celery in our back yard (which has been tilled for a century or so as a veggible garden) we had no hesitancy in planting various varieties at No. 1 experimental station of the Long Island railroad, having been assured it would not even grow, but we took second prize at the county fair with this celery.

No. 1 station, according to the United States geological survey, is 112 feet above the sea level; therefore it required very little nerve to plant a small patch of celery at station No. 2. Although the soil is somewhat lighter, the altitude is only sixty-four feet above sea level. Humus is absolutely and entirely lacking, caused mainly by the annual "forest fires," due to cheerful neglect of precaution by neighbors burning brush to the north of us, in that section of the Island at present given over mainly to coal wood industry. A shallow ditch was dug, manure was furnished by barnyard manure, celery plants set out, and occasionally, or, to be more exact semidecisionally, the irrigation sprayers were turned on the celery plants, and as is the custom of all plant life, they grew. Our station No. 2 turned out celery that holds its own in competition with that grown anywhere writes H. B. Fullerton in American Cultivator. We shall continue to grow celery at stations Nos 1 and 2, as it eats well, sells well and makes an excellent variety.

New Tobacco Varieties.

It is an established fact that there are great areas in the United States not now growing tobacco which have the soil, climatic and other conditions suited for growing valuable tobaccos and which for the welfare of American agriculture should supply the demand of the manufacturers. One of the most important phases of the development of these undeveloped sections is the production of varieties of tobacco adapted to their soil and climatic conditions.

The change of seed from one tobacco growing region to different soil and climatic conditions particularly from the south to the north, is likely to result in the breaking up of the type of the variety and the appearance of plants with characteristics very different from the established type. These new types of plants can be propagated by using self fertilized seed, and uniform varieties of tobacco can be secured by continued selection of the best individual plants for seed production. The use of Florida grown and imported Sumatra seed for growing in the Connecticut valley during the past few years is a good illustration of the effect of a change of seed. The plants grown from this foreign grown seed were extremely variable. Individual plants of new and unknown types of tobacco appearing in the fields. The seeds of desirable individual plants of these types were saved under bag, free from cross fertilization, and several valuable new varieties have been secured adapted to the conditions in the Connecticut valley and uniformly coming true to type year after year.—H. Stuart.

Damage by Field Mice.

Blackberries, raspberries, grapes, currants, gooseberries and strawberries are often badly damaged by field mice, and when the animals are abundant whole plantations are ruined. Strawberries are especially liable to injury because of winter mulching and also because the plants themselves furnish excellent food and shelter for the animals.

Fallen leaves in autumn and snow in winter drift and collect along rows of blackberry, raspberry, gooseberry and currant bushes and furnish cover for mice, which work along the rows and girdle the green stems, and when dead canes are left uncut and weeds are permitted to grow up among them the resulting tangle adds much to the liability of attack. Winter mulching of small fruits also increases the danger, and if practical the utmost care should be taken to clean surrounding areas.—Orville E. Lodge.

A French statistician has calculated that to properly stock the whole population of the earth, so far as known, the following number of animals would be required yearly: Cattle, 215,881,581; goats, 90,084,548; sheep, 25,182,000; horses, 30,520,000, and kangaroos, 25,000,000.

Many of Our Citizens Speak Well of Home Prescription which Helped Them to Health.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggists.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive kidneys, overcoming backache, bladder weakness and urinary trouble of all kinds, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

The Scranton (Pa.) Times was the first to print this remarkable prescription, in October, of 1906, since when all the leading newspapers of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and other cities have made many announcements of it to their readers.

First Opera Glasses.

The single opera glass was first used in the time of Louis XIV. It became the rage, and everybody used one. The double opera glass (lunette) was invented in 1823, but did not at first find favor with women. A treatise was written in the early part of the nineteenth century on Parisian lorgnettes, in which it was shown that a woman with fine arms would hold the glass with both hands, if she were dressed with fine hands she would take off her gloves. If her neck were long she would recline back in her chair and scan. It was quite a treatise on coquetry.

HEAVILY FINED FOR REBATING

New York Freight Broker and His Clerk Are Assessed $11,000.

GIVE CHECKS IN SETTLEMENT

End of One of the Most Important Rebate Cases Ever Tried in Country.

Judge Smith McPherson Sorry That He Could Not Also Pass Sentence on Firms Receiving the Rebates.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 25.—George L. Thomas, a freight broker of New York city, and L. B. Taggart, his clerk, pleaded guilty in the United States district court here to the charge of conspiracy to pay rebates to shippers. Judge Smith McPherson then fined Thomas $7,000 and Taggart $4,000, omitting jail sentences previously assessed. Both defendants were in court and after sentence was passed, checks covering the fines were tendered and accepted by the judge. Thus ends the case against these men. It was one of the most important rebate cases ever tried in this country.

Firms Just as Guilty.

Judge McPherson took occasion to say that he believed the firms that accepted the rebates were as guilty as the defendants and the railroads, and that he had never been able to understand why they had not been indicted by the grand jury. He would have liked, he said, to have had the members of these firms before him, with power to pass sentence upon them.

"The railroads," declared Judge McPherson, "are hounded to death with rebate seekers. They are not entirely to blame for all the rebating that has been done."

Nature of the Charge.

George L. Thomas maintained a brokerage office in New York city and represented practically all the import and shippers on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers under a contract to route their freight from the east and to collect overcharges in freight bills. Thomas, with his clerk, L. B. Taggart, was indicted in December, 1905, charged with conspiring with Barton Bros., wholesale shoe merchants of Kansas City, to pay rebates on the latter firm's shipments.

Chicago Firms Were Fined.

At the time that Thomas and Taggart were found guilty the following verdicts were also returned in the federal court here, on charges of making concessions and accepting and conspiring rebates: Swift & Co., $15,000; Cudahy Packing company, $15,000; Armour Packing company, $15,000; Nelson Morris & Co., $15,000; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company, $85,000.

Harris Desires a Second Term

Columbus, O., Jan. 25.—The attention of Governor Harris has evidently been called to the publications from Washington to the effect that Congressman Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of the president, is to be a candidate for governor of Ohio. A letter has appeared from the governor written to F. A. Derthick, master of the State Grange, in which he declares the reports that he desires to retire are untrue. He writes that he desires a second term and expects to be nominated.

Robbed of a Large Amount.

Racine, Wis., Jan. 25.—R. J. Cameron, a prominent lumber dealer of Milwaukee, was robbed here of $300 in money and bonds, stock certificates and other valuable papers, amounting to between five and six thousand dollars. Mr. Cameron came here with a party of Milwaukee friends to attend a boxing match. When he left the street car at Hotel Racine several men jostled against him and it is thought extracted a long pocketbook from his hip pocket containing the valuables.

Gone to Higher Court.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 25.—Just before he was due to appear in the Hamden town court to answer the charge of felonious assault upon his daughter-in-law, Charles Fingerle, aged fifty-five, a farmer, killed himself with carbolic acid. His arrest was made upon the complaint of the daughter-in-law after she had been served with a notice of a divorce action brought by her husband, in which the elder Fingerle had been named as the co-respondent.

Bodies Horribly Mutilated

Plain City, O., Jan. 25.—Section Foreman Patrick Conley and Assistant Foreman John Hagan, of the Pennsylvania lines, were instantly killed by being run into by Pennsylvania train No. 18, between Plain City and West Hayden. The bodies of the men were horribly mutilated.

Helped Daughter Kill Herself.

Bethlehem, Pa., Jan. 24.—John Fetter, who believed himself dying and confessed to having assisted his daughter, Ellen, to long herself thirteen years ago, has been charged with murder by District Attorney Bernerd. A guard will be kept over him until his condition permits his removal to the county jail.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

OIL RATE LOWER THAN WAY-BILLS

Government Laying Plans to Annul Charter of Standard.

TESTIMONY OF E. DANA DURAND

Says Actual Rates Paid by the Standard Were Less Than the Tariffs.

Eight and One-Fourth Cents Per Hundred Collected While Way-Bills Indicated Rate of Eleven Cents.

Washington, Jan. 24.—In laying the foundation of its case against the Standard Oil company in the suit for the annullment of the company's charter the government continued the examination of E. Dana Durand, deputy commissioner of corporations, before the stated examiner, Judge Franklin Ferris.

Durand had presented, in his testimony, the various freight tariffs filed with the interstate commerce commission relating to the rates paid by the Standard Oil company for the transportation of oil, particularly from Whiting, Ind., to Evansville, Ind., and East St. Louis.

Contention of Government.

The tariffs, termed official, showed that the rate on oil was generally 11 cents per hundred pounds. The contention of the government's counsel, Frank B. Kellogg, was that the railroads gave the Standard Oil company a rebate, or a special rate, which made the rate paid by the Standard no more than 8¼ cents per hundred pounds and, in some instances, not more than 6 cents per hundred pounds.

Durand testified, in the course of an identification of certain official tariffs of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, that, while the shipments of oil were way-billed at 11 cents per hundred, a part of the shipments were carried at 8¼ cents per hundred and the balance at 6 cents per hundred.

Paid Less Than Tariff Rates.

In continuing his testimony Mr. Durand said that in nearly every instance the actual rate paid by the Standard was less than the rates fixed in the tariffs of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois road.

The witness submitted a copy of an account between the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad and the Standard Oil company for oil shipped from Whiting to Evansville, Ind., between Feb. 1 and 15, 1905. This account showed a collection from the Standard of 8¼ cents per hundred, while the way-bills indicated a rate of 11 cents per hundred.

"We think the way-bills showed a rate of 8¼ cents," insisted Attorney Rosenthal.

"I made the examination of these records myself," said Mr. Durand "and cannot be mistaken."

Engineers' Annual Convention.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 24.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will hold their annual convention in San Antonio on Jan. 29, 30 and 31. It is probable that several thousand delegates from more than seven hundred lodges in various parts of the country will be in attendance. The ladies' auxiliary organization will also attend the convention.

Cummins Opens His Campaign.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 24.—Governor Cummins' campaign for United States senator to succeed William B. Allison began at an meeting here. Judge Prouty delivered an address, and a letter from former Governor William Larrabee telling why Cummins should be chosen was read.

THE DRAIN UPON THE FORESTS

They are Being Cut Twice as Fast as They Grow.

Since 1880 the sources of lumber supply have undergone remarkable changes. The first change was in the regions from which the principal kinds of lumber were procured, and this was followed by the substitution of other kinds of wood in their places. Neither the centers of the lumber industry nor the leading classes of woods are the same as they were twenty-five years ago. In 1880 nine states—Michigan, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, New York, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Washington—produced 52.8 per cent, or more than half of the total lumber production of the United States. In 1881 these states produced 51.5 per cent, practically the same proportion, but the changes which have taken place in the output of individual states are very striking. Michigan, for instance, cut 23 per cent of the total in 1880 and but 5.6 per cent in 1906; Louisiana cut 0.7 per cent of the total in 1880 and 7.5 per cent in 1906; Washington furnished but 0.9 per cent of the lumber production of 1880 and 11.5 per cent of that of 1906. The cutting out of the virgin timber in the north and east has been followed by increased drains upon the forest resources of the south and west.

Despite these conditions the amount of timber required has increased year by year. The increase in consumption of timber since 1880 has been more rapid than the increase of the population, and greater than in any similar period in the history of the country. This shows in a striking manner how much the nation depends upon forest products, and indicates how greatly all interests must suffer as lumber becomes scarcer and dearer.

Statistics gathered by the Bureau of the Census and the Forest Service show that the quantities of timber used last year for lumber, shingles, ties, pulpwood, cooperage stock, mine timbers, lath, distillation, veneer, poles, tanning, and turpentine and rosin, expressed in board feet, reach a total of approximately 50 billion board feet.

While these drains upon the forest are known with reasonable certainty, there are others of which there is no record. These are the demand for posts, fuel, and domestic purposes, regarding which it is more difficult to obtain information, because the products often pass through no market, but are consumed on the farm where they were produced. Careful estimates, however, place the total of wood used for fuel alone at an equivalent of 50 billion board feet a year.

It will be seen, then, that the present consumption of wood in all forms is above 100 billion board feet annually. Estimating the forest area of the United States at from 500 to 700 million acres, and the annual growth at 50 board feet per acre, the yearly increase is from 30 to 42 billion feet. At this rate, the annual growth barely equals the amount consumed for lumber alone. Considering all the drains the annual consumption of wood is probably three times the annual growth. Detailed estimates of standing timber range from 1,400 to 2,000 billion feet. Using the large figure, and considering the annual growth of 40 billion feet, it appears that there is not more than a thirty-three years' supply of timber in this country at the present rate of consumption.

At present only about 22 per cent of our total forest area is in state or national forests, the remainder being unreserved public lands or in private hands. The forest area is amply sufficient, if rightly managed, to produce eventually enough timber to supply all our needs. Yet private owners, as well as the state and national governments, must use their forest lands in a right way if we are to maintain our timber supply.

Circular 129, just issued by the forest service, contains a discussion of the drains upon the forests and the sources and the duration of the timber supply. This publication will be sent free upon application to the Forester, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

RESULTS PROVE THIS.

Courier Grange Column

When your brother farmer, who stands outside the ranks of the Order Patrons of Husbandry, ask you why should I become a member; what benefit would it be to me; what has the grange ever accomplished?

Tell him that, every day when he visits his mail box on a rural route, that the rural route, that the rural delivery of mail as one of the accomplishments of the grange; tell him that when he reads that the railroads are paying into the primary school fund the vastly increased sum they have been in recent years, that is one of the accomplishments of the grange. Tell him that there has been no single bit of progressive legislation for the benefit of all the people enacted for the last ten years that was not advocated by the grange; then if that does not make him sit up and think, tell him that in the United States there are nearly 1,500,000, in the state of Michigan 50,000, and in Charlevoix county 1,200 dwellers in the farm homes, meeting monthly or oftener; and if he has a single feeling of loyalty to his calling, he should unite with them in advancing the cause of agriculture.

Where Did They Get It?

RADICAL COLD WATER ARTICLE

Modified Initiative Goes to Second Reading—Case of Glazier—Boy Has an Awful Fall.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 25. — A drastic prohibition proposal was unanimously and favorably reported in the constitutional convention by the committee on liquor affairs. The section reads as follows: "The manufacture and sale of malt, brewed, vinous and intoxicating liquors shall be forever prohibited in the state after May 1, 1909, except for medical, scientific, sacramental and medicinal purposes."

Initiative Is Much Watered.

The convention has passed on second reading a proposal for constitutional initiative, but the proposal as carried is considerably modified as compared with the one which passed upon first reading. The original plan provided for the initiation and adoption of constitutional amendments through petition and popular vote, without any intervention from the legislature. As adopted on second reading the plan provides that the secretary of state before submitting a petitioned amendments to the voters must refer it to the legislature. Then it can go before the voters unless the legislature in joint session disapproves by a majority vote.

Legislature May Substitute.

The legislature may by a like vote submit an alternative or substitute proposal on the subject. If alternative proposals are submitted one of them must receive a majority of all the votes cast, but if neither receives a majority vote, but the total of both alternatives constitutes a majority, then the alternative that has the greater number of votes shall be submitted again at the next subsequent election. Receiving a majority vote then it shall become a part of the constitution. To go before the voters a proposed amendment must be desired by the petition of 20 per cent of the number of voters voting for secretary of state at the preceding election.

Charges Against Glazier Pending.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 25. — Attorney General Warner will not bring criminal charges against Glazier or urge his prosecution until assured that Glazier has sufficiently recovered his health to undergo the strain of a trial. The hearing in the governor's office concluded Thursday afternoon with the reading into the record of the complete report of Attorney Seward L. Merriam, of Detroit, retained by the governor to investigate the Glazier case. The report denounces Glazier.

TERRIBLE FALL OF A BOY

Dodging a Snowball He Falls Off a Ladder and Receives Very Serious Injuries.

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 25. — James, the 12-year-old son of Thomas Holloran, was standing on the top rung of the ladder of a fifty-foot water tank in the Grand Trunk yards, when a companion threw a snowball at him. Young Holloran dodged and lost his balance. He toppled over the side of the tank and whirled through the air to the ground.

His skull was fractured and his face mashed by the impact and he also sustained a dislocated hip, fractured spine and internal injuries. His death is expected. The boy's father has been ill for a long time, and the shock of the accident has made his condition precarious.

Moving Picture Show on Fire.

Owosshe, Mich., Jan. 25.—An audience of about 150, mostly women and children, was thrown into a panic by a fire in a moving picture theater. That Putnam Estate Case.

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 25. — James Putnam, aged eighty-two, has received word that he has become heir to part of an estate valued at $20,000,000. It is said to have been left by General Israel Putnam, of revolutionary fame, who was a near relative to Seth Putnam, grandfather of James. Besides his wife he has seven grown up children.

Rumored Reduction at Homestead.

Pittsburg, Jan. 24.—Rumors circulated in Homestead are to the effect that orders have been received from New York that a wage reduction of from 10 to 30 per cent, affecting the entire Homestead steel works, is scheduled for Feb. 1. All the departments of the big mills will resume work Sunday evening.

NEW YORK SNOW STORM EXPENSIVE

Its Removal, Increased Price of Coal and Delayed Shipments Will Cost $300,000.

New York, Jan. 25.—That it will cost $150,000 to clean the streets of New York of snow which fell in the storm is the estimate of the snow removal bureau. In addition to this direct outlay by the municipality, it is figured that in injuries to horses and vehicles, delays in transportation of goods and the increased cost of coal, which jumped 50 cents a ton on account of the increased cost of handling, the loss to citizens through the storm will be at least as much more.

Throughout the day 500 teams and 3,500 men were kept busy cleaning the streets of snow, while all night in the lower part of the city 1,100 men and 150 teams were occupied with the work. The snow removal bureau hopes to soon have at least 5,000 shovelers and drivers employed. With all this force, however, Snow Inspector Worth expresses himself as fearful that, barring the speedy advent of a thaw, or a warm rain, New Yorkers will have to encounter considerable amounts of snow on city streets for five or six days to come.

OIL KING TALKS TO SENATOR TILLMAN

John C. Rockefeller Tells the Southern Statesman of Action in the Wall Street Panic.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 25.—John D. Rockefeller and Senator Tillman were principals in a lively verbal set-to during the former's trip to this city. Senator Tillman boarded the train in South Carolina and was introduced to Mr Rockefeller by a railroad official. Hard times, the money situation, railroads and President Roosevelt were discussed. The oil king was not enthusiastic about Mr. Roosevelt.

"I think," said Mr. Rockefeller, "that Roosevelt made a grave mistake. If he knew abuses existed and he wanted to correct them, he could have gone about it without causing all this agitation and feeling of distrust. Now you might not know it, but Morgan and I stood behind something like sixty banks in New York during the panic. Now, that is pretty nice for two such very bad men, wasn't it? Think of the thousands of depositors we helped by standing by the banks. But I hope the people will see after a while that this agitation only hurts them. I can get along all right."

One Year for Attacking Priest.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 25.—Logan Lambert, an alleged "boot legger" among the Indians on the reservation in Thurston county, must serve a sentence of one year in the penitentiary for assault on Father Joseph Schell, a Catholic priest. This was the decision of the supreme court. Father Schell was active in preventing the illegal sale of liquor to the Indians and was assaulted at Dakota City by Lambert, knocked down, and his jawbone broken.

Fear to Evict Italian Miners.

Bush, Ill., Jan. 25.—The Western Coal Mining company made no effort to dispossess hundreds of discharged Italian occupants of company houses here, and will not attempt to until the excitement subsides. The affair has taken on more of the aspects of a race war. Arms are being kept handy on both sides. American union miners refused to take the discharged Italians' places.

GREAT BARGAINS ARE OFFERED

The Courier Advertising Columns Present Marvellous Bargains

SPECIAL SALES NOW IN PROGRESS

An Opportunity to Secure Seasonable Goods at Reduced Prices

Many Reasons Why Great Sacrifices are Being Made. Great Benefit to the City of Charlevoix.

Never in the history of Charlevoix has such opportunities been offered to the careful buyer, as the merchants of our city are advertising of the present time. Every week, for the past two months, the COURIER'S advertising columns have been filled with great bargain offers.

The tendency of merchants to reduce their stocks at sacrifice prices, seems to be general all over the country, but nowhere is it more in evidence than right here at home. The causes, which make the desire to unload their stocks so universal are many. The money panic coming just at the beginning of the season, caused a fall in the prices of all lines of goods, and also caused a shortage of buyers, then the late rains of the winter season, coming on found our merchants overloaded with stocks, which they wished to move and get out of the way for the new stocks, which they could buy at greatly reduced prices. Nearly all are offering great bargains, special sales in nearly everything being offered this week, and real bargains being offered. The people are catching on to the fact that money is being saved by taking advantage of the great bargains which are offered, as the hourly sales, which were offered by J. L. Crane January 25, a feature of merchandising new to Charlevoix, proved, a splendid lot of goods being moved.

At the present time, three great sales in the line of general merchandise are going on in our city, to miss which means the losing of money. These sales are coming just at the beginning of the winter season. J. L. Crane advertises great reductions in nearly all lines of seasonable goods.

M. A. Levinson & Co. have a great clearance sale on everything carried in their immense stock at bargain prices.

The Cohen-Chapp store has a great unloading sale to continue until February 14.

The B. Brown Harness Co. are making bargain prices on all kinds of fur coats, robes and driving mitts.

The value of these sales to the city cannot be estimated, as they are the means of bringing many people to our city, who would do their trading in our sister towns, and the reputation which they will give to Charlevoix as a trading center will long be remembered. The careful reader of the advertising columns are the money-makers now days.

WILLIAM MEARS PRESIDENT

John A. Newville Secretary of Farmer's Institute Society

Attendance at Boyne City and Round-up Small; Good at East Jordan and Charlevoix.

The attendance at the farmer's institutes, held in different parts of the county last week, was not what it should have been. At Charlevoix, the attendance and interest shown was good as told in last week's COURIER, also at East Jordan, but at Boyne City and at the round-up at Boyne Falls, it was very disappointing. At the latter meeting William Mears, of Boyne Falls, was elected president to succeed E. B. Ward, and John C. Newville, of Boyne City, was re-elected secretary. Mr. Ward retires after thirteen years service for the society either as its president or secretary.

AT BOYNE CITY.

Owing to the fact that a run of sleighing came just ahead of the Farmer's Institute there was not a very good turn out of farmers yesterday. Every man and every team is so busy getting out timber and they are so anxious to improve every hour while the snow lasts that the farmers could not leave their work to attend the institute.

However, those who did get to it were well repaid for their trouble for there was much to instruct and interest them. President Ward, not being present, Secretary John A. Newville was obliged to do double duty. Mayor Harris welcomed the visitors to our city in his usual happy manner and A. L. Hopkins was called upon to respond, which he did very nicely. "Maintaining Soil Fertility" and "Corn and its Culture" were two leading subjects handled in the forenoon and the sugar industry occupied the most of the time in the afternoon. The subjects were very ably presented and the discussions were very interesting as well as instructive. At the evening session the subject was "Give the Boys a Chance" and they were given it. A. L. Hopkins, H. L. Swift and H. E. Bell were the speakers and their talks were to the point and should have been heard by a much larger audience. Not the least of the entertainment of the evening was furnishes by the Beulah Home boys with songs, etc. and it added very much to the success of the session. The business men and others of the city should have taken more interest in this institute. It is one of the best things that was ever inaugurated for the farmers and should be encouraged by everybody.—Journal.

AT EAST JORDAN.

There was a very good attendance Tuesday at the one-day Farmers' Institute held here, in spite of the fact that the worst storm so far this winter was prevailing. The program as outlined was generally carried out as to the topics, but on account of the prevailing storm the work was crowded into two sessions, and the evening session was cut out. In fact, the managers gave more than was advertised and furnished a gentleman who gave an excellent talk on the manufacture and use of commercial fertilizers.—Enterprise.

THE NEW PRIMARY LAW

Took Effect January Twenty-Fifth. Only One Primary.

A Re-Submission Is Necessary Before This Senatorial District Nominates by Primaries.

Governor Warner has sent out information in regard to the new primary law which went into effect January 25.

The new law provides that all primary elections for county, congressional and legislative nominations, as well as for governor and lieutenant governor, will hereafter be held on the first Tuesday in September. All who desire to take part in the primaries, will be required to enroll, if they have not already done so, two days of enrollment being provided, one on the day of registration before the spring election, and one on the Saturday previous to the September primary. There is no new enrollment required under the new law, except for those who have changed their residence or party affiliations.

All congressional districts, counties and representative districts which adopted the direct nominating system under the law of 1905, remain so under the new law; also all senatorial districts, the boundaries of which were not changed under the senatorial apportionment of the last regular session. A resubmission of the question is necessary where changes were made.

By the apportionment, changes were made in the boundaries of this senatorial district, it now being the twenty-ninth, composed of Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Alpena, Emmet, Charlevoix, Otsego and Montmorency counties.

In order for this district to adopt the system of direct nominations, it will be necessary for twenty per cent of the enrolled voters of any party, to file a petition before the fifth of March, 1908, so it can be voted upon at the election April 6.

Party Saturday Night.

Saturday night, February 1, what was known as a hen party was held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Ulrich on Newman street. A large number of her friends were present and a jolly good evening was enjoyed by all present.

THE HIGHWAYS OF FRANCE

Van Pelt Writes the Courier a Characteristic Letter on Good Roads.

Good Roads Means Progress—Highway Shade Trees Should be Nut Bearing Ones.

Chicago, February 1, 1908.

My Dear COURIER:

It is some time since I have found time to write my friends up north a letter upon my old hobby, "Good Roads," and just now I found in the National Harness Review an article on the subject of the "French Roadway System" which makes mighty interesting reading, and I am going to send it along with this and ask you to print it for the reason that when some of us farmers up there get a pretty fair piece of road we're apt to sit back and admire our work and think that the rest of the world should at once take copy after our model, when perhaps the cross roads by which we reach our "back forty" is a disgrace to the name of road.

All over the world, in old as well as new countries, the road problem is a constant subject of thought and labor—the older and more advanced in civilization the country is, the more advanced are its roadways and the mechanism by which their contruction and maintenance is carried on.

Mrs. Van Pelt and Miss Mary King Van Pelt have recently returned from Europe; they are good roads fiends as well as myself and they fully corroborate the statement that the French Roadway system is the best in the world. How this much-desired result is attained is explained in the article here quoted:

"According to a consular report, the basis of the French highway administrative system is the so-called School of Bridges and Roads, one of the finest technical schools in the world, and, like all other French educational systems, a state affair. It is intended to inform the engineers who afterwards take positions in the highway administrative system. Ordinary students are also accepted and are graduated with the diploma of civil engineer. The course lasts three years and instruction is gratuitous.

"The French highway administrative system has absolute control of the construction and maintenance of both national and local roads. The national government, co-operating with the local governments under certain circumstances has charge of the hydraulic works of France, that is to say, the supervision and erection of sea and river walls, ports, etc., and exercises surveillance over rivers and railroads.

"The point of departure in this system begins with the modest cantonnier, who lives on the line of his jurisdiction, and is responsible for the maintenance of his section of road at all times. He keeps the ditches open, carefully fills holes and ruts, when such are discovered, with broken stone, removes dust and deposits of sand and earth after heavy rains, trims the trees and bushes, and when citizens furnish labor in payment of their road tax directs their work. When ordinary work is impossible the cantonnier breaks stone and transports it to points where it is likely to be needed. He is expected to bring to the attention of his chief any condition requiring special attention, and is the man on the spot in every emergency. Each cantonnier has a book, and in this book the chief cantonnier, who passes over the road at least once a week, notes his instructions and checks up the work accomplished during the preceding interval. Nothing is left to chance. The conductors go over the line at regular intervals also and direct the chief cantonniers, and all reports are transmitted to the central authorities, who thus follow the prevailing conditions on every foot of national highway in France. Each year the conductors prepare estimates of necessary expenses for the following year, itemizing them under the heads of maintenance, heavy repairs and new work, and the parliamentary appropriations are based upon these careful local calculations.

"It is generally recognized that the best and most complete road system in the world is to be found in France, where it stands as an enduring monument to the administrative greatness of Napoleon. French roads are good, not because of any superiority of raw materials, as the same materials exist everywhere; they are not good because of any special talent for road building, as the formula was furnished by an Englishman, and some roads just as fine may be seen in some parts of the United States. The real superiority of the French highway system is attributable to the fact that it is under the constant intelligent supervision of an army of trained men who discover within the organization opportunities for advancement and professional distinction which no mere county administration can offer.

"The proof of this assertion may be found in France itself. If this country has a wonderful network of great arteries of general communication called 'national routes,' there is also in every department or county a system of local roads connecting the small towns and villages, built and maintained by the local governments, and very inferior to the national routes.

The construction and maintenance of the local roads are affected by the same unfortunate influences which ordinarily attach to county effort in America, but in less noticeable degree. The French road type is therefore the broad and smooth national route, upon which in a rolling country one good draft horse is expected to be able to travel thirty kilometers (18.64 miles) per day, hauling a load of 1,500 kilos (3,306 pounds). Public opinion requires that the local highways be kept in sufficiently good condition not to interfere with the horse-power efficiency mentioned."

A TERRIBLE STORM

Blizzard Raged in all Portions of the State Saturday.

Freight Stuck in the Snow Near Henry Delayed Train 20 Hours.

Last Saturday all Michigan was in the grip of the storm king, a terrible blizzard raging all day, trains being delayed on all roads and the country roads being rendered impassible by the heavy fall of snow.

Saturday afternoon local freight No. 225 on the Pere Marquette got stuck in the snow at the Desmond cut near Henry, holding up the passenger due here Saturday evening so it did not arrive until Sunday afternoon, the passengers beyond being compelled to spend the night in the coaches suffered no discomfort, the cars being kept warm by the engines.

From all reports the storm was worse in all portions of the state than in this region, although here it was a record breaker.

How to Prepare a Mixture to Cure Rheumatism

This Town Has its Share of Dread Disease, Which is Said to Yield to Simple Home Recipe.

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from our home druggists, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription, states a well-known authority in a Cleveland morning paper, forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and torturous disease, but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious kidney or urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions, which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you want it badly. Our druggists here say they will either supply these ingredients or make the mixture ready to take, if any of our readers so prefer.

LONG-CONCEALED PLUNDER FOUND

Gold Bricks Stolen in 1880 Recovered from Ruins of Saloon at Sidney, Neb.

Omaha, Jan. 31. — Superintendent Patterson, of the Pacific Express company, returned to Omaha from Sidney, Neb., bringing with him two large bricks of bullion, believed to represent part of the loot of a robbery of the company's office in Sidney, in March, 1880. The metal was found buried in the debris of a saloon which burned two weeks ago.

The robbery was the boldest of its kind ever committed in the west, and the bullion, which had been received that day by stage from the Black Hills, was valued at $127,000. One of the bricks was sold to the Denver mint a year after the robbery. Sheriff McCarthy, who then owned the saloon which burned recently, was believed to be the leader of the robber band. His brother was later hanged by vigilantes. McCarthy has been dead several years.

Thugs in a Council Chamber.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 31. — Stephen Vasielewski, forty-five years old, a night watchman at the city hall, was attacked by three thugs in the council chamber late at night and as a result he is lying in a hospital in a critical condition. Vasielewski was shot through the head and brutally beaten. He was robbed of $200, after which he was thrown from the balcony to the council floor of the chamber, where he was found lying unconscious in a pool of blood. His skull was fractured by the fall.

THREE CHILDREN SHOT BY FATHER

Shocking Crime Committed by a Well-to-Do Chicago Man.

MURDER DONE TO SPITE WIFE

Would Put Her in Position of a Woman Whose Husband Is To Be Hanged.

With Strange Coolness and Deliberation the Father Shoots His Three Little Children, One After Another.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—One of the most shocking crimes in the history of Chicago was committed by William Meutsch, a carriage and wagon dealer living at 419 Armitage avenue. His shop, underneath his home, was the scene of the crime.

With strange coolness and deliberation he called into the shop one of his little daughters who had been playing in the street in front, and shot her dead. Then he called in her little sister and fired two bullets into her chest. Then he walked upstairs and shot the baby son as he lay in bed.

The victims are: Gertrude, aged five years, shot twice through heart and instantly killed; Jennie, aged three years, shot through the stomach died in a few hours; William, aged two years, shot in left side, will die.

Wanted to Spite His Wife.

When taken by the police the father seemed more calm and collected than were the men whose hair had grown gray in a lifelong fight with crime. He spoke in a connected, rational manner, and startled the policemen with his frankness on the way to the station.

"I loved the children," he said, "but I thought it would be better to kill them rather than have them grow up the children of such a woman as their mother."

"What is the matter with their mother?" asked Captain Harding.

"Oh, she calls them bad names and is not a good woman," said the murderer.

"If you hate the mother so, why didn't you not kill her instead of the children?" queried the captain.

"I decided to put her in the position of a woman, whose husband will be hanged," was the startling response.

Grief of the Mother.

Mrs. Meutsch is practically in a semi-conscious state, wailing over and over: "Why didn't he kill me and himself instead?"

Meutsch, who, the police say, is a thirty-second degree Mason and a Shriner, has had a home decidedly better than those of most of his neighbors and has been considered by them a man of property and of some importance. Besides the wagon and carriage shop, which takes up the first floor of his residence, he is interested in a barber supply business at Forty Fifth street and Cottage Grove avenue, in partnership with a man named Kline. He is forty-four years old and his wife thirty-eight.

Gould's "King's Court" Destroyed.

New York, Jan. 31.—King's Court the beautiful colonial residence standing opposite George J. Gould's Georgian Court at Lakewood, was destroyed by a fire that started in the elevator shaft, probably from some defect in the electric wiring. The house was built by Mr. Gould five years ago. It is said to have cost $500,000 and to have been intended as a gift to his son Kingdon.

Dagger in the Celluloid Comb.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 31.—While Mrs. May Greene, twenty-five years old, was sitting before her grate a spark ignited the celluloid comb in her hair and the ornament burned in a flash. Her hair was burned off and the scalp so badly seared that her physician expressed the opinion that there will not be a re growth of her black tresses.

Philanthropist Cromwell Dead.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 31.—Edward Cromwell, aged eighty-seven years, is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gertrude C. Simpson, in this city. Mr. Cromwell's long life was largely devoted to philanthropic and patriotic work. He was born in New York city and was a member of one of the oldest American families and the oldest direct descendent of Oliver Cromwell.

"NOT GUILTY" IS THAW VERDICT

Slayer of Stanford White Insane at Time of Committing Act.

MUST GO TO INSANE ASYLUM

State Lunacy Commission Must Be Convinced of His Sanity Before He Is Free.

All the Interested Parties Appear To Be Satisfied With the Verdict—Littleton Files a Bill of Exceptions.

New York, Feb. 1.—At 3 o'clock counsel for Thaw announced that they would make no move for a commission at this time or for a transfer to another asylum. It was announced that Thaw would leave for the asylum at once.

New York, Feb. 1.—Acquitted of the murder of Stanford White on the ground that he was insane at the time of the commission of the homicide, Harry K. Thaw was ordered by Justice Dowling to be committed to the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane, until some time as he can convince the state lunacy commission that his being at large will not endanger the public safety. Thaw was led back to the Tombs across the Bridge of Sighs and will remain there until the sheriff can plan for his transfer to the upstate institution.

Verdict Satisfies All.

Both Thaw and his wife, the latter being the only member of his family in court when the jury unexpectedly returned its verdict after a deliberation of twenty-five hours, seemed pleased and satisfied with the outcome of the case. Thaw stood and smilingly bowed his acknowledgments to the jurors as they filed one by one out of the box.

District Attorney Jerome also seemed satisfied, as he has contended ever since the crime was committed that Thaw was medically, if not legally, insane. Thaw's counsel thanked the jurors with a hearty handshake for each one of the twelve. Attorney Littleton also filed an exception to Justice Dowling's decision in retaining Thaw in custody and committing him to the asylum.

As to Habeas Corpus.

At the request of the defendant's counsel, Justice Dowling delayed the execution of the order committing Thaw to the asylum until 3 p. m., to allow counsel to confer as to whether or not a writ of habeas corpus will be sued out to have his sanity tested by a commission before he is taken away to Matteawan.

Thaw was called back from the prison and had luncheon with his wife in an ante-chamber of the courtroom. The jurymen all refused to divulge the secrets of their deliberations further than to say that fourteen ballots were taken.

Report of the Jury.

Only a few spectators were allowed to enter the courtroom when the jury reported. Thaw was commanded to stand and face the jurors, and they, in turn, were called to their feet.

"Jurors, look upon the defendant; defendant, look upon the jurors," called Clerk Penny. "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict.

"We have," said Foreman Gremmels.

"What say you, is the defendant guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty, on the ground that he was insane at the time of the commission of the act charged in the indictment."

Thaw Family Pleased.

Thaw's family were pleased with the verdict and declared it was the best they had hoped for. They were particularly anxious, however, that Thaw should be taken to a private asylum or some other hospital under state direction than the one for criminal insane.

When news of the verdict was communicated to Mrs. William Thaw, the prisoner's mother, who was waiting at her apartments in the Hotel Lorraine, she said:

"Thank God, my son is saved. I am perfectly satisfied."

Thaw Willing to Go to Asylum.

After he had returned to his cell and had a conference with his wife, his brother, Josiah Thaw, and James Jenkins, the district attorney of Stanford, Conn., Thaw said he personally was well satisfied with the verdict and that he was willing to go to Matteawan if necessary.

He felt that he was justified in shooting White, and he believed the jury "justly sized up the situation" and for that reason returned a verdict of not guilty. He added that he was confident of escaping Matteawan.

Now the duty of every citizen is to vote yes on adopting the constitution. Vote yes and it will carry and the $200,000 spent in sending the delegates to Lansing will not be in vain. FIVE DEAD IN FIRE AT KANSAS CITY

Victims Are Caught in Their Sleep in a Big Rooming House.

FIRE RESULT OF GAS EXPLOSION

One of the Victims Proved Herself a Heroine Before Being Overtaken by Death.

Lost Her Life in an Effort to Arouse Sleeping Inmates of the House—Guests of Winter Resort Hotel Routed by Fire.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1.—Five persons were burned to death, and five others were injured in a fire in a three-story rooming house at 1116 Wyandotte street, near the business section, early in the morning. The dead: Mrs. Jennie Bert, aged twenty-nine, Harrisonville, Mo., Mabel Porter, aged eighteen, Nina Graves, aged eighteen, waitresses; Peter Rooney, aged thirty-four, Charles Johnson, aged twenty-eight, cooks. All of the dead, except Mrs. Bert, lived in Kansas City.

The injured were taken to the Emergency hospital. They are: George Nagasemin, Japanese, kitchen helper; Claude Pulver, aged twenty, bellboy, Kansas City club; M. W. Stoberg, aged nineteen, student at business college; Owen Comese, kitchen man; John Geneemi, second cook, Sexton hotel.

Explosion of Natural Gas.

The fire started from an explosion of natural gas in the basement. The flames and dense smoke spread quickly throughout the building and before an alarm could be given all means of escape by the ordinary exits had been shut off. The five persons who lost their lives were asleep on the third floor, and all save Mrs. Bert were burned to death in their rooms.

Evidently they had been suffocated and none apparently had even made an attempt to escape. Before the firemen arrived the building was a mass of flames and the rooms of the upper floors could not be reached. Mabel Porter and Nina Graves, two of the dead, occupied a room together. The injured slept on the lower floors and in the basement.

Mrs. Bert a Heroine.

Mrs. Bert lost her life in trying to arouse the inmates. The dense smoke pouring up the stairway soon filled the hallways and entered the rooms. Mrs. Bert was awakened and hurrying down the hallway on her floor attempted to awaken the sleeping roomers. The smoke soon drove her to the second floor, where she tried to give an alarm. The smoke and flames, however, now crowded her so closely that she was compelled to desist and seek escape by the stairway. At the top of the second floor landing she stumbled and falling headlong down the stairway landed in the thickest of the flames.

Body Almost Unrecognizable.

At the bottom her charred remains were later found by the firemen. The body was almost unrecognizable

There were twenty-two persons in the building when the fire broke out. Most of the roomers worked at night as waitresses and kitchen cooks at nearby hotels and restaurants. Most of them had only retired a short time previous and they were deep in sleep. This fact doubtless accounts for the inability of Mrs. Bert to awaken them.

The bodies of the four other victims were found in their beds. Each had been terribly burned, and the limbs dropped from one of them as the remains were later carried from the house.

Winter Resort Hotel Destroyed.

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 1.—The Hamilton hotel, a tourist resort on the banks of the Suwanee river, at White Springs, Fla., was completely destroyed by fire. The house was crowded with winter visitors and many had narrow escapes from death, eight being overcome by smoke and had to be carried from the burning hotel. All cottages and outhouses on the hotel property were also destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Cornell House Fire is Fatal.

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 1.—From the ruins of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house at Cornell university, which burned, were taken the charred remains of J. S. Kiehle, a junior in mechanical engineering. That any lives had been lost was not known until a meeting of the fraternity was held, when a roll call developed the fact that Kiehle was missing. The ruins were searched and his body was found.

Disastrous Conflagration.

Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 1.—A disastrous fire broke out in the Christie building, on Pulaski street, and spread rapidly. On account of a delay in turning in an alarm the department did not arrive until the building was in flames and had spread to adjoining buildings. The damage will exceed $150,000. Eight business houses, the railroad Y. M. C. A. building and three residences were destroyed by the fire.

Tax Collector Robbed of $1,000.

Scituate, R. I., Feb. 1.—While State Senator Henry H. Potter, town clerk and tax collector, was at work in his office, he was robbed of $1,000 by three masked men who entered and presenting revolvers, demanded that he surrender all the money in his possession. Senator Potter was alone and was obliged to comply. The thieves escaped.

Dr. Buckley Vindicated.

New York, Feb. 1.—The Rev. Mr. J. M. Buckley, editor of "The Christian Advocate," was vindicated by the committee composed of nine clergymen of the New York East conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, who for two days had considered charges made by the Rev. Dr. George A. S. Cooke of Brandon, Vt.

Seized Under Pure Food Law.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1.—The United States marshal seized $1,000 worth of Arkansas canned apples and black berries labeled as grown in Michigan, the label being in violation of the pure food law. The fruit will be sold and the proceeds turned into the United States treasury

Railway Station Destroyed.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 1.—The Rock Island station here was destroyed by fire. The fire started in the attic, probably from an electric wire leading to the clock in the tower. Only a few of the records were saved. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Boy's Remarkable Experience.

Massillon, O., Jan. 31.—While crossing a railway track in a buggy, L. S. Morris, fourteen years of age, was struck by a locomotive. Although the horse was killed and the buggy demolished the boy clung to the pilot of the engine for a half mile before the train came to a stop. Morris was benumbed by the cold and fell unconscious when rescued, but sustained no serious injuries.

YOUNG MORSE ALIVE?

Ex-Game Warden's Missing Son Said to Have Been Seen at Chicago.

DISAPPEARED FROM THE M. A. C.

Had Not Been Heard from in Years—Detroit to Have a Big Hippodrome—Items.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 1.—The mystery of the disappearance of Leon Morse, a student at the Agricultural college several years ago, is again brought before the public by the report that Morse has been seen recently in Chicago. Thad Halstead, formerly editor of the Perry Journal, who sold his interest in that paper and went west a few days ago, writes that she saw Morse in Chicago. The boy, who is a cripple, is the son of ex-Game Warden Grant M. Morse, of Portland. He disappeared from this city several years ago while he was at M. A. C., and for many weeks efforts were made to locate him.

Not a Word Heard from the Boy.

The press of the state fairly bristled with theories as to the cause of the disappearance of the popular young student, and his father offered large rewards for information leading to his recovery. It was not known whether Morse was the victim of foul play or whether he had deliberately run away. No word came from the young man and all inquiries were unavailing. Halstead knew young Morse personally. He has since the young man's father of his discovery, but no details of the meeting with young Morse are given.

Syrian Responds to the Call.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 1.—Prof. F. L. Goodrich, of Albion college, delivered a lecture at the Syrian Y. M. C. A. on a "Horse-back Ride Through Palestine." During his lecture he gave the Syrian call to prayer and instantly from the rear of the gallery came the Assyrian answer, followed by a native of that island, and while, tears streamed down his face he grasped the professor by the hand. He is employed in a shoe shining parlor and it is the first time he has heard the call since he left his native home.

To Regulate the 'Phone.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 1.—The important proposal regulating the business of telephone companies has passed the committee of the whole in the constitutional convention. It reserves the rights of cities, villages or townships to control their streets, alleys, highways and public places as regards telephone or electric power companies.

BIG PLAYHOUSE FOR DETROIT

Michigan Metropolis Wants a Hippodrome Like the One They Have at Gotham.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 1.—Plans are on foot here to provide Detroit with a Hippodrome patterned after that one in New York. It will be located at the Northeast corner of Woodward avenue and High street, just opposite St. John's Episcopal Church. Robert E. McKisson, ex-mayor of Cleveland, is reported to be back of the project.

It is anticipated that the structure, which will have a seating capacity of 5,000, will cost about three-quarters of a million dollars, and the rental of the property, 200 feet on Woodward avenue and 300 feet on High Street, for 99 years, will reach $1,000,000. The stage will be more than 100 feet in width. It is expected that the work of construction will begin in July.

Married His Wife's Friend.

Pontiac, Mich., Feb. 1.—Obeying the dying request of his wife, John Arthur aged 44, a farmer living near here, sent to England for Miss Margaret Marsh, aged 28, her girlhood friend. Mrs. Arthur asked that he employ her as housekeeper, probably believing that he would eventually marry her. They have been wedded.

Hurt in Arsenal Explosion.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—Several persons were seriously injured by an explosion and fire at the Frankfort arsenal in the extreme northeastern section of the city. The explosion was a slight one and occurred in the reloading room of the shrapnel department. A large number of girls are employed in the place making cartridges for the army and there was a panic among them, which, however, was quickly allayed.

Family Poisoned by Tainted Meat.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 31.—Ptomaine poisoning, from eating tainted meat, has nearly wiped out of existence the family of James Follitte, residing at Laurel, Neb., near here. William, the sixteen-year-old son, was stricken and died a few hours afterwards. While the funeral preparations were in progress, Mary, the six-year-old daughter died, and the father is not expected to live. The mother is also critically ill.

She—I see an average man needs 1,600 pounds of food yearly. He—But he doesn't want it in one batch of biscuits, dear.—Pick-Me-Up.

DARRAGH AND THE NEWSPAPERS.

"It takes too much money to get a nomination nowdays," said Darragh. "I have been through one primary campaign, and I know. Under the convention system we had delegates who did not want money, but who were anxious to make the best move for the party. Now there is one very essential requisite for success, and that is the use of plenty of this."

At this point Mr. Darragh pulled from his pocket some silver, at which he nodded. "One of the heaviest drains on a man, who goes through a primary reform campaign is to pay newspapers. The better class of newspapers are square about campaign material, of course, but nearly half of the country papers, including those published in county seats, practically put their columns up at auction. The candidate who bids the highest gets them.

"Another reason why I shall retire is that I have had my share. Heretofore the rule in the eleventh district has been that no congressman should have more than two terms. This is my fourth, and I feel that I ought to get out of the way of good republicans who would like to go to congress, but who have been supporting me. The third reason for my retirement is that I want to be independent. As a congressman I, in common with my colleagues, spend much of my time running errands, for which we get little thanks. We must coddle people along when they are inclined to be displeased with us, and put them in good humor. When I am a private citizen again, I shall be my own boss, and shall attend to my own private business in my own way."

The above are the reasons Congressman Darragh gives for his withdrawal from the campaign for re-election. Of course the change from the old system of nominations by conventions, to nomination by a vote of the people would not appeal to a man of Mr. Darragh's calibre, whose sole and only claim to public favor has been his ability as a politican, a class of men who are being relegated to the rear. Mr. Darragh has one claim to distinction, and that is, that as a campaign manager he had no superior in the state. But with the adoption of the primary system, not more money, as Mr. Darragh says, but more capability than he has ever shown is necessary before a man can go before the people and ask them to continue him, year after year, in a position of public trust.

After telling how it cost too much to go through a campaign, he goes further and says, in substance, that nearly half the country papers put their columns up at auction, to the highest bidder, especially mentioning those published at county seats. There has been only one campaign under the primary system, and only those papers which supported him can be the ones against which he makes the charge, as from nearly every county comes denials from the papers which supported Mr. Covell, that they did so from any other motive than because they considered him the better man.

The COURIER, being a county seat paper, hastens to remind its readers that it didn't support Mr. Darragh, therefore it is clear of the charge in this county, as it certainly received nothing from Mr. Covell. While there may have been some papers, which Mr. Darragh was able to purchase, we believe he erred in saying nearly half, as that would mean about all that gave him support, after he cut out those run by postmasters.

Mr. Darragh's other reasons are that he has had his share. In that we agree he has had more than his share, and then he says he wants to be his own boss and attend to his own private business, and we're glad of that, for he is more of a success in looking after his own business than that of the public.

As for the announced candidates, Mr. Cuvell is from the northern part of the district, has had considerable experience in public life, and made a creditable showing last campaign against a man of Mr. Darragh's recognized ability as a campaign manager. Mr. Alward has had years of experience in Washington. Mr. Dodds is well spoken of by his home papers, but we believe he lives too far south for this year.

We have no candidate at this time as we wish to know more about the men, but shall endeavor to treat all fairly, giving their good qualities and their bad as we see them.

OUR Central Lake correspondent is in error over the prohibition clause being adopted by the con. con., as on a later vote it was rejected.

In our opinion, the rejecting of a prohibitory clause was a wise act, as, while we may believe in the stopping of the liquor traffic, the placing of a prohibitory clause in the new constitution would have meant its rejection, or at least a determined fight.

The chief criticism of the work of the convention, has not been of the work which they did do, but the things which were left undone. Consistency demands that their work be not rejected because some things which you wished to see do not appear, if there is nothing new to which you can object.

If the sentiment of the people of Michigan is strongly in favor of prohibition, the initiative, etc., only twenty-per cent have to petition for a separate vote, and we don't believe any legislature will refuse to grant it to them. In the meantime any county where the sentiment is sufficiently strong can adopt local option.

Before even the delegates were elected, prejudice existed against the work which they were called upon to do, and they have had to keep that in view all the time and study carefully to make a document which would be satisfactory to all the people, and we believe they have done their work well, so far.

Mr. Knowles, the Charlevoix county delegate, developed into one of the real leaders of the convention, and if we did not, at all times, agree with him, we do believe that in all his acts he did what he believed was for the best interests of the people of Michigan, whose servant he was.

HAVE any of the friends of Charlevoix noticed that, whereas, at this time last year that there were six or seven empty business buildings in our little city this year there is not one? And there is one new building erected this summer. It does not take a great deal of fuss and feathers to show a considerable increase in business during the past year, even if we have not landed any great enterprises, and the fact that every business place, some of them none too desirable, is full, may prove a factor in bringing more business. Should next year see as great an increase as that just past, some of our people will be forced to replace present buildings with larger and better ones or see some of the business go off from Bridge street, which might easily mean much the same thing.

Notice the advertisement of Ward & Ward in this issue. Why not purchase one of their desirable village lots and own a home of your own. 6-t-1

GAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY

In Honor of Mrs. Dr. Crouter at Mrs. Dr. Auld's.

Mrs. Dr. Auld gave a very pretty party January 20 in honor of Mrs. Dr. Cronter's birthday.

A six-course, six o'clock dinner was served, after which the guests enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

THE HIGHWAYS OF FRANCE

If our country road overseers could be brought to feel the same responsibility for the roads within their districts that the French cantonnier does; and if a public opinion could be created which would demand a good serviceable highway throughout each township, not only on the main highways, but wherever there may be travel enough to warrant the maintenance of a road, we could have good roads without any radical change in our system of caring for them.

The public opinion side of the question is really where the shoe pinches. Just as long as we farmers up in Charlevoix county will be content to haul the same sized loads and make the same number of trips per day as when the farms between Norwood and Charlevoix could be counted on the fingers, just that long will the roads remain poor, and we'll stay at home three out of four times when we ought to go to town; we'll be too poor to improve the farm; won't be able to afford the hired man necessary to keep down the weeds; will be too all-fired busy ourselves to know we're alive; and in short will remain mossbacks instead of the progressive and independent farmers we might be, with time for the improvement of ourselves and our farms, so that our boys will want to continue the farm work, as being what it properly is—the most independent, healthful, natural and enjoyable life a man or family ever lived. Each of our progressive farmers who agitates for good roads is doing his part toward the creation of necessary public sentiand toward the elevation of his community.

Just a suggestion before this gets too long: On very many of the French highways the government has planted nut bearing trees for public benefit. These beside furnishing shade and protecting both the road and the traveller, provide much of beauty and enjoyment and bring annually a crop as valuable, perhaps, as the land would produce if it were a portion of an estate or farm, instead of a public highway. This, it would appear, might easily be accomplished by our Norwood and Marion farmers if each would plant a few nut-bearing trees along the roadways adjoining his farm each year. They can be secured from the nurseries where you buy fruit trees and cost but little. Think it over friends.

Yours truly,
GEORGE H. VAN PELT.

Leap Year Party Given by the Eastern Star Friday Night.

The leap year party, given by the ladies of the Eastern Star, Friday night, was the most successful affair of the kind ever held in Charlevoix.

Notwithstanding the storm, everybody who received an invitation, must have been present, the hall being crowded all the evening, the crowd being estimated at between two and three hundred. From the time it opened until the close it was a continued round of pleasure, but was no more than was anticipated by the guests, who are always assured of having a most enjoyable time at every entertainment given under the auspices of the Eastern Star, and especially when it is a leap year event.

Socialism Department

Conducted Under the Auspices of the Socialist Party of the United States.

CAPITALISM IS KING.

The Money Lord, Not the Warrior, Is the Master of the World.

The fact that the capitalist and not the warrior is the modern master of the world has been emphasized by the recent visit of Andrew Carnegie to the emperor of Germany. The emperor personally conducted the great steel manufacturer and philanthropist over his own personal industrial properties, and the canny Scotchman was vastly interested at inspecting the great porcelain factory and the farms at Cadinen, in east Prussia.

The emperor, prouder of his success as a business man even than his much vaunted ability as a military commander, personally loses no opportunity to advance his own business interests. It is said that at every court festival he besieges his guests for orders, which he jots down upon his cuffs, military uniforms being usually deficient in pockets for the reception of order books. He has personally solicited and secured innumerable great orders from the other royal houses of Europe when he has visited them and is wont to boast of his successes as a commercial traveler. His investment is valued at $500,000, and within the past year he has received $450,000 in profits, about 9 per cent on the invested capital. Two thousand employees man his works.

This example has been followed by many members of the German aristocracy, and it is possible to purchase such articles as oatmeal, crockery, umbrellas, corsets and silks bearing the trademark of princely families, while Prince Fuerstenberg, related to the royal house, is known as the proprietor of the largest brewerles in the fatherland.—Saturday Evening Tribune.

Time to Study Principles.

Under the present capitalist system the more wealth the workers produce the richer grow the capitalists and the poorer grow the workers. Poverty is worse in this country today than at any other period of its history. Under Socialism the workers would be richer than at any other period of the world's history. Are you a worker?

Workingmen, if you were to study principles instead of men you would be better equipped to judge that man want the thing that would benefit you. Capitalists study out principles that will benefit them and then support men for office who carry out those principles. Why not be as wise as your masters? You know well enough that you are ignorant about government and laws, yet you play the game and "get it in the neck" every time. So does the working class of Europe. The rulers study their interest. You study little or nothing except your work, so you will become more efficient wage slaves. Get a think on yourself.—Appeal to Reason.

Socialist Notes.

The Denmark Socialists recently sent $8,000 to their Russian comrades to help them in their battle for freedom.

The fact that a Socialist paper has been started at Rekjavik shows that the movement is making headway in Iceland.

Finland has the honor of having the largest percentage of Socialist representatives in parliament of any nation in the world. Eighty-three Socialist candidates were successful at the recent election, and nine of them were women.

The Socialist press in Switzerland is rapidly increasing, there being forty-six newspapers printed at present. Six are daily and the balance weekly and monthly. Of the total number twenty-two are trades union journals, eighteen political, three fraternal, two women's papers and one comic weekly. Three are printed in the Italian language, nine in French and thirty-four in German.

THE ONLY WAY OUT.

Socialism the Only Means by Which to Attain Real Democracy.

The condemnation of the existing industrial system is that it brutalizes manhood. Success is measured in dollars. Dividends are of more importance than manhood and character.

Profit sharing has been tried, but with somewhat disappointing results.

The workingmen distrust the large salaried employers and feel that profits are eaten up in salaries.

Trades unions have sprung up, and their existence is justified, for if capital can unite, labor may and perhaps must.

But labor unions are not the final solution. The next natural forward step in social evolution will be the transfer of great consolidated industries from trusts and private capitol to public ownership.

Some day the people will own the railroads and coal mines and all the largest necessary businesses of the land—not necessarily the smaller ones—just as today we have public ownership of streets, schools, libraries, postal system, etc.

And if the business is run for the people, not the profit that can be made out of the people, larger wages can be paid, commodities can be purchased more cheaply and the whole standard of living, physical, intellectual, moral, will be raised thereby.

This is Socialism, pure and simple. It is not anarchism. Instead of privileged classes we should have a real democracy, democracy consummated.

A Notable Book.

The New York Sun announces that "Dr. Lewis H. Morgan, well known to American readers as the author of 'The League of the Iroquois' and 'System of Consanguinity and Affinity of the Human Family,' has lately published a comprehensive and suggestive study of 'Ancient Society.'" The joke is on the Sun. Morgan's great book was published a generation ago. The author has been dead for many years. We heartily wish that his books, especially the "Ancient Society," were "well known to American readers." Unfortunately his own countrymen as well as the English have neglected one of the greatest of sociological scientists and have left it to Germans and Russians to appreciate his work. However, it is pleasing to note the fact that at last a reprint has been demanded and that even the Sun has found it worthy of a rather careful review.—New York Worker.

How We Are Drifting.

While the people of the United States have a quasi-republican form of government, the tendency, not only in capitalistic circles but also in the well to do middle class, is decidedly anti-republican.

While we are supposed to have a democracy, we are hampered by having an unrewarded king and a senatorial oligarchy, and the well to do middle class applauds both.

While we have no hereditary nobility, we have a moneyed aristocracy which has now become hereditary. And it is the most oppressive and contemptible the world has ever seen.—Victor L. Berger.

The Class Struggle.

The class struggle began with the prehistoric tribal wars and can end only when the laborers can be delivered from the inheritance of industrial disaster handed down to them from the footpaths of barbarian warfare. This class struggle was shown in the servile rebellions when slavery had been made the status of the workingman. This class struggle was shown in the labor unions and the strikes when the wage system had been fastened on the toiler, when he had been robbed of any opportunity to own the resources of the earth [illegible] had been refused the right to live without a master and had not been guaranteed even the right to have a master. This class struggle is shown now in the struggle for Socialism, which is no new thing in the world. It is the same old warfare, at last informed as to the nature of the rights of the toilers and equipped with the power of the ballot in the struggle to secure these rights.—John Stuart Mill.

What a Priest Says.

Advancing the cause of Socialism is not the work of factious and giddy heads, as some think who see a scarecrow in every new movement, but is the progress of humanity. I call Socialism the doctrine of love and justice which was taught by Christ. Socialism does not mean tumult and ruin, but food and work for all, a home and clothing for all, a living assured to all, happiness and justice for all.—Father Mario Oddarlo, Italy.

Socialists Object.

Word comes from Finland that the Socialists in parliament are the only ones opposing the payment to Russia of 20,000,000 marks for war purposes. What a beautiful spectacle it is, Finlanders paying millions to Russia so that the "mother country" will be able by armed force to take away the remaining liberties the Finlanders enjoy.—People's Paper.

Principles, Not Revenge.

Shall we be Socialists merely because we are getting the worst of it in the game of dollars? It is true that every poor man should be a Socialist, but not simply because of his personal sufferings. Such men are the first to become the opponents of Socialism when the tide turns a little in their direction. "Once a Socialist, always a Socialist," should be the watchword of every sincere man who sees beyond his own nose into the needs of his fellows. I am a Socialist because I believe in the principles of Socialism. These principles force me to the attitude which I take. They are so deep, true and abiding that they simply command my belief, and I cannot any more evade them or disbelieve in them than I can disbelieve in the existence of the sun in the month of July.—Buffalo Herald.

Martyrs to the Right.

There is no more honest, law observing citizen than a Socialist, the only crime of which he stands convicted before "the people" being his political belief. But all beliefs, political and religious, have had their martyrs, and Socialism, according to custom, is making its sacrifices.—Socialist Herold.

Going Up!

"As the result of enormous increases in food prices," says our eastern press dispatch, "New York is fast approaching a famine standard. Meats, canned goods and eggs have taken an alarming jump." All other food products have been advanced accordingly. The trusts are more than usually active since Roosevelt entered upon his policy of extermination.—Wayland.

Visitor—And so you help your mother with the housework, do you?

Little Bess—Yes, ma'am. I help by keeping out of her way.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains in the back and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

HIS LAST TRIP IS AN OVATION

Veteran Engineer of the Chicago and Northwestern Road Retires After Fifty Years' Service.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Along the line of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad crowds gathered at stations between Chicago and Sterling, Ill., to wave fond farewell to Engineer Larry Gaghan, who was making his last run before his retirement on pension.

Gaghan probably is known to more persons along the run than any engineer who ever traveled over it. His service on the Northwestern covers a period of fifty years and much of that time has been spent on an engine between Chicago and Sterling. His retirement was not due to decrepitude, although he is seventy-two years old, but was ordered because the rules of the road showed that he had reached the age limit.

Arriving at Sterling the ovation took a climax. Among the 2,000 at the station were residents from miles around the town. The veteran engineer was dragged from the cab and carried on the shoulders of admirers to the main street of the town.

Charged with Robbing Employers.

Chicago, Feb. 1. Three clerks employed by the Public Drug company, 130 State street, were arrested on warrants charging them with larceny by embezzlement. They are: Frank A. Peters, thirty years old, 31 Humboldt street; Charles Ording, thirty-five years old, 1658 Lexington street; Charles Patera, thirty-seven years old, 720 West Twelfth street. All are married. According to the police they are alleged to have robbed their employers of several hundred dollars in the last two months.

Custodian of Jewels To Be Suspended.

London, Feb. 1.—It is said that as a result of the royal commission's inquiry into the mysterious disappearance of the crown jewels from Dublin castle last July Mr. Birrell, secretary for Ireland, has ordered that Sir Arthur Edward Vicars, the custodian of the jewels, be superseded. It is said Captain Neville Wilkinson has been appointed as his successor. The report of the commission declares Sir Arthur Vicars did not exercise due vigilance and proper care.

Bay State Speaker Indicted.

Salem, Mass., Feb. 1.—An indictment of 123 counts was returned against John N. Cole, speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives, by the Essex county grand jury, charging him with soliciting reduced fares on the Boston and Maine railroad at different times for fifty-eight school children in violation of the public statutes. The penalty for each offense is a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000.

Physician Victim of Blood Poison.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 1.—Dr. Andrew W. Wiley, professor of practice of medicine of Creighton Medical college and one of the best known practitioners in the city, is dead of blood poisoning caused by infection received from an erysipelas patient. Dr. Wiley was forty-nine years old and was a native of Morrisonville, N. Y. He had been a resident of Omaha since 1887. He was unmarried.

Failed to Call a Wage Convention.

Indianapolis, Feb. 1.—After conferences lasting throughout the day and until nearly midnight, the coal operators and miners' officials of the central competitive field, composed of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, adjourned without agreeing upon date for a joint convention to fix a wage agreement. It adjourned to meet here Feb. 27.

American Tourist Blind to His Opportunities

By CHARLES FLEISCHER,
Jewish Rabbi, Boston.

CHARLES FLEISCHER

It is estimated that in Italy alone American and English tourists leave each year a fertilizing deposit of gold to the amount of £20,000,000 ($100,000,000). What do we Americans bring back from Italy in return? Do we travel wisely? Do we, in a fine sense, get our "money's worth?" Do we, individually, gain culture from our experiences abroad? And does America profit from the wanderings of her comparatively well-to-do, temporary nomads?

If the tens of thousands of Americans, annually, who have the privilege of visiting Europe and the ends of the earth, traveled wisely and well, our land would be enriched far more subtly and permanently than by "bumper" wheat crops. Manners, arts, politics, education, commerce—all American life would be fertilized thereby and, with philosophic cunning, we would be taking tribute always from all the races of the earth.

But—do we travel wisely and well?

It is a trite enough truism that one gets out of any experience in life only what he can get. The traveler, therefore, is not likely to bring back from Europe much more than he brings to it. The spirit, the wisdom, the degree of wakefulness, the reverence, the actual knowledge which one takes abroad with him—these are apt to be the measures of one's appreciation, enjoyment and profit from a foreign tour.

"Except ye become as little children" The open-eyed, open-eared, open-souled, impressionable, teachable attitude of the child is particularly desirable in the traveler.

I wonder how well or ill such a characterization would fit the average American tourist? There are all kinds, of course, but I fear that most of us are hardly so scientifically wise in our ignorance (knowing that we know nothing) that we deliberately travel in order to learn and grow. Therefore, we do not grow and learn from travel.

Study the Arbitration Movement

By PRESIDENT RUSH RHEES, of Rochester University.

Assuming as obvious the service which colleges may render to the cause of international arbitration, by offering opportunities for the study of the modern arbitration movement, I believe that there are two other services to that cause which may be rendered in the line of college instruction.

The first is in connection with the study of economics. Manifestly instruction in economics can offer no panacea for the cure either of industrial conflicts or of irrational temper in the settlement of such conflicts. Our students, however, may be trained in the habit of careful analysis of commercial and industrial conditions and the clear definition of the issues in any conflict of interests, so that when these present themselves educated men will instinctively make a calm study of the situation which will lead to the clearing away of irrelevant issues, and to a clear definition of the interests on both sides which seem to be in opposition. The direct consequences of such a clear understanding of the points at issue must be a cooler judgment, and thus, consciously or unconsciously, a predisposition to judicial rather than forcible modes of settlement.

But in order that such a wholesome condition may be attained there is a second service which our college instruction ought to render to the community, a clearer development and stronger rooting in the minds of students of the sense of justice. This is a measure now undertaken in our work in ethics, but I think it might be made more adequate. I believe that there rests upon us an obligation to provide for our students some fundamental and non-technical instruction in law as an essential element in liberal culture. Such instruction would not be given in the interest of training men for the practice of law. Its object should be the more perfect cultivation of the idea of justice, both in its abstract content and in its method for dealing with concrete cases in human relations. If such college instruction could also include some survey of constitutional law and international relations under the domain of law it would be of great advantage. By such a study there may be developed in our students a sense of the dignity and sanctity of justice, and so large a confidence in the methods of orderly judicial procedure for the settlement of controversy, that, given a power of close analysis and clear definition of the issues in cases of conflicting interests, educated men will be able not only to recognize with candor on which side justice lies, but also will be ready, with intelligence to accept for themselves and urge upon others the adoption of judicial rather than forcible methods of the adjustment of definitely divergent interests.

LAYING HABITS OF DUCKS.

If Handled Right They Will Lay Early in the Morning.

Never keep ducks shut up to lay; they will sometimes lay their eggs upon the ground or drop them in the water, which gives trouble in collecting, and if there are any carrion crows or even rooks in the neighborhood, they will be there before you, and the eggs will be destroyed, which certainly is a loss, says William Pygott, an English duck raiser. But breeding ducks hate confinement, and if let out regularly from six to seven a. m. you will find their eggs, as a rule, laid on the floor of the house about that time, and a far greater quantity of eggs will be secured during the season by adopting this plan rather than keeping the birds confined until late hours. I may also add here that if you can safely leave the ducks out until dusk in the evening it is better to do so, as the birds find more natural food—worms, etc., which are quite a necessity to breeding ducks—during the early mornings and late evenings than any other part of the day. An experienced attendant can tell in a moment by handling each duck any that are carrying an egg, and the bird can be watched, or the first feed could be left until later, when they would return for the meat, and be confined for awhile. Sometimes ducks get egg-bound, and have been known to carry the eggs for several days, and eventually die. If taken in the first stages, a pinch of Epsom salts in a small pellet given to the bird will reduce the inflammation of the ovaries, and the egg can be laid; occasionally a second and even a third dose will have to be administered (given once a day) before the egg is laid. In fact, I once had a duck lay three eggs in one day, the last being a soft-shelled egg, and the first like cement, having been carried four days. As a rule, it is during the early stages that ducks lay their eggs carelessly about and drop them in water. Later on in the season they will make a nest in the hedge row, or among nettles, sometimes in the stable or duck house, and it is quite safe to leave the bird to nature, removing the eggs at leisure.

A Near Death.

Tom Johnson's cow ate thirty sticks of dynamite that were left by the railroad builders on the right of way. The cow died near the place. The result is a law suit.—Hinckley (Ill.) Press.

WHAT IS IN MILK.

Much Is Known, But Much More Remains to Be Found Out.

When milk is examined with the microscope it is found that it is composed largely of butter-globules as well as the various forms of casein. An analysis of milk shows that chemically it contains water, fat, casein, sugar, phosphate of lime, phosphate of magnesia, phosphate of iron, chloride of potassium, chloride of sodium, and some soda combined with cream. The milk sugar forms a very considerable part of the whole and is sometimes put at as much as four per cent. Water constitutes from 80 to 87 per cent. of the whole weight. The kind of milk furnished is controlled somewhat by the age of the animal furnishing it, though the richness is due very largely to the breeding of the cow; that is, some cows produce offspring that give rich milk rather than milk of inferior quality. The various salts that enter into milk probably constitute more of a factor in its digestibility than we now know, says Farmers' Review. In fact, there is much about milk that has never been searched out by scientists. For instance, what value has the phosphate of iron, which is present in milk only to the extent of seven one-thousandths of one per cent.? It is probable that each of these elements plays a considerable role. There is the chloride of sodium (salt). It is present in normal milk to the extent of 24 one-thousandths of one per cent., and yet it seems to be quite essential. Cows have been deprived of salt to the extent of greatly reducing their milk flow, but just how this was connected with the salt we do not yet know.

There are many things in milk that are worth finding out. Some day we may learn that the food of cows must have certain things in them that we now deem of no particular nutritive value. The study of milk has not yet reached the stage where it yields data to settle all the questions that seem so difficult. One of the great things as yet little studied is the sugar in milk, which often exceeds the fat content. Is there a close relation between the fat and the sugar? A study of the two in conjunction might yield some results of great commercial value.

COMBS OF FOWLS.

They Are a Good Index to the Health of the Bird.

The comb of the fowl may count for much or it may count for little. In a cold country it is of more consequence than it is in a warm country, because if too much exposed it freezes. For this reason fowls having large thin combs are not so well suited to the cold north as are those fowls that have thick, compact combs, which we generally designate as "rose combs." Some fowls, like the Polish, have head gears that seem to fit them for life in a cold climate. The man that in the west cannot give his fowls much protection from the weather will do well to choose those that have naturally protected combs.

The combs of the fowls are receptacles for blood, and this does not seem to be in motion. Consequently it freezes easily, and it is the common impression among poultry raisers that a fowl that has had her comb frozen is of no value for egg laying operations. When fowls get ready to lay their condition is always shown by their combs. When a bird is being bled to death by mites the comb shows the loss of blood by becoming pale. The comb is therefore quite a good index of the health of the fowl.

Barrel Contrivance Makes the Operation an Easy One.

The Barrel Duster.

the barrel with the fowls and turn the crank, says the Missouri Valley Farmer. The dust will go through the feathers thoroughly, killing the lice. Do it in the morning and turn the fowls loose.

POULTRY POINTS.

Oats are manifestly an egg-producing food.

Cripples and stunted specimens spoil the appearance of a flock, besides taking up much needed room. Weed them out.—Farm Journal.

It does not pay to keep any except strong, vigorous chicks. Any that appear weak after receiving proper care and food should be disposed of.

If the fowls are confined in yards where the ground is bare of grass, the earth should be turned over frequently, either with a spade or a hand cultivator, if the yard is small, or with a plow, harrow or horse cultivator if the yard is large.

Milk, whole or skim, sweet or sour, is an excellent food for fowls and may be fed by itself or used to mix the mash provided a mash is a part of the ration. Milk, however, will not take the place of water as a drink and the latter must be furnished also.

Above we print the program for the Pomona Grange meeting to be held at the Pine Lake Grange, Boyne City, Saturday 13.

In the whole chain of grange organization, the Pomona forms the most important link. The bringing together of patrons from all sections of a county, quarterly, or oftener, in a county meeting is the broadening out of the social features so they extend over the whole county instead of locally. In the Pomona can the business features be put upon a strong basis, means more for that part of the order.

The legislative features can be brought up, and plans outlined, so instead of seventeen or eighteen different organizations working for needed legislation, in Charlevoix county, by the plans made at these meetings they can all work as a unit, and if they hold to the conservativism which has made the grange a power, success is sure to come.

The midwinter meeting is probably the most important one of the year. At that time the plans for the year's campaign are laid and the year's work commences.

Not the least of the features of a Pomona meeting is the conferring of the fifth degree. Having taken all the degrees, from the juvenile to the seventh, I can truthfully say that I regard the degree of Pomona as the best of all, and no patron should go home from the Boyne City meeting until they have received the degree of Pomona.

FIRE AT EAST JORDAN

Hot Blaze in Our Sister Town Last Wednesday.

The building owned by J. H. Lanway and occupied by Fred Snellen and family as a residence, was burned to the ground Wednesday forenoon, the fire originating from a defective stove-pipe. The household goods of Mr. Snellen were saved, and the loss to Mr. Lanway is approximately $1,000, there being no insurance.

The necessity for some sort of fire protection on the west side was never more apparent than at this fire. Had the wind been stronger it would have given our firemen the tussel of their lives to save the E. B. Clark Seed Co's warehouse from destruction and, as it was, cinders from the burning building were thrown on the warehouse roof. Had the fire department been possessed a hand-pump the framework of the burned building could have been saved.—Charlevoix County Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwards Celebrate Their Silver Wedding Monday.

Monday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwards, of the north side celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

A number of friends drove out in sleigh loads to remind them of the event. After spending a very delightful time, they departed, hoping that they might have the pleasure of celebrating many future anniversaries of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, leaving behind many beautiful silver presents.

PRISON TERM AWAITS THEM

Violators of the Liquor Law Will be Severely Punished

Monday George Bismett, a bartender of East Jordan, was brought to the county jail on a charge of selling liquor to minors. On being brought before the Circuit Court, he plead guilty to the charge. Wednesday Judge Mayne sentenced him to ninety days at the House of Correction. In passing sentence Judge Mayne spoke very decisively on the subject, announcing that the selling of liquor to minors and habitual drunkards must cease in this judicial circuit, and a term in Detroit awaited all convicted of the charge in his court whether they were proprietors or their agents.

The activity of the officials in pressing cases of this kind will meet the approval of all good citizens and we are in hopes the liquor dealers will heed the warning and the illegal sale of liquor will cease.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO.

He Got the Job.

He called at the house and asked if she had any carpets to beat, adding that he had been in the business for over twenty years.

"How much to beat that parlor carpet?" she asked.

"Four shillings."

"Why, that's awful! There was a man here yesterday who offered to do the job for 2 shillings."

"Exactly, madam, but how was he prepared?"

"He had a stick in his hand."

"I presume so. He intended to take the carpet out on a vacant piece of land, didn't he?"

"Yes; our yard is too small, you know."

"Exactly. That is a tapestry brussels carpet. It is badly worn. He would make a great show in getting it out and in here. Out on the piece of land he would give your name to every one who asked who the carpet belonged to. Is that the way to do a job of this sort?

"I take the carpet out through the back yard. I wheel it home. I beat it in a yard surrounded by a high board fence, and while I am returning it, all nicely rolled up and covered with a cloth, if any one asks me what I have I reply that it is a velvet carpet for 224 Blank street. If no one asks any questions I call at the houses on either side of you and ask if they have just ordered a new willow. They watch me and see me come in here."

Little Journals.

The word "petit" in connection with French newspapers always strikes the foreigner. Its origin is in itself significant. The evening edition was called "Petit" and originally was petit, but the French newspaper reader has come more and more to read his paper in the evening, and the petit edition has now become the chief one, whereas the morning one is merely a republican, with a "slop press" column.

Blushing Animals.

Poets have for ages regarded the blush as a thing of beauty in the gentle sex; but, after all, it is only a rush of blood to the face caused by modesty or some other emotion. Animals blush, too, through fear, but the poets say nothing about them. Horses blush in their ears, especially the left one. When a horse is frightened, his left ear will be found to be very much swollen. This is also the case with rabbits. Cows and similar animals blush just above the hoof, while the dog uses his tail for this purpose. When a dog is frightened, his tail hangs limp, as he has lost all control over it. Even insects blush. They do it in their antennae or feelers.

A Poet's Vision.

For years the poet Francis Thompson had been one of the "submerged," selling matches, calling cabs, anything to obtain the pence necessary to buy food. At last he yielded to despair, and having for some days saved up all he could earn, he devoted it to the purchase of a single dose of laudonum sufficient to end his troubles. With this he retired at night to his haunt, the rubbish plot in Covent Garden market. Then by his own narrative the following incident occurred: He had already taken half the fatal draft when he felt a hand upon his arm and, looking up, saw one whom he recognized as Chatterton forbidding him to drink the rest, and at the same instant memory came to him of how, after that poet's suicide, a letter had been delivered at his lodgings which, if he had waited another day, would have brought him the relief needed.

It happened so with Thompson, for after infinite pains the editor of a magazine who had accepted and printed an essay and a poem of his, had could not discover his address, had that very morning traced Thompson to the chemist's shop where the drug was sold, and relief for him was close at hand.—London Academy.

Penalty of Bachelordom.

It is infinitely more expensive to be a bachelor than it is to be a married man nowadays. Bachelors eat in restaurants, dress well and spend a great deal on flowers and bonbons. But the worst penalty of bachelordom is that, while a married man can vent his spleen on wife and children, the unfortunate liver in single blessedness is expected to be always gay, smiling and witty.—Munich Nachrichten.

LOSS WAS VERY HEAVY

Charlevoix Had Disastrous Fire Saturday Night.

Fagan's Warehouse Destroyed—Loss of Goods Stored Was Heavy.

Saturday night about ten o'clock, Fagan's warehouse, on Bridge street, was totally destroyed by fire.

The building was used as a storehouse through winter, and a heavy loss was sustained by different parties who had goods stored. The cause of the fire is unknown, and had it occurred at any other time than Saturday night would undoubtedly caused a far more serious loss than it did, although it was heavy, as, in the absence of any fire alarm, the first knowledge that the firemen had was the fact that some of them were in attendance at the Electric Theater, close by, and were able to get others out and keep the fire confined to the building.

John Fagan's loss on the building will be about $300, insurance $100. Loss on Electric Theater building about $300, fully covered by insurance. Mike Green is the heaviest loser by the fire, his nets valued at $5,000 being a total loss, insured at $2,000. All this insurance was carried by the Burnett Agency.

Charles Novak lost about $1,000 damage to tobacco, by smoke, fully covered by insurance, carried by F. A. Kenyon.

Bert Beaudoin and Herman Meyer each lost buggies with no insurance, Beaudoin's loss being $90 and Meyers' $300.

Mr. Osborne of the Inn, also suffered a slight loss on stored goods.

Since the fire we have heard much criticism of the lack of a fire alarm, or if there is one, the failure of it to act at critical times, and certainly there should be some way to let our citizens know when there is a fire in town.

WERE WINNERS AT SHOW

D. F. Meech and Dr. J. A. Auld Have Prize Poultry.

The poultry show held at Traverse City was a success in every way, birds being on exhibition from all parts of northern Michigan. The judge was James Tucker, one of the best men in the business, and to have a bird take a prize under his scoring is the ambition of every fancier.

The only exhibitors from Charlevoix were D. F. Meech and Dr. J. A. Auld. Mr. Meech exhibited Patridge Wyandottes and nearly cleaned up on everything in that breed, taking first on pen, first and second on cockbird, first and second on cockerell and second and third on hen; birds scoring between 90 and 93¾. Mr. Meech also exhibited Mammoth bronze turkeys. They scoring over 95.

Dr. Auld exhibited Columbian Wyandottes, taking first and third on pullets and second on hen. No where does blood tell better than in poultry, the breeding and judging of which has been brought to an exact science and to have Charlevoix birds come home with the ribbons of victory, should create more interest in the breeding of high class poultry.

D. F. Meech won the following special prizes at the show:

Highest scoring cock, jack knife.

Highest scoring Wyandotte, stand.

Highest scoring turkey, set horse shoes.

Highest scoring pen, outside of city, fur gloves.

LOST PART OF HAND

Roy Blair, of East Jordan, Did Wednesday of Last Week.

While operating a re-saw at Mill A Wednesday morning, Ruy Blair accidently caught his glove between the rolls and the board which he was putting through. Before he could realize his predicament his entire left arm was pulled in between the rolls, and the saw had practically severed the thumb, index and middle fingers and that part of the palm. The arm was severely lacerated and is now badly swollen. He was pulled over the belting and had he not been able to kick the controlling lever the accident would have been much worse.

Dr. H. W. Dicken was summoned, the injured man taken to his home on North Main Street and made as comfortable as possible. The bones in the hand were badly splintered.—Charlevoix County Herald.

The lecture Friday night, by Dr. Monroe Markley was fully up to the announcements. Dr. Markley proving his right to be designated one of the kings of the lecture platform.

Dr. Markley spoke very highly of the next number on the course, Leland T. Powers, impersonator Monday, February 24. Don't forget the date, which has been changed from the 25, to permit Mr. Powers to make satisfactory railroad connections. Monday, February 25, is the new date.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ACT

VanPelt Writes the Courier in Regard to the Railroads

Taxation the Proper Method of Vast Benefit to All the People.

My Dear COURIER:

The affairs of an organization like the Charlevoix board of commerce, with a membership which ought to include every man, woman and child in the city of Charlevoix, (as well as the township) must necessarily be conducted by the representatives to whom powers are delegated, and every member must put his or her shoulder to the wheel in order to get results.

In the case of this association, such power is placed in the hands of the officers. They necessarily must take the responsibility of acting for the association in such matters as require prompt attention.

Action is in order. The railroad schemes are not dead, but sleeping, and the question now before the house is, "What are we going to do to get the two railroads which are seeking an entrance into our beautiful city?" We want both of them.

It will cost money to get them, and there is no one living in the city of Charlevoix, or the towns through which the roads run, but will be benefited, and everybody ought to be willing to pay a little something in order to improve their own condition. This is wise.

To me, naturally, the answer to this important question, "What are we going to do to get them?" is, "Raise money by taxation."

I hear someone ask, "Will it pay to tax the city twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars payable in annual installments of one thousand dollars?" I say, "Yes," emphatically, and I am interested, as the most of you know, if not more than the average citizen, and I say it is a good business proposition.

I am not thoroughly conversant with the manner and time we should go about it, but would naturally suppose that this would have to be voted upon at our next election. Therefore, I wish to bring this before the citizens of Charlevoix and Antrim counties and give them some facts to think about in order that they may familiarize themselves and decide whether my answer to the question is correct or not.

Write to farmers living in the vicinity of Holland, Mich., or any other point where there has been a sugar factory running for the last dozen years and find out if land hasn't doubled and tripled in value since. If not, I am wrong, but I have taken a good deal of pains to inform myself, and this is the result of my labor along this line, and certainly if I am right, then there is no one but can afford to vote a tax, because if the farmers are benefitted, certainly the city people must necessarily be benefitted also.

Naturally, the building of railroads will be an incentive to the building of wagon roads, and there is no question but the improvement of the highways will generally improve business conditions, and will add to the prosperity of our county.

Everything, no matter what it is, that is accomplished that will facilitate the transportation of the products of the farm will in an equal degree aid the commercial interests, and I venture to say that if you will talk with your directors, you will find a feeling that the influence of the farmers, the merchants the manufacturers, the capitalists, and the laboring man, all combined, should be used in aiding those who have in hand the improvement of the highways and obtaining the railroads.

This is an age of organization and co-operation, and the interest which neglects or refuses to organize for protection and advancement will fall far behind its more enterprising and observant competitors. The country is now in a condition of financial distress which has come at a time when the conditions seemed to assure a continuation of the highest state of prosperity ever known in any country, but the depression cannot last forever, and it is highly important for the interests of the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix and Antrim counties, that we find ways and means for restoring confidence, which never ought to have been lost, as it was all caused by fear, and the truth is, fear raises the very d—l with all of us.

I honestly believe when the final answer to the question is given, that the members of the Charlevoix board of commerce can be relied upon to do their full share in whatever measures may be brought forward for the general good.

TO FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

Plans Formed for a Crusade Against the Dread Disease.

A strong effort is being made to educate the people as to the nature and how to prevent the spread of the terrible disease tuberculosis, which last year caused the death of 2,412 people in this state alone. The plans for the crusade in Michigan are given below, Dr. Armstrong being chairman of the local committee:

1. A state committee of eighty-six members has been appointed for the adequate representation of the state at the International Congress on Tuberculosis, and for the formation of a state anti-tuberculosis association. Dr. C. G. Jennings of Detroit, is chairman, Dr. A. S. Wurthin of Ann Arbor, is secretary, committee contains governor, state officials, presidents of all colleges, presidents of women's clubs, professional men, leading business men, etc.

2. Seventy sub-committies have been formed throughout the towns and cities of the state. Delegates from these will attend a meeting to be held in Detroit Friday, February 21, at three p. m. in the Convention Hall of the Hotel Pontchartrain, for the organization of the state association and to lay plans for the representation of the state at the International Congress.

3. The state association will affiliate with the national association. Through its sub-committees the state association will start a crusade in the way of educational literature, lectures and exhibits, legislation, etc.

The International Congress will be held in Washington, D. C., during September next. Such a meeting of the forces of the civilized world will not occur in this country again for twenty-five years. Forty-six nations will be represented by their greatest men in medicine and will furnish exhibits illustrating their progress in the fight against tuberculosis. In every state of the Union there has been formed a state committee, working on plans for adequate representation at the congress. Suitable exhibits will be made by each state illustrating the prevalence of the disease, economic loss, legislation concerning it, treatment in various state institutions, philanthropic or education agencies photographs, models, charts, bibliographic, medical pathological, veterinarian exhibits, etc. Governor Warner has directed all state departments to aid in the preparation of the Michigan exhibit, and many of these have already begun working to this end.

Was Pleasant Event.

The party given at the Bartlett Friday night was a very pleasant event, as all functions called off at the Bartlett always are. Nearly one-hundred and fifty were in attendance, who spent the evening in dancing, playing games and having a jolly time all around. Dainty refreshments were served.

GOOD QUALITIES TOLD

Home Papers Present Claims of Their Candidates for Congress.

Entries are not Closed—Covell, Alward and Dodds Have Been Formally Announced.

GEORGE G. COVELL

Every one who knows Mr. Covell and his abilities will realize the fact that he is a strong man and the most able man in the northern part of the district who could be elected. His advocacy of the policies of President Roosevelt's administration is a strong element in his favor. Another strong recommendation is that he was the only attorney in the United States to receive a third-term appointment as United States district attorney. This particular fact being in itself an endorsement of the administration, should be a strong element in Mr. Covell's favor during the campaign.—Traverse City Record.

DENNIS E. ALWARD

Mr. Alward is a man who appeals to the rank and file. Candor and sincerity, modesty and inbred gentility, loyalty and friendship are charactistic of the man. He is of the people, and is deeply sensible of the abiding influences that make for the development of human liberty. Sound on the issues of the day, he is a splendid type of American manhood, and as representative at Washington would acquit himself honorably alike to nation, state and district.—Clare Sentinel.

FRANK H. DODDS

Frank H. Dodds is a capable man naturally, one who can accomplish large things easily, and a man of influence among his fellows. Of a broad education and deliberate in judgment, he is in a mental way splendidly equipped for the place.—Central Michigan Times.

WAS WELCOMED HOME

Charlevoix's World's Champion Home For a Few Days.

Business Men Gave Him a Reception at Bank Hall Monday Night.

Allie Moore, the Charlevoix boy, who has been smashing all records for roller skating, wherever he has appeared, arrived home Monday night for a few days' visit with relatives. He expects to leave the first of the week on a tour of the northwest.

The business men of Charlevoix planned a reception in his honor at the bank hall Monday night. The band was at the station to greet him and he was escorted to the hall, which was filled with his friends and admirers, who were all anxious to grasp the hand of one, who, notwithstanding the fame he has won, never forgets to announce to all that he is a resident and product of "Charlevoix-the-Beautiful."

CHANGES THAT WERE MADE.

Constitutional Convention Probably Completes Its Work.

Many Changes Were Made—None of Them Radical Ones.

The constitutional convention has nearly completed its work, an adjournment having been taken to February 18 to allow the committee on arrangement and phraseology to put the new constitution in shape, but probably no changes will be made.

CORRESPONDENCE

Central Lake News.

The grip is here.

Saturday evening the mercury stood nineteen degrees below zero here.

Quarterly conference was held Monday forenoon at the M. E. church.

Katy Rhodes and Mr. Thompson, of this place, were united in marriage at Bellaire one day last week. They will reside on the east side.

Geo. Reed came home sick from White camp, but was so far recovered as to be able to return by way of E. J. & S. R. R. last Saturday.

Gilbert Morrow visited in town a short time last Saturday. He has been drawing lumber from Frank Williams to Essex for George Willson.

John Williams, of this place, has sold his house and lot north of the canning factory to Mrs. Lize Hastings. Mr. Williams and family will vacate in a few weeks, when they will probably return to their home at Rockery, fifteen miles east of here.

During our recent heavy storm the Morrow hill north of town was drifted into the depth of about five feet. Commissioner Smith with men and shovels opened up the road and McLain, the R. F. D. man, was able to go his route again Saturday. Nearly all the R. F. D. men here have sold their horses and are hiring teams of the livery. They consider it cheaper, owing to the high price of feed than furnishing their own team.

We stand corrected in regard to the prohibition clause by the concon the editor having had later news than we. What under the sun the delegates to the convention are doing is certainly a puzzle. As we understand it they aren't now even drawing their pay. One thing they have left alone is the primary school fund. The men good and true, seem to be greatly in the minority. As to prohibiting the sale of liquor in Michigan, we do not see why it cannot be done here as well as in the southern states. A petition to the con-con from 35,000 voters of the state ought to have some effect on the work of the convention.

Candidates for president of the United States seem to be good and plenty this year. It looks to us though, as though the candidates of the two great parties were decided on long ago, Taft for republican, Bryan for democrat and that it would be a miraculous thing indeed if they were not nominated. Taft the supposed champion of the common people will be boosted into the nomination by Roosevelt and his adherents, and then elected. Bryan, the champion of the common people, will be nominated and again defeated at the election. Taft will try to please both the people and corporations until elected, then his tactics will change in favor of standard oil and predatory wealth. Roosevelt is getting in some pretty good licks at the present time. McKinley did on the last end of his administration, too, but when Roosevelt was nominated he talked a good deal of full dinner pails and good trusts. Now he laughs out of the other corner of his mouth and deplores the condition of the laboring man and thunders at the Wall street gambler and the standard oil trust. He has done a lot of thundering, but what has he accomplished? When is he going to collect his little bill of $29,000,000 from Rockefeller? When will the railroad rebate fellows be brought to time? What is the matter with the dinner pails of the thousands of workmen unemployed? Now is the time to make good. It is about as empty an affair as the state treasury under republican rule. On what sound basis it was claimed to be when Warner made his run. Now what kind of showing does Warner and Glazier make? Where is your primary reform that the republicans were going to give us? The common people will be fooled again, but we are enough of an optimist to believe you can't fool them always.

How to Buy a Couch.

There is not a piece of furniture so difficult to buy as a couch, for only those who know a great deal about furniture can tell you what composes a couch, and one hears that the deception is in a miserable wooden frame filled with a little of everything and covered with material which soon fades, says the Chicago News. Believe it that pantasote outwears genuine leather. It stays nicer, is more easily renewed and is much easier to use for upholstering purposes than almost any other kind of material. You should look on the underside of a couch before buying it and see whether it is well stayed with braces and not merely lined with thin burlap, which sifts shavings and sawdust every time the couch is moved or touched. There is no economy in buying a cheap couch, for it only stands to reason that the covered framework is the refuse wood of a factory.

How to Clean a Sewing Machine.

Sewing is not half as hard as some people find it if the sewing machine is kept in good running order. When the sewing machine works hard and heavily take the needle and shuttle out and give every joint and bearing a generous bath of gasoline. Of course there should not be a lighted lamp or fire of any kind in the room. Turn the wheels briskly for a few moments to enable the gasoline to penetrate every part and to loosen and wash away the old oil and grime; then clean it all away. When all the grime and oil have been removed oil with proper lubricating oil, running the machine for two or three minutes before inserting the needle. Now with a piece of chamois skin wipe away all superfluous oil. It is a pleasure to sew on a machine treated in this manner.

How to Keep Centerpieces.

What to do with one's best and most beautiful centerpiece has long been a trying problem to many housekeepers. Rolls of stiff pasteboard, satin covered at each end and silk covered on all sides, are shown, with a beautiful cover of silk or satin to be tied with narrow ribbons. The centerpiece is smoothly rolled over the stiff cardboard and can thus be kept perfectly clean and free from dust when the cover is tied in place. One that was seen was of pale pink motre exquisitely embroidered in the new ribbon embroidery.

GLADYS' MOTHER WILL WED COUNT

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Is to Become the Bride of Hadik at the Home of Her Daughter.

New York, Feb. 7.—Through close personal friends of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, mother of Countess Szechenyi, it was learned that Mrs. Vanderbilt will in the near future become Countess Hadik. The wedding of the widow will occur at the home of her daughter in Hungary, and, like her daughter, she will make her home abroad.

It has been rumored from time to time that Mrs. Vanderbilt would live abroad to be near her daughter. It also has been rumored that she, too, would wed a title. The identity of the nobleman who will become the bridegroom of a widow with a fortune of several millions and an income of a quarter million dollars for the remainder of her life was not divulged until now.

Count Hadik attended the wedding of Count Szechenyi. In Paris and Berlin he was much in the company of Mrs. Vanderbilt and her daughter when Count Szechenyi was with them.

NIGHT RIDERS BURN AND WHIP

This Time Their Operations Are in the Vicinity of Adams, Tenn.

PAY VISITS TO TWO FARMERS

House of One of Them Riddled with Bullets and Two of the Occupants Shot.

Negro on Another Farm Unmercifully Beaten by the Riders—Twenty Thousand Pounds of Tobacco Destroyed.

Adams, Tenn., Feb. 7.—Night riders, well armed and mounted, visited the farms of Hugh C. Lawrence and Wash T. Vicker, within three miles of this place at midnight, destroyed the barns on both farms, together with 20,000 pounds of tobacco, shot and wounded Lawrence and his son, Bradley Lawrence, and whipped a negro named Mellow unmercifully.

The riders first visited the farm of Lawrence. He and his son were in the barn loading their tobacco on wagons and heard the night riders coming.

Opened Fire on the Riders.

They came out of the barn and started toward the house and when within fifteen or twenty yards of the house they met ten or a dozen of the riders and at once opened fire on them. They returned the fire, wounding Lawrence in the cheek and hand and his son in the leg.

The raiders retreated at the Lawrences' first fire, but rallied with some ten or fifteen reinforcements and renewed the attack, firing seventy or eighty shots through the windows of his house, where he and his son had retreated after emptying their weapons. The Lawrences returned the fire, but no casualties occurred. Mrs. Lawrence, who was in the house, narrowly escaped being struck by the flying bullets.

Horse Wantonly Shot.

The night riders then went to the barn and after shooting a horse placed dynamite under two wagonloads of tobacco and blew them to pieces. The barn was burned together with about 12,000 pounds of tobacco.

The riders then went to the farm of Wash T. Vicker, where they burned his barn and about 8,000 pounds of tobacco. They found a negro named Mellow on this farm and they assaulted and beat him up in an unmerciful manner. Lawrence and Vicker both belong to the Hill Billie class, having never joined the association.

Milbrath, former city treasurer and sanitary commissioner, and for years one of the most respected citizens of Milwaukee, has been sentenced to imprisonment in the state penitentiary for three years by Judge Williams on the charge of embezzling $300 from a client who placed a large sum in his hands for investment.

President Exceeded His Authority.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The treasury department has refused to recognize the appointment of William S. FLEET LEAVES PUNTA ARENAS

Starts Through West Half of Strait of Magellan for the Pacific.

SCENERY IS WILD AND GRAND

Prows of Battleships Will Not Turn Northward Until Cape Pillar Is Passed.

Course Will Then Be Laid Along the Chilean Coast to a Point Off Valparaiso.—Magellan Strait Scenery.

Punta Arenas, Strait of Magellan, Feb. 8.—The American battleships, accompanied by the torpedo boat flotilla, cleared from the harbor at 1 o'clock in the morning on their way through the western half of the strait to the Pacific coast of South America.

From Punta Arenas the course lies southward to Cape Froward, the southernmost point on the mainland of South America. From Cape Froward the strait turns and extends 150 miles in a northwesterly direction. After Cape Pillar has been cleared the battleships' prows will be turned northward and a course will be laid along the Chilean coast to a point off Valparaiso and thence to Callao.

Small Vessels to Leave.

Lieutenant Cone's flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers will part company with the battleships when Smyth channel, thirty miles from the western end of Magellan strait, is reached, and proceed northward through this channel. It will follow an inside route that will keep the little vessels well protected from heavy weather and will shorten their voyage to Talcahuano, their next stopping place, 2,130 knots from Punta Arenas.

Following closely the rocky coast of Chile, the battleships in a week will find themselves off Valparaiso. Here they will run in close to the city and each will fire the national salute of twenty-one guns, after which they will continue their voyage to Callao, Peru.

Wildly Picturesque Route.

That part of Magellan strait through which the fleet is passing is one of the most wildly picturesque waterways in the world, and the American sailors will see scenery that is grand and rugged. Mountains, some of which attain a height of 7,000 feet, border the strait on both sides, the shores are steep and glaciers descend nearly to the sea in some places, and frequently crown the precipices in others.

The currents are powerful and awlft, and the depth of the water is one of its remarkable features, in some places reaching 580 fathoms, or about 3,600 feet. The winds of the strait never are at rest. Pouring through mountain ranges, they are sudden, powerful, uncertain in direction, and usually freighted with squalls of snow or rain.

Gloom Is Ever Present.

The gloom of the place is ever present, accentuating the majesty of its scenery.

When Cape Pillar has been passed the vessels will be virtually out of the strait. The only other land remaining in their path will be the Evangelists, twenty-three miles northwest of Cape Pillar. They consist of four rocky islets and several detached rocks, named thus by the early Spanish navigators. After rounding the Evangelists the ships will have a clear path northward to Valparaiso and Callao.

LISBON MOURNS FOR ROYAL DEAD

Funeral Services Over Remains of King Carlos and Crown Prince.

MANY NATIONS REPRESENTED

Funeral Procession from Palace to Church Is Closely Guarded by Troops.

Streets Thronged with Thousands of Mourning People—All Business of City Suspended—Murder Spot Shunned.

Lisbon, Feb. 8.—The funeral services over the bodies of King Carlos and his son, Luiz, crown prince of Portugal, who were shot to death on the Praca do Commercio in this city was held in the church of San Vincente. The ceremonies were simple but impressive, and the final act in the bloody tragedy of Feb. 1 was carried to a close without untoward incident.

The line of the funeral procession from the royal chapel in the palace to the church was guarded by troops, several additional regiments having been brought into the city for the purpose. All the governments of Europe and America were represented by special missions.

Streets Thronged with People.

The streets were thronged with people. They poured in from the country, from towns of the provinces and from nearby cities, some by train, some by carriage or by cart and many on foot. In the crowd were large numbers of simple peasants and tradesmen from the provinces, who knew or cared nothing for political strife, but wished only to mourn the dead leaders.

Bits of crepe fluttered from the arms of many persons in the city, yet in spite of these general signs of mourning the crowded streets suggested to some observers a general fete day which the talking throngs were all bent on observing; but to others the presence of large bodies of infantrymen and cavalrymen at various points of prominence had a sinister significance—a suggestion of the tragic events that had come and of those that might fall on the nation in the near future, but which, if possible, were to be forestalled.

Murder Spot Is Shunned.

The route of march between the palace and the church was densely lined by the mourning people. One point, however, was carefully avoided by the superstitious Portuguese; this was the spot on the Praca do Commercio where the cold blooded murders were committed. Had it not been for the presence of a cavalry picket this part of the Praca would have been absolutely deserted.

All the business houses and shops of Lisbon were closed, and the ministerial offices situated in the Praca do Commercio were closed as a measure of precaution. Furthermore, all the windows of these buildings were carefully shuttered.

King Manuel Not In Procession.

Yielding to earnest solicitations, King Manuel did not take part in the procession. He and his mother, Queen Amelia, and the mother of the late king, Queen Maria Pia, were present at the services in the mortuary chapel and followed the coffins to the door of the chapel, whence they returned to the palace. During the morning King Manuel received the missions sent to Lisbon by the sovereigns and chiefs of state of foreign countries. Neither queen was present at this function.

The funeral cortege arrived at the church of San Vincente at 2 o'clock. It traversed the scene of the tragedy in the Praca do Commercio in absolute quiet.

Last Look at the Dead.

While the cortege was being organized the members of the royal family took their last view of their dead at the palace. Prayers were said in the royal chapel by the priests, and then the two coffins were carried out, the king, the two queens and the Duke of Oporto marching behind. Manuel was clad in the uniform of a midshipman. The two queens, who were robed in the mourning garb of English widows, their black cloaks covered by a long veil, carried, as did the king, tall lighted candles. They left the coffins at the portals of the palace.

Requiem Mass at London.

London, Feb. 8.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family were present at a requiem mass in the Catholic church of St. James, in Spanish place, for the late king and crown prince of Portugal. The church, which was draped with crepe, was crowded with members of the diplomatic corps, cabinet ministers, high naval and military officers and other distinguished persons. First Secretary John R. Carter represented the American embassy. The demand for seats was so great that only those with special claims could be accommodated in the church.

Hold Services in United States.

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 8.—Simultaneously with the funeral service at Lisbon over the bodies of King Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz of Portugal, a solemn high mass of requiem was sung at St. John the Baptist church, the leading Portuguese Catholic church in New Bedford. During the service, a catafalque surrounded by lighted tapers occupied a space within the sanctuary rail.

MACLEAN IS WEAK FROM CAPTIVITY

Said Held for Ransom by Raisuli Announces He Will Rejoin Sultan of Morocco.

Tangier, Feb. 8.—Said Sir Harry MacLean, who has been held in bondage for the last seven months by the bandit, Raisuli, has been officially turned over to the British charge d'affaires here in accordance with the agreement between Raisuli and the British government under which Raisuli is to receive $100,000 as a ransom and a guaranty of protection for himself and family. MacLean is in good health, but he seems to be weaker and older than before his capture. He says he will rejoin Abd-El-Aziz at Rabat.

When Raisuli arrived outside the walls at Tangier with MacLean he sent in a demand for permission to enter the city accompanied by 500 of his soldiers. Sid Mohammed Gabbas, the Moroccan foreign minister, flatly refused to allow him to do so, and Raisuli, as the result of inducements by the British charge d'affaires, came in with MacLean and three domestics.

When MacLean had been officially turned over to the British authorities Gabbas released the imprisoned Raisulites, and Raisuli then departed undisturbed and almost unnoticed.

JURYMAN TIRES OF LAWYER'S TACTICS

Makes a Kick to the Judge in Court and Afterwards Decides Against the Attorney.

Macon, Mo., Feb. 8.—During the cross-examination of a witness in a state case here Juror W. W. Aldoman arose and asked a question which created a sensation.

"What I want to know, your honor," said the juror, "is, if we have to sit here and listen to the attorney examine the witness about something that has nothing in the world to do with this case. My time is worth something to me and if the law can force me to sit here and be bored this way, I want to know it."

Judge Holman, who was trying the case, remarked that he did not make the law, and that as long as he had to suffer that way every day the court was in session, the juror ought to live through one day of it. The jury found against the attorney who Aldoman said "bored the life out of him."

City Officials Arrested.

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 8.—The investigation of certain departments of the city of Lowell by the grand jury led to the arrest of William P. Doherty, chairman of the board of health; Isaac E. Wotten, chairman of the water board; and Charles P. Lynch, an employe of the water department. Doherty is charged with bribery and political coercion, and Wotten and Lynch with bribery. It is expected that the arrests will lead to a sweeping investigation of all city departments.

ONE NIGHT ON THE ICE

Perilous Plight of a Young Fisherman Who Was Given Up for Lost.

OVERCOMES GREAT OBSTACLES

Alive After a Hazardous Journey—Patient Jumps to Death—Fire in a Sanatorium.

Petoskey, Mich., Feb. 8.—Raymond Mathot, a nineteen-year-old fisherman, of St. Ignace, Mich., has reached here chilled and thoroughly fatigued, but not seriously the worse for having been lost on the ice on Lake Michigan for a day and a night, part of which time he was marooned on a floating ice field. Wednesday's storm wrecked the young fisherman's shanty on the Strait of Mackinac near his home, where he was fishing through a hole in the ice, and the blinding snow prevented him from finding his way home.

Made His Way to Land.

He made his way to land on the lower peninsula Thursday morning, and obtaining food and rest at a farm house, and spending that night at a deserted cabin, fought his way through the snow drifts to Petoskey, reaching here in good condition. His relatives had given him up for dead until he sent a telegram from here to reassure them. Two St. Ignace school boys named Laut, who were thought to have perished on the ice, have reached their homes. They had been caught in a snow drift over night.

Fell Four Floors to Death.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 8. — C. E. Haddox, ex-warden of the West Virginia penitentiary, is dead here as the result of a fall from the fourth floor of a local sanatorium. AFFECTS THE WHOLE TOWN

Failure of Ross Bros. Is Severely Felt in the Town the Firm Practically Founded.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 8.—The failure of Ross Bros., the Beaverton lumbermen, affects the entire village, which practically was founded and built up by the lumbering firm. Louis Hunnelocki, merchandise store, in Beaverton, did a large business. He indorsed $11,000 in notes for William Ross, who is missing. Ross failed to pay them, and in consequence Hunnelocki did not have the cash, and was forced to give a chattel mortgage on his store, which contains about $6,000 worth of goods.

Referee in Bankruptcy Lee E. Joslyn has concluded a hearing at Beaverton, where he investigated operations of William Ross, who was handling the business alone, his brother and business partner, Ronald Ross, being in the west. It transpired that shortly before the failure, which involves about $375,000, all the available pine lumber in the yards was collected, placed on a train, and dispatched in the night.

Neighborhood Notes

In replacing the bridge over the Jordan river, that was carried out and up stream by the backwater, when the Electric Light Co.'s Deer Creek dam went out some weeks ago, the plan of the bridge at Elk Rapids will be followed. Instead the truss bridge, good solid abutments will be put in and on these laid for stringers two strong steel beams. These are securely tied and a concrete floor put in, on which is made a gravel roadway that will last for years without repairs.—East Jordan Enterprise.

Robert D. Grahnm, president of the state board of agriculture, has received a letter from J. Fred Baker, professor of forestry at the state agricultural college, giving the results of the first test in wood preservation made at the school. A basswood fence post weighed twenty-nine pounds before treatment and sixty-one pounds after being dipped in a hot creosote preparation for eight hours, showing an absorption of thirty-two pounds of the liquid. The basswood post, set in the ground according to usual farm methods, after being treated in this manner is estimated to last 30 to 40 years. The college has a dipping plant and is treating free of charge thousands of posts shipped by farmers, the idea being to demonstrate that willow, basswood and the quick growing timber in swales and swamps may be so fixed by the treatment as to have the lasting qualities of locust and cedar.—Grand Rapids Herald.

Charles Swatosh found a pearl in an oyster the other evening that is certainly the largest one we have ever seen. It is nearly as large round as a marble and perfectly round. Mr. Swatosh took it to a jeweler in Traverse City Tuesday and after examination, said that it had the appearance of being valuable, and that after polishing off the outer surface, if it showed up pure white, it would have a value of not less than $800. We hope this may be true and there is no reason why lightning should not strike around here as well as anywhere.—Northport Leader.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

OUR Central Lake correspondent, although he says he is an optimist, seems to be more of a pessimist.

As far as the work of the con.-con. is concerned, examination of the changes which they have made in the present constitution shows that they have done something, and if they did not adopt a prohibitory clause, the question of whether a county will go under local option is up to the people, if they so desire, in every county in this state, and will be voted upon in April in fourteen counties. He says that Taft and Bryan will be the nominees of the two great parties for president, and Taft will be elected, and in that we agree; but he goes further and says Taft is the supposed champion of the common people, but after election will change and be in favor of Standard Oil and predatory wealth.

On what grounds he bases that statement we don't know. Secretary Taft has been tried in many positions, and so far as we are able to find out, in none of them has his sincerity been doubted, even by his opponents, and we fully believe that if he is elected president the policies of Roosevelt, which are the policies of the people, will be carried out.

He admits that Roosevelt is getting in some pretty good licks at the present time; but complains that it is just thunder, and nothing has been accomplished; asks "when the line against Standard Oil will be collected?" We don't know and we don't care. The arousing of the people to the fact that in their hands lies the correcting of the abuses which have grown under the trusts, until no candidate dare go before the people as their defender, knowing full well that if he does party lines will be obliterated, and that candidate defeated. The question before the American people today is the control of the great corporations, a question which can't be decided in a year or two, but which means a fight, a fight which Theodore Roosevelt has pushed to the front and made synonomous with his name, and which the American people believe will be carried to a successful conclusion by William H. Taft, who has proved to them that he is a man who is equal to every emergency, and has never failed them yet.

As to primary reform, that is in a state of trial. If the people desire, they can have primaries on everything but a few state officers, and the coming fall primary will be the first time that it will be given a state-wide trial, when there is a contest for governor.

The trouble with our correspondent is, he wants everything in a hurry.

A PUBLIC speaker at a farmers' meeting recently said: "If I had my way I would organize a farmers' trust and compel the people of the town to beg for the products of the farm and then dole it out to them little by little; yea, I would go further and make a town man get down on his knees and beg for a raw turnip and then I would compel him to pay 75 cents for one turnip before he got it."

The man who uttered these sentiments is either mentally off his equilibrium or an ignoramus. Such statements discredit the good sense of the average farmer and we are sure they do not reflect the sentiments of one in a hundred farmers.

The people of the town are as a rule much more at the mercy of the farmers than the latter are of the people in the town.

The farmers in the United States are far and away better off than are the town dwellers. The farmer has fewer debts than the townsman, he has his own home to a far greater extent than the city man. A larger portion of the people in the town do not own the houses they occupy. They pay rent and work at a daily, weekly or monthly wage rate.

The farmer has for a number of years past received high prices for produce. In everything the farmer has to sell even at this time brings exceptionally high prices. The farmer is better off in every particular than eighty per cent of the city men.

The farmer is never out of a job. The increase in the price of farm produce is much greater than the wages of the majority of town residents. Just now while the farmer is taking his ease with his morning mail delivery, his telephone, his newspaper, with no mortgage blankets on his farm, with no rent to pay, and enough to eat, the city man may be out of work and hunting for something to do to meet the rent when due and to feed his family.

UNITED STATES TAKES A HAND

Will Aid the State in Stopping Illegal Fishing in Lake Michigan.

A very recent decision, that is of interest to Charlevoix people, owing to the fact that the events transpired here, was handed down at Grand Haven by United States steamboat inspectors, Pardee and Eckliff.

Last fall Game Warden Pierce got a hunch that a number of boatmen were engaged or assisting in illegal fishing in Michigan waters and set out to locate and punish the perpetrators, and the result was they discovered a tug, the Sea Gull, of Charlevoix, in the act of lifting its nets. Chase was given and lasted over ten miles, and the Sea Gull was overhauled and surrendered. The Sea Gull and crew was brought to Petoskey, where the Captain, Warren Harris, was arraigned before Justice Krieger, a heavy fine assessed, and the nets found on the tug confiscated. The nets and other accessories, amounting to about $1,000 were destroyed. The state officials having done all in their power, the attention of the government inspectors was called to the event, with the result that Captain Harris was severely reprimanded, and given to understand that the license of himself and engineer would be revoked upon the next outbreak. Other boat masters have been warned, and with the government behind the state officials it is hoped that this form of popular anarchy will soon be killed.

FEW HERE KNOW THIS

Says Home-Made Treatment Cures Rheumatism.

Shake the Ingredients Well in the Bottle and Take a Teaspoonful Dose After Meals.

When an eminent authority announced in the Scranton (Pa.) Times that he had found a new way to treat that dread American disease Rheumatism, with just common, every-day drugs found in any drug store, the physicians were slow indeed to attach much importance to his claims. Today nearly every newspaper in the country, even the metropolitan dailies, is announcing it and the splendid results achieved. It is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacy Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy at little cost.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter which, if not eradicated either in the urine or through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and gives almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and backache. He also warns people in a leading New York paper against the indiscriminate use of many patent medicines.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00. THEATRICAL

The next number of the lecture course will occur Monday evening, February 24. Leland Powers, the greatest impersonator in the world, will fill that number. He will render David Garrick. Notice the following from the president of the Bowdoin College: Brunswick, Me.; "Mr. Powers' rendering of "David Copperfield" was most enthusiastically received by the faculty and students of Bowdoin College. His impersonation of character, without the accessories of scenery and and cast, is the quintessence of art. Incidentally, through careful selection of sentiments and situations to be represented, Mr. Powers leaves behind valuable moral impressions which can never be obliterated."—Wm. Dewitt Hyde.

The Bridge Electric Theater expects to put on special vaudeville attractions Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Watch for further announcements.

How to Preserve Parsley.

The table can always be inviting and dainty if the dishes are garnished with a sprig of green. Use freshly gathered parsley, wash it free from grit and dust, put it into boiling water slightly salted and well skimmed; then let it boil two or three minutes. Take it out and let it drain, and put it before the fire, when it should be dried as quickly as possible. Store it away in a dry place in bottles and when wanted for use pour over a little warm water and let it stand five minutes. It will be like fresh parsley.

How to Obtain Gloss on Pie Crust.

Even when the oven is quite right and the pastry has been made moderately rich a woman will feel dissatisfied at the appearance of a pie because she misses the rich brown gloss that she has seen on pastry made by practical cooks. To obtain this gloss she needs a wrinkle, says the Boston Post. It is produced by egg wash. An egg is beaten up with a little sugar, and a small quantity of milk is added. With this wash the pie is brushed over after the pastry has been finished.

Surprise Party

Tuesday night, February 11, a large number of friends and relatives of Stephen H. Smith gathered at his home on Antrim street to remind him of his fifty-ninth birthday. Games were played, music was listened too, and a general good time was enjoyed by all. Delightful refreshments were served.

Normal News.

The class made some reed baskets last week in their manual training.

Bessie Cramer did some substitute work last Wednesday afternoon and Thursday.

Leah Persons and Grace Hamlin began teaching the music of the second grade in the training room Tuesday morning.

Grace Meggison and Anna Metcalf began their practice teaching Monday morning. They are teaching the second grade arithmetic.

Mayme Scroggie and Grace Hamlin, who generally go home on Friday nights, stayed in town to attend the lecture given by Monroe Markley February 7.

J. H. Milford, County School Commissioner, visited us February 5. He came to Charlevoix for the purpose of speaking at the parents' meeting which was to be held that evening, and as the weather was so bad the meeting was postponed.

Miss Himes and Miss Reed went to Lansing last Thursday morning to attend the county normal teachers' meeting held there. Mayme Scroggie and Alma Francis had charge of the training room, and different members of the class took charge of the classes in the normal room while Miss Himes was gone.

The president of the Woman's Exchange will have a sale of second hand clothing and a few articles of furniture, consisting of a good sewing machine, clothes wringer, some chairs and several articles which are needed in the home, at the home of Mrs. Eagleton, on Mason street, beginning February 15 and continuing until February 22.

Settlement In Full.

By LULU JOHNSTON.

Copyrighted, 1907, by N. E. Daley.

Dick Staley, perched on a furniture crate, looked disconsolately at Billy Blaloe, who was regarding the wall paper and trying hard not to laugh. In spite of Blaine's efforts the twitching corners of his mouth curved, and as he met Staley's eye he exploded in a roar of laughter which served only to deepen Staley's gloom.

"Laugh, confound you!" growled Staley. "It's funny to you. It's not so funny to me. I've got to get this place settled in five days, and upon my soul I don't know what to do first!"

"The first step is easy," chuckled Blaine. "Get a man in to scrape the walls. The paper is the worst I ever saw."

"It looked all right in the book," said Staley defensively. "It was the prettiest thing in the whole book of samples."

"It may be all right in a sample," admitted Blaine, with another glance at the flowered monstrosity, "but there is only one square yard of the sample. It looks different, Dick, when you have a roomful of it."

"I know it," admitted Staley, "but that doesn't help matters. It only serves to make them worse. I wanted to surprise the matter by bringing her to her own home instead of taking her to a hotel. She hates to give up her old home, and I wanted to make the change as easy as possible."

The smile died from Blaine's face at the allusion to Mrs. Staley. He was Dick's chum, and he knew how tenderly Dick loved the gentle faced woman who within the month had lost both husband and daughter. Now she was coming to live with Dick, and for weeks he had planned to take an apartment that she might not feel too keenly the loss of the home that had been hers since marriage.

"I'll tell you what we'll do, Dick," suggested Blaine. "Let's go downtown for some lunch. I'll phone Nell for one of those professional fixers for you. She knows a crackerjack, a girl who used to move in good society and whose father lost his money. She knows what's what and how to do it, and Nell will get her to do it for you."

Dick patted his chum on the back, while his eyes glistened. Nell Blaine was the most accomplished matron of his acquaintance. She would extricate him from his trouble. Together they left the apartment, and while Staley ordered lunch Billy Blaine hung over the telephone in the restaurant.

"COMPLETE?" SHE ASKED, NOT QUITE CATCHING HIS MEANING.

"She'll bring her over tonight at 8," reported Billy as he took his seat. "Eat with a good appetite and consider yourself settled already."

Billy's words restored confidence, and when Dick Staley met Marion Wadleigh that evening his last doubt vanished. The girl did not laugh at his blunders nor even at the wall paper. She listened with sympathy and took from her chatelaine the tablets on which to make notes of what she wanted. With increasing admiration Staley followed her through the various rooms, noting the quick, businesslike way in which she condoned his errors and approved his successes.

"I can do it over in four days," she said briskly when she had shut up her memorandum book and returned to the parlor where Nell Blaine, Billy's sister-in-law, still sat in rapt admiration of the garish wall paper. "Suppose, Mr. Staley, that you drop in here Friday afternoon? Then you can suggest any last changes you wish made, and the place will be ready for your mother Saturday evening. Shall I get you a servant also?"

"Can you?" Staley had heard of the servant problem, and he had worried greatly. This businesslike girl offered even to take that trouble off his hands. He was rapidly coming to regard Marion Wadleigh as a tailor made angel.

He dropped in the next morning on his way to the office and found a paper hanging crew already installed, removing the paper that had proved so disappointing. Marion was there in a gingham apron, even more becoming than the cloth costume of the night before, and Dick's heart beat faster in answer to her greeting.

There was something "homey" in her appearance that appealed strongly to the man who for years had enjoyed but an occasional glimpse of home in vacation time. The soft dark hair was hidden by a cap and the piquant face was flushed with exertion, but the heightened color only added to her beauty, and the cap did not shadow the tender light in the brown eyes.

Dick went to his office with his head in a whirl. Ever since he had come to the city he had sunk himself in work. Fortune had come his way rapidly, and up to the present he had found work all sufficient. Now he began to realize that the years had been lonely.

Marion was not at the house when he dropped in the following morning, nor did he see her again until Friday afternoon, when he went to make his final inspection of her work.

Dick gasped as he entered the apartment. In place of the gaudy paper the walls were now covered with quiet tones and the flowered carpets had been exchanged for rugs whose soft tints harmonized with the new paper. Instead of the solid officelike furniture were lighter and more tasteful pieces, and the whole apartment suggested a feminine presence.

Best of all, Marion Wadleigh was there. The print dress had been exchanged for an afternoon costume, and immediately Dick decided that after all a print dress was not the most becoming costume which Marion could wear, though that had been his impression since he had seen her last.

Quietly she moved about the place, giving an account of her expenditures, and Dick followed, hearing only the rich voice, full tones, without caring what she said. At last the tour of the rooms was ended, and she returned to the parlor.

"If you like," she said, "I can buy the material for dinner tomorrow and be here to welcome Mrs. Staley when she arrives. Mrs. Blaine wanted to come over, but she had to leave town last night with her husband."

"I should be delighted if you could arrange to be here tomorrow," said Staley. "I am sure that my mother will wish to add her thanks to mine for the beautiful home you have provided. You will stay to dinner?"

"I only suggested being here to welcome her," said Marion, her face flushed. "You see—in business—it is best to maintain strictly business relations. You don't have to thank me for what I have done. My charges cover all services, you know."

"But money could not pay for pulling me out of a hole and settling me," insisted Dick. "Besides, I don't want to maintain a purely business relationship unless you insist, Miss Wadleigh."

"I don't insist," the girl answered softly. "I have been much interested in your devotion to your mother, and I am sure that I shall be glad to know her better. She must be a dear old lady to deserve such affection."

"I want you to know her very well," explained Dick. "You see you have only partly settled mother. You have provided her with a home, but I want a home of my own, and I want you to furnish it complete."

"Complete?" she asked, not quite catching his meaning.

"Even to a wife," explained Dick. "I don't ask an answer now, but will you consider the proposition?"

"As a business woman I have always considered propositions," she said, with a laugh, but the look in her eyes belied the briskness of her words, and Dick realized that when they should know each other better there was a prospect of being settled "in full," as he termed it some months later when he placed a solitaire on Marion's finger.

ART OF CONVERSATION.

How to Talk In an Entertaining and Correct Manner.

It is strange that we are not all more proficient in the art of conversation when, if we stop to think it over, we realize that it plays so important a part in one's social life. The first point to remember is to try to moderate the voice. A naturally high pitched harsh voice can easily be trained so that eventually it will be soft and musical. Every one appreciates the sweet toned voices of the Englishwomen, and there is no reason why the voices of the American women should not be the same if proper attention is paid to their training, says Elizabeth Biddle in the Philadelphia Press.

We should also try to speak correctly, avoid all slang and provincialism and enunciate all the words as clearly as possible. If one wishes to be really entertaining in conversation she must not only have culture and a ready wit, but she must have sympathy, simplicity and sincerity and, above all, a real interest in her subject.

The following rules are safe ones to follow:

Look people in the face when you talk to them. Talk often, but never long, so as to give others an opportunity of expressing their opinions, and show a courteous respect for another's point of view. In arguments give fair play, and if the discussion continues beyond the limit of good taste let the matter drop.

Sometimes, you know, "silence is golden." This is unquestionably true in regard to gossiping.

"Talk of things, not people," is a safe rule to follow. And if one must talk of people tell of their good qualities, not their faults and failings. Indiscriminate praise is absurd and weakens one's judgment.

If you are easily embarrassed, you should force yourself to talk and become accustomed to the sound of your own voice, but do not feel obliged to talk incessantly. Try to be perfectly natural and at ease and always ready with small courtesies, even with children and servants.

A sympathetic and responsive listener is as much to be desired as one who can talk well.

How to Be Prepared For Guests.

Every housekeeper should have an emergency shelf. On the day when company unexpectedly arrives and you have only a pick up meal ready it is convenient to go to the shelf for a can of potted chicken, olives or sardines, canned beans, etc. Every can should be replaced as soon as possible.

How to Freshen Up Velvet.

To renovate velvet dip a brush in damp sand, rub lightly and the soiled collar or cuff will look like new. It is a cleaning process, too, for the slight moisture removes dust and the harsh action of the sandy friction gives new life to the nap which has been worn down.

COLLECTIVISM AHEAD.

A Religious Journal on the Exposures of Business Immorality.

A prominent New York clergyman prophesies that "the next great revival held in this country will have as its dominant note the question of ethics." One fact in particular has impressed itself on the public mind. There is an insane individualism in American life today. Men act as if the accumulation of property were the only end of existence and as if any means were permissible in realizing that end. In its fundamental aspect the problem is simply one of old fashioned selfishness—that is, the putting of the interests of self before the interests of the common weal.

One of the paradoxes of modern society is bound up in the fact that the collective conscience is so much duller than the private conscience. We do as nations what we would never dream of doing as individuals. A man who could not be induced to kill his neighbor, whatever the provocation, marches out in war time with a clear conscience to kill somebody else's neighbor. A man who is a model of the virtues in his domestic life loses every restraining scruple in his business dealings. Mr. Rockefeller, when questioned recently as to how he reconciled his business transactions and his moral principles, is reported to have made the significant reply: "The Standard Oil company is not a philanthropy. It is a business conducted along the lines that are laid down in the business world as being those of today." In these words he exposed the heart of the whole problem. And just because the standards of the "business world" are held to justify disregard for law and the rights of others it is the imperative duty of the pulpit to indict those standards and to use all its influence to supplant them with other and higher standards.

It may be that an investigation of business conditions will lead to a realization of the fact that the dishonesty of our day is inherited in our competitive system. In that event it will become the duty of the pulpit to accept the new alternative and to turn men's faces toward a co-operative society, which, being itself ethical, will make it possible and practical for each individual to live out his highest ethical ideals in conformity with the whole social order.—Homiletic Review.

Charity.

Once upon a time a man owned a herd of cattle, which were lean even to starvation. He owned also a luxuriant pasture, from which his cattle were excluded by a strong high fence. But the owner, whatever might be said of his wits, was a kind hearted fellow, who occupied himself daily in pulling handfuls of grass from the pasture and shoving them through the fence to the hungry animals outside. Nevertheless the weaker cattle starved entirely. One day a passerby said to him:

"Friend, do you own these cattle?"

"I do."

"And do you own the pasture?"

"Yes."

"Then why don't you let down the bars?"

Said the owner: "I have as yet failed to see that letting down the bars would be a panacea for all the leanness these cattle are heirs to. Instead of broaching faraway theories, do something practical. Jump over the fence and help me to pull grass and feed it to the cattle."

International Peace.

Said Dr. Karl Marx: "In proportion as the exploitation of one individual by another is put an end to the exploitation of one nation by another will also be put an end to. In proportion as the antagonism between classes within the nation vanishes the hostility of one nation to another will come to an end."

Wealth "Distribution."

The total wealth of the country as computed some time in the past year is $107,000,000,000.—"The Concentration of Wealth," by H. L. Call.

And the total number of people living in a state of poverty in this prosperous country is 10,000,000.—"Poverty," by Robert Hunter.

According to August Bebel, every third man in Germany over twenty-five is a Socialist.

The longer capitalism lasts the looser will the family tie become. Look about you and see if it is not so.

The Socialists of France and Spain are making extensive arrangements for public antimilitary demonstrations to be held simultaneously in Paris and Madrid. It will be so arranged that leading French Socialists will address the Spanish meetings in Madrid while Spanish leaders will speak in Paris.

John D. Rockefeller, the much abused, pious old gentleman whose pill enlightens the world and makes the country's wheels go around, has given the University of Chicago a total of $23,824,322. The Chicago university is the best oiled educational institution in the world, yet the same university produces more Socialist students than any other American university. — St. Louis Labor.

Spread of Truth and Justice Will Stop War

By REV. E. S. ROBERTS,
Master of Conville and Caius College and Vice Chancellor University of Cambridge, England.

EDUCATION, in a broader and deeper sense than ever before, is the real problem for the twentieth century. It is not merely the teaching of a few facts or a few languages, it is the education of the classes and the masses at the same time. It must be an education that means development of character, broadening and enlightening at the same time.

True education inevitably abhors all narrow distinctions of any sort. It works toward broader and more universal aims. The truly cultured man is at home all the world over and is interested in the progress of man as man.

The task, then, is one of education, not merely of the people of a single nation, but of all the nations, and not of the nations separately, but of the leading thinkers of these nations together. The mutual interchange of professors and students between the several civilized nations must not be spasmodic and occasional, but systematic and general. And, more than this, it must be an education of character, so that the lines of demarcation between the different countries will be geographic but not intellectual. The boundaries of the mind are above and beyond mountain ranges, rivers, even oceans. These must be overleaped and set aside by the intellectual sympathy of the scholars of all nations, who in their turn will plant the same seed in the minds and hearts of the masses of the peoples. National jealousy will be put aside, the interest of one nation will be recognized as the interest of all, and the basis of perpetual peace will be laid past any power of chicanery to upset.

Personal ambitions and petty desire for national aggrandizement must fall to the ground before the power of general culture and the universal recognition of truth and justice as the only real arbiters between the peoples of the earth. This is the solution of the problem of the twentieth century.

Realities of Wedded Life

By HELEN OLDFIELD.

No human being is perfect, and they who marry expecting perfection inevitably must be disappointed. Somebody has said that "marriage, like government, is a series of compromises." Not only marriage, but life together between any number of human beings, few or many, in a family or in a community, must necessarily be a continual succession of concessions, the sacrifice of individual preferences to the general good. It is a mistake to say that "For true love there is no hardship, no meanness, no shame. Its light is bright and clear enough to eliminate all darkness, its warmth such that it defies cold, its sweetness such that it banishes all bitterness of spirit." Such love as this there may be, but it is as rare as radium, and few there be who find it. Love does not make all things easy: it only makes it possible to do that which is difficult and to do it willingly for the sake of the beloved. Love is of many kinds, and it sometimes happens that sincere affection is supersensitive, exacting rather than all excusing.

There would be by far fewer matrimonial disappointments if those who marry, especially the women, would resolve to see only good in each other and persistently live up to that resolve. It is the part of common sense to make the best of whatever comes to us, the more when it has been of our own choice; and there are not many things, still less people, so bad as to have no best. People usually find that for which they diligently seek, and the point of view usually determines the outlook, be it dark or bright. In this jostling world each man's lot is determined mostly by his own character, its interaction with the characters of those who surround him; and the same is true, in less degree, of women also. Temperament works itself out, and one's own thoughts and deeds make up fate for each one, barring a few accidents which we ascribe to Providence.

The Harmony of Life

By REV. THOMAS EDWARD BARR,
Milwaukee.

In the thought of life as all religious, all spent in the temple of God and in the increasing knowledge of his ways and adjustment to them, there are four things of special note. One is the fact of unity. There is no schism in all the creation of God. Our physical life, in its conditions and unfolding, our industrial potencies and possibilities, our character growth, the marvelous working of nature, everything that is or that occurs in the whole scope of beings as we know it, swings in unity. To the most trivial event we are integrally part of the world, and we suffer only as we get out of harmony with it. The unity of the world is because of coordination, but that is ultimately moral. There is a right in everything. Microbes and sand grains are and operate by law, and when we violate law our free action gives us reason for reproach. The world is put together so that we find this moral opportunity, and evolves higher potencies for us as we progress. Growth is the universal law. But for man growth means experiment, for we learn only by doing, and consequent frequent failure. But the power of growth is only hindered or, perhaps, diverted by this. Recovery is equally a fact of experience. Recovery is possible because all our life is in an atmosphere of love. The conditions about us are provocative of our growth, stimulus and aid to us. Nor ever, in nature or normal society, is there vindictiveness when we cease to do evil and learn to do well. Unity, moral constitution, growth, and love, these four are the facts of universal being on which the natural religious life of man builds.

MARKETING BUTTER.

The Salability Dependent Largely Upon Its Appearance.

Experience has taught me that a package to be attractive must be clean, and the most conservative buyers will often pick a lower grade of goods in a clean, neat package in preference to a good article in an unattractive package, declares a writer in Farm and Home. Buyers invariably pick the best looking product and pay a premium for it.

In packing butter for the retail or grocer's trade, if made in sufficient quantities, I use a good ash tub which has previously been soaked in a strong brine from 16 to 24 hours, with the sides and bottom lined with parchment paper and a cloth circle on the top. After adding the cloth circle, I always sift a thin layer of salt on top of it, as it holds the cloth in place and keeps the air from the butter. The cover should be well fastened on with small strips of tin.

If I were in position to cater to a retail trade or direct to the consumer, I would put up my butter in either one or two-pound prints, wrapping them in parchment paper which bore my own trade mark or design so that the consumer would always know my product as uniform quality and always clean.

One dealer has handled my goods for 12 years and has regular customers who refuse to accept any other. Occasionally during the winter months our market is not sufficient to supply the demand and he has to fill orders from other sources. Just as often as he does, he has complaints. Always put a good article in an attractive package and you will have no trouble in disposing of it, but a poor package means damaged contents, poor sales, dissatisfied customers and a loss to the producer.

Courier Grange Column

The importance of the committees are often overlooked in a subordinate grange, but if all the committees perform the work assigned to them, they constitute the most important part of the organization.

The executive committee is charged to look after the business of the grange during recesses, and thus they become the "Whole Thing," and all their acts are binding on the grange, as a whole, if approved by the Master, who holds a veto power on their acts.

The finance committee should make a report at the end of each quarter and should carefully scrutinize each bill before it is presented to the grange to be acted upon.

The charity committee should be diligent in looking after the sick or any who are in need of assistance, not being afraid to go outside of the ranks of the order, if necessary.

The woman's work committee is probably the most important of all, in addition to the work outlined by their state committee, they have general charge of the grange feasts, and with the assistance of the lady assistant steward, of the decoration of the hall and the lady officer's court. Seldom, if ever, do we find a weak grange where they have an active woman's work committee.

Ironton Grange No. 707.

Ironton Grange, No. 707, met in regular session February 3, with a good attendance and was called to order by Worthy Master Peter Knudson.

The committee on purchasing made their report and the grange decided to send for the things needed most, which amounted to about seven dollars.

Lecturer's hour was taken up by a discussion of saloons, which most of the members were against.

At the meeting January 21, the finance and executive committees were appointed.

DISEASED POULTRY SOLD IN OPEN MARKET.

While visiting a relative in a distant city the family physician made this unusual request: "I understand you are an expert on hen health, and I am come to ask you a favor. I have several very particular patients, and their nurses have found it difficult to secure good squabs and chickens. I have therefore volunteered to purchase them, and I am anxious to have you accompany me to market."

"Well, what do you think of the poultry on display?" asked our friend.

"Fair," we answered, "but it would have been better if some had not died before they were killed."

Our enigmatical reply puzzled the physician for a moment, and then he demanded, "Do you mean to assert that some of this poultry died of disease and was then dressed?"

"That is the exact meaning," we replied.

We hurriedly returned to the booth where the diseased specimens had been detected, and there they hung, slimy and blue, on the hooks, while customers crowded around the stall. The physician quickly turned to the dealer and, pointing to two fowls in question, asked, "Are those fresh killed chickens?"

"Sure," said the marketman; "just fresh this morning."

The doctor purchased them, took the booth number, and we went on. The fowls had both died of diphtheria.

▲ DIPHTHERITIC THROAT.

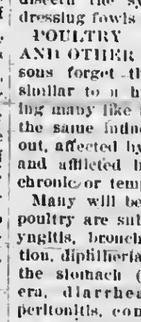
When we pointed to their swollen faces and the putrid white patches in their throats and explained to the surprised physician that this is a common, contagious and deadly disease among grown fowls and that this species of diphtheria is supposed by many to be capable of transmission to human beings, he was certainly astonished.

We remained long enough in that city to see the unscrupulous dealer heavily fined and to receive a request from the board of health to give such information to the public that they might be safeguarded in buying poultry and that they might be able to discern the symptoms of disease in dressing fowls at home.

POULTRY HAVE CONTAGIOUS AND OTHER DISEASES.—Many persons forget that fowls have organs similar to a human being's, performing many like functions, susceptible to the same influences within and without, affected by hereditary weaknesses and afflicted by diseases, contagious, chronic or temporary.

Many will be surprised to hear that poultry are subject to pneumonia, laryngitis, bronchitis, catarrh, consumption, diphtheria, catarrh of the stomach (crop), cholera, diarrhea, enteritis, peritonitis, constipation, congestion of the liver, congestion of the brain, vertigo, epilepsy, apoplexy, heart failure, fatty degeneration of the heart, paralysis, rheumatism, rickets, gout, jaundice, blood poison, leprosy, dropsy, chicken pox, gapeworms, tapeworms, roundworms, sucklag worms, corns and others too numerous to mention. Turkeys are the only fowls we have seen with appendicitis. The operation was a failure.

The symptoms of these diseases are all classified and remedies prescribed, and great poultry remedy houses are now manufacturing immense quantities of chicken medicine both in homeopathic and allopathic form. In 1898 the state of Pennsylvania issued a magnificent volume of 750 pages on "The Diseases and Enemies of Poultry," and 15,000 volumes were distributed through the state. This handsome book was considered a simple piece of political graft and is derisively referred to as "Birdy Warren's Bird Book." We wish to say that it is the most comprehensive, clear and helpful treatise yet printed on the subject, and the owner of a copy may be congratulated.



"TAPEWORM."

The state has further provided that where the disease of the fowl cannot be ascertained the dead body, with a list of symptoms, may be expressed to the veterinary department of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, for a correct diagnosis. Do not be surprised to see the different states establish hospitals for sick and wounded poultry in the near future.

Diphtheria, consumption and cholera are considered the special germ diseases among fowls. The first two enumerated and chicken pox show many of the symptoms displayed by human beings and are supposed to attack those who come in contact with the affected fowls. The feverish, putrid breath, white patches in the throat and extreme weakness of fowl diphtheria are similar to the dread disease that attacks human beings.

In fowl tuberculosis there is no cough nor hemorrhages. Little cheesy lumps or swellings called tubercle appear about the joints and in the liver, spleen and lungs. The head and comb become pale, and the bird wastes away to a handful of feathers, skin and bone. Parrots brought to the University of Pennsylvania and diagnosed have shown the identical symptoms of the great white plague that destroys so many human beings every year. The best cure for diphtheria and "going light" is the hatchet.

FAVUS.

Chicken pox first appears in a yellow topped wart on a fowl's eyelid and spreads in yellow topped warts over the head comb and wattles. When the yellow top is removed a spongy red surface is beneath. Kill the fowl or separate it from the rest. Give it a dose of salts, teaspoonful, and touch the sores with carbolic acid and iodine. Do not confuse chicken pox with favus.

Favus is confined to the head, but favus will cover the whole fowl.

DESCRIPTION OF FOWL THAT DIED OF DIARRHEA.—Diarrhea is a very common complaint with the fowl kingdom, and for data for this article we allowed one to pass quietly off to the other chicken land. If a diseased dressed chicken is sold to you at market, it is apt to be one of this class or a diphtheritic case. The day after death we held a postmortem and at the same time dissected a healthy chicken for comparison and now give you a summary of results:

THE SICKROOM.

How to Disinfect It Thoroughly After Contagious Diseases.

Thorough disinfection after contagious diseases means the burning of such things as carpets, mattresses, comforts, blankets and curtains unless it is possible to subject them to the action of steam. With the room stripped of all draperies, etc., wash all the furniture with bichloride of mercury in solution.

To make the solution pour a gallon of boiling rainwater upon four ounces of salt, stir it till dissolved, let cool and dilute it one-half. After washing with it thoroughly, rinse in tepid water and rub dry. When the things are outside wash the paint and walls with the same solution; also put plenty of it in the water for washing windows. If there is a closet wash it all over inside and afterward till any cracks with soft putty. Wash the floor, slopping it freely with the bichloride first, as danger lurks in every grain of dust, says the Deliueator.

After the washing—not sooner—open windows from the top and let stand a few minutes. Shut them tight, and paste paper over the cracks about them; also over any cracks in the wall and a double sheet over the fireplace. Tack a strip of tin around the inner edge of the door, so that when the door shuts the tin will close the crack. Next put a big iron pan in the middle of the floor, set an iron skillet in the middle of it, and put into the skillet a pound of flowers of sulphur. Pour an ounce of alcohol on the sulphur; stick in a short fuse, light it and go outside, shutting the door. In five minutes look inside to make sure the sulphur is well afire. It will fill the room with thick, stifling smoke. It will also bleach out and destroy any colors on walls or ceilings.

Leave the room shut for twenty-four hours, then open and air well. Remember that bichloride of mercury is deadly poison.

How to Freshen Up Furs.

Owners of furs may have received them from the summer storage and found them dead looking and lusterless, a condition in which even handsome furs are not attractive. This is usually due to the fact, says the Technical World Magazine, that the fur is simply soiled, and it may be cleaned and brightened to a remarkable extent by a simple method without the slightest danger of injury to the article. This is the method employed by the Russians, who are certainly the most extensive users of and probably the best informed on the subject of furs of any nation. Rye bran should be heated in an iron or earthenware vessel, being stirred all the while until it has become as hot as is bearable to the hand. The bran should then be poured upon the fur in liberal quantities and thoroughly rubbed in. The fur should then be brushed with a clean brush or slicker and pounded until all the particles of bran have been removed. The result of this treatment will be that all dark furs have regained their freshness and luster and that white furs appear like new.

How to Grow Palms Successfully.

There is no secret or knack about successfully growing a palm. Only a knowledge of its habits and requirements is needed, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Good drainage must be provided, the proper kind of soil and a comprehension as to how to water the plant properly. When the leaves of a palm turn brown at the tip, first of all examine the soil in which it is growing. In the majority of cases it will be found that it is wet and clogged. Take immediate steps to repot the plant, provide plenty of good drainage and a sandy and rather heavy soil. Water it well, then place the plant in a good strong light out of the rays of the sun. Give it very little water after the first drenching until the plant shows signs of growth. The chief secret of success with palms is to keep them out of the direct sunlight, but in a strong light, and to water them only when the soil is dry on the surface. Once every fortnight the palm should be taken to the bathroom and be given a thorough dreaching of the foliage.

How to Replace Kettle Knobs.

Replace the knobs of cooking utensils in this way: Put a screw through from the inside, letting it come up close and tight, threading a cork, according to the size of the screw, on the outside. The screw will not loosen, and the cork will not get hot; therefore they are better than the original wooden knobs.

Medicine That Is Medicine.

"I have suffered a good deal with malaria and stomach complaints, but I have now found a remedy that keeps me well, and that remedy is Electric Bitters; a medicine that is medicine for stomach and liver troubles, and for run down conditions," says W. C. Kiestler, of Halliday, Ark. Electric Bitters purify and enrich the blood, tone up the nerves, and impart vigor and energy to the weak. Your money will be refunded if it fails to help you. 50c at F. G. Hines & Co.'s drug store.

DAIRY INTERESTS OF CHARLEVOIX

Conversatinn Between Two Farmers Reported for the Courier.

A PROFITABLE SOURCE OF REVENUE

The Farmer Who Engages in the Production of Milk is a Winner.

One Who Tells by Experience How He Makes a Success of Dairying—Prices Here Are High

The following conversation took place on the streets of Charlevoix a few days ago, between G. W. Dennis and another farmer that doesn't want his name published:

"Do you think the creamery will run this summer?"

"Yes but it can't run without milk, and it can't unless it has good milk nay more than you can make good bread out of poor flour."

"What do you mean by good milk?"

"I mean milk that is milked clean and kept clean after it is milked, well cooled and delivered to the creamery in good shape."

"How would yon cool it."

"Several ways, one way set your can of milk in a tank or tub of cold water; another way if you have large cans, which would hold thirty or forty gallons, hang large pails or cnns of cold water down in the milk in the can, changing the water as it get warm until the milk gets cool; another and better wny is to dip or stir the milk, pouring up and down so the air can pass through it, this takes the animal heat out so the milk will be purer and keep longer than cooling with water or ice, a still better way is to get the New York potent cooler which I use, it gives good satisfaction and is very cheap, costs less than $2, any one can see it by calling at my place."

"What are they going to pay?"

"From $1 to $1.25 per hundred pounds."

"Do yon think that will pay better than making butter?"

"Yes, it certainly will. I have sold milk for 30 cents and made money at that, and you have too when you sold butter at 12½ cents per pound."

"Yes, but butter has been bringing better prices here the last two years."

"That's so, but take the creamery ont of here and butter will drop."

"Well won't the Charlevoix creamery fellows skin the farmer?"

"They don't skin me and if you allow them to skin you, you ought to be skinned. I don't have any Babcock test either, but any man or woman that makes butter can with a 50 cent pair of scales tell how many pounds of milk it takes tor a pound of butter."

"How many cows' milk did they have last summer?"

"I doo't know, I know from the first of June they got the milk of fifteen cows from my ranch."

"Do you think it paid you?"

"Paid, should say it did, I bought seven cows the first of June and the first of December they had paid for themselves, and if I can do that any farmer can do the same that ain't too lazy to milk."

"Do you weigh your milk sometimes?"

"I do sometimes and somethnes I don't."

"How do you know they don't cheat if you don't weigh your milk all the time?"

"The day I weigh it I compare it with their weights the same day, so then you feel sure, but whatever you do, don't go blowing around the country that they cheated you in weights, unless you weigh your milk, you can't guess at it and have it right."

"How much milk does your cows give at a milking?"

"That depends some on when you milk, my cows average from fifteen to twenty-five pounds to a milking according to the feed they get, some folks expect to get a big pail of milk from a little bundle of straw and stack of bones, and they also expect what milk they do get from sweetened wind and water to be as rich as milk from a cow that is in good condition, and has plenty of grain."

"Now I want to tell you if you want to get anything out of your cows, and out of the creamery you have got to attend to them and not leave it to your wife and children to do, if you do you will surely fail and you will deserve it. But give your cows good care and they will pay off that mortgage."

A call at the plant of the X L Produce Co. by a representative of the COURIER in regard to the above conversatinn, brought nut the following facts.

The milk retailed by the company is produced by four (and four only) of what are considered to be the best dairy farms near Charlevoix—The William Withers, Elmer Ingalls, George Dennis and the Lakeside farm, managed by R. W. Paddock. Cream, however is bought of all farmers for manufacturing purposes, but not for the retail trade. The management of company extend and solicit an inspection of both the dairies and their plant by the board of health or the general public, satisfied that they can demonstrate by examination that they are doing their level best to give to all their patrons the cleanest, purest and most sanitary milk that can be produced at the lowest possible price at which it cnn be handled.

In another part of this issue our comments on the above can be found.

ST. VALENTINE'S PARTY

Bachelors' Quartette Entertain Their Friends at The Elston.

Friday evening, what was pronounced one of the most successful affairs of the kind ever given in Charlevoix, was held at the Elston—the St. Valentine's party given by the Bachelors' Quartette, composed of Messrs. Hines, Vandermade, Archer and Stripp. An even hundred guests were present. The dining room was most beautifully decorated with decorations suitable to the day, which was being celebrated—hearts and arrows. Dainty programs, which were of heart shape, were used.

After the valentine march, which was heart shape, and led by Galo Hines and Miss Merle Felts, delicious refreshments were served. Music was furnished by McClellun's orchestra from Petoskey. All the guests present unite in pronouncing the quartette unrivalled as entertainers.

WILL LEAVE CHARLEVOIX

Capt. Frank Fountain of Life-Saving Station Goes to Kenosha.

Has Been Here Seven Years His Successor Allan A. Kent of Michigan City.

Early last winter Capt. Frank Fountain of the Life-Saving Station made application for transfer, and has received the appointment as keeper of the station at Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Capt. Fountain's object in making the change was the proximity of Kenosha to Chicago, where he has property, and where his wife's relatives all reside. The captnin has been keeper of the Charlevoix station for seven years, being transferred here from Chicago on account of his wife's health, which she has recovered in the healthy air of Charlevoix.

During his occupancy of this station, he has made a good record, and his many friends will hear of his departure with regret. He wishes us at this time to express his thanks for the many kindnesses shown him by the authorities and the public generally, during his stay in our city.

His successor will be Capt. Allen A. Kent, now keeper of the Michigan City Station, and the transfer is expected to take place next week.

THE TIME OF THEIR LIVES

Charlevoix Attendants at the Traverse City Banquet.

Everybody Was Filled With Enthusiasm—New Officers and Delegates.

The Charlevoix crowd, who attended the Lincoln day banquet at Traverse City, report that from the time they struck town until they left, enthusiasm never lagged and they left quite a lot of their surplus behind—the banquet, which was held in the city opera house, was attended by over five hundred people, and the speeches which were delivered by Congressmen Kahn, Legare, Townsend and District Attorney Covell; Prosecutor Smith, of Kalkaska; Amos S. Musselman, of Grand Rapids, besides Judge Mayne and Toastmaster Palmer, of Manistee, are spoken of as the best ever.

The singing by the Charlevoix male quartette was on a par with the rest of the program, and one of the best features.

At the business meeting of the club held in the afternoon, the following officers were elected:

President Ira A. Adams, Bellaire.

Secretary Robert E. Walter, Traverse City.

Treasurer—K. L. Edwards, Traverse City.

Two vice-presidents were chosen from Antrim, Charlevoix, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Leelenau, Missaukee, Kalkaska, Emmet, Manistee and Wexford counties. Those from Charlevoix being W. J. Pierson, of Boyne Falls, and L. E. Knowles, of Boyne City.

Delegates were elected to the state league of republican clubs. Judge Mayne and Judge Harris being chosen from this county.

A large number of friends were present and the hostess supplied the table with an abundance of good things to eat, after which the evening was taken up in discussing Washington, the time passing all too quickly.

ARE ASKING FOR BIDS

Trustees of Estate of David Ward Estate to Sell Entire Holdings.

We are told that the trustees of the estate of David Ward are at present asking for bids for the purchase of their entire holdings in this part of Michigan—timber lands and their big mill and proprietary village at Deward. Bids are asked for the holdings as a whole as well as on specified parcels.

The Ward estate holdings are very extensive and valuable, and no one knows their true value better than do the trustees themselves; hence, it is certain that any party who purchases will pay what the property is worth.

The asking for bids does not necessarily carry with it any assurance that the property will be sold, as the trustees reserve the right to accept or reject any or all bids.

It seems to the average citizen of East Jordan that here is the place where the bulk of the hardwood of this vast estate should be manufactured and given equal rates and consideration in transportation charges, where it will be. To the lay mind it would seem that two hauls—in and out—would be better for a railroad than the haul out alone.

One thing however is certain, the bidding will demonstrate the market value of the Ward estate holdings.—East Jordan Enterprise.

DELEGATES ARE ELECTED

Modern Woodman Choose Delegates to County Convention.

Lecture Association Announces That Next Number Is Best of the Course.

The people of Charlevoix will have an opportunity on Tuesday evening, February 25th, of hearing Leland Powers present his popular pluy, David Garrick. It is not often that we are fortunate enough to get an attraction like this, and those who fail to take advantage of this opportunity will surely regret it. Mr. Powers is in a class by himself. He accepts only a limited number of engagements and is in great demand everywhere. His work presents the best of the drama in the purest form, free from all unwholesome and false theatric atmosphere.

Notice that the date is February 25, not February 24 as announced at the last lecture. Train connections have been arranged so that the change from the original date was not necessary.

The reserved seat sale will open at the Ivy drug store Friday, February 21 at 7:00 p. m. standard time. Owing to the fact that the course is paying for itself and also to bring the entertainment within the reach of all. The price of single admission has been reduced to 50 cents. WAS IN HONOR OF LINCOLN

Historical Society Holds Third Annual Lincoln Day Banquet.

DECORATIONS WERE VERY BEAUTIFUL.

Program Carried Out in Full—Hon. George L. Crisp Chief Speaker.

The Executive Committee and the Host and Hostess of the Bartlett Entitled to Equal Praise.

On Friday evening last, at Hotel Bartlett occurred what was without doubt one of the most successful banquets ever held in Charlevoix.

The hotel was tastefully decorated in the national colors, flags and bunting being arranged upon the walls in endless, but not too great profusion.

Promptly at 7:00 the Charlevoix Historical Society and its guests to number of one-hundred marched in to the dining hall to music by Bellinger's orchestra, composed of W. C. Bellinger, Harry Dodge, Mrs. Aggie Jarvis and Miss Dodge.

The invocation was offered by Rev. R. A. Wright, after which attention was directed to the following menu:

Oysters, Cream a la Baltimore
Celery
Salted Peanuts Queen Olives
Mustard, Cucumber and Sliced Tomato Pickles
Native Roast Turkey, Dressing, Cranberry Sauce
Chicken Pie a la Newburg, Dish Gravy
Mashed Potatoes Sugar Corn
Hot Rolls
Salads with Whipped Cream
Wafers
Vanilla Ice Cream; Cake
Grapes Oranges Dates Figs
Coffee Tea,
Demi Tasse

The viands were well prepared and, served a number of high school girl assisting as waitresses, and there were no slips to mar the pleasure of a very enjoyable repast. Each guest found his plate marked by a carnation, with which, combined with asparagus fern and English ivy, the tables were decorated.

President Bultars, of the Historical Society, who was listed as the first speaker confined himself to a few brief introductury remarks, giving way to Major E. H. Green, one of the charter members of the society, who spoke briefly on "The Flag," and in particular regarding the history of one of the flags fastened upon the walls of the dining room, being the banner of Company "C," Twenty-Third Michigan Volunteer Infantry, given at the close of the war of secession to Andrew Clark and now a treasured posseasion of his daughter, Mrs. Myrtle C. Young and her son Earl. The story of the flag, which was saved from capture by Mr. Clork, was an interesting one and was well told.

On account of the illness of Dr. E. H. Wilkinson the vocal solo which he was to have rendered was omitted and a violin-piano duet by Mr. Leslie Crane and Miss Arvilla Dunham was substituted, being "Cavileria Rusticana," which was well rendered and received with applause.

Mrs. W. H. Woodley's recital of "The Daughter of the Desert," was greatly enjoyed, and was followed by a piano duet, "The Village Wedding," Mrs. R. W. Kane and Miss Doris Kane bring the performers, and eliciting much applause.

The address of the evening, "Abraham Lincoln," delivered by Hon. George L. Crisp, of Traverse City, was well thought out, and delivered in a manner which evoked flattering attention and hearty applause, the orator paying many evidently sincere and thoroughly appreciative tributes to the genius, humanity and ability of that great man in honor of whose memory the banquet was held.

The evening's entertainment was closed by the singing of "America," by the assembly after a unanimous vote of thanks had been extended by a rising vote to the orator of the evening.

A great deal of credit is due the executive committee of the Historical Society and host and hostess of the Hotel Bartlett for the manner in which the event was conducted, there being throughout evidence of the careful and systematic preparation, which alone could have made the occasion so smoothly and so thoroughly enjoyable as it was.

Dr. Kay and Dr. John Reycraft were in attendance. Jared was very popular, being well liked and respected by all. The many friends contributed to the buying of a white couch casket, the finest obtainable in Grand Rapids, while friends and schoolmates covered the casket with flowers. Preparations were made for a public service at the M. E. church, when four hours before the time set, Dr. Kay, as health officer, ordered an immediate interment for fear of diptherin.

E. S. Carrol made a visit to Bellaire Wednesday to assist in arranging the program for the big meeting of R. F. D. men and patrons which comes off at that place Saturday next.

Mr. Thompson had quite a serious mishap while coming down a hill east of town one day last week with a load of cord wood. He neglected to lock his sleighs, the team became unmanagable and ran onto a stump, cutting the breast of one of the horses in bad shape.

A noticeable feature of farming business here this year is the great amount of contract crops that will be raised by the farmers the coming season. Sugar beets, radish seed, peas and beans are now being contracted for. One farmer realized about $50 per acre on radish seed; another $60 per acre on sugar beets and will treble the amount raised next year. He says the refuse of the beet crop is great food for cattle.

The little flurry of snow has helped the sleighing considerably here and the cord wood, logs, stave bolts are moving more lively. The cord wood comes from section 25 east of town and from the west near Greenwood. The E. R. I. Co. are taking most of the cord wood, with the exception of that being shipped to lime company at Petoskey. Liken & Brown's factory here is the market for bolts and logs.

The political situation was pretty satisfactorily explained last week in the COURIER. Such discussions act the people to thinking. We like the COURIER'S plan of allowing a statement of both sides of the question. As to political views we believe in seeing good men put into office irrespective of party. We voted for Roosevelt and for Ferris in '04 and if convinced that Taft will do as much for the common people as Bryan, will support him. We think we are safe in saying that there are no two men in the United States today so conversant with affairs that make for the nation's well being as William H. Taft and William J. Bryan. Both have made a tour round the world studying the laws and customs of government enroute as well as being thoroughly acquainted with many of the needs of our own people.

The coming of our teacher's association mention of which was made last week will be, if plans are carried out, one of the greatest meeting of teachers ever held here. The association held at Elk Rapids last year was the largest and best ever. We want our meeting here to also be a record breaker and to that end are endeavoring to make things pleasant for those who assemble here on February 28-29. February 28 will be taken up with reading and discussion of papers on the teachers' work. Friday evening Prof. Pattengill, of Lansing, will deliver one of his favorite lectures. Following the lecture will be a reception tendered the visiting teachers by members of the school profession and citizens at this place. Prof. Gilbert, of Traverse City; Prin. Blodgett, of Elk Rapids; Prin. McCormick, of Mancelona; Prin. Reynolds, of Bellaire, and Com. Coldren are among those from out of town who are expected to assist in the meeting. Saturday will probably be taken up with round table discussions and business meeting. Every teacher whether inside or outside the county who can get here is invited to be present.

VESSEL WRECKED ON OREGON COAST

American Ship Emily Reed and Cargo Will Prove a Total Loss.

TEN OF THE CREW ARE LOST

Three Drowned Before Those on Board When Their Lifeboat Swamped.

Captain and Wife Among the Six Who Were Saved—Mate Washed Overboard While Directing His Men.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 15.—The American ship Emily Reed, 113 days out from New Castle, N. S. W., for Portland, Ore., with coal, went ashore at an early hour in the morning at the mouth of the Nehalem river on the Oregon coast and broke in two. The crew was swept overboard by the seas. Ten were lost and six were saved, including the captain and his wife.

The survivors were brought to Bay City and are now quartered at residences in that town. The ship was broken and will be a total loss as will also the cargo of 2,110 tons of coal.

Struck on Dangerous Place.

The vessel was consigned to the Pacific Coast company at Portland. During the past few days heavy weather has been prevailing off the Oregon and California coast. The chronometers of the Emily Reed were off and the master worked her too close into shore before he discovered his error. Captain Kessel was endeavoring to make Tillamook Rock. He was correct in his latitude, but too far to the eastward. When he discovered his position it was too late to wear ship and she struck on one of the most dangerous places on the Oregon beach.

The Emily Reed struck bow-on on the beach. There was a heavy sea running and a strong flood tide. When she hit the beach her back broke and the forward end took a list to port. An effort was made to launch a lifeboat. It was put over the side with three men in it.

Drowned Before Others' Eyes.

As soon as it hit the water it swamped and the occupants drowned before the eyes of those on board. The men forward were swept overboard by the waves. The mate was washed overboard and drowned while trying to direct the movements of the men forward.

The captain stuck to the poop and forced his wife to remain below. The second mate and three men in his watch were stationed on the main deck. When the forward portion of the ship listed they succeeded in making their way aft. By clinging to that portion of the ship until daylight they made their way ashore. It was then dead low water.

BECOMES BRIDE OF DE CHAULNES

Daughter of Theodore Shonts Marries French Duke at Her Father's Home in New York.

New York, Feb. 15.—Miss Theodora Shonts, daughter of Theodore P. Shonts, formerly chairman of the Isthmian canal commission, was married at noon to Emanuel Theodoric Bernard d'Albert de Luynes, duc de Chaulnes, of Paris. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's father, at 123 East Thirty-Fifth street, the ceremony being performed by Monsignor M. J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's cathedral. Although considerable interest has been aroused because of its international phase, it was planned to be an unostentatious home wedding without unusual display or exceptional gathering of guests. There were many notable guests, however.

Miss Marguerite Shonts, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, and the Prince Andre Galitzine, the duke's uncle, was best man. The Shonts home was decorated with American beauty roses, lilies of the valley and smilax. The bride wore a gown of duchess satin with court train bordered with orange blossoms.

LIVELY MIX-UP IN NEGRO CHURCH

Pastor Knocked Down with Chair and Deacon Slashed in Face with Razor.

St. Louis, Feb. 15.—The New Hope Colored Baptist church was the scene of a battle in which razors were used, chairs were wielded and the affray was replete with action when the police interfered. Mrs. Sam Lewis, wife of Deacon Lewis, was arrested. Deacon Alfred Shannon was cut three times in the face and the collar of his coat was slashed into ribbons. The pastor, Rev. Frank Harris, was laid out by a blow from a chair. Deacon Shannon and Rev. Harris were taken to the hospital. Rev. Harris' condition is serious.

It is stated the trouble arose over an unpaid gas bill, but Deacon Shannon declares the whole matter was simply a plot among disgruntled ones to "do up the pastah."

COURT ORDERS BOY PROMOTED

Remarkable Lad of Seven Years to Enter Seventh Grade Despite School Board.

Upper Sandusky, O., Feb. 15.—Terry Wickham, seven years old of Sycamore, was promoted from the fifth to the seventh grade last June, but because of his age, the school board at the beginning of the fall term declined to recognize the promotion and sent the boy home.

His father brought mandamus proceedings against the board and the circuit court handed down the decision severely scored the school board, and directing that it permit the boy to begin in the seventh grade at once. Before rendering the decision the boy was given a special examination and stood the test without a flaw. He is regarded as the most extraordinary lad in the state.

Seventy Years with One Family.

Orange, N. J., Feb. 15.—After seventy years spent in the service of one family Miss Mary A. Aylesworth is dead and her body will be laid to rest in the cemetery plot where lie the bodies of many of those she served. Miss Aylesworth was born in Providence, R. I., in 1818, and in 1837 entered the family of Rev. William Hague as a nurse. She remained there until 1873 when she went to Mrs. Joseph Campbell, daughter of Mr. Hague, whose nurse she had been and remained until her death.

WRONG IN PRINCIPLE

Gov. Warner Calls the Idea That Only Taxpayers Shall Vote Taxation.

OPPOSITION TO THE SCHEME

May Dish the New Constitution If Not Eliminated—Barber Takes Chances for $10.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 15.—Governor Warner is strongly opposed to the property qualification clause in the home rule provision of the new constitution and believes that unless it is eliminated it will seriously endanger the acceptance of the constitution by the people. "It is a wrong principle entirely," said the governor. "It is distinctly distasteful to the people. Why, on the theory of only allowing taxpayers to vote on the expenditure of money you might as well carry disfranchisement further and say that no man who does not pay taxes can vote for a legislator or an alderman or any other official."

Other Opposition Voiced.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 15.—Many of the delegates to the constitutional convention have been hearing from their constituents on the property qualification clause in the home rule proposal and there is an excellent chance of its being stricken out on third reading. "I have heard many objections to the property qualification," said Roger Wykes, of Grand Rapids. "Many have assured me that in their opinion the constitution could not carry if it was left in."

Thinks It Should Go Out.

"I think it should be stricken out," said James Barnett, also of Grand Rapids. "It is not in accord with the Republican principles of government and has no place in the constitution. I fear that the constitution can never be adopted if it is left as it is at present." Professor Fairlie, of the University of Michigan, is not so insistent. "I do not believe in it," he says, "but I prefer it to a two-thirds vote, such as was proposed in the convention. A three-fifths vote might be acceptable, but not two-thirds. But the property qualification is not right and should not be in the constitution."

BARBER WITH GOOD NERVE

Shaves a Show Manager in a Cage of Angry Leopards and Wins Ten Dollars.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 15.—To decide a bet of $10, even after a large leopard had attacked the trainer and scratched him on the hand, Daniel Lagsden, a local barber, entered the cage containing the animals and shaved the manager. This occurred at the Bijou theater. The leopards were behaving badly all evening. When one attacked the trainer the barber did not back down, but insisted that he would go ahead and make good.

The animals resented Lagsden's entrance to the cage, and continually snarled at him. The barber kept on and finished the shaving, though not as unconcerned as he would be in his own shop. He got the $10.

He Had the Worst Luck.

Dowagiac, Mich., Feb. 15.—When the City bank failed Charles Crilfield, a wealthy farmer, had worse luck than any other depositor. He had just disposed of a large amount of property in Kalamazoo and arrived that day with $10,000 in currency, drafts and certificates. The train was late and he ran all the way from the station to get to the bank in time to deposit it. He arrived just before 4 o'clock, closing time. The bank took his $10,000, and then closed its doors never to reopen them.

FIREMAN DROWNS DURING A BLAZE

"Grand Old Man" of the New York Department Loses His Life.

PLUNGES THROUGH TRAP-DOOR

Basement in Which He Falls Is Full of Water, Smoke and Gases.

Rescue Work Begun at Once but the Deputy Chief Is Dead When Taken Out—Flames in Buffalo Courier Plant.

New York, Feb. 11.—Deputy Chief Charles W. Kruger, known for many years as "The Grand Old Man of the Fire Department," lost his life while leading his men in a desperate fight against flames in Canal street. While working his way cautiously through a cellar filled with smoke and gases Kruger plunged through a trap-door into a sub-basement filled with water. He was dead when taken out, but, in the few minutes which elapsed between the time the old man fell and his body was drawn out more than a score of men had risked their own lives in an effort to save that of their leader.

Kruger was fifty-seven years old and had been a member of the department for thirty-six years.

Fire Was a Fierce One.

The fire in which the deputy chief lost his life started at 217 Canal street and before it had been subdued it swept that building from basement to roof, spread to two buildings adjoining, routed the tenants from several tenement houses and threatened the Church of the Most Precious Blood in Baxter street. It was after the flames in the upper part of the building had been brought under control that Kruger took his men to the basement.

A great pile of excelsior in bales was blazing furiously and an attempt to reach it with streams from the street had been unsuccessful. Kruger asked permission of Chief Croker to take his men through the basement of 215 and cut a hole through the wall to 217, where the fire was burning. Croker consented and a moment later with a dozen men behind him Kruger plunged into the cellar.

Filled with Smoke and Gas.

The place was filled with smoke and broken or melted pipes, but the men pressed cautiously forward in the darkness. Just in the middle of the cellar Kruger stepped on a trap and plunged into six feet of water in the sub-basement.

Then began a desperate fight in the gas-filled cellar to save the chief. He could do little to help himself, however, and when Battalion Chief Galvin plunged into the dark hole and raised Kruger's head above the surface he was unconscious. It required the combined efforts of twenty firemen, weakened as they were by breathing smoke and gas, to save Galvin, who still clung to Kruger's body, from the pit.

The property loss as a result of the fire is placed at $50,000.

STIFLING FIRE AT CHICAGO

Flames in Bankrupt Paint Store of Heath & Milligan.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Pawntown Chicago choked under the stifling fumes of burning oils and paints almost an hour, while stock in the establishment of the bankrupt firm of Heath & Milligan, 172 Randolph street, went up in smoke. Following an explosion, with which the fire started, the atmosphere of the entire loop district became heavy with noxious vapors, which penetrated buildings through window crevices and made it decidedly unpleasant to venture through the streets. Atmospheric conditions were favorable to the overwhelming effect of the malodorous gases, which descended almost like a blanket.

The detonation which announced the outbreak of flames occurred in the varnish tank on the first floor of the building. The explosion shook surrounding structures and aroused guests of the Bismarck Hotel, a few doors east, and the Briggs House, across the street at Randolph street and Fifth avenue.

Shah Not Assassinated.

London, Feb. 15.—No credence what ever is attached here to the reports from Vienna that the Shah of Persia had been assassinated. The charge d'affaires of the Persian legation in London declared that there was no ground for apprehension and that if anything had happened to the Shah the legation undoubtedly would have been notified.

Despondent Man Kills Himself.

New York, Feb. 15.—Edson Van de Water, a bank clerk, twenty-two years old, and said to be a member of an old New York family, killed himself in a Raines Law hotel at Seventh avenue and Thirty-Fifth street, by taking poison. He had been despondent for weeks, as a result, he told some of his friends, of financial losses.

JAPAN IS NOT SEEKING WAR

Views of Bishop Hendrick, Who Has Made Observations in the Mikado's Country.

San Francisco, Feb. 15.—Bishop T. A. Hendrick, of the diocese of Cebu, Philippine Islands, said he is sure there will be no war between this country and Japan if the initiative rests with Japan. The bishop, who is a New Yorker, came home by way of Japan. As a resident of the Philippines he was deeply concerned in the rumors of war, and determined while in Japan to learn of the situation at first hand. His position gave him access to sources of authoritative information and what he learned, he said, satisfied him that the war cloud was not of Japan's making.

"Seventy per cent of Japan's exports come to this country," said the bishop. "Japan is financially crippled. It is determined to recuperate and the Japanese realize that war with America would not only mean the loss of her best market—the only market for many of their most profitable products—but that in the event of war they would be unable to borrow the money to carry it on."

GOES AGROUND TO PREVENT WRECK

Steamer Lucania Avoids a Collision with a Tank Vessel by Changing Her Course.

New York, Feb. 15.—The Cunard line steamer Lucania went aground on the south side of Gedney channel while leaving port for Queenstown and Liverpool.

The Lucania grounded while trying to avoid a collision with the tank steamer Deutschland, also outward bound. A strong southwest wind was blowing and there was a ground swell on the bar where the steamer was lying. The Lucania succeeded in moving ahead nearly a length after she struck the bar and finally worked off into deep water without assistance.

Begin Fight Against Opium.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 15.—The city officials of Butte have begun a determined campaign against the sale of opium. Every Chinese merchant in the city, to the number of twelve, have been arrested on the charge of trafficking in the drug. The selling of opium under the city ordinances is a misdemeanor. It is the intention of the city officials to clean out a score of opium dens existing in Butte's celestial quarter, and more arrests are expected.

Towns in Mississippi and Texas Devastated and a Number of Lives Lost.

Mossville, Miss., Feb. 15.—Four whole buildings and two halves of buildings are the only habitable abodes in this village. The remainder of the structures were blown down and many of them swept outside of the town by a tornado. Two old negroes, Alec Windham and his wife, are dead, and Edward Winn, cell, white, is probably fatally injured. A dozen other persons were painfully injured. Reports reaching here from other towns in the tornado's path give not to exceed five other fatalities.

The tornado cut a swath several miles long through the timber and almost every other obstruction on the face of the country. The towns of Sosg and Service were partly wrecked by the same tornado and another small town, Epps, was badly damaged. At Service a small daughter of Isaac Holloway was killed and a man and a woman and two children also were killed.

Tyler, Tex., Feb. 15.—Five persons were killed and forty badly hurt by a tornado which wrecked Tyler. It is believed that seven of the injured will not recover. Four of the dead are in the family of C. A. Francis, white, and the other was an old negro. The wind swept a path 100 feet wide through the city, destroying a church and a score of dwellings.

Buffalo Courier Loses by Fire.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Fire broke out at 3:15 o'clock in the morning in the plant of the Buffalo Courier company, the general print ship, not the newspaper, and before it was brought under control an immense amount of damage to paper stock and completed work, such as circus posters, of which a great amount were in the warehouse, was done. The cause is not known.

The firemen had difficult work because of falling floors and presses, but they confined the blaze to the extention in which it started. Other parts of the building and adjoining buildings were damaged. It is estimated that the damage to building and stock will amount to $250,000.

Alderman Kills Himself.

New Castle, Pa., Feb. 15.—T. P. Williams, for many years an alderman in this city and a candidate for re-election next Tuesday, committed suicide at his home here by firing a bullet through his right temple. Williams was arrested a few days ago charged with extortion and had given bail for court.

County's First White Settler Dead.

Milwaukee, Feb. 15.—Jacob T. Van Vechten, aged eighty-five years, the first white settler of Washington county and the man who named Kewaskum, Wis., is dead of general debility, in Wauwatosa, a suburb of Milwaukee.

GREAT SHOW OF PONIES.

The breeding classes at the New York horse show indicate the increased and constant interest that the ponies maintain at this great exhibition. They were forward in large numbers, and the quality is increasing each year, and the action shown by these miniature horses is really the marvel of the whole show. The interest evinced in the little fellows is of the very greatest, and they are one of the most attractive features of this exhibition.

The first class in the breeding division called for stallion and three of his get not exceeding 14.1. For this prize several candidates appeared, and pride of place was awarded to Dillham Prime Minister, formerly owned by Eben D. Jordan, now the property of Fred Pabst of Wisconsin. He was represented by three of his daughters—Dainty Eccles, Lady Eccles and Lady Dillham, this last mare being the sensation of the New York show of this year and probably the best pony in harness in the world at the present time. It is extremely doubtful if any sire could show three daughters the equal of these three ponies.

The class for stallions not to exceed 14.2 was probably one of the best ever shown. The ponies were distinctly high class, and several of them had been London champions. First prize was awarded to the stallion Little

EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE.
[A study in Shetland character.]

Ruby. This is a black brown pony about 13.3, which was the champion at the international at Olympia in March and has also been champion at the London hackney show in previous years. He had been brought to this country by Messrs. Carr for the New York exhibition. It is extremely doubtful whether such extravagant action as displayed by this pony has ever been seen in America, not even excepting the famous Berkeley Bantam and Forest King. His hocks moved with all the precision and regularity of the piston of an engine, and their flexion was truly remarkable. His fore action was also excellent, and altogether he is probably the most sensational pony we have yet seen among the imported ones. He is smooth in his outline, good in shoulder, round in barrel, full in his quarters and carries his dock gayly.

Shetland Ponies.

Shetland stallions were a good collection, somewhat larger than has been shown at the Garden for several years. Ellersie of Elsinore just barely beat Grand Duke. Ellersie is a very level pony, upheaded in carriage, with good style and action.

There were quite a number of other good ponies in this class, and the interest that is being manifested in Shetlands in New York is of such character that Shetland men are standing to their own light by not giving the Garden as great an exhibit of these children's pets as can be seen in the world.

The Breeder's Gazette, Chicago, is the source of the foregoing interesting comment and illustration, and the same journal notes the large number of both stallions and mares registered in volume 7 of the American Shetland Stud Book, just issued, as proof that the breeding of Shetland ponies is at this time an industry which is constantly increasing.

Dairy Work.

Upon a good dairy farm a sixteen-year-old boy will do as well as a thirty dollar a month man. If the barn is clean and well lighted and the work systematized the objections so often raised against dairy work will be entirely overcome, says A. J. McClure of the Minnesota experiment station in Kimball's Dairy Farmer. On our farm all the feeding and milking are done at the same time each day. Regularity and system cost nothing and return large dividends in the way of better production and absence of friction in doing the work. Each morning at 5:15 our dairy work is begun and each evening at 4, winter and summer. The cows are fed twice a day and watered once a day. With the exception of watering, the dairy work is finished at 7 o'clock in the morning. This is until 4 in the afternoon for other work. Our work is always done by 6 o'clock in the evening. Dairying becomes burdensome when it is added to a full day's work of some other kind. If you will make the dairy work part of the day's work there will be less objection and more profit.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Owen Fagan, in a bill filed in the circuit court, charges his son, John Fagan, 4725 Marshfield avenue, with fraudulently depriving him of title to the property at that number and then ejected him. The complainant says he is an old man; that he is blind in one eye and cannot see out of the other very well; that he can neither write nor read writing. He says his son induced him by misrepresentation to sign a warranty deed giving the property away.

ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN

At the Chicago Union Stock Yards Monday, February 10.

Monday, February 10, 1908, the Chicago Union Stock Yards received 33,501 cattle, 1,903 calves, 87,716 hogs, 26,009 sheep, and 838 horses, or a total of 150,357 animals in 2,403 cars, breaking the previous record of hog receipts and total number of animals received.

Of the receipts, there were sold and shipped alive, mainly to eastern slaughtering points and for export, 10,063 cattle, 28 calves, 21,138 hogs, 6,460 sheep and 109 horses, or a total of 37,807 animals in 787 cars, breaking all previous records of hog shipments, total number of carloads shipped and total number of animals shipped.

The grand total handed by the railroads and the Union Stock Yard and Transit Co. on that day was 188,164 animals and 3,720 cars, which is equal to a solid train over 28 miles long, or if ranged in single file would make a solid procession of animals over 200 miles long and require 10 days to pass a given point marching constantly at the rate of 20 miles per day. This is something never before equaled, moreover, all were quickly and easily handled.

Monday's enormous receipts were promptly absorbed at only a slight reduction from the prices of the previous week, practically all being sold on day of arrival. Packers got upward of 51,000 hogs, shippers bought close to 25,000, and the remainer were mixed hogs mostly sold to speculators. Of the 11,000 left over, 4,000 were carried over by shippers and 7,000 by speculators, almost everything being sold.

No other live stock market in the world could have withstood such an enormous run in proportion without a disastrous break in prices. Yet so great is the demand for meats and live stock of all kinds at Chicago that Tuesday, with full ordinary receipts, hogs sold live to ten cents higher and cattle and sheep about steady, while Wednesday's markets showed further advances of live to ten cents in every department.

RECIPE MIXED OFTEN

Druggists Hear Much Praise for This Mixture.

Lots of Men and Women Here Had the Simple Home-Made Mixture Prepared, Says Druggist.

Some remarkable stories are being told about town among the the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture, writes one authority in a leading Philadelphia newspaper, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys, cleansing the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter, overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A New York druggist, who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

The druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

COMING, as the present publishers of the COURIER did, from the richest agricultural district of Michigan—and in proof of this statement we ask anyone to send to the United State Department of Agriculture, and get the bulletin—"Soil Survey of the Alma Area of Michigan," and they will find that the bulk of the soil is Clyde loam, which is described as the most productive soil known—we are amazed sometimes by the lack of interest shown in developing the agricultural resources of this region, particularly when we have right in our city all the industries which have made that country what it is today, and where the possibilities are as great, or even greater right here in Charlevoix county. Not only can we produce here all their money crops equally well, but have in the fruit industry one which is denied them.

That region, as well as this, for a number of years depended on the cutting of timber as the chief source of revenue, with the removal of its forests came the necessity of another field of action, and before farms could be put into a condition, where profitable farming could be carried on, the problem of underdraining had to be met, which we are free from here. With the establishing of the sugar industry, a field was opened up which has nearly doubled the value of every farm in that section. We have that industry already established, and the records show that the beets produced for the Charlevoix factory test the highest of any in the state, proving that our soil is peculiarially adapted to the production of the sugarbeet.

Along with the development of the beet growing industry came the need of something else, and the dairy industry has been pushed to a high degree in the past few years, as experience has shown that no two branches of farming can be so linked together, each an aid to the other, as dairying and beet growing. The successful producer of beets realizes that he must maintain the fertility of his soil, and while commerical fertilizer will relense and give him the chemical properities needed, he must have humus and to get that he must either be a feeder of stock for the market, or must feed cows for the production of butter fat. Experience has demonstrated that a pound of butter fat can be produced nearly as cheap as a pound of meat, therefore the beet growers turns to dairying as a means of keeping up the fertility of his soil. He finds further, that the tops of his beets which would otherwise be a waste, can be turned into butter fat, as well as the pulp, which can easily be secured.

In this city we have both industries and owing to our being a resort town, better prices can be paid for the products of the dairy farmer than at almost any other place.

In addition to these industries, in our old home, during the past two year they have turned their attention to another industry which Charlevoix has already established in her midst—the growing of peas—claiming that the pea crop is not an exhansrive crop on the soil, a crop which yields quick returns and which fits nicely in a proper rotation.

In addition to all these we are in a great fruit producing section, and seem to be when we have developed the possibilities which we have, one of the most highly favored regions of the state.

The COURIER invites and especially requests that its farmer readers, especially the growers of peas, give it the result of their experience.

PROBABLY no part of the revised constitution as finally passed upon has aroused more opposition than the clause restricting the vote upon certain municipal questions to taxpayers, which reads as follows:

"Nor shall any city or village acquire any public utility franchise, borrow any money or contract debts beyond one per cent of its assessed valuation unless such proposition shall first have received a majority vote of the electors who have property assessed for taxation."

This provision, which is a step backward, instead of forward, as the progress which has been made in the right of self-government, has been to extend the right of manhood suffrage, has met with so much opposition that it is freely predicted that a change will be made when the convention reassembles.

While the COURIER believes in an educational qualification, it does not believe in a property one. It believes that the intelligent working man of our municipalities, who rents his home, should have the same right to say, by his vote, how much money should be borrowed, as the man who owns his home, and rents it to him, for we believe he has the same interest in seeing the community in which he lives prosper and will not abuse that right. In the years to come, when pay day comes, he very likely will be the man to pay the debt.

If any citizen can get in any of our legislative bodies, national, state or local and direct the expenditure of public money by what logic can we argue that they should be restricted as to any portion of the business affairs of the community where they live.

We hope it will be changed as we believe it endangers the success of the convention's work.

PLOWS AND PLOWING.

Wing's Adeptation From the French. In Use In Alfalfa Sod.

Four years ago, when first I went to study French farming, their plows made me smile, they looked so crude, with their immense wheels and beams, so awkward in design, says Joseph E. Wing in the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago.

This year I spent more time in France and studied their plows more carefully and at work. I now consider the French plow, with its two wheels its rigid beam and all, as being a wonderfully effective tool and think it does its work easily for the horses as well. I took hold of the handles of these plows and found that they ran with extraordinary steadiness.

Last fall we had sixty acres of alfalfa sod to plow, and alfalfa soil is notoriously hard stuff to manage. It takes a good plow, a good team and a good plowman to plow alfalfa sod at all. We learned that a walking plow is best for alfalfa sod. We really never had much success with a riding plow in such use, but we had learned that a wheel under the beam steadied the plow and was quite a help. The wheels furnished by the plowmakers are about seven inches in diameter—too small, but useful. We started three plows, and one had no wheel. It occurred to me to adjust an old wheel from a sulky plow. Our blacksmith did this for me, and then came a further thought. Why not put on two wheels, as the Frenchmen do? I found two that matched well, one about thirty inches and one about eighteen inches in diameter, and the smith and I rudely adjusted them to a bit of one and one-quarter inch shafting for an axle. A 4 by 4 inch block went on this, and two stirrups connected it to the beam. Thus one wheel could go in the furrow, one on the land, and it ought to steady the plow finely.

I put the thing in the buggy and hastened to the field, eager to test it. We fastened it to the plow, and I eagerly watched for results. The horses started, a rod was turned and Frank looked around with an astonished expression on his face. "Why, it's all right!" He went a few rods farther and called back, "Finest thing I've ever seen!" The long and short of it is that we are using that plow today. It has turned over about sixty acres, and much of the time it has been used by an old man, who could never have endured holding an ordinary plow in alfalfa soil. The work of that plow is perfect. It matters very little indeed whether one holds to the handles or not, it runs along and does tasthess just the same. We made another carriage better in that the one and one quarter inch axle has turns in it that make the wheels set on cranks, so that it is readily adjustable to depth, and this works with a lever. The plow goes along as exactly as a big plane.

Now, it seems to me that plow manufacturers should take a hint from this. Such an attachment as I have adopted ought to be sold for less than $10 and, added to the already very good plows, would make for perfect work.

If the manufacturers will not do this one can usually find old wheels either on his own farm or in the junk shop to make his own plow carriage. We find only one difficulty in adjustment. It is to keep the plow level, rather running a little on the land side, especially in tough alfalfa sod. This we manage by inserting a thin wedge of wood under the beam when clamping it down. There is a better way. One wheel might be arranged to be raised or lowered independently of the other.

How to Cure Asthma With Coffee.

Coffee is a very excellent remedy for asthma. Those who do not know how to cut short their attacks and have not tried coffee should do so by all means, says Family Doctor. It often succeeds admirably when almost everything else has failed. There are one or two little points to be attended to in taking coffee for asthma. In the first place, it should be very strong—in fact, perfectly black. Weak coffee does more harm than good. If made very strong much of it need not be taken. A large quantity is a positive disadvantage, for it is less rapidly absorbed and only distends the stomach. Then it should be given without sugar or milk, pure cafe noir. It should be given on an empty stomach, for when taken for a full stomach it often does harm by putting a stop to the process of digestion.

How to Put on a Corset.

Fasten the abdominal hooks first, lifting the body with a long breath at the same time and holding the head well back. This holds superfluous flesh in the right place instead of crowding it downward, which can only be excessively ugly as well as injurious, says the New York American. After the top of the front is hooked draw the looped laces from eyelets slightly below the waist, pulling the bottom of the corset much tighter than the top. Through this simple means healthy breathing is permitted, for bodices are so loose that it is only at the waist and hips the figure needs to be held taut.

How to Save Trousers.

To save men's trousers cut a broomstick so it will fit under the lowest shelf in the clothes closet, cover with cotton batting about three or four thicknesses, then with black cambric, and sew this down tight. Make a loop on either end. Tack two tacks on the shelf in the closet so the stick will hang about three or four inches down. Fold men's and boys' trousers by creases, and they will look like new every time by hanging them across the covered stick.

Where Orchards Are Small.

In portions of the country where individual orchards are small, but situated close together, a central cooking plant may often be used in co-operation or by an individual who supplies the lime sulphur wash during the spraying season to the orchardists of the community. The practicability of this plan has already been demonstrated.

Poison and Charcoal.

Japanese physicians declare it is impossible for internal poisoning to occur if powdered charcoal be swallowed as soon as the gastro-intestinal disturbance is felt. French physicians have tested the power of charcoal and proved that it is the most active of all known antidotes. The charcoal must be taken as soon as the poison begins to show its effects, and the doses must be large. Charcoal is in no way injurious, and as much as a soupspoonful may be taken in divided doses mixed with water.

ONCE MORE

By WILLIAM RANGER

Once more to see the glow-worms flash
Amid the moss-hung trees.
Once more to hear the whip-poor-will
Down by the sounding sea.

Once more to see the nettle-white
Press upward through the sand
Once more to walk on Ridgewood,
In the sunny Southern land.

In thought the ocean breezes sway
The tall palmetto tree.
In thought I see the lighthouse
Down by the sounding sea.

Once more to breathe the balmy air
That charm, and shine and spray.
Once more to gather violets
All on a winter's day

Once more to pluck an orange ripe
From a heavy-laden bough
These are pleasures of the Southland
Far in Michigan now

In thought at my heart is roaming
In thought by the sea
In thoughts the birds of Dixie land
Are calling low to me

Cured in less than four weeks.

Those who have had experience with this stubborn disease can hardly believe at first that Wonderful Dream Salve can and does cure Eczema.

There is no doubt about the matter whatever. A great many letters are on file in our office from grateful patients, telling of the quick and easy way in which Wonderful Dream Salve has removed all traces of this torturing skin affliction.

COLD STORAGE EGGS.

The cold storage egg is of course "hen fruit." Not many years ago it was proclaimed that a process had been discovered whereby fresh eggs could be manufactured like wooden nutmegs, but these egg machinists met the same fate as the patent rainmakers who went to the western rainless regions with their dynamite balloons to make thunderstorms to order. The hen lays the cold storage egg, however distant it seems to be removed from its primordial ancestor.

In the cheap season hucksters gather them from the farms; poultrymen haul them to the railroad stations; groerymen, who trade them in, deliver them f. o. b., and all together the crated eggs are freighted to wholesale houses and the "trust." Now, if these millions of eggs were all good or the men who handle them were all careful or honest the cold storage eggs would be of better quality and the prejudice against them not so great. But listen!

Farmers, as a rule, are not very particular about eggs. Few of them have good henhouses and nesting places. The result is the hens hatch and lay in any old place.

They lay in the haymow, next in bent to bales on a hot day; they drop their eggs under the roosts and in the cow stables; they steal their nests under the hogpens and in many other places where heat and filth soon rob them of their beauty and sweetness. Eggs found in stolen nests are often too old to vote. The farmer always leaves a nest egg to lure the speckled hen back. It may be changed the next day, or it may serve in its honorable capacity for three months before it finds its way to an epicure's table in the city as "fresh stock laid while you wait." How well we remember the day on the farm when we found a nest with ten dozens of eggs in the corner of the haymow!

If one hen laid them all they were the product of 180 hard days' work—that is, if she laid regularly every other day, but the best type hen sweats to lay 200 a year.

How we exulted one day when we spied a half bushel of eggs under the old hogpen!

We squeezed under and hauled them out, and grandma sold them to the huckster for 10 cents a dozen. But, whisper it softly, the hens had been hatching and rehatching under that pigpen through all the ages of man.

You might think all the eggs shipped from a modern poultry plant were fresh. Let me lift the lid. There are a great many castoff eggs at poultry plants. Some set as high as 100,000 eggs a season. In some seasons from 30 to 60 per cent do not hatch. After the large incubators are running five days the eggs are tested by passing them before a strong light. All eggs that do not have a bloody-like spider in them are rejected. This spider is the live germ, and you can follow up its development till toward the twenty-first day, when you can see the chicken wiggle in the shell.

On the fifteenth there is another test. The eggs rejected are the following: Clear or infertile, with a red streak or ruptured blood vessel, a black spot or dead germ, cracked and rotten. At the end of the hatch among those left are the eggs with dead chicks in them.

Now you can see how much latitude a blackleg in the egg business has for trickery.

The infertile eggs are clear, and one can hardly distinguish them from fresh eggs. Bakers often use them in their manufacture of wholesome cakes and pastry. But some poultrymen will mix these rejected eggs with good stock and sell them to wholesalers, and some wholesalers will ship them to retailers and storage companies, and then they go to the hotels, boarding houses, restaurants and private families, and that's where the "kick" comes in.

CANDLING EGGS.—But let us actually follow these eggs into a wholesale house where they do an honest business. They are preparing eggs for storage. Three or four cupboads are stacked around, and some have been shipped clear from California. We open a crate of California goods, and they are certainly crackerjacks—large, white, beautiful eggs, superior in size to the eastern White Leghorn and Minorcs. What fine stock they must have in the state of orange groves and giant redwoods!

We now go into the candling room, which is pitch dark. The operator turns on a light which is in a box. A hole about two-thirds the size of an egg goes clear through the box, and the strong light shines through these holes. At each opening an employee is passing eggs before the light. Before he passes the egg it is tapped to see if the shell is perfect. All eggs that are not clear, that are cracked or have dirty shells are thrown out.

The soiled and cracked eggs are sold to the bakers, canned, frozen or made into egg powder. The bad eggs are sold for the manufacture of mucilage, shoeblacking, disinfectants, dyes, etc.

Most of the cracked and soiled eggs are made into desiccated eggs. The mixture is evaporated, and the refor preservation, is put up in boxes like cocoa, to be used by bakers, campers and families. Peary used these dried eggs on his last expedition to the north. After the eggs are tested, sorted and packed in clean cardboard they are sent to storage. The firm may sell them to the storage company or pay so much a crate to have them stored for winter trade.

IN A COLD STORAGE PLANT.—The best time to visit these great preserving institutions is in the summer, when the temperature outside is about 90 degrees in the shade. Indeed, if we had hay fever we should simply try the cold storage cure, which would consist of getting employment about these great refrigerators to freeze out the fever. Frost will do it every time. The cold storage plants are simply great warehouses that are built up with thicker walls than usual to resist the outside heat. These great refrigerators are simply cooled by the evaporation of ammonia, which runs through pipes like radiators clear around the cooling rooms. They are kept at a temperature of 32 to 34 degrees, and eggs may be preserved in reasonably good condition for six or eight months.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FRESH AND STORAGE STOCK.—We have both kinds before us on the table and will break them and give you the results.

The shell of the storage egg is shiny. This may come from handling, greasing or dipping in acid, and the air cell at the big end occupies one-fifth of the egg. The fresh egg shell is more of a chalky white, and the air cell is only the size of a silver five cent piece. Thus you see how much of the egg is lost by evaporation.

The yolk of the storage egg is dark, spotted, rather flat, breaks easily and when exposed soon has a thick membrane on it. The fresh egg has a round, bright yellow, full yolk, which gets no scum on it and stands or floats on the white, while the other sinks through.

The white of the storage egg is dull and thin, and the chalazæ, or two white membranes that hold the yolk suspended in the egg, have disappeared. The white of the fresh egg glistens, the chalazæ are perfect, and for an inch around the yolk the white stands in a raised ring. Beat up the whites and see what a difference. Now, if your dealer is cheating you on eggs, here is the test to catch him.

PRESERVE YOUR OWN EGGS.—Lime Method.—Slack four pounds of lime and stir in four pounds of salt. Pour this into eight gallons of water and stir well. Stir again the next day. When settled, draw off clear liquid and pour into it a solution composed of two quarts of boiling water, two ounces of baking soda, cream of tartar, pepper and a small amount of alum. Put the eggs in a stone jar, small end down, one layer on top of the other, and pour on the solution. Keep in cool place.

Salt Method.—Put a layer of salt in the bottom of a crock, then follow with layer of eggs with small end down. Fill up the vessel with alternate layers of salt and eggs, never allowing the eggs to touch each other. Keep in cool place.

Soluble Glass Method.—Purchase a gallon of liquid glass at drug store for 75 cents a gallon. Use one part glass to ten parts water. Fill up your jar with layers of eggs, small end down, and then pour on the solution. If the eggs do not sink, add more water.

These methods are all preferable to cold storage.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

When the big Swift storage plant at Harrisburg burned down on Nov. 13 45,000 dozens of eggs were scrambled. The people helped themselves to omelet. Harrisburg has more wild scrambles and bad eggs than any other city in the Union.

If cold storage eggs compete with you in the winter, it is because you sold out to the trust in the summer. Less hawnawk swinging and more trade drumming pays the trust less and you more.

Roosters make poor egg records and good pullets. Sell them to the butcher and buy a tonic if you have that tired feeling.

How shall I get fresh eggs? Buy them from persons you can trust and pay a little more for delivery or go for them yourself.

When the zero weather comes, do not worry about the eggs freezing in the nests. If you are the man who ventilates his chicken house with broken windows, cracks and knot holes, there will be no eggs to freeze.

The advertised prescriptions to make hens lay are about like one advertised to kill bedbugs. It cost 50 cents. It read thus: "First, catch your bug; second, put him on a stove; third, hit him a blamed good whack."

The Poet—To be a poet one must be poor.

The Editor—Congratulations. You are the poorest poet I ever met.

At the Country Club.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

The four women were drinking tea. Somewhere out in the October afternoon were four men who made up the friendly octet, but the women, on account of the coolness of the day and the charm of the big fireplace, had elected to stay away from the links.

Three of the women were not young, although the signs of age had been modified by careful grooming and diligent massage. Mrs. Amesbury, even looked young with her slender figure, her shining hair and her grace of gesture and of carriage.

But Tressie Stuart was young, and therein lay the difference that made Mrs. Amesbury uneasy. One might give the lie to age by attention to complexion and costume, but there was a quality in Tressie's laugh, a light in her eyes, a buoyancy of spirit, that separated her from the other women and cast the blight of contrast upon their beauty.

"Tressie," Mrs. Amesbury said, "stop roaming around the room. You make me nervous."

"Oh, do I?" Tressie's apology was immediate. "It's something in the air, I think. These fall days make me feel like a young colt. I want to be out of doors, and here we are drinking tea by the fire, like a lot of old tabby cats."

"We are a lot of old tabby cats," Miss Angela Amesbury agreed cheerfully. Unlike her sister-in-law, she did not aspire to youthfulness. Having steered herself safely out of a somewhat emotional girlhood into a calm old maidism, she was prepared to claim all middle aged privileges, and tea drinking at the Country club was an indulgence that appealed to her comfortable soul.

"You are the only kitten in the crowd, Tressie," she went on. "Run out and meet the men. They must be coming in by this time."

"Angela," Mrs. Amesbury reproved her, "Tressie can't go without a chaperon."

"Why not?" Angela asked bluntly. "Two of the men are her uncles, the third is your husband, and she has known Junior Mason since she was a baby."

"Oh, well"—Mrs. Amesbury shrugged her shoulders—"you know we don't think alike on such matters."

"No, thank goodness," said Miss Angela. And then the hitherto silent Aunt Georgia Stuart, who was officially Tressie's chaperon, interposed, "Tressie always does as she pleases, Mrs. Amesbury." And Mrs. Amesbury, with another shrug of her shoulders, gave up the argument and poured herself a second cup of tea.

And so it happened that as Junior Mason came up the elm walk toward the Country club, with the dull orange of the sunset behind him, he saw hurrying to meet him Tressie Stuart in scarlet coat and stiff brimmed hat.

"I should have died if I had stayed in there another minute," she told him. "Can't we walk somewhere before dark comes? This air is like wine."

"It's awfully muddy," he stated dubiously. "In this path under the trees. The other men are coming around by the road, but this was the shorter way, and I wanted to get a few minutes with you before the whole crowd began to pitile patile."

"Don't be slangy," Tressie admonished.

"Well, you wouldn't call their small talk conversation, would you? It's pitile patile, and Mrs. Amesbury is the worst of the lot."

"I am ashamed of you," Tressie scolded, "to criticise your elders."

"Mrs. Amesbury wouldn't thank you for calling her anybody's elder. She considers herself the leading juvenile of the Country club. That's why she's jealous of you."

Tressie stared at him.

"Junior," she said severely, "I didn't know you could be so critical of a woman."

He had the grace to look uncomfortable.

"She's made me so unhappy about you, Tressie," he blurted out at length.

"About me?"

"Yes, when you were away all summer and didn't write to me once."

Tressie's eyes were on the sunset.

"No, I didn't write," she said after a pause.

"Why not?"

"Mrs. Amesbury said—that there was another girl, Junior."

"What?"

"Yes. She said you were paying devoted attention to a little Kentucky singer."

"Oh!" Junior flung up his head. "And she told me you were going to marry old General Barnes."

"Who told you?" Tressie demanded.

"Mrs. Amesbury."

"Well, of all things!" Tressie's cheeks were flaming. "And you believed her, Junior?"

"Well, you believed about the Kentucky girl."

For a moment accusing brown eyes met accusing blue ones, and then they both laughed, the joyous laugh of youth that lets young hate fly its own again.

"She is good at fiction," Tressie summed up. "She ought to be published, Junior."

"Oh, let her go," Junior asserted, "and we will go for a walk, Tressie, and I will tell you all the things I have wanted to write and didn't dare."

But she would not go.

"It is getting too dark," she said, "and even if I have known you all my life, Junior, we must have some regard for conventions."

"Then let us slip in through the French windows and sit in the curtained alcove. They won't see us come in, and we can talk until dinner time."

The alcove was opposite the fireplace and gave a full view of the three women at the low wicker tea table. Mrs. Amesbury was prattling gayly.

"You see, dear Junior's money is a great temptation to the girls. Now, even Tressie"—

Tressie in concealment gasped, and there was wrath in her eyes.

"Don't mind her," Junior whispered. "I know you love me for myself."

Tressie whirled around on him.

"Who told you that I cared?" she demanded. "You are taking a great deal for granted, Junior."

"Please can't I take it for granted?" he urged. "I am going to propose to you right now, Tressie, or Mrs. Amesbury will never give me another chance."

They came out of their dream of happiness some time later to hear Angela protesting.

"But you wouldn't tie such beautiful girlishness as Tressie's to that worn-out old General Barnes?"

"He is very rich," Mrs. Amesbury evaded.

"I think Tressie will marry Junior Mason," Aunt Georgia said placidly. "They are great friends."

Mrs. Amesbury shook her head pityingly.

"Junior likes so many girls. Now, there was that little girl from Kentucky"—

Behind the curtains Junior growled "Pitile patile," but Tressie put her fingers over his lips, and he kissed the fingers and smiled at her.

"Junior Mason is in love with Tressie."—Miss Angela stated, "and you know it, Marion. You had better let him marry her, and then she will be out of the running."

Mrs. Amesbury stared at her sister-in-law haughtily. "I don't know what you mean, Angela," she said.

"Yes, you do." Miss Angela did not mince words. "You know you had always been the belle of the Country club until Tressie Stuart came, and you don't like to abdicate to youth and beauty."

Mrs. Amesbury straightened up in her chair and glared at the sear Miss Angela.

"You are insufferable, Angela," she began, and then, as the three missing men appeared in the doorway, she swept toward them. "We were just talking," she misstated sweetly, "of what we should have for dinner. Oysters and canvasbacks, don't you think, with orange salad and anything else you may suggest?"

Behind the curtains Tressie and Junior were arguing.

"I am going to announce it at once," Junior insisted.

"But"— Tressie began.

"There are no 'buts,'" Junior stated firmly, "and there are a dozen reasons why I should tell them that we are engaged."

And just then Mrs. Amesbury discovered them.

"Why, Tressie Stuart!" she cried as she opened the curtains. "How long have you been here?"

"Oh, a half hour," Tressie considered. "Haven't we, Junior?"

"Long enough for me to propose to Tressie," Junior said, making the astounding statement calmly.

"And she has said 'Yes,'" Junior went on. "I know you will congratulate us, Mrs. Amesbury."

And then with a gasp Mrs. Amesbury gave it up.

"My dear," she said bitingly as she kissed the reluctant Tressie, "who would have dreamed that it was poor little you that Junior really cared for?"

The Ermine.

Across the stream a little above the bank a beautiful white creature was running rapidly about among the stones. It would often vanish for a time, then come into view again at some distance from the hole into which it had disappeared. Ever on the move, peering and sniffing here, there and everywhere, it would have been almost invisible on the snow in its coat of pure white were it not for the jet black tip on its tail and the flashing deep brown eyes and inquisitive nose.

This graceful, active little creature was the ermine, with whose white fur we are all familiar and which in many countries is used for the royal robes of kings and queens to be worn at coronations and on other very special occasions. It is also used in some countries for the trimming of the cloaks of judges which they wear when sitting in court, and there is a saying that when a man is made a judge he "dons the ermine." In the olden days the fur of the ermine was symbolic of purity. In this country, the pretty white fur made up with the black tips of the tails placed at regular intervals is very popular.—Charles Livingston Bull in Metropolitan Magazine.

Historic Wedding Ring.

After the great battle of Edgehill, fought when Charles I. was king of England, it was noticed that one of his bravest officers, an ancestor of the present Verney family, was missing. Search was made for the gallant soldier. Nothing was found but the gloved hand, still clutching the royal standard, and the wedding ring which he always wore still encircled the finger. The ornament was worn outside the gloved hand. With this historic relic the Verney family of Claydon, Buckinghamshire, England, have solemnized all their marriages, the ordinary gold band always being substituted after the ceremony. One marriage in which this wonderful ring was in use was that of Sir Henry Verney to the sister of Florence Nightingale.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

ON A BUSINESS BASIS.

Fary Practical Details In Profitable Dairying.

By JOHN MICHELS, Clemson College, S. C.

Under average conditions a cow yielding twenty-two pounds of milk should have a ration composed of about two-thirds roughage and one-third concentrates. By a number of trial calculations we find that the required nutrients are approximately obtained by selecting six pounds of wheat bran, four pounds of cottonseed meal, eight pounds of corn stover and forty pounds of corn silage. For greater yields it is best, as a rule, to increase only the concentrates to meet the requirements of the additional flow of milk, thus making the proportion of concentrate to roughage greater the larger the yield of milk.

The main part of the ration should be supplied in two feeds, one in the morning and the other in the late afternoon. It is desirable to feed some dry roughage at noon, especially when the roughage in the morning and evening consists of silage. The cow, on account of her large storeroom, the paunch, is capable of storing up a large quantity of feed and therefore does not require as many feeds as some other farm animals.

Concentrates and Roughage.

As a rule, it is best to feed the concentrates just previous to milking and the roughage immediately thereafter. The grain helps to attract the cows to their stalls, and by feeding the roughage after milking we avoid tainting the milk with undesirable odors when the roughage contains these. When corn silage, for example, is fed immediately before or during milking its odor is always perceptible in the milk. When fed after milking the odor is never detected. It is believed also that feeding the concentrates by themselves will result in a more thorough mixing of the saliva with them and thus increase their digestibility. Furthermore, a great deal of dust can be avoided by feeding the roughage after milking, particularly when the roughage consists of hay or dry fodder.

A prevailing opinion that heavy concentrates will form an injurious, pasty mass in the cow's stomach does not seem to be well founded. When the concentrates are fed directly before milking and the roughage directly after there will be sufficient mixing in the paunch before the contents pass into the stomach proper. The writer for several years has successfully followed the practice of feeding concentrates and roughage separately when the former consisted of as much as five pounds of cottonseed meal per day.

An average cow in full flow of milk will consume forty pounds of corn silage to good advantage. This amount of silage, combined with eight or ten pounds of dry fodder or hay, makes a good combination of roughage for a dairy cow.

Successful Feeding.

In the economical production of milk it is absolutely essential to feed cows according to their capacity. Just what this productive capacity is can be determined only by keeping a careful account of the feed consumed and the milk and butter fat yielded by each cow individually.

About half the nutrients called for in a ration for an average milker are used to sustain the body, so that it will neither gain nor lose weight, the other half being used to form milk. Returns for feed can therefore be expected only from about 50 per cent of the total nutrients required.

This means that a cow on a full ration will yield practically twice as much milk as she would on three-fourths of a ration. Yet there are thousands of dairymen who fail to supply the last quarter of a ration and thus bring ruin upon themselves and their business.

Battle of the Bullocks.

When the senior calves (grades) were sifted of their trash, some real beauties stood before the judge. Here was uncovered the champion of the grades and eventually the grand champion of the show. This was the handsome grade Shorthorn calf Roan King,

GRADE CALF ROAN KING.
[Champion of the grades and grand champion of the show at the late international.]

shown by James Lrask of Ontario. He is a son of Gloster's Choice, and his dam was by Royal Banner, a bull which came to this side. He is a grand calf, with remarkable arch of rib, a finely finished front, light lower lines and little waste as a killer, and he is smoothly covered on back and ribs. The chief criticism lies in his tendency toward softness of flesh.

As a type of a Shorthorn show steer, with a weight of 1,060 pounds at about thirteen months old, Roan King fills a high ideal. He is quite mature, although in the calf class.—Breeder's Gazette.

Maintenance of Beef Cows.

At the Illinois experiment station the corn plant, fed either in the form of shock corn, or silage, supplemented with a limited amount of clover hay, proved satisfactory rations for wintering beef breeding cows. Under the conditions of this experiment silage produced 41 per cent greater gain in live weight than an equal acreage of shock corn.

PRETTY FEET.

How to Preserve Their Shape and Condition.

That a pretty foot is one of woman's greatest charms is universally conceded, and the woman who wants to preserve the shape of her pedal extremities must perforce bestow considerably more attention upon them than she is credited with doing, says the Chicago Tribune. To keep them trim and shapely hot baths should be resorted to. A frequent change of shoes is advisable, as it rests the feet and helps to keep them in good condition. After a long tramp bathe them in warm water, afterward rubbing with bay rum or cologne. But, after all, the weekly pedicuring should not be forgotten. It is just as important as manicuring. After a hot footbath all callosities should be treated with pumice stone, and if one desires to prevent their return apply a plaster of chamois skin with a hole in the center. This will not only relieve, but cure. Toe nails do not need trimming as often as finger nails. They should be trimmed square across, kept at a moderate length and otherwise treated as those of the fingers.

The feet should be washed every morning. If it were made a daily custom the beauty of the feet would be better preserved, and there would be fewer corns, blisters and bunions. Should the feet be prone to dampness the stockings should be changed every day, and the soles of the clean stockings should be sprinkled with some good toilet powder.

Patent leather has a bad effect on many feet, and therefore women with tender feet should avoid it. Slippers of a much thinner leather, called patent kid, can be obtained. This looks quite as smart and does the feet far less harm.

How to Check Bleeding.

The country boy knows that the fine dust of the brown fungi he calls puffballs will stop bleeding, says Harper's Bazar. When he cuts himself he hunts for one of these if the cut is not serious. If the cut is deep, it is wise to bathe it in warm water with carbolic in it or a tablet of chloride of mercury dissolved in the water. Carefully remove all foreign matter in the washing, and then, pinching the lips of the cut together, put on strips of adhesive plaster, be sure to leave little spaces for pus to run out. This running of pus is a natural process and is not alarming unless persistent and the pus comes in unreasonable quantities. Sometimes the blood flows so rapidly that you cannot close the wound with plaster. If so, tie a bandage tightly above the wound before you attend to the wound itself. This will stop the flow of blood, and, nature having formed her clot, you can do your part with plaster.

A Different Case.

"What's the matter, old man?"

"Oh, an old uncle of mine is coming up from the country to visit me. He's one of the greenest old guys in seven states. I suppose he'll make me the laughingstock of everybody that knows me."

"It isn't your Uncle Henry, who was up here last year, is it?"

"Yes."

"You didn't seem to be afraid that he'd make a laughingstock of you then."

"I know, but he's gone and lost all his money."—Chicago News.

Socialism Department

Conducted Under the Auspices of the Socialist Party of the United States.

What Is Socialism?

It is the purpose here to give a brief definition of Socialism, so brief and simple that any one can comprehend it, and yet if possible complete enough to embrace all the essential elements of the philosophy. The following will serve as such a definition:

Socialism is a social and political programme that proposes—

First.—The collective ownership of the greater material means of production and distribution.

Second.—The democratic organization and control of industry.

Third.—The substitution of a co-operative in the place of the present competitive and trust system.

Fourth.—Private property in personal income and of wealth pertaining to the private life.

Fifth.—The organization of an independent political party distinct from and opposed to all capitalistic parties for the capture of the powers of government in order to put the above principles into operation.

Socialism Not Anarchism.

When persons approve of individualism and denounce Socialism, saying it is akin to anarchy, they show their ignorance. Individualism is near to anarchy, but far from Socialism. Socialism and anarchy are extremes, the former wanting government supreme, the latter wanting to destroy it. Many persons favor individualism and denounce Socialism as being akin to anarchy, thereby showing their gross ignornnce, for their own hobby, individualism, is next door to anarchy.—Professor J. Allen Smith.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY HIGH WATER

Rivers in Various Parts of the Country Are Out of Banks.

BAD SITUATION AT PITTSBURG

Railway Traffic Blocked by High Water and Also by Big Landslides.

Serious Situation In Southern Indiana —Bridges Swept Away and Buildings Flooded With Water— Mails Abandoned.

Pittsburg, Feb. 15.—With a stage of nineteen feet and rapidly rising at the rate of a foot an hour, the Allegheny, Monongahela, Ohio, Youghiogheny and Kiskiminetas rivers are slowly spreading over the lowlands of Pittsburg and western Pennsylvania points.

The damage to river craft and property located near the rivers is already heavy. Large ice gorges in the Allegheny and Youghiogheny rivers above this city are momentarily expected to break, wrecking and demolishing craft in its path. Some alarm is also felt for a number of bridges.

Business Houses Flooded.

At points here the high water has risen to the ground floors of business houses and dwellings. Throughout the night hundreds of people were actively engaged removing their household goods to places of safety.

Several railroads and street car lines will be forced to abandon service in this city owing to the water covering the tracks. All the small streams in towns surrounding Pittsburg are beyond their banks and the water is rapidly rising. Thousands of families at Sharpsburg, Etna, Aspinwall, Charleroi, Oakdale, and numerous other places have been compelled to remove their household goods to the upper floors. In some of the towns skiffs are being used as a means of transportation to many homes.

Landslides Delay Trains.

Several heavy landslides happened along the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston railroad from the city, delaying trains and making transportation dangerous. On the north side the rolling stock of the Pittsburg and Western division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was moved out of the danger zone. The tracks, freight houses and station of this road have been abandoned. A number of pavements along Penn avenue have collapsed and cellars are rapidly being filled with water.

Many coal mines along the river bank are flooded and thousands of coal miners compelled to abandon their work. In Allegheny a squad of picked patrolmen—or the "skiff patrol," are guarding the inundated territory in boats.

In Southern Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 15.—While northern and central Indiana is swept by snow and wind storms the northern part of the state is suffering from floods. Reports from Princeton, Vincennes, Evansville and other points express fear of a still higher stage of water. Rivers are out of bank and in several counties bridges have been carried away and buildings in the lowlands are under water. A dispatch from Bloomington says the flood there is perhaps the greatest since 1888. The Monon railroad lost a bridge near Salem and a half mile of track has been washed out. At Bedford bottom lands are overflowed. Rural mail routes were abandoned.

Kentucky Towns In Danger.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15.—Streams throughout eastern Kentucky are rising rapidly as a result of the four days rain and great damage is feared by lumber concerns along the Kentucky, the Red, Cumberland, Licking and Big Sandy rivers. River men have extra forces of men at work strengthening log booms to hold the thousands of logs which will sweep down upon them. This rush has already began. Several towns in the lowlands along the Licking river are reported as in danger of being entered by water.

Flood at Springfield, O.

Springfield, O., Feb. 15.—Buck creek is higher than since 1898 and fully one hundred and ten houses in this city are flooded. No lives have been lost, but boats were kept busy all night carrying people out of their submerged homes. All suburban traction lines entering the city were out of commission. No cars were running on the city lines, the power houses being flooded.

Parts of Buffalo Flooded.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The waters of Buffalo and Scajaquada creeks in the southern and northern sections of this city, respectively, overflowed their banks and there is from two to three feet of water in the streets. Many cellars are flooded, fires in furnaces extinguished, and thousands of dollars damage has been done to property.

Burned by Incendiary Fires.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 15.—As the result of four incendiary fires in the residence section of South Butte an indignation meeting was held by the people of that portion of the city. The facts of the fire are too conclusive to admit of anything but incendiarism. One woman narrowly escaped being burned to death.

While it is conceded by all patrons that the office of lecturer is the most important and the one upon which the success of every subordinate grange hinges, too often, after a lecturer is installed the members are apt to sit back and criticiee his work work and expect him to do it all.

In no other position is the co-operation of everybody needed more than in the lecture work of a grange and without the encouragement which a lecturer receives, by the readiness with which the members respond to the calls of their leader, can the lecturer's work be made successful.

Not only is it a part of every patron's obligation, but it is a duty which they owe to their chosen officers, when program assignments are made, to respond with the words "I'll try," and not "I can't." All things are possible to the one who starts out with the determination to succeed, and no task will be assigned you which you are not able to perform if you approuch it in the proper spirit.

Coolness Averts a Train Wreck.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 15. — Because Engineers Willis Gilbert and John L. Watkins had the nerve to stick to their seats and turn on the brakes, the Grand Trunk was spared a serious head-on collision. Despite their efforts the two locomotives were badly damaged and two loaded freight cars demolished. It is charged that Gilbert brought his freight into the yard without regarding signals just as Watkins' engine started out. No one was injured.

Out of Place.

A white marble statue of an ancestor adorns the ground of Mrs. Blair's country estate, and one of her maids, a fresh arrival from Cape Breton, recently asked what "that" was there for.

Mrs. Blair explained and, being armed to the teeth with the history of this her most distinguished forbear, added something about his life work and great principles.

"Don't you admire the figure?" she asked.

"No, mem," the girl from Cape Breton replied. "I don't like dead men staudin' up in front of people's houses He'd ought to be in his grave. That's where he belongs."—Youth's Companion.

Medicine That Is Medicine.

"I have suffered a good deal with malaria and stomach complaints, but I have now found a remedy that keeps me well, and that remedy is Electric Bitters; a medicine that is medicine for stomach and liver troubles, and for run down conditions," says W. DISTEMPER IN DOGS.

How to Detect and Cure This Dreaded Malady.

Distemper, one of the most dreaded among dog illnesses, is an affection which is microbian in its nature and is susceptible of affecting the greater part of the organs. It is therefore extremely variable in its manifestations, says the New York Herald.

Should it take the form of gastro-intestinal catarrh it then offers as symptoms vomiting and diarrhea, with a general feverish state, characterized by a profound depression, a wretched appearance of the face, which the state of the eyes, filled with a thick mucous pus, only tends to make worse.

In this case ice must be given in small fragments to stop the vomiting, and the diarrhea must be combated by a potion with a basis of salicylate of bismuth and sirup of ratanhia. It is well also to feed the sick dog exclusively with boiled milk to which has been added some vichy water.

If the suffering animal coughs and ejects from the nostrils a thick liquid which forms crusts when dry, these signs prove that it is the respiratory tract which is attacked. It is well then to give fumigations with mallow and elder flowers and eucalyptus leaves and a vomitive of sirup of ipecacuanha. If in spite of this treatment the cough does not give way, recourse must be had to calming potions of sirup of poppies or belladonna and to bromide of potassium.

Should the animal show labial puffing—that is to say, should during the expiration his cheeks and his lips swell—the lungs are then affected by the inflammation; it is a case of pneumonia. Mustard plasters must then be placed under the chest and on each side of the thorax, and a portion of tincture of digitalis must be given. The food must consist of substances easy of digestion—milk, meat broth, cream, yolks of eggs, meat juice. Should the general condition call for it, it will be well to give hot grogs made with old cognac or rum.

When the nervous system is affected the manifestations are most serious. They are characterized by "cerebral or medullary meningitis," which frequently ends in paralysis. The spinal column and the back of the neck must be rubbed with an ointment containing antimony, and an energetic revulsion in the intestine must be brought about by a strong purge. In the event of serious convulsions and of intense pains characterized by whining and howling morphine may be administered.

The form of the disease least to be feared is that which shows itself on those parts of the skin which are hairless by an eruption similar to human smallpox. This eruption must be allowed to follow its course, and should the itching become too irritating a lukewarm very weak solution of permanganate of potash should be used as a lotion. This should be followed by powdering with a mixture of talc, starch and potato starch.

Should the animal recover it must be put on a severe diet during its convalescence and allowed to eat only gradually. A specialist recommends a potion a teaspoonful of which is to be given during the acute period of the disease. The formula is as follows:

	Grams.
Salicylate of bismuth	5
Extract of kola	5
Sirup of ratanhia	80
Paregoric elixir	2
Water	60

Then during convalescence he recommends the following mixture to be given in doses of from two to four tablespoonfuls daily:

Dry pepsines	10 grams
Tincture of cinnamon	6 grams
Tincture of nux vomica	21 drops
Kola wine	200 grams

How to Make Slips For Waists.

Slips to keep fancy and dressy waists free from dust when hanging in the closet may be made of cambric or some other cheap material. They are made of two oblong pieces of material sewed together in exactly the same manner as a pillowslip is made. It does not need to be as large as a pillowslip, but it must be plenty large enough, so that it does not crease the waist. On one side of the opening at the top sew two buttons, each one six or eight inches from the ends. On the opposite side in corresponding places work buttonholes. Place the waist over a hanger and draw the slip up over it, then button at the top, and you will have a fine protector for your waist. Slips for skirts may be made in the same manner, making them lots longer, of course.

How to Cut Glass.

Any hard steel tool will cut glass with great facility when freely wet with camphor dissolved in turpentine. A drill may be used or even the hand alone. A hole bored may be easily enlarged by a round file. The ragged edges of glass vessels may also be easily smoothed thus with a flat file. Window glass may be readily sawed with a watch spring saw by aid of this solution.

How to Keep Stray Hairs In Place.

The little wisps of hair which cause so much annoyance on windy days can be kept in place with invisible hairpins. But few women know how to keep in the pins. Push the locks in place, slip in the pin, then turn back one point of the pin until the end touches the top. They are easily taken out, but will keep firmly in even the roughest wind.

How to Keep Your Pocketbook.

To prevent losing your pocketbook while shopping tie a ribbon or cord to handle of purse and fasten inside of jacket sleeve with a safety pin. Your purse cannot then be slipped off your arm without your knowledge nor left on the counter, as is the case in many instances.

B. BROWN HARNESS CO.

Spiders With Tails.

The only insect which enjoys the luxury of a tail is a little spider found in the northeast of Tasmania. This insect is a pale greenish-brown in color, and its body when full grown is just about the size of a sunflower seed. In times of peace the tail, which is three-eighths to a quarter of an inch in length, lies placid and straight, but when on the warpath it is drawn up into an angry, vertical position. The spider is, however, harmless, and the mosquito is its favorite diet. Its domestic life is a villainous one, for when old enough to assert its independence it devours its parents and takes full possession of the parental web.—Melbourne Every Saturday.

How to Corn Beef.

To corn beef make a brine of three quarts of water, one cup salt, half a cup of brown sugar and saltpeter the size of a hazelnut. Boil all together. After trying this you will never buy your meat already corned

THE GOLD FIELDS OF NEVADA

Interesting Letter from Ava Smith About Them.

WRITTEN TO GEORGE W. DENNIS

The Story of a Lucky Strike—How Quickly Towns Spring Up.

Irrigation is Necessary to Produce Crops, Then Bumper Ones are Grown—Other Information.

The following interesting letter received by George W. Dennis from Ava Smith will be read with much pleasure by Mr. Smith's host of friends in all portions of Charlevoix county.

Lovelock, Nevada, Feb. 11, 1908.

Friend Dennis:

Received your letter this morning, also one from Ava, was very glad to hear from you and to hear you were in good health, but I feel sorry for you folks up there where you have so much of "the beautiful." We are around in our shirt sleeves and the sun shining all day.

We have a breeze here today; the most wind I have felt since I struck Nevada, but I can tell you it is not so chilly as the breezes you are getting up there. I believe since God drove Adam and Eve out of the garden of Eden, there has never been a place that did not have its drawbacks, but I also believe it would be hard to find a place that had more of them than northern Michigan. It makes me mad to think I have wasted the best years of my life there.

Well, the ranchers are all busy now cleaning their irrigating ditches, so they can turn the water onto their alfalfa fields as soon as it gets warm enough. You asked me in your letter, "If they had to irrigate here?" They do, or they could not raise a disturbance, for down in these valleys it gets very hot in the long summer days and the ground would bake as hard as a brick, but with the water they grow great crops: From twelve to eighteen tons of alfalfa to the acre; so you see, ten acres here will cut nearly as much as one hundred and sixty would there, and they don't have to feed six or seven months out of the twelve. The ranchers pay, during the season, from thirty to forty dollars per month with board. Some of them employ from thirty to fifty hands.

You said you would like to be out here and dig some of the gold. Well, the other day, two prospectors dug into an old mountain about twenty miles from here and struck it rich, as the saying is. They dug or blew off some chunks, staked out their claims, then came up here to the assay office to see what it was worth. It was worth a dollar the pound. At daylight the next morning a horse could not be found in town. Every wagon and buggy was gone. The news was wired to Reno and there were ten times as many went from there. I believe there are over one thousand people there now. Before noon the next day after the find the fellows that made the find, were offered ten thousand dollars apiece for their claims, but the most of those fellows blow their money on gambling and whiskey, then look out for another strike.

To let you know how quick a town will grow up out here: A man made a strike in a valley east of here late last fall. Now there are over three thousand people there, three printing offices, about a dozen hotels, telegraph and telephone lines and doctors and lawyers galore. How is that for building up a town?

Have mailed Ava the paper giving the account of the new find. If you see him you can get it. Mrs. Smith is still homesick, but I won't come back till the snow is gone, you can bet on that.

Eggs have been sixty cents, but are now forty. One and one-half pound rolls of butter seventy-five cents.

Yours,
AVA SMITH.

NEXT SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Grammar Grades Will Exhibit Their Work March 6.

Supt. Butler, of Central Lake, Will Address Parents' Meeting Same Date.

Supt. H. E. Bell, of Boyne City, visited our schools Friday, February 21, and met with the teachers at 4:00 o'clock, where he gave some very helpful suggestions and comments on the work. He addressed the parents' meeting in the evening on the "Co-operation of Parents and Teachers in Child Training." His talk was very helpful and inspiring. Every parent in Charlevoix should have heard him.

The next meeting will be held Friday, March 8, from 7:15 to 8:00. Supt. Butler, of Central Lake, will talk on "Music and Drawing in the Schools." Everybody who is interested in this topic or in the schools should attend the meeting. In connection with this meeting an exhibit of the work in the grammer grades will be held Friday afternoon in the music room.

APRIL 1, 1908

That is the date fixed by Uncle Sam when the COURIER, as well as EVERY newspaper, must cut from its list every name that is one year or more in arrears on subscription. We all know that Uncle Sam is not a joker. What he says is exactly what he means—there must be no trifling and no evasion of the law in any manner. Every subscription one year or more in arrears must be settled for in value received before April 1. Under the law, we must, after April 1, if required, furnish to the agents of the national government from time to time, whenever required, complete copies of our subscription lists. Uncle Sam proposes to know, in other words, that we obey the law in letter and spirit. This rule applies to every newspaper in the land, daily, semi-weekly, monthly, etc.

Newspaper publishers are in no way responsible for the passage of this law, but like the subscriber, we have no choice other than to comply with it. We hope every subscriber of the COURIER realizes the gravity of the situation and and understands the position in which the publishers are placed. If he continues to send papers to those who are one year or more in arrears, and who do not expressly renew their subscription before April 1, 1908, such papers will be refused admission to the mails at the second class rate of one cent per pound, and must pay at least one cent on each paper. The latter provision would cost the COURIER 52 cents on each yearly subscription and would put us out of business in short order. The only alternative is to comply with the law and cut some papers off the list.

Every subscriber has received or will receive notice of when his time expires and we hope will do what he can without waiting to have any further notice from us, to save us from any trouble with Uncle Sam, as we surely do not want to cut off a single name from our list.

We will very much appreciate a cordial response to this notice. A few have already formed the habit of paying their subscriptions to this paper in advance, so that no notice to them is necessary. But there are still a great many of our subscription accounts that must be adjusted before April 1, 1908. We trust that all such will "do the needful." It will take some time to correct our lists after remittances are all in, so it is desirable to have payments all made before March 15 if possible. If not, please write us at once stating when you can pay.

The time is short and we hope every subscriber who is in arrears will give prompt and cheerful attention to this notice. We invite our subscribers to work with us so that we may on April 1 turn over to Uncle Sam the COURIER'S subscription list with every name paid to some date in 1909. The amount necessary to do this is small with any subscriber. But it will aggregate a large amount. Editors are not usually embarrassed to know what to do with their funds; and if all subscribers will pay up, we promise to make good use of the money. If all subscribers will do this, it will square us with Uncle Sam, who then can find no fault with the COURIER. We are modest enough to believe the COURIER is worthy of that kind of treatment by all our subscribers.

FIRE AT MANCELONA

Thursday Night, February 20—Loss Over $75,000.

Three Stores Destroyed—Five Families Lost Household Goods.

Fire which broke out at Mancelona at 9:30 Thursday night destroyed three two-story brick buildings owned by John Otis, and caused a loss aggregating over $75,000.

The fire started from an unknown cause in the dry goods store of Jacob Barnett, and quickly spread to the adjoining buildings. Four families occupied rooms above the stores and these were driven out, some of them without time to dress.

Mrs. Frohman, who occupied rooms over the rear of Barnett's store, escaped in her night clothes, with her baby in her arms. In her haste she stumbled at the top of a flight of stairs and rolled to the street, still with the child clasped to her breast. Neither the woman nor the baby was seriously injured.

The losses from the fire are:

John Otis, buildings, $35,000; Jacob Barnett, dry goods stock, $30,000; Jess Wisler, grocery stock, $10,000; C. E. Blakely, drugs, loss nominal, as most of his stock was removed; Hiram Hudson, law offices fixtures and library, and the families of Frohman, McGoon, Gardner and Williams, household goods.

The Barnett store was closed at 8:30 and when the fire was discovered an hour later it had excellent headway and the entire front of the store was ablaze. The volunteer fire department was called out and soon had four lines of hose playing on the fire. Through the efforts of the fire department the flames were confined to the three buildings. For a time the Otis hotel was threatened, but fire was under control at midnight.

There was not a vacant store building in town, but it is likely that some temporary provision will be made and the three concerns burned out will continue in business.

OPENED LAST SATURDAY

W. E. Black's Bakery and Confectionery Store Now Doing Business.

W. E. Black, whose purchase of the Palace bakery formerly conducted by E. E. Shelters, the COURIER made note of a few weeks ago, opened for business Saturday.

Mr. Black has engaged John Mills, an experienced baker of Kalamazoo, has thoroughly overhauled the building all over, both the store and the work room, has put in a new floor, and new benches in the bakeshop, and offers to the public a full and complete stock in his line. Having been a resident of Charlevoix for over thirty years, he needs no introduction to the people of this vicinity who know that they will always be assured of square dealing.

New Pythian Hall.

This week the Knights of Pythias are using their new hall in the Wilbur building over Myers' cigar store. The members of the lodge have remodelled the entire second floor of the building so that it makes ideal quarters; containing a lodge room of fair size; a store room for regalia, paraphernalia, etc.; the usual ante-room with coat closet adjoining; and two smoking or waiting rooms connected by an arch.

On Monday evening the lodge held a special session and initiated a class of six in the first degree. Tuesday evening an informal ball was given in the new lodge rooms by members of the order, and the regular meeting Thursday evening promises to be unusually interesting and well attended.

The boys are justly proud of their new home, and the lodge is acquiring a very prosperous and energetic air.

Cards was also a feature of the evening, favors being presented by the hostess to each guest as they moved to the music in a grand march. During their stay in Charlevoix, Captain and Mrs. Fountain have made many friends, who will regret their absence, as no social function seemed complete without their presence and as they leave us they carry with them a lasting remembrance and well wishes of a host of friends.

WHITE OUT OF THE RACE

Withdraws as a Candidate to the National Convention.

In Favor of H. S. Hutt, Traverse City—Francis King and Michael Brown Mentioned.

Although many of his friends have urged W. H. White, of Boyne, to become a candidate for delegate to the national republican convention, he has decided to withdraw in favor of his friend, H. S. Hull, of Traverse City, and will support that gentleman, who has announced himself a candidate. This decision and the influence that can be brought to bear with it, is thought in this end of the district to cinch the nomination of Mr. Hull. Mr. White has always been a great admirer of the latter gentleman, hence the decision to withdraw on his part.

Mr. White is president of the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena railroad and operates extensive industries in this part of the state. Mr. Hull is a well known manufacturer at Traverse City. Judge Michael Brown, of Big Rapids, and Francis King, of Alma, are others whose names have been mentioned for delegates in the district.

LOSS IS UP IN THE THOUSANDS

Boyne City Has a Destructive Blaze Monday Night.

WAS FINEST BLOCK IN THE CITY

Fire Confined to the One Building by Hard Work of Firemen.

Rebuilding Will Commence at Once on a Larger Scale Than Formerly—Nine Firms Seek New Quarters.

Monday night Boyne City suffered a severe loss by fire, which at one time threatened to destroy the entire business section of the city, but owing to the heavy snow on the roofs of the buildings, it was kept confined to the building where it originated by the efficient work of the city fire department, but the principal business and office block of the city is in ruins, and much valuable property was destroyed.

About nine o'clock Monday night, smoke was discovered issuing from the Hub Clothing Company's store, owned by S. E. Edelstein, occupying a room in the bank block, owned by the First National Bank, the finest business block in the city.

Although the fire department was quickly on the scene, the fire had gained such headway that the building, which was of brick veneer, was soon a mass of ruins. By hard work on the part of the firemen the fire was kept confined to the original building, an addidion, which was recently built, being protected by a fire wall.

The losses are estimated at this writing to be about as follows:

On building $18,000, insurance about $12,500, building a total loss.

First National Bank $2,000, fully insured, all books and records saved. Hub Clothing Company loss $15,000, insurance $8,000. Quick Iron, furniture, loss $4,000, insurance $2,000. J. M. Harris, law office, loss $3,000, insurance $1,200. Knowles & Converse, law offices, loss $3,000, insurance, $2,000. E. A. Rengsegger, justice office, loss $400, no insurance. Boyne City Lumber Co. loss $2,000, partly insured. W. H. White Lumber Co. loss $5,000, partly insured. City clerk loss $2,000, insurance $800. Hart's barber shop and bath rooms, total loss.

The First National bank moved into rooms across the street and opened for business the next morning. It is announced that the work of rebuilding will commence at once and a better and larger building will be put up.

MAD DOG AT ATWOOD

Thirteen Persons and Many Animals Bitten.

Finally Killed by Albert Byers—Seven Victims Go to Ann Arbor.

Because they were bitten by a dog supposedly mad, Miss Orrine Wood, aged 13, and John Edwards, aged 14, both of Antrim county, left for Ann Arbor last week to take the Pasteur treatment. Miss Wood was alone in the barn yard on her mother's farm when the dog came running up and leaped for her face. She didn't lose presence of mind or nerve, but seizing a pitchfork beat off the animal. It was too close for effective blows, however, and the dog succeeded in fastening his teeth in her right leg. She continued belaboring the animal until it desisted.

Running along the highway, it caught the Edwards boy by the hand, lacerating it badly, and then went on to the school, running into the building. The pupils drove it out before it had injured anyone. The animal bit 13 persons before it was killed by Albert Byers in his sheep pen. Many sheep, cattle and horses were bitten and an epidemic of rabies is feared. A general slaughter of suspected animals is in progress.

Miss Wood is a neice of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wood, of this city. The last reports are that after taking the treatment they are getting along nicely.

TRAIN WRECKERS WORK FOR NAUGHT

Lay Their Plans All Right but Wrong Train Comes Along.

FREICHT, NOT EXPRESS, DITCHED

Fatal Accident on the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad in Iowa.

One of the Wounded Victims Saves a Passenger Train from Being Wrecked—Baltimore and Ohio Wreck.

Sedalia, Mo., Feb. 22.—An attempt to derail an eastbound fast passenger train on the Missouri Pacific railroad, evidently for the purpose of robbery, was made at Otterville, twenty miles east of here, at midnight, a rail having been removed. The bad place in the track was struck by an extra freight train from St. Louis. The freight was wrecked, the engineer, fireman and brakeman being seriously injured.

Built Fire on Track.

The train that the wreckers evidently sought to catch left Kansas City at 9:30 at night for St. Louis. It was known as No. 4 and was supposed to carry considerable money. The wreckers had removed a rail on what is known as Otterville hill, a mile and a half east of Otterville, and built a fire between the tracks, to bring the passenger train to a standstill. The freight crew failed to notice the fire until close upon it and too late to stop and the engine and seven cars were derailed and badly demolished.

Names of the Injured.

Three members of the crew were seriously injured. They are: Robert H. Johnson, engineer; Eugene Hogan fireman; Hugh Harvey, head brakeman. The injured men were brought to the railway hospital at Sedalia for treatment. No one was permitted to see them, and it was impossible to learn their exact condition or to get a story from them. It is known, however, that they were seriously injured Missouri Pacific officials here say that they have no clew to the would-be robbers.

SWITCH ENGINE DERAILED

One Person Killed—Injured Man Prevents Passenger Wreck.

Fort Dodge, Ia., Feb. 22.—As the result of a broken rail on the Minneapolis and St. Louis railway, two miles south of this city, a switch engine plunged down a twenty-five foot embankment. Instantly killing George Scott, switchman, and injuring four others on board, all living in this city. Engineer Charles Snook and Fireman Ross Juiman had just helped the long south-bound train out of the city and over a steep grade near the Des Moines river and were returning to the yards with a light engine and three men aboard. The slack of striking the broken rail broke the tender loose and threw Switchman Scott under the falling tender.

Other lives might have been added to the list of casualties but for the bravery of Floyd White, one of the men aboard, who, upon returning to consciousness, remembered that an extra from the south was due at that moment. He dragged himself along the track and signalled the train as it rounded a sharp curve.

Passenger Train Derailed.

Connellsville, Pa., Feb. 22.—Train No. 9, from New York to Pittsburg, on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was wrecked at Salisbury Junction, forty miles east of here, at 5 o'clock in the morning. With the exception of the engine, mail car and first baggage car, the train was derailed. According to local officials of the road, one passenger—Rudolph Leonard, of the University of New York—was injured by being thrown from his berth. The cause of the accident is not known.

Poison from Postage Stamps.

New York, Feb. 22.—For the second time in two years Miss Myra Silvernale, of Norfolk, Conn., is in a New York hospital suffering from a disease of the tongue which is said to have been contracted through contact with postage stamps while she was engaged as an assistant in the Norfolk postoffice. The disease is exceedingly painful and the hospital surgeons are at a loss to account for it, but believe it to be the result of poisoning.

Tragedy at the Supper Table.

Hotchkiss, Colo., Feb. 22.—Insane with rage because she objected to him scolding one of their children, M. U. Stoneburner, aged forty-one, a prominent and wealthy farmer living near this city, shot and perhaps fatally wounded his wife, and then placed the smoking revolver against his own heart and committed suicide before his six little children, seated around the supper table.

"FIRST VOTERS" TAKE A PLEDGE

"Freeman's Oath" Administered to Two Thousand Men in New York by Bishop Potter.

New York, Feb. 22.—Two thousand "first voters" and a number of Bowery "floaters" took the "freemen's oath" at a meeting of the People's institute at Cooper Union. The oath was administered by Bishop Henry C. Potter who told of the origin of the oath in 1634. The words of the oath taken were as follows:

"I do solemnly bind myself that I will give my vote and suffrage as I shall judge in mine own conscience may best conduce to the public weal, so help me God."

Before asking those present to subscribe to this pledge of good citizenship, Bishop Potter spoke of the responsibility resting on voters and said it was at present exercised without proper training, soberness and thought.

Startling Charge Made by Police Commissioner of New York.

KNOWN CRIMINALS ARE LET IN

Immigration Authorities Are Said To Be Responsible in the Matter.

New York Police Have Records of Fifty Italian Criminals, Only Six of Whom Have Been Deported—Case Stated.

New York, Feb. 22.—That New York is a dumping ground for the criminals of Europe and that the immigration authorities are to blame for this fact, is the opinion of Police Commissioner Bingham.

"We have had records of fifty Italian criminals," said Bingham, "which would exclude them from this country, or once here, should bring about their deportation. Out of these fifty only six have been deported, notwithstanding the fact that the police have been ready to furnish the immigration department at all times with information to keep out and send out of the country these habitual criminals.

Arrested at Request of U. S.

"About a year ago we learned there was in New York an Italian who had been an habitual criminal in Europe. We had his record and he was the most undesirable sort of a citizen. He had killed a negro in a highway robbery; had served several terms in prison, one of six years for robbery and in every way had demonstrated his habitual viciousness.

"The police made a search for this man and learned where he was living. On Dec. 3, 1907, we heard there was a warrant out for his arrest at the instance of the United States department of commerce and labor. He was arrested, admitted his identity to the police and further admitted that he had served at least one term in a European prison.

Police Kept in Dark.

"He was sent to Ellis Island and turned over to the proper officers there. We believed him to have been deported, until recently, when we found that he was still in New York. Lawrence O. Murray, assistant commissioner of the department of commerce and labor, has informed us that the Italian denied his identity. This man, capable of any crime, was released without the police being even notified and we were given no opportunity to prove that he was a fit subject for deportation. This instance is only one of many that might be cited."

Immigration Commissioner Watchorn is in Washington, and none of his subordinates would discuss the charges made by Commissioner Bingham.

Miles City, Mont., Feb. 22.—The A. B. Clark ranch, one of the largest in Montana, comprising 20,700 acres, has been sold to W. H. Dye, of Indianapolis, Ind.

HOT FIGHT WITH FREIGHT THIEVES

Detectives Overpower Burglars After Hand-to-Hand Conflict.

CAUGHT BREAKING INTO CAR

Brakeman Who Sought to Interfere Threatened with Instant Death.

Police Believe They Have a Gang Which Has Stolen Many Thousand Dollars Worth of Goods from Cars.

New York, Feb. 21.—After holding up a brakeman who had surprised them in the act of robbing a freight car in the New York Central railroad yards at Eighty-Fifth street early in the day and making him a prisoner at the point of revolvers until they had finished looting the car, three men were overpowered by detectives after a desperate fight. In the arrest of the men the police believe they have a gang which has stolen many thousands of dollars worth of goods from freight cars during the past few months.

Threatened to Kill Brakeman.

The men were at work on a car door when a brakeman on a train which had just drawn in from Albany saw them and called out to them to get away from the car. Their reply, which was enforced by three levelled revolvers, was that if the brakeman attempted to come down from the car upon which he was standing he would be "shot as full of holes as a screen door." Then, while one of their number remained on guard over the brakeman, the others returned to their work. After they had removed a quantity of valuable goods from the car the thieves carefully sealed the door with a counterfeit seal.

Captured After Desperate Fight.

It was then that the detectives came upon the scene. They had been waiting in the yards in the hope of catching the men who had been using false seals for months and had witnessed the encounter between the brakeman and the robbers. When the door had been sealed four detectives sprang from the car tops where they had been hiding. In a desperate hand-to-hand fight which followed the detectives finally were victorious and the three men were locked up. The men gave their names as John T. Hughes, Alfred Rogers and Peter Brady. In a boat house where Hughes had lived the detectives found goods valued at more than $1,000.

FIRE DESTROYS BIG AUTO PLANT

Dayton, O., Feb. 21.—Fire of unknown origin broke out in the mammoth plant of the Stoddard Dayton Automobile factory at an early hour in the morning and swept through the old section of the plant, causing damage of many thousands. Despite the efforts of the department the blaze continued to spread and but little of the plant escaped loss.

MILK PRODUCTION.

Dairying That Is Satisfactory to Cow and Owner.

By Professor H. H. DEAN, Canada.

Atwood says that one quart of milk has about as much nutritive value as a pound of beef. Now, we can purchase in milk nutritive material at about one-third the cost that you can get in beef. I would like you to bear in mind that milk is one of the cheapest of the nutritive foods which we may purchase and has this great advantage over beef—that it is almost entirely if not entirely digested. Man in the process of the study of this question looked for some animal which could give him this nutritive material at the smallest cost, and after experimenting with all the lower animals he came to the conclusion that the cow was the one which would produce milk in the greatest quantity and at the lowest cost.

We have in our stable a Holstein which has produced 2,522 pounds of milk in thirty days, within 500 pounds of the average annual production of cows of Ontario and Quebec. In seven days she gave us 643 pounds and in one day ninety-six pounds of milk. If we had cows like that there would be no trouble about having plenty of milk to drink. A man cannot afford to keep cows that produce only 3,000 pounds of milk in a year.

Two Factors of Success.

One of the factors that we must bear in mind regarding a good cow is that we must have a strong, healthy, vigorous one if we would have milk that has what is called vitality. I think it would be impossible to get the best milk for drinking purposes from a cow that is low in vitality.

Second, the cow must be fed the right kind of food. There are some men so generous that they will feed their cows straw all winter, give them all the straw they can eat and then swear at them because they will not give more milk.

It is little wonder that many farmers are unable to obtain satisfactory milk production. They do not feed.

Winter Feeding.

For five or six months of the year the farmer must substitute for grass such foods as mangels, carrots and corn silage. Turnips should not be fed to cows producing milk. Some people enjoy the flavor of turnips in milk, but the majority do not. If you want the best quality of milk do not feed turnips.

We should recommend the following ration for winter milk production: Eight to ten pounds clover hay, thirty to forty pounds corn silage, twenty to thirty pounds mangels, eight to ten pounds meal made up of equal parts of oats and bran by weight and one to two pounds of oil cake, gluten meal or pea meal, the ration to be given in two feeds daily to each cow. A cow does not need to be fed more than twice a day under ordinary conditions.

Water and Salt.

Give the cow plenty of water. How much water do you think was drunk by the cow that gave ninety-six pounds of milk in one day? Nearly 200 pounds. That does not mean that the milk was water, as her milk tested about 3.5 per cent fat. You cannot water milk through the cow. Only man has learned that trick.

Next give the cow plenty of salt. Treat her kindly. Treat her as if she were your friend.

The cow house should be kept clean and sweet and well ventilated. It is impossible to get good milk from a cow kept in a stable that is not clean.

Sugar Beet Lands.

Every observing man must have noticed that the advent of the sugar industry in Colorado has surely had an effervescing effect on land values, and this is one of the most satisfactory features arising from the business. We have seen land advance in price from $30 or $50 to $200 and $300 an acre, but we must imagine that the latter figure is about the limit when the earning capacity of a farm is based on its percentage of earning from annual crops. The effect of beet culture has been to bring down the average size of the farms to twenty or thirty acres, but of course we still have many of 100 and 300 in extent. As intensive farming is the rule, however, the ordinary grower finds twenty or thirty acres about all he can manage when put in beets, dependent, as he is, upon the uncertainties of such labor as may stray along. Another salutary effect has been the improvement in cultural methods, and this is shown tentatively in all other crops, says Denver Field and Farm. The introduction of alfalfa as a fertilizer to beet lands has proved a great stroke in advancing the science of farming, for the system is gradually coming into use in all other lines of farm production in places where the fertility of the soil is deteriorating.

Keep the Teams at Work.

There can be little doubt that deeper plowing will not only lessen the tendency of southern soils to wash, but that it will increase their general productive capacity. Bearing in mind these factors, pay no heed to those who say do not plow in the winter, but whenever the land is dry enough keep the teams at work, plowing and also subsoiling when the subsoil is a good clay or the land has a hardpan subsoil. Turn in all the vegetable matter which has been produced on the land. Do not burn anything which will make humus. Land so treated can be tilled quickly for crops in the spring by the use of the disk or cutaway harrow.—Southern Planter.

As a Dairy State.

California has a soil and climate so varied that all fruits, both deciduous and citrus, can be grown to perfection. All kinds of cereals are grown with success. California has also great possibilities as a dairy state.

EASY TO MIX RECIPE

Mix It at Home By Shaking Ingredients in Bottle.

Hundreds of People in Vicinity Here Will Welcome This Advice, Says Local Druggists.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this preacription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul, acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

To the Republican Electors of the State of Michigan:

The state convention of the republicans of Michigan is hereby called to meet at Majestic Theater, in the city of Grand Rapids.

TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1908,

at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of electing four delegates at large and four alternate delegates at large to the Republican National Convention to be held at Chicago June 16, 1908; also for the purpose of nominating fourteen candidates for Electors of President and Vice-President of United States also for the selection of a State Central Committee and a Chairman thereof, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

In accordance with the provisions of law and the action of the Republican State Central Committee, every county will be entitled to one delegate for each two hundred and fifty of the total vote cast therein for the Republican candidate for Secretary of State at the last election and one additional delegate for a moiety of 126 votes or more.

Under the resolutions of 1858, no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the State Convention who does not reside in the county he purposes to represent.

Under the call of the Republican National Committee, each Congressional District is entitled to two delegates to the National Convention, which delegates shall be chosen at least thirty days before the National Convention.

By order of the Republican State Central Committee.

GERRIT J. DIEKEMA, Chairman.
DENNIS E. ALWARD, Secretary.
Grand Rapids, February 12, 1908.

Charlevoix County is entitled to seven delegates.

THE most important finishing touch placed on the new constitution by the convention at Lansing is its removal of the objectionable clause establishing property qualifications for voting on franchises. Probably there was no one feature of the draft tentatively agreed upon which so imperiled its ratification by the people as this. Had it been retained it is almost certain that it would have been the chief contributing cause to an rejection of the constitution. The clause disfranchised practically 100,000 voters in all matters involving the taking over of public utilities for municipal ownership. It required no very involved process of logic to reach a conclusion as to what these 100,000 voters would do when confronted with a propositinn to take away their right of sufferage in dealing with public franchises.

The removal of this provision eliminates the greatest weakness the new constitution contained. It is improbable that any other clause it contains or does not contain will arouse as much opposition as the property qualification addendum to the municipal ownership portion. Its removal will, we think, give satisfaction to the people generally, irrespective of whether they are property owners or not. The principle of manhood sufferage is well established in the United States. It is one of the fundamental ideas in American government. Without it our political institintone would lose to a large degree their distinctiveness. It is possible that qualifications, other than mere age may be at times judiciously incorporated into exercise of the franchise right, such as the educational test in the south, but they must be either of a minor character or vital to the sovereignity of Americans properly qualified to govern. The inclusion of the property test in the Michigan constitution would have been a backward step, so un-American as to have invited its sure defeat. With the properly clause stricken out the constitution is greatly strengthened.—Saginaw News.

IN another part of the paper we print a letter from Ava Smith, one of Charlevoix's oldest residents.

From the tone of the letter one would believe that we were in the worst section of the country on the foolatool, but we are inclined to believe that Mr. Smith has come to hasty conclusions, based on a very short residence in the country which he lauds so highly, and that at a time, when the drawbacks which every country has, are not at the surface, but let him wait till the good old summer time, when, he says, the sun's rays are so hot they bake the ground, so nothing can be raised without irrigation. Then one longs for the temperature of northern Michigan, where we can at least keep warm, but out there it is mighty difficult to keep cool.

Mr. Smith tells of the bumper crops, which are raised on the irrigated lands, but let the farmer here put the same amount of money into fertilizers and the other methods of maintaining soil fertility that they have to for their water priviledges and we could tell tales of the bumper crops of Michigan—the only difference is there they have to have artificial water to raise crops, here we can raise crops anyway, so neglect to give our soil proper care to husband its resources.

We still believe that no section of our country presents a better field for agriculture development than northern Michigan.

Farm, Field and Garden

FARM GATE.

It Swings Lightly, Without Sagging, If Properly Built.

The principle of hinge hanging may not be new, but I have never seen another of such light skeleton build as our nonsagging cattle gate shown in the drawing. The material used for its construction is generally to be found on every farm, so that all the usual necessary expense is that of having the blacksmith make the hook and eye hinge for the top of the gate, the lower hinge being merely an iron pin inserted in an upright end piece and set into a block at the base of the post, making the cost of construction very light.

The top and bottom boards are 1 by 6 inches and sixteen feet long. The hinge end upright is 4 by 4 inches and ten feet long, and the latch end is 3 by 4 inches and four and one-half feet long. The braces are all of 1 by 6 inch stuff.

When this gate is intended to turn other stock, than cattle and horses, either woven or barbed wire, the former preferable, is stretched over the frame tightly and secured with staples.

To hang the gate bore a hole in the bottom of the hinge end upright and drive in a three-fourths or one inch iron pin that when set will project about four inches from the bottom. This is inserted into the block shown at the ground line spiked to the post, first screwing or spiking on an iron plate, with hole to match size of pin, to prevent wear and working loose. A similar plate should also be fastened to bottom of upright for the same purpose.

The top hinge is made of a three-fourths inch rod, one end a hook, the other an eyebolt with threaded ends, explains a writer in Farm and Fireside. Nail a substantial brace on the top of the gatepost and to a post set solidly in the ground in line with the fence (or as heavy twisted wire will serve the same purpose) to hold the post firm against weight of gate, and it will swing lightly and easily, remaining for years without sagging, provided the post is properly set.

Snow For Poultry.

The possibility of lessening the labor of caring for poultry by supplying snow instead of water has been studied at the Connecticut Storrs experiment station by F. K. Graham. When pullets and hens were fed wheat screenings and beef scrap from hoppers in colony houses on low ground frozen during most of the experimental period and covered with snow during part of the time the old hens did not furnish as many eggs or appear to be in as good condition as the younger birds.

The old hens were apparently affected by the snow, the egg production being smaller on the days when snow was on the ground and also considerably less when the ground was frozen—that is, on the cold days when water was not accessible. These conditions do not seem to have affected the younger birds, and they show an increase in eggs immediately after each snow storm, gradually dropping back as the snow disappears.

In the case of other lots kept under much the same conditions in houses on higher and drier ground the cold weather did not affect the egg production materially, "but there was a noticeable increase in the amount of grain eaten during the cold weeks when comparison is made with the very mild ones. This, however, may have been caused by the birds foraging more during the milder periods. These birds did not appear to mind the cold, and there was not the slightest sign of frosted combs among them, nor were there any colds."

Texas Grows Oranges.

Southwest and southern Texas is this year entering for the first time into the orange market of the country, says a writer in Farm and Ranch. Satsuma oranges are being shipped in quantities and are yielding big returns. The Satsuma is grafted upon the Citrus trifoliata, originally imported from Japan and used as hedges. This tree, being deciduous, makes the fall of sap in cold weather overcome the danger from frost which the orange tree as an evergreen otherwise suffers. Satsuma oranges have been grown successfully in a latitude fifty miles north of San Antonio. Groves are being planted over this section, and southwest Texas is preparing to compete with California and Florida in the orange business.

ANNUAL MASQUERADE

Given by Hose Co. No. 1 Was a Great Success—Records Broken.

Good Time, Good Music and Good Order—The Prize Winners and Their Costumes.

The annual masquerade ball given by Hose Co. No. 1, at the Charlevoix Theater, Friday night, was the most successful affair that that organization has held in the city in recent years, the house being packed. Good order was at all times preserved, and "What a Splendid Time I Had" was the universal verdict of all who attended.

Miss Marion Schwartz was the winner of the first lady's prize. Costume, "The National Colors."

Ellsworth Dutton, first gentleman's prize, "George Washington."

Lady's comic prize, Mrs. Millard Olney, "Irish Cook."

Gentleman's comic prize, Robert Rife, "Colored Gentleman."

A Chinese thoroughfare is the exact reverse of ours in shape, the middle part being considerably higher than the two pavements on each side. In the rainy season, if a vehicle should slip, the occupants run considerable risk of being smothered in the accumulated mud and water.

It is said that in many Welsh villages the yew tree and the church are of the same age, the one being planted when the other was built.

Frozen Fog.

Spitzbergen is not an unbroken ice sheet, as many persons supposed it to be. Glaciers there are in plenty, but there is much open ground and fine mountain scenery. Fogs are prevalent, and one explorer described a peculiar effect due to this condition of the atmosphere which does not seem to have been ever noted by Alpine climbers. He has seen the face of a mountain covered with spicules of ice, a kind of exaggerated hoar frost, some of the icicles standing out horizontally from the wall of rock and measuring as much as eighteen inches in length. They are evidently generated by the action of fog and grow by the constant addition of moist particles. Fogs will often continue for many days together, and they are so dense that one cannot see a companion who is more than two or three yards away.—Chambers' Journal.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. By CARL WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

Grayce looked grim as he threw open the door and stumbled over the roll of rugs that lay just within.

"Another night has come, and that landlord still lives his evil life," he called, and from the dimly lighted parlor came an answering sniff.

Bert Grayce hung up his coat on the half shrouded hatrack and entered the room. The furniture was swathed in burlap and excelsior, and the piano was covered with old blankets and other soft wrappings, and trunks and boxes were piled with some attempt at order along the bare walls and upon the equally bare floor.

On top of the upturned soap box a group of candles guttered dismally, their feeble rays serving to accentuate the absence of gas. Desolation—the desolation of an exodus—brooded everywhere, even upon the face of the woman who sat in a low rocker beside the candles and vainly made pretense of reading.

Hers was a lovable face, framed in masses of silver hair, and Grayce's smile softened and grew more tender as he bent to kiss the still smooth forehead.

THE LONG, SLENDER HAND WAS CLASPED IN BERT'S OWN.

"Cheer up, mother mine," he said laughingly. "All is not yet lost, though the painters remain on strike. Tomorrow the new home will be painted. By Saturday we shall be comfortably settled."

"Are you sure?" demanded Mrs. Grayce wistfully. "If you are, we will not have the gas turned on again."

"There are electric lights in the new home," he reminded. "You will forget these nights of Egyptian darkness, and the next time we move we shall not order the current turned off until we are safely out of the house."

"To think that at the last moment, with all packed and ready to move, this strike should have come up!" said Mrs. Grayce, with a groan. "Are you positive, Bert, that the painter you have engaged will not be won over by the strikers?"

"Never more certain of anything in my life," was the laughing response. "The painter is no less a person than your accomplished son. I stopped in and ordered the paint sent over this morning. Tomorrow I shall go and wield the brush, so you must wake and call me early. I must put in a full day."

Bert passed on to his own room, lighting his way with matches, and his mother heaved a sigh of relief. For eight days they had virtually camped in the apartment they had given up, waiting for their new quarters to be finished. The packers had done their work, the man had come to cut off the gas and the moving vans were backed up to the door when a telephone message came to the effect that, owing to a strike of the painters, the new rooms were not yet ready for occupancy. From day to day the landlord had promised that something would be done at once, but now a full week had passed, and hope had commenced to fail until Bert decided to do the work himself.

He made an early start, and 8 o'clock found him in a suit of jeans applying the paint with as skillful a brush as though painting were his regular occupation. He worked rapidly and well and the rooms had begun to assume a habitable aspect when he heard the hall door open and close and looked up, expecting to see the landlord.

Instead he faced about to encounter the gaze of a pair of brown eyes which seemed to pierce his paint stained jacket and give him an oddly queer sensation about the heart. The possessor of the eyes was a fragile slip of a girl whose pure oval face was oddly like a picture by some old master. The slender form was wholly concealed by a brown holland pinafore, and this was splashed with color. A dab of blue which had sought a higher resting place made a saucy beauty patch against the dimpling chin.

"So you have come," she said at length. "I was beginning to think that you would be out on strike all winter. I was promised that my floors should be shellacked first."

"Yes, but"—began Bert.

"I want no answers," said the girl, with a stamp of her tiny foot. "I am to have an exhibition day after tomorrow, and the floors must be done by then; do you hear?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Bert meekly.

"Then pick up your pail and brush and come along," was the quiet command. "If I had not smelled the paint in the hall you would have spent the day here, when I need you so much more. Come on, please."

She turned to lead the way as though there was no argument to be made, and Bert, grinning over the ridiculousness of the affair, followed after. He saw with pleasure that the other apartment was only across the hall from his own. It was a much smaller place, and it did not take Bert long to paint the floors. The girl stood in the doorway superintending the work, and Bert was sorry when at last he rose from his knees and announced the completion of the job.

"You will still have time to finish the other apartment," said the girl severely. "Next time do as you are told, and you will have less trouble. You know very well that the agent told you to do this apartment first. He promised me that he would."

"He'll promise anything," began Bert grimly, but the tiny foot stamped a warning. The girl did not care to argue the point with a workman, and she dismissed him with a nod:

"Come in tomorrow and give it a second coat," she commanded. "Wait a moment," she added as Bert turned to go. "Buy yourself a good cigar," she finished as she handed him a coin.

Bert dropped the dime in his pocket with a murmured word of thanks and backed out of the door. Once on the other side, his embarrassment died down, and he paused long enough to ascertain from the card on the door that it was Dorothy Remsen who occupied the apartment. That she was a charming decorator he already knew, and vaguely he remembered having heard of her skill.

He was tired when he sought his home that night, but the thought that he would see the girl again on the morrow gave him a feeling that the day had been well spent. He carefully slipped the dime in a locket which he wore on his watch fob and smiled as he thought of his "tip."

He painted the studio floors the first thing next morning and then turned his attention to his own apartment. It was late in the afternoon when he had finished and was cleaning up. There came a ringat the door, and he opened it to confront a young woman who radiated confusion and penitence.

"I have come to apologize," she said, blushing redly. "I stopped in to thank the agent for sending me a painter, and he did not know that any doors had been done. Then he recalled that you were painting your own place and explained my error."

"It's a very natural one," he said, with a laugh. "If you were half as desperate as my mother, I should not blame you for kidnaping me with a full knowledge of the facts. I am only glad that I have been of service to you."

"You don't know how greatly you have abled me," she cried. "I can never repay your kindness. I am so sorry that I was abrupt yesterday. Will you pardon me?"

The long, slender hand was clasped in Bert's own, and he smiled down into the brown eyes that dropped shyly before his gaze.

Dorothy slipped back into her own apartment, and Bert, closing his door, drew the dime she had given him from his locket.

"The job's going to cost you more than that, little woman," he said as he smiled to himself. "It's going to cost you your heart and hand, and they are worth millions of dimes."

As It Happens.

They parted as girls; they met as women.

"And what of all your sweethearts?" asked the old time chum at length.

"Gone the way of all good things," answered the captivator.

"That tall, lanky blond with the fierce mustache, for instance?"

"Went insane!"

"Gracious! And Jimmie Bowles—'the little muskrat,' as you used to call him—who was so devoted?"

"Killed in an auto accident trying to save my life."

"Dear me! And your needy artist swain, who found in you the only customer for his wonderful paintings?"

"Became a waiter and married an heiress!"

"And the kinky haired little French count?"

"Ran away with my maid!"

"Worse and worse! And how about Reggie? You did profess to love him, you know."

"Now my brother-in-law!"

"Never! Well, that Mr. Hardfunt, who used to snub us all, yourself included? I hope he met his deserved finish."

"He did. Come up to the house and I'll introduce you to him.—He's my husband!"—Young's Magazine.

How the Other Half Gives.

"That sentiments of tender charity are innate among the poor can be seen from a case which presented itself among a group of little children at a school where we visited," writes Mrs. John Van Vorst in Woman's Home Companion. "They were of the most destitute, this little class, but as regular as soldiers in attendance. After an unusual absence of two days one of the small pupils, Mary by name, was closely questioned by the teacher on her return. Very reluctantly she responded that they had been without food at home and that she was ashamed to come hungry to school.

"No comment was made before the other children. Nothing further was said.

"The following morning a small procession filed before the teacher's desk—a procession of little people, tiny, poor, ignorant. Yet not one of them came empty handed. One brought an apple, one a piece of cheese, one a roll, one a slice of meat. And each as she put her merger offering down whispered to the teacher, 'It's for Mary.'"

When mold appears on a ditch of bacon, scrape the mold off and singe the bacon on all sides over a gas fire. This will keep the bacon fresh and sweet for many more days.

MARKET GARDENS.

Lettuce and Other Products as Grown on a Large Scale.

A feature of the recent annual meeting of the Massachusetts state board of agriculture was a visit to the market gardens of Warren W. Rawson in Arlington. The magnitude of the scale on which this work is being conducted is a revelation to one coming from the west. The plant covers some forty acres of ground. The greenhouses cover about eight acres. Some of them inclose half an acre and some are smaller.

At the present time lettuce is being grown in these greenhouses to a greater extent than any other garden plant. It is certainly a novel and pleasing sight to walk into a greenhouse covering half an acre on a cold day in December in which are growing in the most perfect form some 36,000 plants of lettuce, approaching that stage which fits them for being marketed. The vigorous and healthy appearance of the plants formed a picture that was particularly pleasing. The most perfect order is observed in planting them, so that when fully grown the ground is completely occupied. The plants are kept entirely free from the growth of weeds of any kind. Some three crops of lettuce are grown in some of these greenhouses in one year, and also a crop of cucumbers in addition. In other houses such products as parsley were being grown. The visitors were also shown immense beds in which celery was stored away for winter use. These beds were covered with a protecting roof, which was elevated two or three feet above the lettuce, and over these was a light covering of waste litter.

The productive power of land thus utilized is very great. Just imagine 36,000 plants growing on half an acre of land! When these plants are sold they fetch 50 cents to $1.50 per dozen, according to the condition of the market. Of course the expense of growing and marketing them must be very considerable, but there can be no question about the marked profit that must come from growing these products on a scale so large, writes Professor Shaw in New England Homestead.

CURL LEAF.

Spraying For Control of This Disease of the Peach.

A very important complication must be considered in spraying for blight control. This is the occurrence of another peach disease, the curl leaf. The effects of this trouble are too well known in California to need description. The control of the disease is very successfully accomplished by spraying in February or March, just before the buds unfold, but a time which is too late for blight prevention.

Treatments Given.

In the experience of 1905 the one fall spraying controlled both diseases—a most satisfactory condition. In the spring of 1907, however, a very virulent attack of curl leaf occurred, especially in the lower Sacramento valley, while the blight fungus proved somewhat less active than in the previous season.

The result of this attack is plainly shown by the results of spraying—viz. that the November or December application did not entirely hold the curl leaf in check, although as successful as before with the blight. Consequently some orchards sprayed properly and successfully for blight were badly injured by curl leaf, while others sprayed later were protected from curl leaf.

All that had been expected of the blight treatment held good when its effects were differentiated from those of the other disease, but the necessity of two sprayings rather than one for the positive control of both diseases has become evident.

Prune if possible before spraying, but do not delay the work on account of pruning.

It is recommended by the California experiment station to spray again for the prevention of curl leaf about Feb. 15, or just before the buds open, with bordeaux, 20-20-200, or lime, salt and sulphur.

The Albemarle Pippin.

The apple which has made Virginia famous at home and abroad is the Yellow Newtown, otherwise known as the Albemarle Pippin.

Whether pomologists accept the name Albemarle Pippin or persist in calling this apple the Yellow Newtown makes little difference, for it will always be known by Virginians and in the trade by the name of Albemarle Pippin. The high state of perfection attained by this apple fully merits this distinction and the almost fabulous prices often received for it. It is not usual for our growers to sell their fruit for $10 per barrel, and sometimes it brings as much as $12, $15 and even $20 per barrel, about two to three times as much as the average red apple.—Professor J. S. Phillips.

Sugar Beets.

In all cases but one at the Wisconsin experiment station the largest yields of beets and of sugar were obtained on plats receiving a complete fertilizer, with barnyard manure standing next as the cheapest application. Lime applied at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre produced a beneficial effect on a number of fields, and in one instance a heavy clay soil required a double application to increase the yield of beets and sugar.

Dairy Byproducts.

The effect of dairy byproducts on the carcass is one of the most important results of feeding them to hogs. It is generally admitted that, while excellent hams and bacon may be produced without dairy byproducts, the use of these byproducts will result in pork of a more nearly uniform high quality.

Fate.

Gee!
I see
I'm in a boat!
This overcoat—
Last year I swore should be the last,
And now—another summer's past!
I count my money o'er and o'er,
But counting doesn't make it more!
Alas!
I pass
Although the coat is worn and old,
It shields me from the biting cold;
Last spring I said,
"I'll get ahead
And buy a new one, soft and black,
With fur inside all 'round the back!
When I walk by
I'll be quite fly,
And folks will turn and stare
And say, "A millionaire!"

But now my friends will wink
Behind my back and think:
"Our Uncle By is broke;
His jewels are in soak!
His overcoat I chance to know,
Dates back six years, or so, ago!
He writes a lot
Of daily rot,
But, after all,
The pay is small—
I hear
He makes but forty 'thou' a year!"

'Tis bad—
Oh, sad!
To be too poor to buy a coat
To shield your throat
When winter's cold
Is growing bold—
But, by the way,
I say,
Did you, Ill Krause,
Ever build a house
And have enough good coin to tote
To buy a winter overcoat?

Idle Thoughts.

A woman doesn't mind a man getting mad about her new dress, if he gives her the money. What she objects to is a smile that doesn't give down!

A man's love is a coaling station. A woman's love is the end of the line, the round-house and the officers' headquarters.

Adam and Eve would have a hard time finding an apple to eat this Fall.

It is hard to be a humorist and buy fifteen tons of coal.

It is a blamed sight easier to get a wife than to manage her afterward.

When a man loves a woman as much as he loves himself, she should take him. It won't happen oftener than once in a lifetime.

Some people keep their conscience so well whitewashed that they can live with it without quarreling.

Sometimes when the day is done many a raw thing is, too.

On the other hand—there is sometimes a wart.

"The up-to-date girl no longer wears her rings to match her costumes," says a Detroit newspaper. "She wears them to match the weather." This lets the Chicago girl out unless she carries her jewel case along with her when she goes shopping.

A conquaintive who is shipwrecked on a cannibal island always dies of consumption, doesn't he? Or is it double consumption that gets him?

Anticipation is a queer thing. Now, when a man has a tooth to be pulled, he doesn't anticipate it with ardor. When he is about to get married—Ah, the rosy aurora he sees ahead. And yet—when the tooth is pulled, the trouble is all over, while, on the other hand, after the wedding, the trouble has just begun!

And now the baseball umpire is cast off to find his way to the Home of the Friendless for a winter's visit.

Wise is the young man who finds his wife's biscuits are even better than those mother made!

Sacrilegious.

A weather-beaten tombstone in an old Virginia cemetery bears this inscription:

I await my husband.
May 26, 1840
Here I am
Dec. 11, 1861.

A wag passing by added: "Late as usual."

Consanguinity.

In Wichita, Kan., the other day a young man married the sister of his father's second wife. This makes him the brother-in-law of his own father. His children will be nephews and nieces of their own grandfather. Their aunt will be their grandmother. Their aunt will be their mother's stepmother-in-law, and—Gee, I've got to stop this or have brainstorm!

Registration in the University Hospital at Ann Arbor shows that 3,208 patients were treated during the past year. This exceeds by far the enrollment of any previous year. Students in the medical department devote almost their entire senior to clinics at the hospital, to which a large number of accidents and chronic cases are brought. Children having malformations and other congenital maladies may be admitted to the hospital for treatment at the expense of the state, if their parents reside in Michigan.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BLACKLEG.

Notes on a Destructive Disease and Its Prevention.

Every stock owner who lives in a district where blackleg occurs knows that it is the young animals, especially those between the ages of six and eighteen months, which are most liable to become affected.

As to the class of cattle most frequently affected by blackleg, the majority of reports agree that full blood or high grade stock is more subject to the disease than the common or low grade range cattle.

The spring and the fall seem to be the seasons most favorable for the development of blackleg. The disease is, however, not confined to these seasons, but appears at all times of the year with more or less frequency.

VACCINATING OUTFIT.

The general symptoms of blackleg are high fever, loss of appetite and suspension of rumination, followed by great depression. Respiration becomes accelerated, the animal moves around with difficulty, frequently lies down and when water is near at hand drinks at short intervals and but a little at a time.

The most important diagnostic feature is the development of a tumor or swelling under the skin. The swelling may appear on any part of the body and limbs except below the knee or hock joint or on the tail. It is frequently seen on the thigh or shoulder, and owing to the extensive discoloration of the swollen parts as observed after the animal has been skinned the disease has been popularly named "blackleg," or "black quarter."

Most stock owners agree that when the disease has broken out there is nothing short of a hypodermic syringe and vaccine or the immediate removal of the affected herd to another pasture that will check the disease.

The bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture considers prevention the principal recourse against this disease. It prepares and distributes a blackleg vaccine and reports that the effect of this vaccine in preventing outbreaks already in progress has been highly satisfactory. A lately issued circular (No. 31) of the bureau gives much information about blackleg and tells how to obtain this vaccine. Applications for it should be addressed to the chief of the bureau at Washington.

To prepare the vaccine in such a way that it may be injected hypodermically it is necessary to obtain certain implements, which, together with the hypodermic syringe, are known as a vaccinating outfit. This consists of a porcelain mortar with pestle, a small glass funnel and a measuring glass. The accompanying cut shows a vaccinating outfit, with the exception of the mortar and pestle.

All of the utensils, including the hypodermic syringe and a package of absorbent cotton, are fitted in a strong polished oak box, which by means of an adjustable wire loop serves also as a support for the funnel when the vaccine is filtering. The syringe, two hypodermic needles and an extra glass barrel are packed in a separate metal box, which is inclosed in the oak box.

Prisoner Escapes from Custody.

San Francisco, Feb. 22.—Paul Borg Helma, scion of a wealthy family, nephew of the late Otto Young, millionaire merchant of Chicago, who is accused of forgery, made his escape immediately after appearing before Judge Dunne.—He pleaded with the deputy sheriff in whose custody he was to be allowed to leave the courtroom. The deputy acceded and accompanied him into the hall directly back of the courtroom. In the maze of corridors, the prisoner evaded his jailer and ran out of the building.

Decision Affecting Stockyards.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 22.—Attorney General Thompson has announced that the decision of the federal court against the Union Stockyards company of South Omaha virtually placed that corporation under the jurisdiction of the state railway commission. A suit to compel the stockyards company to file reports with the commission is now pending in the supreme court. The federal court decision declares the stockyards company to be a common carrier.

Property Qualification for Voters on Taxation Struck Out—'Varsity Robbers Captured.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 22.—One of the last acts of the constitutional convention, which had already adopted a plan for the initiation of constitutional amendments by petition of the voters and the submission to a popular vote was to adopt a plan providing that the legislature may submit to the electors any act passed and signed by the governor, and that when so submitted it shall not become a law until so ratified. The convention has finished its work on the draft of a new constitution.

Nobody Is Disfranchised.

The property qualification for voters on matters of taxation was eliminated by the adoption in its place of the following: "No city or village shall have power to abridge the right of elective franchise, to loan its credit, nor to assess, levy or collect any tax or assessment for other than a public purpose. Nor shall any city or village acquire any public utility, or grant any public utility franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the city or village unless such proposition shall have first received the affirmative vote of a three-fifths of the electors of such city or village; and upon such proposition women taxpayers having the qualifications of male electors shall be entitled to vote."

Few Changes Were Made.

The committee of the whole, going through the revision for the last time previous to the final vote on third reading, made but few changes. They were chiefly verbal, although in some cases the changes modified in a degree the original intention as expressed in certain of the sections. One of these changes was in omitting the attorney general from the composition of the board of state auditors.

TWO "RAFFLES" CAPTURED

Believed To Be the Ones Who Have Been Robbing Michigan 'Varsity Students.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 22. — William McDonald and Frank Tooke, each aged nineteen, alleged to be Raffles who have been robbing the rooms of University of Michigan co-eds and male students, are under arrest and have confessed to stealing $20 from the rooms of students in the Y. M. C. A. building. The police believe they will also fasten other burglaries upon them, including those in the C. A. Merkel and Eliza Nathan residences.

McDonald is the son of a university engineer. Tooke is the son of the late Rev. W. McCauley Tooke, who died a number of years ago. His widow lives in this city and young Tooke has assisted in her support by working as a Western Union messenger. Both youths are gentlemanly and well attired.

Atwood Before the Grand Jury.

Mason, Mich., Feb. 22. — Ex-State Railroads commissioner T. F. Atwood was closeted for two hours with the grand jury, which, it is understood, has under consideration the report of improper use of money in the campaign of January, 1907, which resulted in the election of William Alden Smith as United States senator. It was to Atwood that Governor Warner credited the information on which he (Warner) based his charges against Hill.

Cannot Prosecute Lyle.

Dowagiac, Mich., Feb. 22.—A petition has been filed with Referee in Bankruptcy Briggs, of Kalamazoo, for a receiver for the closed City bank. "I have gone over the evidence we have at the present time and I fail to see where we can make charges against President Lyle," said Attorney Charles Sweet, who represents a number of depositors. "Mr. Lyle was a smart business man."

Snow Sought Safety in Snow.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 22.—Kerosene with which Ernest A. Snow, chairman of the Democratic county committee, and a member of the constitutional convention, was trying to light his furnace, exploded, setting fire to his clothing. Snow rushed to the yard and threw himself into a snow bank, extinguishing the flames; but not before his face and hands were badly burned.

Murder in the First Degree.

Big Rapids, Mich., Feb. 22.— The jury in the case of James H. Adair, accused of killing his housekeeper, Mrs. Helen Cook, rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree. Jealous because she had been out with another man, Adair refused to permit Mrs Cook to enter his dwelling. She broke down the door, and he struck her down with a chair, crushing her skull.

Picketing Is Unlawful.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 21.—Union labor men have no right to do peaceful picket duty or to congregate in a peaceful manner near a plant where a strike is on. This decision of the supreme court is given in affirming the order of the superior court of Cook county making perpetual an injunction against Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 and others. The injunction was obtained by A. H. Barnes & Co. and others.

Mr. World.

Save a corner in your heart,
Mr. World,
Just for me!
Save a cottage in the wood
With a woman true and good!
Mr. World,
Hear my plea!

Save a corner in your heart,
Mr. World—
I have tried!
Save the friends that I have won;
Let me keep 'em 'till I'm done,
Mr. World,
On this side.

Save a corner in your heart,
Mr. World—
Hear my call!
Love me always, ever true,
Glad for what I've tried to do,
Mr. World—
That is all!

Anticipated pleasure usually arrives looking like a pall bearer in disguise.

REXALL REMEDIES

HAVE ARRIVED IN TOWN.

No doubt you have heard of them. They are used by several millions of people throughout the United States, and we sell them to you with a guarantee that if they are not what we claim we will gladly refund your money. One remedy for each human ill.

Some three years ago a number of prominent retail druggists — realizing that a big change was to be made in the proprietary medicine business, that the public demanded to know what the ingredients were of the preparations they were advertising, and that a general reform was about to take place in proprietary medicine manufacturing and advertising, formed a co-operative company to meet the public's demand. This company was called The United Drug Co., of which the undersigned has become one of the two thousand members

Our object was, first, to manufacture a line of prescriptions such as we had tried out in our stores and found to give the very best of results, and second, by owning our own co-operative manufacturing company we would be able to know the exact formula of every preparation we were selling, thus enabling us to give to the public the very best remedies we could find at actual manufacturing cost, plus a single retail profit.

This enabled The United Drug Company to escape the heavy charges for advertising and other expenses such as have to be paid by proprietary remedies. What was most important, it insures safety and satisfaction to our customers, because we druggists know just what we are selling.

A committee of experts was appointed who spent a long time in testing the merits of more than two thousand formulas and prescriptions recommended by the various druggists constituting the company.

From these, about two hundred were selected as being the best remedies known to medical science for the cure, each of its particular ailment.

The exclusive rights to these remedies were then transferred to The United Drug Company, which has since manufactured them in its superbly equipped laboratories in Boston under the now famous name of "The Rexall Remedies."

Note then, first of all, these facts:

1st. "Rexall" refers, not to one remedy but to about two hundred—each for some one particular purpose. Nobody knows better than The United Drug Company druggists the absurdity of the "cure-all."

2d. Each "Rexall" Remedy is a tested and proved success, selected for its conspicuous merit from many of its class. All had established reputations through their continued use by physicians before they became members of the "Rexall" family.

3rd. "Rexall" Remedies are sold at low prices because they are free from heavy manufacturing charges, jobbing profits, and the heavy expense of being advertised separately, as formerly.

The United Drug Company, which manufactures the Rexall Remedies, has already scored the greatest success ever known in the history of the drug business.

Three of the 200 "Rexall" Remedies, one for each human ill, are:

FOR CATARRH—MUCU-TONE

The chief ingredients of Mucu-Tone are Gentian, Cubebs, Cascara Sagrada, Glycerine, and Sarsaparilla.

Gentian is recognized in medicine as one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It is the foundation on which Mucu-Tone is built. Gentian combines in high degree the tonic powers of all the known "bitters," with none of the disadvantages applying to them.

Cubebs have long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefit almost invariable. In whatever part of the body the inflamed or diseased condition of the mucous membrane exists, the use of Cubebs has been recommended by the best physicians for many generations.

Cascara Sagrada is especially introduced for its necessary laxative properties.

The combination of these with Glycerine and Sarsaparilla makes Mucu-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point, gradually restores and rebuilds the diseased tissues to their former health and strength, promotes digestion and creates a normal appetite. Bottle, 50c.

FOR NERVES—AMERICANITIS ELIXIR

The Rexall Americanitis Elixir is a tonic nerve food composed chiefly of free Phosphorus, Glycophosphates, Iron Pyrophosphate and Calisaya.

The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorus to the nerve cells in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them. It is the only known preparation in which free Phosphorus—that is Phosphoras which remains indefinitely unoxidized—is used.

The Glycophosphates, actual nerve-tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to the field of this branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites.

The Iron Pyrophosphates is the most easily assimilated form of iron which gives tone and color, and the combined alkaloids of Calisaya Bark have a tonic effect on almost all the functions of the body.

In compounding these various elements, the very highest degree of pharmaceutical skill has been employed. 75c. and $1.50 a bottle.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC

The famous Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is composed in chief of Resorcin, Beta Naphthol and Pilocarpin.

Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ-killers discovered by a science, and in connection with Beta Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which not only destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, but creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the lodgment and development of new germs.

Pilocarpin is a well known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, where the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. It is not a coloring matter or dye—it produces its effect by stimulating the scalp and hair follicles to health and active life.

This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfects the most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles known to-day.

Bottle, 50c.

"Rexall" Remedies are found only in the stores of druggists affiliated with The United Drug Company—only one in each town and each backs up this "Rexall" guarantee printed on every package: "This preparation is guaranteed to give satisfaction. If it does not, come back and get your money. It belongs to you, and we want you to have it."

Courier Grange Column

Charlevoix Pomona Grange

The regular meeting of the Charlevoix County Pomona Grange Thursday, February 13, was one of the best held in a long time.

After waiting until after dinner for the Pomona officers to arrive, and only two, the chaplain and steward, having put in an appearance, Brother John A. Newville called the meeting to order and explained the situation.

Upon motion, Brother Newville was chosen to act as master. The regular committees were appointed after which the secretary read the reports of the following granges: Boyne Valley, Clarion, Horton Bay, Ironton, Maple Grove, South Arm and Wilson. This was followed by a very interesting discussion of the question "How I Would Like to Have My Milk Handled." The discussion was led by Sister Wagoner of Boyne River Grange, who thought the most important thing was cleanliness, and should begin before milking. She was in favor of the separator. Brother Mears said he did not claim to be an expert in the handling of milk but thought that butter made from milk handled in the old way had a better taste than when run through the separator. Sister Mears was in favor of the separator and seemed to think that Brother Mears could not tell the difference to save his life. Sisters Burdick, Heller, Lumley and others gave interesting talks along the same line. Brother Harry Batterbee of Wilson Grange had a very interesting paper entitled "Our Duties as Patrons." Hope he will send it to the COURIER.

Brother Newville read a communication from Brother DuBois editor of the Charlevoix COURIER, requesting every subordinate grange in the county to appoint a press correspondent to write up grange items for the COURIER.

Wilson and Boyne River granges invited the Pomona Grange to hold the next meeting with them. A ballot was taken and it was decided to meet with Boyne River Grange the last Thursday in April, at which time we hope to see the officers present.

The evening session was more in the form of an open meeting, and was opened by singing a new grange song entitled, "The Clarion Call." H. L. Swift, manager of the Beulah Home for Boys, with nearly forty of his boys and their teacher, Miss Bacon, was present and entertained the audience for over an hour in a splendid manner. The talk by Mr. Swift on "Give the Boys a Chance" was a very interesting one and to the point. The songs by the boys, accompanied by Miss Bacon on the organ, was very good and showed what training will do. A vote of thanks was given the visitors from the Home for the fine entertainment they had given the grange. Among other good things on the program was:

Instrumental music by Sister Celestia Warden of Wilson Grange.

A couple of recitations by Sister Addie Barber of Deer Lake Grange.

Song by Sister Bernice Bacon of Pine Lake Grange.

Select reading by Brothers Levi Brown of Marion Center Grange and T. S. Barber of Deer Lake Grange.

Recitation by Sister Arloa Brooks of Pine Lake Grange.

All went away feeling that they had enjoyed a very pleasant time and glad that they belong to the grange.

South Arm Grange No. 815.

South Arm Grange No. 815 completed its literary contest between the brothers and sisters at the meeting of February 22. The sisters won, having made one hundred and ninety points more than the brothers. The brothers are to furnish supper, which is to be served at the next meeting.

Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Olney and Mrs. Kiser were appointed as a committee to provide anything necessary for the sisters and to act in anyway they deem advisable in behalf of the grange.

Sister Clara Liscum has been very sick for the past several weeks.

The following is the program for the next meeting:

Song by the grange.
Reading, Frank St. John.
Recitation, Reuben Murphy.
Reading, Harry Jones.
Current events.
Debate—"Resolved That Farming is the Best Occupation." Affirmative—H. L. Olney, Frank Kiser, Fred Stanke. Negative—John Murphy, Willard Robinson, Roy Bancroft.

Marion Center Grange No. 956.

Marion Center Grange No. 956 met in regular session February 19. Officers all present except Master, chaplain and gatekeeper.

The usual order of business was transacted with the overseer in the chair.

George Megginson was appointed purchasing agent for the ensuing year.

Program consisted of a general discussion on fertilizers, the benefit and the kinds necessary for our farms in Northern Michigan.

Reading by Elmer Ingalls in regard to teaching school children lessons tending to keep them interested in the farm, rather than the usual method of teaching them to try and launch out into something better, when, in reality, there is nothing better than successful farming and rural life. It was voted to further discuss these topics at a future meeting.

Grange closed to meet again in two weeks. The attendance was small on account of sickness in the neighborhood.

How to Wash Chamois.

Every one does not know the secret of washing chamois skin so as to make it as good as new. Wet the chamois in a weak solution of washing soda and water, rubbing plenty of white soap into it. Let it lie for two hours, then rub between the hands until clean. Rinse in a weak solution of soda and water with a little soap shaken in. If rinsed in pure water, it becomes hard. It is the small particles of soap that give it silky softness. Wring in a dry towel and dry quickly, pulling and brushing well.

How to Save Strength In Ironing.

The housekeeper of limited means can save her life and strength by doing as much ironing as possible with the clothes wringer. Life is too short and health too precious to be wasted sprinkling, folding, unfolding, ironing and refolding the largest part of a wash. Plain pieces, like towels, pillowcases, sheets, mufflins and stockings, put through the wringer will be smooth enough for all practical purposes if the rollers are right.

HELD SECOND ANNUAL BANQUET

Ladies' Shakespeare Study Club Thursday Evening.

AT HOME OF MR. AND MRS. MARTING

All Members and Their Husbands Present But Two.

A Decided Success From All Standpoints, Social, Literary and Epicurean—Those Present.

The annual banquet of the Ladies' Shakespeare Study Club which took place Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Marting was a most decided success, both from a social, literary and epicurean standpoint.

The first of these functions, held last spring, was thoroughly enjoyed, and the "Lords and Masters," who were for the first time permitted within the holy precincts of this exclusive ladies' organization, were so profuse in their request that it be made an annual function, that the club so decided and since that the husbands of the Shakespearean students have held decidedly more friendly regard for the name of the illustrious bard, who has been productive of such good times in Charlevoix.

The club is limited by its constitution to twenty members, and of these, only two were absent when the guests were seated, both being detained by sickness. It was a few moments after seven when the doors were thrown open, disclosing in the spacious parlor of the Marting mansion, a scene which would have made the immortal William "sit up and take notice," and would have taxed even the power of that word painting, to fittingly describe. The tables were doubled in with, were tastefully decorated with flowers, ferns and sprays of pine and evergreen, while the illumination was of the Shakespearean age, scores of wax tapers uniting with the modern electricity to fittingly illume the scene with the stereotyped "bloze of glory."

The menu was as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Cold Roast Turkey — Escallopped Oysters
Cranberry Jelley — Celery
Olives — Potath Croquettes — Pickles
White and Brown Bread
Fruit Salad — Wafers
Neapolitatne Ice Cream — Assorted Cake
Coffee
Nuts — Mints

And the excellenee of the cookery proves that while the ladies are studying their Shakespeare, they have also given attention to Mrs. Rorer, or some modern authority, and likewise to the advice of that somewhat cynical feminine who advised her newly wedded daughter to "Feed the Brute." The serving was handled by half a dozen young men, sons of members, and was in keeping with the excellency of the repast.

When the time came for the literary feast, the president of the club, Mrs. F. W. Mayne, in well-chosen words welcomed the guests, and introduced as toastmistress, Mrs. J. B. Thielen, who throughout the evening disproved the fable that ladies cannot tell good stories and tell them well for she filled the position admirably.

She introduced as the first speaker, Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, who had for her theme—"Content thyself a while; pleasure and action make the hours seem short." A sentiment which all present were heartily willing to subscribe to at the close of the program. Mrs. Armstrong talked easily and well, her discourse interspersed with many happy thoughts and ideas that brought forth hearty applause.

Mrs. Maude Woodley then rendered in an artistic and pleasing manner the beautiful vocal solo, "A Dream," by Bartlett, accompanied by Mrs. S. A. Marting.

"Our Guest," the theme assigned to Mrs. A. L. Fitch, was prefaced by the quotation—"I have no other than woman's reason; I think him so because I think him so." The speaker, in a most witty discourse on the topic so dear to all feminine hearts, man, proceded to dissect the lords of creation in a masterly manner and epigram, sarcasm, story and flattery, followed each other in rapid sequence, interspersed with hearty applause as hit after hit and the faults, foibles and virtues of the masculine portion of society were held up as in a mirror for men to gaze upon.

For the "Men Folks," Prof. W. H. Woodley was called upon to answer in the topic, "The Shakespeare Club." The quotation for his foundation was—"Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety." The toastmistress announced that Shakespeare originally wrote "vanity" for variety, and gave the speaker permission to take either horn of the dilemma he chose. And with this permission Mr. Woodley seized them both, and held up the masculine portion of the program in a most entertaining and appropriate manner.

The "Officers of the Club," was the topic assigned to Mrs. C. W. Crouter, and in turn the speaker paid her compliments to the president, Mrs. F. W. Mayne; vice-president, Mrs. A. F. Bridge, and secretary, Mrs. J. A. Auld, her starting point being the familiar quotation—"Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them." The sentiment and delivery of the toast were both pleasing and entertaining.

The last number on the program was a reading from King John, by Lisle Shanahan, who gave his interpretation of the pathetic scene between Hubert and the little Prince, in a masterly manner.

The toastmistress called for a verse of Auld Lang Syne as a fitting close, and the second annual banquet of the Shakespeare Club was over, although the guests lingered for an hour or more, loath to leave behind what all declared to be the most successful function they had ever had the pleasure of attending.

The guests of honor, the gentlemen who wives form the club, were the following and of course all were there under escort of their ladies: F. W. Mayne, J. A. Auld, Dr. J. B. Thielen, Dr. R. B. Armstrong, W. H. Woodley, A. L. Fitch, G. W. Crouter, L. Shanahan, S. A. Marting, W. E. Hampton, F. N. Chapel, Dr. C. A. Montague, Dr. A. A. Swinton, G. W. Priest, R. W. Paddock, H. L. Iddings, J. L. Crane, F. H. Hubbard.

The members absent because of illness were Mrs. H. S. Harshu and Mrs. A. F. Bridge.

Was a Social Success.

The party given at the bank hall by the ladies of the Eastern Star Monday night was in all respects a success. The crowd was just large enough to make it very enjoyable, and the committee having it in charge was congratulated by all on the complete success of their arrangements.

CAMERON-CAMPBELL

Two Prominent Young People of Charlevoix Married Tuesday.

Left for Chicago Where They Will Make Their Home—Many Serviceable Presents.

One of the prettiest of Charlevoix weddings was held at the home of Captain and Mrs. P. D. Campbell at twelve o'clock noon on Tuesday, March third, when their daughter, Jeannette Patience was united in marriage to Mr. Arba H. Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cameron.

The decorations were done in smilax, evergreen and dainty white flowers of several varieties.

The bride was charmingly gowned in ivory crepe du chene with filet lace, and carried a buquet of white stock and ferns. They were attended by Miss Louise Matteson of Whitehall, who wore pink and white silk mull and carried a buquet similar to that of the bride; and J. Harvey Campbell, brother of the bride.

The Mendelssohn wedding march was nicely rendered by Miss Adeline Holly. Little Miss Ruth Hubbard in a dainty white dress carried the ring in a large calla lily; and the ropes of white tarleton and evergreen were stretched by the Mayne, Wilbur, Harris, Stacks and Misses Linda and Ethel Cook. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. A. Wright.

After the congratulations were over Miss Matteson sang "I Love You Truly." Young friends and relatives of the bride assisted in serving a delightful five course breakfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron left on the four o'clock train for Chicago, where their future home will be, and were accompanied about twelve miles by seventeen merry friends.

The young couple were the recipients of a large number of choice and beautiful gifts, two of the most substantial being a $500 check from the groom's father and $250 in gold from the bride's father.

Mrs. Cameron is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and of the Albion Conservatory of Music, while Mr. Cameron is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and of the M. A. C. engineering course. He is associated with the American Bridge Company of Chicago.

The COURIER unites with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cameron in wishing them a long and happy life.

TO BE VOTED ON THIS SPRING

An Amendment to the Constitution Relative to Assessments Study it.

An amendment to the constitution is to be submitted to the qualified electors on the first Monday in April, 1908.

The following statement sets forth the purport, nature and effect of the proposed amendment:

Section 10 of Article 14 of the constitution, as it now reads, refers only to the assessment of the property of corporations. The object of the proposed amendment is to authorize the assessment of not only the property of corporations, but also the property of partnerships, associations and individuals engaged in the business of transporting passengers and freight, transporting property by express, operating any union station or depot, transmitting messages by telephone or telegraph, loaning cars, operating refrigerator cars, fast freight lines, or other car lines, or operating or running cars in any manner upon railroads, or engaging in any other similar business.

The amendment, if adopted, places all corporations, associations, partnerships and individuals, engaged in a public service business above mentioned upon the same basis as to the state board of assessors.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS

Petition Being Circulated for an Election to Abolish It.

The Necessary Steps to Be Taken—Question Up to the People.

During the past week, a petition has been circulated throughout the city, which is being well signed, asking the common council, to submit the question to the people at the city election in April, whether the board of public works shall be abolished or not.

The necessary steps to be taken, are for one hundred free-holders of the city, to petition to the common council to submit the question of abolishing such board to the qualified electors of the city at the April election, and if the electors voting, vote to abolish such board, then all the powers, rights and privileges, vested in such board, shall be performed by the common council.

The argument is advanced that too many boards etc., makes too many officials who are of different opinions, and the multiplicity of ideas, means too little of practical benefit is accomplished; that the responsibility for the municipal government should be left with the common council, a portion of whom each year have to render their account to the people for their approval or disapproval.

The mere fact that one hundred free-holders ask that the question be submitted, is evidence that there is a desire to make a change on the part of a respectable portion of our citizens, and the question should be carefully studied, so all may vote upon it intelligently.

Business Change.

The firms of Ward & Ward and the B. Brown Harness Co. which have been connected, have ceased all business relations with each other. The B. Brown Harness Co. will continue business under the name of Benj. Brown; Ward & Ward under the same name, each carrying their own lines.

Both firms are doing a good business, but feel that the growth of business can best be handled separately. They can still be found at the same quarters on Antrim street.

ANOTHER FIRE AT BOYNE.

Home of William Jackson Destroyed Saturday Partially Insured.

The residence of William Jackson of north Boyne was destroyed by fire at noon Saturday with all its contents. The fire started from the kitchen range. Mrs. Jackson, who has been in bed sick the past two weeks was forced to get out of bed to give the alarm. The department was called, but as the house was outside the city limits it could not be reached on account of the distance from water hydrant. Loss, $1,200; no insurance on furniture; building partially insured.

Auction Sale Advertising.

Now is the time of the year to hold your auction sale. If you contemplate holding an auction, don't fail to investigate the COURIER'S plan of advertising sales. Remember the best bidders are those who come from a distance, for they come to buy. Auction sale bills can cover only a small portion of the county, the newspaper covers the whole field.

We have yet to hear of an auction sale which we advertised, which didn't bring results. Charles M. Hull, whose sale we advertised February 4, says "My sale brought me far more than I estimated it at. I attribute it to the COURIER'S plan of advertising."

FRED COOPER

This week, on page 3, we advertise the sale of Fred Cooper, six and one-half miles south of Charlevoix on the county road, Thursday, March 12, at 10 a. m., E. B. Ward, auctioneer.

APRIL 1, 1908

That is the date fixed by Uncle Sam when the COURIER, as well as EVERY newspaper, must cut from its list every name that is one year or more in arrears on subscription. We all know that Uncle Sam is not a joker. What he says is exactly what he means—there must be no trifling and no evasion of the law in any manner. Every subscription one year or more in arrears must be settled for in value received before April 1. Under the law, we must, after April 1, if required, furnish to the agents of the national government from time to time, whenever required, complete copies of our subscription lists. Uncle Sam proposes to know, in other words, that we obey the law in letter and spirit. This rule applies to every newspaper in the land, daily, semi-weekly, monthly, etc.

Newspaper publishers are in no way responsible for the passage of this law, but like the subscriber, we have no choice other than to comply with it. We hope every subscriber of the COURIER realizes the gravity of the situation and and understands the position in which the publishers are placed. If he continues to send papers to those who are one year or more in arrears, and who do not expressly renew their subscription before April 1, 1908, such papers will be refused admission to the mails at the second class rate of one cent per pound, and must pay at least one cent on each paper. The latter provision would cost the COURIER 52 cents on each yearly subscription and would put us out of business in short order. The only alternative is to comply with the law and cut some papers off the list.

Every subscriber has received or will receive notice of when his time expires and we hope will do what he can without waiting to have any further notice from us, to save us from any trouble with Uncle Sam, as we surely do not want to cut off a single name from our list.

We will very much appreciate a cordial response to this notice. A few have already formed the habit of paying their subscriptions to this paper in advance, so that no notice to them is necessary. But there are still a great many of our subscription accounts that must be adjusted before April 1, 1908. We trust that all such will "do the needful." It will take some time to correct our lists after remittances are all in, so it is desirable to have payments all made before March 15 if possible. If not, please write us at once stating when you can pay.

The time is short and we hope every subscriber who is in arrears will give prompt and cheerful attention to this notice. We invite our subscribers to work with us so that we may on April 1 turn over to Uncle Sam the COURIER'S subscription list with every name paid to some date in 1909. The amount necessary to do this is small with any subscriber. But it will aggregate a large amount. Editors are not usually embarassed to know what to do with their funds; and if all subscribers will pay up, we promise to make good use of the money. If all subscribers will do this, it will square us with Uncle Sam, who then can find no fault with the COURIER. We are modest enough to believe the COURIER is worthy of that kind of treatment by all our subscribers.

THE HUMAN LOCOMOTIVE.

A certain man, because he was so strong and hearty, imagined he was a locomotive. There was, he thought, no limit to his vitality.

He regarded his stomach as the firebox. All he had to do was to keep the firebox full.

He followed the Mississippi steamboat plan, and crowded every old thing into his stomach.

One day when he was pulling a heavy load the firebox didn't burn right, so the human Locomotive stopped to investigate.

He found the flues choked, the firebox full of clinkers, and so stuffed with fuel that it couldn't even show a red glimmer.

Somebody told him to keep a clean fire with a good draught, and feed it regularly, with only a certain quantity at a time.

He was further advised to use Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets for the purpose of putting himself in first-class shape.

He did as he was told, and was soon able to pull and haul as well as ever. Besides he puffed less under a heavy load.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are absolutely guaranteed to cure all the distressing forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion, or we'll pay for all the medicine you take.

NEWS HEADLINES AROUSE A JUDGE

Warning Given from the Bench at Pittsburg as to Reports of the Hartje Trial.

Pittsburg, Feb. 28.—When the Hartje conspiracy case was resumed Judge MacFarlane asked the attorneys to take their seats as he had a statement to make. He said:

"I hold in my hand a newspaper which attracted my attention because of the headlines, 'Hooe's lies read to the jurors'. One of the questions to be decided by the jury is whether the deposition is true or false. There must be evidence produced in this case in order to convince the jury as to the accuracy or falsity of the statements made. It is a disgrace to civilization and if anything like that appears again in any newspaper I shall have the district attorney direct the county detective to prosecute the publisher of that paper."

The matter referred to was the deposition of Clifford Hooe, the negro coachman, read to the jury the previous day reflecting on the character of Mrs. Hartje and which Hooe has declared was false.

Former Badger Statesman Stricken

Shawano, Wis., Feb. 28.—Word has been received here from Arizona that Myron H. McCord has had a stroke of paralysis, and is not expected to live. Mr. McCord was at one time a resident of Shawano. He moved to Merrill and was a congressman from this district for many years. He is well known in this state. He moved to Arizona a few years ago and was governor of that territory at one time, also United States marshal, and is now revenue collector.

Buyers Throng Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Out-of-town retail buyers are thronging the Chicago wholesale district. The number of visitors is far in excess of last year. Sales managers insist the business of the country must be returning to a normal level, as indicated by this rush of buying. Walter D. Moody, business manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said he had been informed by various wholesale men that they were selling more goods than ever before.

Woman Suffragists Routed.

New York, Feb. 28.—Advocates of woman's suffrage invaded Wall street and attempted to make speeches in favor of their movement. Instantly their carriage was surrounded by a mob of yelling messenger boys, while from windows in the neighborhood rolls of ticker tape and other articles, including a number of wet sponges, were thrown at the orators. Speech-making was impossible and the carriage was forced to beat a hasty retreat.

Lost His Foot and His Life.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 29.—Caught between the high banks of snow on either side of the Michigan United tracks, from which he was clearing snow, Alfred Shannon threw himself face downward to escape a limited car. His right foot was torn off by the current catching "shoe," and he died in the hospital.

The World and the Man.

"The World needs MEN," said the youth at play.
"And I, for one, will be great some day!
My aim shall be to be just and right—
A man of love and a man of might."

He went his way with a purpose strong
To do his best and to fight the wrong.
He fought to win in a noble way—
"The world needs men who are great to-day!"

All through his life he observed the plan
To do the right and to be a MAN!
"The world needs me," said the worker gray,
"And I shall live as I ought to-day!"

And then Age caught him beside the path
And Death swung low in his awful wrath—
Up spoke the World, in its worldly way:
"Who was that fellow who died to-day?"

It seems that Muchlback bought without first consulting Mrs. Muchlback, whose signature was necessary to procure the cash in the way of mortgage on other property. Ending the Honeymoon

By TAYLOR WHITE.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

"And so you are your Uncle Dudley's heir?" cried Laura as Dan Fetter folded the letter and replaced it in its envelope. "Isn't that great?"

"It's not much of a fortune," explained Dan. "Just before the failure Uncle Dudley wrote that he had hoped to leave me a lot, but that he was afraid there was precious little left and that was going fast. Two weeks after that the failure came, and he shot himself. Poor Uncle Dud!"

"But there must be something," insisted Laura, "and we can look for the pirate's treasure."

"And lose what little there is left," suggested Dan. "That chart was all right to study over in the winter evenings, Laurie, but it's a different thing to sink money in a search for treasure buried 300 years ago off the Argentine coast."

"But this is real," suggested Laura, going to the desk and taking therefrom the well worn parchment which had furnished them amusement for so many long winter evenings. It was well preserved, and Dan could clearly trace the lines and written directions.

This paper had been handed down in the Kingsland family since one of the early Kingslands, a sailor in the British navy, had befriended a member of a pirate crew captured in the Spanish main. Just before the prisoner went to his execution he had slipped into the hand of his benefactor a roll of parchment which had come down through past generations, gaining in romance with each year.

Now the two poured over the old map with renewed interest since there was at least the possibility that they might have the means for prosecuting the search. Dan was inclined to be skeptical, but Laura would not have it so.

"It is a real treasure," she declared. "I know that it is real, and I will never forgive you, Dan, if you don't go after it. Think of the years we have been wishing that we had enough money to fit out an expedition. Now our chance has come, and you're laughing at the idea. You must go, Dan."

"We'll see what Uncle Dudley's fortune is," he temporized. "Wait until the estate can be settled."

It was not a long wait. Dudley Fetter had been forced into bankruptcy after a long career as a shipping merchant. The disappointment had so preyed upon his mind that he had killed himself, and the little old lawyer who was at once his counsel, receiver and executor soon disentangled the muddle. Dan found himself owner of a tramp steamer and some $7,000 in money.

He was inclined to sell the steamer, but Laura would not hear of it. She was firm in her faith in the pirate's map, and she at last carried her point through, only after she had declared that she would break her engagement if Dan did not undertake the trip.

The captain of the Dudley was a weather beaten old man of fifty, whose shrewd eyes twinkled when the subject was broached to him.

"I never heard of 'em that far south," he declared; "but, Lord love ye, there's pirate's gold hidden from the north pole to the south—to hear 'em tell it. It's as likely to be there as anywhere."

"Will $5,000 take us down and back?" demanded the cautious Dan. Captain Glass removed the pipe from his lips the better to smile.

"Down and back and down again," he asserted. "Anyway, you don't have to worry about getting back. We can easily get a load at Buenos Ayres or Rio to pay the cost of the up trip. It'll make a nice little sail for you, seeing as you've never been to sea. Why not make it a bridal tour? Brides bring luck to ships. Maybe with a bride we could find the gold."

"I know you will!" cried Laura, jumping up to plant a kiss on Dan's cheek. "We'll be married on board the Dudley before she sails."

The last argument was a clincher, and Dan gave in. Ten days later the men were called aft to witness a quiet little wedding, and as the minister went over the side a noisy little tug helped the Dudley get out into the stream and point her nose to the south.

It was a long, delightful honeymoon to these two, who had never seen the ocean until Dan had come to New York to claim his legacy. They had a day or two of seasickness, but this soon passed, and after that, as they slipped over the blue waters, Laura's confidence in the quest grew amazingly. Even Dan began to share her enthusiasm long before they had crossed the equator.

At last the course was altered, and the Dudley headed inland until the black, forbidding cliffs loomed darkly before them. It was no easy matter to pick their way through uncharted channels, but at last the steamer slipped into a little bay, and Captain Glass declared it to be the spot shown on the map.

Here the rocks did not come sharply down to the water's edge, but ran inland, forming a sheltered nook of some few hundred acres in extent. The two huge rocks which marked the entrance to the bay and a peak of the distant spur of the Andes formed their range marks, and as soon as they had put up tents on shore Dan, who had studied civil engineering, got out his transit and began to lay off the lines.

The cross marks fell near the base of the cliff where the sides were more precipitous than elsewhere, and for two days the men from the steamer labored to clear away the underbrush.

"We shall have to dig deep," remarked Laura. "There must have been a heavy deposit of earth during the 300 years that have elapsed."

"We'll dig through to China if necessary," declared Dan as he watched the men work. In anticipation of the digging some laborers had been brought along, and for ten hours a day they took out the sandy loam. At the end of three weeks they had a huge hole in the ground, but there was no trace of treasure chests, and Dan and the captain began to lose faith; even though Laura grew more confident as the days progressed.

"We'll get it yet," she insisted. "Just keep digging and the honeymoon fortune hunters will sail back to New York with millions."

"I'll dig one more day," promised Dan, "and then we must be getting back. The provisions are getting low, and we are only losing time."

Laura pleaded, but Dan was firm, and that night she sobbed softly in the tent while as though in sympathy the heavens opened their floodgates and the rain poured down. It was the first rain of the season, and had it not been for Captain Glass' precaution in ditching the tents they must have been swept away by the flood that poured across the little strip of land.

It was a melancholy scene that greeted their eyes as the sun rose the next morning. The underbrush was washed away, and as they made a path to the excavation a cry burst from their lips. The water had undermined the banks, and in place of the hole was a sea of mud.

"That's the answer," said Dan grimly, as he pointed to the spot. "There's the work of six weeks gone for nothing."

"But look across," said Laura, pointing to the cliff, where now a narrow hole, uncovered by the landslide, made itself apparent. "Perhaps that is it."

Carefully skirting the excavation, Dan and the captain gingerly made their way across to the cavity and with a wave of their hands disappeared. It was two hours before they returned, and then Dan came running out with a cry of triumph.

"It was a gold mine, not buried treasure, that the old pirate was talking about, he explained breathlessly. "It is one of the richest mines in the country."

Laura smiled into the eager face. "I knew it would come out all right," she said. "It just had to be the end of the honeymoon."

Sense of Smell.

It is said that the sense of smell is better developed in men than in women. In human beings, however, it is but slightly developed as compared with the lower animals. The reason for this becomes apparent when the structure of the skull of a dog or a cat is examined. Observing the nasal passages of either of these creatures, it is found that the so called turbinated bones are twisted and folded in a complicated fashion, so as to make a great extent of surface in a small space. The interior of the labyrinth thus formed is lined with the mucous membrane that contains the extremities of the nerves of smell. A section through the turbinated bones of a bear, which has a particularly keen sense of smell, resembles a honeycomb. In a human being the turbinated bones are poorly developed, so that the surface of mucous membrane is comparatively small. The sense of smell is particularly acute in some fishes, as the sharks. The olfactory membrane of a big shark, if spread out, would cover a dozen square feet.

A Tragedy of Niagara.

The story of Niagara is full of strange tragedies. One of the most dramatic of them is as follows: A hundred yards above the brink of the American falls a rock ten feet square projects for a foot above the water in midstream. One morning the inhabitants awoke and saw a man sitting on it. The noise of the rapids prevented verbal communication. They did not, do not and never will know how he got there. He stayed there thirty-six hours. The people telegraphed to Buffalo, and the railway company sent one excursion train after another for thirty-six hours to see the man on the rock. They painted signs and stuck them up for the man to read, saying, "We will save you." Two hundred yards above there is a bridge. From this by ropes they floated rafts with provisions to him. At the end of his stay a big raft came for him to get on. What they were going to do with him if they got him in this seething rapid is not known. He tried and failed and went over the fall, and that is all.

Tombs as Dwellings.

It is surprising to strangers to find Egyptian families occupying some of the tombs which have been excavated and abandoned. It seems uncanny to see babies playing cheerfully about the doors of the tomb houses and to watch children running in and out as they do at the mud dwellings. When questioned about the tombs a dragoman said that those occupied as homes had been tombs of ordinary citizens of no value as show places for tourists. As some of them have several rooms extending into the rock and as they are cool in the hottest days of summer and warm in the cool days of winter, they are altogether desirable as homes. The Egyptians do not share the horror of dead bodies felt by Europeans. Children run about with pieces of mummies, and if they cannot dispose of them to tourists they play with them. A mummified foot or hand is so common in Luxor that one may be purchased for a few cents. —Leslie's Weekly.

PITTSBURG FIRE FATAL TO FOUR

Mother and Three Children Are Roasted Alive in the Flames.

HUSBAND MAY ALSO BE DEAD

Nothing Seen of Him Since He Made a Futile Effort to Save His Family.

Disaster Caused by the Explosion of a Lamp While a Number of Boarders Were Playing Cards in House.

Pittsburg, Feb. 29.—One woman and three children were burned to death, the husband and father is missing, two houses were destroyed and a third badly damaged by a fire that broke out on the second floor of 3110 Brereton avenue.

The dead are: Caroline Vlacak, thirty-three years; Stephen Vlacak, six years; Carroll Vlacak, four years; Peter Vlacak, two years.

Husband is Missing.

The bodies of the women and children were not found until after the fire had been extinguished. J. Vlacak, the husband and father, seeing the sleeping room filled with smoke, became excited and leaped from the second story window. He has not since been seen. It is reported that he ran to the rear of the building in an effort to save his wife and children, and it is feared he was also burned to death.

A nineteen-year-old girl jumped from a window, breaking three ribs, and John Kalinowski, occupying an adjoining house, which was destroyed, threw his wife and four children out of the window into the arms of policemen, and all were injured.

Boarders Were Playing Cards.

The house was a two-story frame and was occupied on the first floor by John Kalinowsky, who conducted a butcher shop there. It is said that a number of boarders of Vlacak were playing cards on the second floor, when by accident a lamp was overturned. Vlacak, it is said, was himself asleep when the fire started from the exploding lamp. The card players are said to have run out of the building in a panic, while others, finding exits blocked, jumped out of windows.

Before the fire department reached the scene the house at 3112, occupied by Joseph Mossuck, had caught fire and was in flames. The blaze also spread to the home of John Fox at 3108 and did about $800 damage there.

French Assume the Offensive.

Casablanca, Morocco, Feb. 29.—Without awaiting the arrival of reinforcements which are on their way to assist him in his operations against the Moroccan tribes, General d'Amade, commanding the French forces, has assumed the offensive against the natives in the Chaonia region. Several columns of French troops marched against the Madaghra tribesmen near Fidallah, who fought the French in a series of combats between Feb. 16 and 18, when four French soldiers were killed and twenty-seven wounded.

Perilous Flight for Liberty.

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 21.—John Ziegler broke jail here and dashed across the river to the woods, where he escaped. He was pursued by an officer over the Rock Island railroad bridge, forty feet above the Iowa river, and was shot at five times. The fugitive was not hit once, however, and made the flight over the perilous ties without a misstep, though on a dead run. Ziegler was in jail on a minor charge, but anticipated a charge of a serious character.

Attacks Wife; Killed by Boy.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 29.—To save his sister from death, Stephen Biro, aged fifteen years, shot and killed his brother-in-law, Louis Turok, a former member of the South Bend fire department. When the boy fired the two shots which proved fatal Turok was emptying his revolver in an attempt to end the life of his wife, who lay in a sick bed at the home of her mother. The coroner declared the shooting justifiable and ordered the boy released.

Alfonso Saved by Police.

Madrid, Feb. 29.—An attempt on the life of King Alfonso was frustrated by the promptness of the police. His majesty attended the Comedia theater and as his carriage drew up at the entrance a man with his hands in his pockets approached him rapidly. The police seized the man, and though nothing regarding him has been divulged officially, it is well known that he is a dangerous anarchist and was aiming at the king's life.

Will Edit the New World.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Charles J. O'Malley, a Catholic writer of national note and a frequent contributor of verse to the secular magazines, has been chosen by Archbishop Quigley to succeed the late Father Thomas F. Judge as editor of the New World, the official organ of the archdiocese of Chicago. Mr. O'Malley is thoroughly familiar with the aims and methods of the publication, as he preceded Father Judge as its editor and directed its policy for four years.

Charlevoix County is entitled to seven delegates

AN IMPORTANT OFFICE.

There is an office which is soon to be filled by the people of the several townships of the county which is often given very little consideration. This ought not to be. The Highway Commissioner is one of the most important officers of the community and much depends upon the selection of a good man—a man who will be a highway commissioner all the time and will do his duty as he sees it thoroughly and conscientiously.

It often occurs that there is a very capable man already holding the office and he is turned out simply because someone else would like the place. This is not always good policy in offices of this kind for a good highway commissioner is not an easy officer to find at all times. This particular year it is important that good men be retained in the office of highway commissioner as they will have the matter of the new law changes to be considered and other matters of great importance are to come under this department of work for the first time. The matter of a money tax will go into effect and what is important above all in a county like this is the matter of a proper construction of new roads as well as the putting of the old ones in a better condition. The county has a few good roads. It has a number of very bad roads. Some of these latter are among the most important of the roads of the county, too.

The entire lack of system in road work is the principal cause for the bad roads which so often prevail. What is needed is a thorough system and that system carried into effect. The state has outlined a system which is good. It is not at all times practicable for every community to put it in force but there can be a gradual working up to it in such a manner that within a few years the roads all over will be much better than they are.

There is nothing which builds up the value of a farm more than a good road leading by it to the centers of population. There is nothing which does more to increase the popularity of a county aside from its fertile lands, than does good roads. There is nothing which does more to attract settlers than good roads. Good highway commissioners will do much to bring about the establishment of good roads. Have a care about this matter at the coming township elections and it will be of great future advantage to all the townships.—Otsego County Times.

SIMPLE HOME RECIPE

Prepare This Simple Recipe at Home and Try It.

Druggists Here in Town Say They Can Supply the Ingredients or Make Up the Mixture.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home when asked stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.

Another Explosion at Teheran.

Teheran, Feb. 29.—A bomb exploded in a side street of this city at an early hour in the day and killed two laborers. The occurrence created some local excitement but there was nothing to show any connection with the attempt made on the life of the Shah, when unknown persons hurled two bombs at the automobile in which he was supposed to be riding through the streets.

Rank Foolishness.

"When attacked by a cough or cold, or when your throat is sore, it is rank foolishness to take any other medicine than Dr. King's New Discovery," says C. O. Eldridge, of Empire, Ga., "I have used New Discovery seven years and I know it is the best remedy for coughs and colds, croup and all throat and lung troubles. My children are subject to croup, but New Discovery cures every attack. Known the world over as the King of throat and lung remedies. Sold under guarantee at F. G. Hines & Co.'s drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Jealous Miscreant's Work.

Bemidji, Minn., Feb. 29.—B. O. Jahnke, a schoolteacher, aged thirty, murdered Miss Laura Fleischman at the home of her father near Tenstrike, Minn., and then shot himself, both dying. She refused to be his wife.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that the children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

Question of Good Roads Discussed From an Economic Standpoint.

What it Means to the Townsman Well as The Farmer—Government Should Aid.

Said the good roads man, Mr. Gross, full of his subject, virile and convincing: "The advance of civilization is made principally by the school teacher and good roads. Only 8 per cent of all the highways of the United States are improved. The richest country on the earth and the poorest roads in the world. All through Europe the roads are good. New Zealand and other new countries like it have good roads. This is a practical question which we must consider. Chicago does not confine itself to the city limits, her material prosperity is dependent upon the whole country.

"Why is it the road situation has never received intelligent, adequate and effective treatment? Why have we not good roads? What is the condition? Why is it so? What is the remedy? First, I think that the condition of the highways is due to a serious misconception that came with us across the water. One of the misconceptions, and a fundamental one, is that the country roads are the farmer's roads and the farmers should take care of them. This is a misconception. The roads belong to all people and it is the people's place to take care of the people's property. There was born the idea of state aid, and that the state owed a duty to the highway. Back forty years ago the townships issued bonds to help build railroads. Why should not the railroads be taxed to help build the roads that bring the freight to their station? They are benefited.

"One of the good things that the Illinois state highway commission has done was to take a census of the use of the roads. Let me give you a few figures that will be of interest. They made a count of the number of vehicles passing over the different roads at different times in the week, month and year. Last March over a road leading into Springfield, 63½ vehicles passed during that month. In the same roadway in June and July there were 389 vehicles. Does that mean anything to you as business men? The same day in Peoria and the same weather, the traffic in March was 166 and 145 in June, the larger traffic in March. The same day in Centralia, Ill., the traffic was 28 vehicles and 187 in June. Champaign had 62 in March as against 240 in June. Decatur 240 in March and 278 in June. All through the state that result was found; where the farmer could get into town he went into town and where the roads would not permit he did not go.

"There is another misconception and that is about the lack of gravel or sand with which to build these roads. This is the remedy. The coal fields of Illinois are south of the corn belt, and in the hauling of coal through the state the cars are compelled to return empty. Why not send the cars back loaded with gravel? About six years ago President Fish, of the Illinois Central, quoted me a rate for gravel and sand to be used for road making purposes of 15 to 25 cents per ton to Springfield, Ill., a haul of 180 miles, cheaper than you can haul it a mile in a wagon.

"The farmer wants good roads but does not know how much they will cost, or what amount they will add to his taxes. We have a regular money stringency because of the enormous amount of money required to move the crops. It required $150,000,000 to move the crops. Crops grow once a year, and last from twelvemonth to twelvemonth and a little longer. The majority of farm products have been disposed of more on the condition of the highways than on the market requirements. The crops are all shoved into the market at once. There is in Chicago storage capacity for 60,000,000 bushels of grain. The attendant expense causes a waste of at least 10 per cent of the cost of the produce. I mean a waste that could be avoided by intelligent management. Why it costs us 9 cents a year per bushel to store grain. The same products could be stored by the farmer for one quarter of the expense.

"What does state aid mean? What will it mean to the mass of Illinois farmers? Ten and a half cents per acre per year for ten years, with his land increased $5 to $6 per acre. The United States government owes a duty to the highways. Let the government issue $200,000,000 of 2 per cent bonds. Seven cents per year will pay the interest and retire the bonds. The government is now taxing us $10 for all purposes. Do you think the extra seven cents would be a hardship?

"Some six or seven years ago I attended thirty-four farmers' institutes in this state to talk good roads and in nearly every case they were dead against the proposition. After I talked to them, 31 of the 44 were won over and passed resolutions endorsing the proposition and pledging themselves to help.

"The city of Chicago pays a little more than one-half of all the taxes of the state. Suppose a man in the clothing business sells a man in a mud town and sells another customer where the roads are good. In the mud towns the roads are too bad to allow the farmers to come to town, and the merchant does not sell his goods. Consequently you have to take a trip down there and settle with him and take back the material, while the merchants in the good roads towns have sold their entire stock and laid in another.

"There is, in my judgment, no economic question, no ethical question, no question before the public today so important as the improvement of the highways."—Chicago Commerce.

An Ideal Laxative.

Drastics and Cathartics which purge, unload the bowels, and give temporary relief, but irritate and weaken the digestive and expulsive organs. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are as different from these as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for children. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores.

THEATRICAL

"The Little Prospector."

The title of this play is suggestive of its character and composition. It is essentially a western drama and deals largely with the characteristic phase of cosmopolitan life in the mining camps of the great west. We use the term cosmopolitan advisedly, for practically every race of human beings is here represented, all attracted to one common by the magnet of insatiate avarice, the great dominating passion of the human heart, and all joining with eager rivalry in the mad hunt for gold. The many varied and startling complications which unavoidably arise in such a heterogeneous community are faithfully interpreted by the fascinating little actress "Chic" Perkins and a select company of players who will be seen at the Charlevoix theatre on Thursday, March 5.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet, telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

WHERE ARE THE TURKEYS?

Yes, where are the big red headed turkey gobblers that spread their tails, displayed their crimson cravats and posed and strutted on the fence at the old wagon shed?

A few years ago as we drove through the country we gazed on flocks of giant brouze and Hollands, white as snow, gathered round the big barn, roostlug lu the trees aud gazing and gobbling from the fences and the yards. Today we may drive for miles through fertile farm lands, we may go from form to furm "when the frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock," and never hear the gobble of the strutting turkey cock.

THE FARMER TELLS US WHY.—"Yes," says he, "we used to raise a smart lot of turkeys round here.

"The weasels, minks and hawks got some, but these all dred smart town chaps got to huntin' round our fields and timber and shootin' our turkeys and takin' 'em home and passin' 'em off for wild turkeys, and we got tired of it and quit.

"Then," continued the farmer, "it brought on so much scrappin'."

"Well, of course," we innocently replied, "turkey toms will scrap, and especially at breeding time, when half a dozen go to courting one old hen."

AS IT USED TO BE.

"Young man," said he, "you don't catch my meanin'. There was folks round here who never set a turkey egg, and yet when the fall roundup come they had more turkeys than all the folks for five miles around. These folks was always complainin' 'bout the foxes ketchin' their turkeys, and all the time it was the two legged foxes.

"Well, we had a whole lot of lawsuits, and it ended with the lawyers gettin' the turkeys that the other foxes didn't get, and Maria and the rest of us, jest worn out by these scrappin's, let the turkey business go.

"Another thing against turkey raisin'," continued the farmer—"help is scarce.

"We can't keep our boys and girls on the farm any more. These newspapers are blowin' round that the farmer's havin' a good, easy time of it because there are self binders and hayforks and hay loaders and manure spreaders and windmills. They have us all sittin' in rockin' chairs, cuttin' coupons and smokin' quarter cigars."

As if to give emphasis to what follows, the farmer shook the ashes from his cob pipe and said: "I want to tell you, young man, there are some windmills in these editor offices, and they're run by hot air too. What do these kid gloved city chaps who sit behind glass doors and drink champagne know about farmin'?

"Yes, I know they are feelin' us how to do it.

"Bill West tried one of their prescriptions on his old gray for the wind colic, and that horse just up and died the next day. He went into town the next week to see the editor, and they told him the editor wos away lookin' after his fences.

"What do city editors know about fences and farmin', anyhow?

"Well, one day a paper came here, and at the top it read, 'Go west, young man, and grow up with the country.'

"That night my boy John skipped out, and the rest followed, and now Maria and me are left alone, and we can't do all the farm work, let alone foolin' with turkeys."

"But," we asked, "can't you get help?"

"Hardly," he replied, "and the fellows you do get are lazy, good for uothin'.

"It used to be, when the children were home, we all took a hand with the work. John had the horses, Bill slopped the pigs, Mary had the chickens, Dave had the cows; Jennie, the oldest, had the turkeys, Sallie had the butter, and Maria and me took a hand with all of them.

"But now," said the farmer as he wiped a tear from his eye, "they're all gone, and mother and me are left alone to shift for ourselves, and turkey raisin' is out of the question.

"To explain this turkey matter there's one thing more I want to say," said the farmer, "and that's about black head.

"The farmers keep breedin' from the same stock, and the turkeys get teetu tally worn out.

"Then they get to droppin' yellow stuff around, and they do nothin' but loaf and drink and sleep and die aff I cut one open, and it had sour crop, it's liver was spoiled, and it's innards showed red spots."

"Can it be cured?" we asked.

"Yes," he answered. "Maria and me experimented with red pepper and peppermint and cinnamon and laudanum and liniment, and they was all no good. We just put a few drops of coal tar and a quart of venetian red in a gallon af water and gave the turkeys nathin' to eat, and they soon drunk themselves well.

"But," mused the honest old farmer, "the turkey days on the farms are over, and the time's a-comin' when all the turkeys will be hatched and raised in machines and be done up in tin cans and be sold in grocery stores, like other canned goods."

CHICKEN FEATHER MILLINERY.

Some of our lady friends who still wear feathers in their hats in defiance of the Audubon society will not hold their heads so high when they learn that many of the swell millinery establishments have a large and increasing trade with some of our big poultry plants.

We have seen many a sickle feather adorning a thirty dollar hat, and many a blackbird perched on a belle's bonnet is simply a cushion stuffed with Black Minorca feathers, while often a church choir prima donna has kept time to her solo with a plume plucked from a Japanese bantam cock.

The Seabright bantams, the Silver Spangled and Golden Penciled Hamburgs, the Gold and Silver Polish, the Houdans, the Games, the Andalusians, the Leghorns, the pheasants, the pigeons, the ducks and the geese, afford all variety of color and furnish materials for fads and fancies to gladden any debutante's heart.

Indeed, the day is coming when the fastidious fashionable will run chicken millinery plants of her own or compel her better half to breed stock that will bring only feathers that are in style. And, as the styles often change overnight, the poultryman will be at his wits' end to keep up with the procession.

That will be a sad day for the poultry business, for only the poultrymen who can contral the styles or get tips from headquarters will have success, while the rest will be hung up in the garret with the old bonnets, cloaks and hoopskirts that are out of date.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Turkeys are thick as grasshoppers in Texas. The Lone Star State has shipped 10,000,000 pounds of turkey this season. That's a nice bunch of money for the rangers who have taken the blue ribbon for turkey production. Go to Texas if you wish to get the "know how."

When the authorities of the Danville (Pa.) Insane asylum advertised for 1,000 pounds of live turkey only one reply was received from the home county. Center county filled the contract. All the turkeys were nine pounds or over at 18 cents per pound. It takes 3,600 pounds of turkey for the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner at this institution.

"When the cat's away the mice will play" in that patent dry feed hopper which is warranted to hop. Whether it brings a big crop of eggs we know not, but it certainly is an automatic sure hatch mouse incubator.

Have you heard the news from Missouri? Her last annual report shows a poultry product of $10,000,000. Her hens laid 107,155,578 dozens of eggs, worth $16,000,000. Missouri heads the band. The great American hen has knocked out the great Missouri mule.

How shall I get fresh eggs? Fresh eggs are composed of good strains, good pains, good brains and good grains. Mix these well in a scientific manner, and you will have eggs to burn.

Every time a hen cackles she does not lay, any more than every time you speak you say something that will make you famous. The hen tells a lie to get some feed and drink that you have neglected to give her. We will forgive her, but we can't forgive you unless you do better.

In distributing gifts of poultry don't forget the poor preacher. If you do, then that good joke that is one of the traditions of the fathers will die out. However, let us quietly remind you that the Baptist preachers prefer waterfowl.

When your hens get the roup, be sure to call the neighbors in. They will surely tell you what you ought not to do. After you have filled them up with red pepper, castor oil, axle grease, patent poultry feeds and bug juice, top off with liniment. Liniment will cure anything from a corn to a cracked smoke pipe. It's the great American panacea. If these all fail, call in the family physician.

"The early bird catches the worm" has its exceptions. You will not get early winter eggs if you snooze all morning. The best hens lay early. If you feed a fifteen minute mash at 8 or 9 o'clock, your best hen will be on the nest and will get left. If she gets left, you get left.

Do you prepare your birds for the shows? Let conscience and the standard guide you. These people who cut off extra points, pull out feathers and dye wing flights here may get blue ribbons in this world, but the devil will get them in the next.

Nor Any Other Creature.

By Ina Wright Hanson.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

Looking up from a long drawn reverie before the unfinished picture on my easel, I saw Iolanthe beaming at me from the doorway.

"Come on!" she cried. "Put up your work and come with me into the country. I believe you don't even know it is May day. Don't you remember 'the month of May,' when the air is so full of sweetness and love that even one shaving begins to feel an affection for another shaving?' Come, let us a Maying go."

"I can't," I answered. "I'm up against it. I'm crowded to the wall. I'm broke."

Iolanthe laughed—the sweetest sound in this wise old world.

"I had an intuition so, but that doesn't matter. This is my treat. You see, Isabel Dory took me to dinner yesterday, so I have enough to take us picnicking today. Come, brave knight, put on thy helmet and hasten."

I hastened. No one could resist Iolanthe. I took her little covered basket, and we went along the hall and down the stairs, with mock-doleful messages following us from our fellow workers, who were not going out into the blooming May day world.

"What car are we going to take?" I asked as we reached the street.

Iolanthe blushed deliciously.

"We are not going to take a car. You see, I got so interested in buying a 'scrumptions' lunch that I forgot about the car, and"—

"I see," I said gravely. "And you don't know how glad I am that we are to walk. It is so much healthier. Then we won't have to mingle with the plebeians on a common car. When rich aristocrats like us"—

Iolanthe glanced up at me rather sharply, I thought. It couldn't be that she knew—of course she couldn't know. No one knew but my uncle's lawyer and myself, and maybe my uncle. I wondered if my uncle did know in that unknown country he had lately entered. By and by I should tell Iolanthe that, when the preliminaries were over, I should have enough money to buy her everything she wanted, even if on this blithe day I had not a penny, and all due to a never known rich old uncle, now dead. But Iolanthe was proud, so first I would win her promise—win it while she believed me poor as herself.

WE ATE OUR "SCRUMPTIOUS" LUNCH

Purity and courage and gentleness and beauty—that was my Iolanthe. Mine? Ah, when our May day was over, should I be calling her mine?

"Who are you today?" she asked, stopping to fill her lungs with the buoyant air.

We had a habit of playing we were other folks when we went on these excursions—childish no doubt, but we were never going to grow old, we said, so it was best to be children a long time.

"Why, I am King Cophetua," I answered promptly, with a great inflating of my kingly chest and throwing back of my kingly head as we walked on.

"Her arms across her breast she laid;
She was more fair than words can say.
To robe and crown the king slept down
To meet and greet her on her way."

"Who are you today, Iolanthe?"

"It's a pretty story," she mused, not answering my question, "but suppose it were turned around. Suppose that it were Queen Cophetua and the beggar man. Would he be good and let her love him? And would he be willing to sit on the throne with her?"

"Oh, that's different!" I said. "Of course a man could not take favors from a woman. The beggar man would have to go out into the world and win his fortune. He couldn't take it from his queen. You know he couldn't, don't you, Iolanthe?"

"No, I don't know anything about it," she said a bit crossly. But Iolanthe never could stay cross long enough to make it pay, so in a moment she was talking merrily again.

Presently we reached the spot we were bound for, a spot of sun and shade and running water and new spring flowers. We ate our "scrumptions" lunch, and then we sang and talked and had long spells of social silence, and all the while I was wondering how I should make her say "yes" if at first she happened to say "no."

"I am going to tell you a pretty story," she remarked after one of these silences. "It's a true one too. I am invited and so are you, and you'll go, won't you?"

"Oh, sure!" I answered recklessly. "Where?"

"A reception tomorrow evening to meet the richest girl you ever saw. She has so much money she doesn't know what to do with it all, but folks have just found it out. She has pretended to be poor for reasons. We're both going because you said you would."

"I would do anything or go anywhere to please you, little girl," I answered with so much meaning that Iolanthe flushed and her dear eyes wavered before my gaze. I don't know quite how it happened, but suddenly I had my dream in my arms—my unresisting, perfect, red lipped dream—and I was quite mad with delight.

Then presently she cried out that I must never let anything come between us.

"'Nor height nor depth nor any other creature,'" I said reverently.

"'Nor any other creature,'" she repeated after me and made me say it every little while all the rest of that wonderful day, and I did not tell her about my fortune after all, though I had intended to. When you come to think of it, money is a sordid thing to discuss when two folks are quaffing nectar and nibbling ambrosia.

The next evening I went to the reception and was presented to the lady of riches. It seemed to me that all the room hushed its breath and waited while we two went through what was required of us. It seemed to me that I lived an eon before we were free from the great eye of the room and in some place where there were a splash of water and quiet and heavy perfume of flowers. There in the dim light she stood, slender as an English laburnum tree, swaying in her yellow silken robes toward me. Her hands, weighted with jewels, were held out to me. Her mouth that I had kissed was smiling at me—was saying:

"'Nor any other creature!'"

I stood there staring at this wonderful new Iolanthe, and all I could think of and all I said was:

"Barefooted came the beggar maid,
Before the king Cophetua'"

Which, considering the circumstances, could hardly have been more absurd.

Iolanthe's laugh rang out; then she came closer to me, and her eyes grew very grave.

"Dearest," she whispered, "I was too rich to be happy, and so I ran away from everybody and went to work in the studio. I wanted to accomplish something. I wanted folks to say, 'She is a great painter,' not 'She is the richest girl in the country.' Then I found you, and—and—I didn't care any more for fame, because I wanted something greater, love—your love—and—you said 'Nor any other creature,' you know you did!"

"And meant it, too, my angel!" I exclaimed, coming out of my trance and taking her hands in mine. "You shall give me all the money you think I need, and I will sit on the throne with you like a good little man."

"I am so glad you are going to be sensible!" she said fervently.

And then I had to explain to her why I was laughing.

No Use For a Pessimist.

Freddie and his mother were having a thoroughly satisfactory romp when a visitor was announced. As one topic of conversation after another came up it developed that the caller was in an extraordinarily pessimistic frame of mind and expressed her disapproval in no measured terms of everything and everybody under discussion.

This impartial "knocking" disturbed Freddie's amiable soul mightily, and he slowly drew nearer and nearer until he finally stood before the lady, with his small face puckered and the corners of his mouth drawn down.

She stopped in the midst of an "Oh, a dreadful bore, my dear!" to say:

"Why, Freddie, please do unscrew your face. I don't like to see little boys look like that."

Freddie surveyed her for a moment and then said trenchantly, but with an obviously sincere wish for information:

"I guess you don't like most anything, do you?"—New York Times.

A Bad Shot.

A hot headed Irishman accidentally insulted an equally hot headed Frenchman, who insisted on fighting a duel with the Hibernian to wipe out the slight. The Irishman suggested that the two of them should each draw a card from a pack, and the one who drew the lowest was to go into an adjoining room and blow his brains out. The Frenchman demurred at first, but finally fell in with the idea, and the two opponents drew out the cards, one of which was bound to carry death in its wake. The Irishman drew the lowest card, and, with a smile, he charged his revolver and betook himself off to a small anteroom to complete the tragedy. Presently a loud report rang out, and the white faced people ran wildly to the little anteroom, fully expecting to see the Irishman a gory corpse. Instead he came coolly along the passage to meet them, and as they stared wonderingly at him he cried:

"Begorra, Oi missed meself!"

Peculiar "Cure Stones."

Occupying an isolated position on the moors about five or six miles above Penzance, in Cornwall, a peculiar trio of stones is to be seen. They are arranged in a straight line, the two outside ones being four feet high and upright, while the center one is a little lower, but much wider. In the last mentioned there is a round hole large enough to admit of a man passing through. This idle is known as the "Men-an-tol," or "holed stone." Popular tradition states that any one crawling through the hole in the center stone will be forever immune from rheumatism and allied complaints. In times gone by the country people used to bring their children to the holed stone and pass them through.—Strand Magazine.

The order has been placed through the regular channels by the committee, and the trees will be here promptly for distribution. Under the plans now mapped out these trees will be sold to the school children and such others as may desire them, for one cent each, which will about cover the expense of their distribution. Literature regarding tree planting and the educational side of the undertaking will be given with each tree. These trees will be planted about the city, at any point convenient to the purchaser. This is to become an annual affair. It is the desire of the board of trade to inculcate in the children a love of trees, which will insure rational forestry in future years.

Those interested in the Epworth Assembly at Ludington are protesting against the proposed interstate camp of troops on Lincoln field, which adjoins the assembly grounds. Rev. W. A. Quayle is one of those protesting. He says:

"I suppose they have a right to come, but it will in my judgment wreck Epworth as a home for people and practically destroy the moneys invested there. I think you know that middle-aged women—married women—were insulted last year, as at times before, besides all the crudeness that the soldier company brings to the place. I have never said much about it, because I did not wish to be obstreperous and tried to attend my own matters, but I am sure, very sure, that the continuance of this business there would lead to a good many Epworth people getting out. You can put this matter as strongly as you wish for my family and for me, for whom I have a right to speak."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

OPERATORS AND MINERS AT OUTS

President Mitchell Calls Convention and a Strike Is Probable on April 1.

Indianapolis, Feb. 29.—Following the adjournment of the joint conference of coal operators and miners without being able to agree on the calling of an interstate convention, President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers issued a call for a special national convention of the miners to be held here March 12.

The action of the miners' chief means that the suspension of mining in the bituminous fields of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania on April 1 will in all probability be a strike for an advance in wages, and may result in a protracted struggle. President Mitchell is incensed at the dilatory tactics that have been pursued by the operators in refusing to renew the interstate agreement and has called the convention of the miners with a view to retaliating.

TRIED TO SLAY SHAH OF PERSIA

Life of His Majesty Saved Owing to Extraordinary Precautions.

BOMBS HURLED FROM HOUSETOP

Three Outriders Killed and Chauffeur and Score of Bystanders Wounded.

Shah, However, Was Not in the Auto, as the Assassins Believed, but Rode in Carriage Further in the Rear.

Teheran, Persia, Feb. 28.—An attempt was made in this city to assassinate the Shah of Persia by a bomb. His majesty was not hurt. Three of the outriders who were accompanying him at the time were killed.

How the Shah Escaped.

The shah owes his escape to the precautions taken to protect him from just such an attempt as was made. He was on his way to a nearby town where he intended to pass a few days. The procession had left the palace and was traversing a narrow street when two bombs were hurled down at it from the roof of a house. One exploded in the air, but the other struck the ground near the shah's automobile. This missile, in exploding, killed the three outriders, wounded the chauffeur and a score of bystanders and shattered the vehicle. The shah, however, was not in his automobile. He had taken the precaution to send the motor car ahead and rode himself in a carriage further in the rear of the procession. The motor car was a closed one, and it was thought that the sovereign was inside.

Soldiers Hurried to Scene.

As soon as the shah heard the explosions he alighted hurriedly from his carriage and entered a neighboring house. Here he remained quietly while his attendants sent word for a detachment of troops. The soldiers were hurried to the scene and formed in front of the house where the shah was. He then came out and, surrounded by a big bodyguard, returned to the palace. The house from which the bombs were thrown and the buildings nearby were searched by the police, but no arrests were made.

TAMPERED WITH PATENT RECORDS

Inventor, Attorney and Examiner Charged with Intent to Steal Valuable Papers.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Indictments charging destroying public records were returned by the grand jury against Ned W. Barton, an assistant examiner of the patent office; Henry E. Everding, a patent attorney with offices in the Hale building, 1328 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and John A. Heany, of York, Pa., an inventor. The men were arrested and bail was fixed at $10,000. The indictment charges that the three "with intent to steal and destroy" carried away from the patent office letters, specifications and amendments and unlawfully and wilfully destroyed them.

The case revolves around an invention valued at more than $5,000,000, it is alleged that through connivance with Ned W. Barton, Heany and Everdity outrivaled more than twenty of the largest electrical concerns in the country, striving to get the same patent. All of these concerns had filed applications for a patent, but from time to time Barton, it is charged, would see the specifications and employ whatever he desired for perfecting Heany's invention.

GASOLINE MOTOR CAR IS ADEQUATE

So the Wisconsin Railroad Commission Has Decided.

ATTORNEY'S ACTION DISMISSED

Decision Rendered by the Commission Is One of Unusual Importance.

Gasoline Motor Cars Declared Safe Sanitary and Comfortable on Small Roads or Branch Lines of Railways.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 29.—"The opposition which appears to have been developed against the use of motor cars on the Freeport-Madison line is another illustration of the peculiar fate which has befallen all important developments in the methods and means of transportation," declared the state railroad commission in a decision just announced, dismissing the complaint of Attorney Colin W. Wright, of Monroe, that the passenger train service on the Illinois Central line from Madison to Freeport is inadequate. The decision of the railroad commission is unusually interesting because it holds that gasoline motor cars of the type used on the Freeport-Madison line are reasonably safe, sanitary and comfortable, and when properly operated furnish adequate service on small roads or branch lines.

First of Kind in State.

This is the first gasoline motor car used by a steam railroad in Wisconsin. The commission finds that the cost of operating such a car is about one-fourth that of operating a train consisting of a steam locomotive with one baggage car and two passenger coaches. The commission cites from the testimony of expert railroad engineers to show that gasoline motor cars are safe and comfortable, and can be operated on small roads where business will not justify the running of passenger trains. The commission refers to the opposition to the introduction of steam roads in Great Britain and Germany years ago. The portion of Attorney Wright's complaint relating to train service on Sundays is continued for further investigation.

Patrons Made a Protest.

Prior to Nov. 30 last the Illinois Central ran two passenger trains on week days and one on Sundays on its Freeport-Madison line, but traffic decreased and it took one of the trains off and discontinued the Sunday service. Patrons along the line protested so vigorously against the curtailment of service that the company finally put on the gasoline motor car. This car is run on practically the same schedule as the passenger train which was taken off. The car has a carrying capacity of seventy-five passengers, is fifty-six feet long and weighs 58,000 pounds. It looks much like an ordinary steam road passenger coach. It can be run at a speed of seventy miles an hour, and has no difficulty in keeping up with the schedule of the steam train which it displaced.

Another Arrest in Bank Failure.

Marshalltown, Ia., Feb. 29.—Donald A. Johnson, of Omaha, Neb., cashier of the Green Mountain, Iowa, Savings bank was arrested at Cedar Rapids in connection with the recent closing of the bank. He is charged with receiving deposits after he knew the bank was insolvent.

Increased Pay for Soldiers.

Washington, Feb. 28.—The house of representatives adopted a special rule restoring to the army appropriation bill the provision for an increase of pay for enlisted men and non-commissioned officers in the army.

PARODIES.

Read at the recent contest at South Arm Grange.

What beautiful pieces are there that have not had ridiculous, senseless parodies written from them?

A poem is a beautiful thing in itself. Take any of the masterpieces, and they contain material for many hours' study and many days' thought. They are the greatest parts of great men, the noblest thoughts of noble minds, the best there is in the best class of people. Poets are the best class of people because to write truly good poetry a person must have a pure mind and be able to see and understand the lessons to be obtained from God's great plan.

Then, when someone has spent so much time and thought to give to the public a collection of true, pure, beautiful thoughts; it is a crime for some one with more fool wit than common sense to write a ridiculous parody on it.

Longfellow's "Psalm of Life," and "The Old Clock on the Stair," both beautiful selections in themselves, have been picked to pieces and, instead of the sweet, beautiful thoughts, ridiculous and nonsensical phrases have been substituted.

If you have been so unfortunate as to have seen or heard these parodies you lose, unconsciously, perhaps, some of the love and reverence you had for the original piece; and, too, it is almost impossible to think of one without the other coming to mind also.

The historic Maud Muller, of whom Whittier wrote, and who was originally a sweet pure country lass, has been portrayed in all the comical phases imaginable.

But of all the parodies ever written, those on the sacred songs—the hymns—are the worst of all. Numberless souls have been inspired to do better and be better by the hymns they may have heard sung, and it is a crime against the moral laws of humanity for any one to corrupt the thoughts in the song that might have an influence for good.

ARE DOING BUSINESS

Boyne Business Houses Are Recovering from the Fire.

The Boyne Citizen Tells of Their Plans—Most of Them at Work Again.

The ruins of the burned bank block are a desolate sight to look upon. In the big vault, where all the money was kept, everything was intact, the books and records are all right and the bank is doing business as though nothing had happened. Though handicapped and inconvenienced by lack of room and facilities, the wants of the patrons of the bank are well taken care of.

The W. H. White Co. have rented the north side of the Electric building, and are fast taking up threads which were broken by the conflagration.

The Boyne City Lumber Co. are also located in the same building and have resumed business as best they can under the circumstances.

Messrs. Quick Bros. say they will go into business again but how soon and where is yet problematical.

J. M. Harris and E. A. Knegsegger are doing business at the Johnson block. Their office furniture is very crude compared with what they had before the fire; a table, a few chairs, and with the help of the law library of A. G. Urquhart, are doing business as usual.

Knowles & Converse are in the Board of Trade rooms, and are ready for any business that comes their way.

S. E. Edelstein has as yet made no plans for the future.

Most of the insurance adjusters are on the ground and are busy looking things over. The bank will fit up quarters in the new addition, where Quick Bros. furniture store was, which they will occupy until plans have been decided as to the future building that will adorn that corner.

Up stairs in the new addition, the W. H. White Co. will fit up offices which they will occupy temporarily.

Kitchener Punishes Tribesmen.

London, Feb. 28.—Lord Kitchener's little frontier war in the Bazar valley, against the Zakkakheis tribesmen is making rapid and successful progress. The purpose of the expedition is to punish the tribesmen for numerous raids into Indian territory, and in a remarkably short campaign they have been scattered and broken, their forts destroyed and many of them killed.

SUGGESTS A REASON

Cold Water Advocate Tells Tales on Some Members of the Late Con-Con.

SAYS THEY WENT HOME SOUSED

Which He Thinks Explains the Failure of the Prohibition Cause—Some High Finance.

Albion, Mich., Feb. 29.—In a statement setting forth the result of his investigation of the anti-liquor sentiment in Michigan colleges, Arthur E. Cobb, secretary of the Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Association of Michigan, accuses members of the constitutional convention of having been under the influence of liquor during the session. He calls them "a shame and disgrace to every lover of justice and purity in the fair state of Michigan." "One delegate," he declares, "seemed to delight in relating how he had played poker all night."

Sentiment Ripe in the Schools.

In his statement he says: "During a recent tour of the Michigan colleges, the writer found prohibition sentiment most ripe among the students and members of the various faculties. Only a word from the secretary was necessary to cause them to arouse themselves to active demonstration of their hatred toward the demoralizing liquor traffic. * * *

Indignation at the Con-Con.

"Not a little indignation was shown concerning the recent action of the constitutional convention in refusing to insert a prohibitory clause into the new constitution, and no backwardness was manifest in expressing it. Doubtless a sidelight into the characteristic of some of the delegates in that convention would be interesting.

Got in with Their Louis.

"The writer had interviews with more than one person at whose home certain delegates roomed while at the capital, and each related how delegates had repeatedly returned to their rooms during the early hours of the morning under the influence of liquor. And one such delegate seemed to delight in relating how he had 'played poker' all night. Brilliant men to form a document for the government of a great commonwealth! A shame and a disgrace to every lover of justice and purity in the fair state of Michigan."

WHAT A GREAT MATTER

Just a Little Cash Capital Kindleth When It Comes to High Finance Methods.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 29.—The $100,000 company which bought and consolidated the east and west side gas properties in 1901 has a cash capital of just $250, which came from the sale of five shares of the $100,000 common stock with which the company was incorporated, according to testimony in the circuit court here. Soon after the properties were consolidated the company issued $550,000 bonds against them.

This came out in the trial of the city's suit against the Saginaw Gas company to determine whether the company must refund to every gas consumer in the city 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet on every cubic foot sold since June 1, 1906. The company has a $45,000 bond up to guarantee payment in the event of the suit going against it.

Norway, Mich., Feb. 29. — Much to the surprise as well as the inconvenience of the public Postmaster Bolitho, of this city, positively refuses to sell postage stamps during the hour the office is opened on Sunday for the delivery of mail. The reason for the adoption of this blue law principle is, it is alleged, because the postmaster is too religious.

VOL. 25. NUMBER 11 — CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1908 — PRICE $1.50 PER YEAR

WILL RECEIVE A LARGE SUM

Ottawa and Chippewa Indians of Michigan Get Judgment.

A COMPLETE ROLL TO BE MADE

Of All Indians Entitled to a Share—Will Take Sometime.

The Amount is $131,188 94—Before the Money is Paid a Long and Tedious Process is Necessary.

The Traverse City Record prints the following letter from Congressman McLaughlin, which will be of interest to our readers as many of the beneficiaries are residents of this vicinity.

"The court of claims rendered a judgment in favor of the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians of Michigan, amounting to $131,188.94. At the present session of congress a bill was passed appropriating the above sum for payment of the judgments. The present session passed the Indian appropriation bill which contains the following provision: 'The secretary of the interior is hereby directed to make a complete roll of the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians of the state of Michigan entitled to participate in the funds arising from the judgment of the court of claims in case numbered 27,537,' decided by the court of claims, March 3, 1907, and of any other funds to their credit in the hands of the treasurer of the United States, and said roll, when completed and approved by the secretary of the interior, shall be final and conclusive."

"This Indian appropriation bill is now before the senate of the United States for consideration. If the bill with this provision therein is passed by the senate, it will become law and the secretary of the interior will be authorized to make a roll of the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians of our state, and when the roll is made and approved, the secretary will be authorized to pay the money included in the judgment.

"Enclosed herewith find letter just received from Hon. C. F. Larrabee, acting commissioner of Indian affairs. I shall be pleased to hear from you if I can be of further service. Sincerely,

J. C. McLaughlin."

The letter from Acting Commissioner Larrabee to Congressman McLaughlin follows:

"Hon. J. C. McLaughlin,
U. S. House of Representatives.

"Sir—In answer to your inquiry in person of the 29th ultimo, I have the honor to inform you that a judgment was rendered recently by the court of claims, in favor of the Ottawas and Chippewas of Michigan, amounting to $131,188.94, and congress appropriated the money to satisfy it by the urgent deficiency act of February 15, 1908.

"Before it can be paid, however, it will be necessary to prepare a roll of the beneficiaries, which, owing to the large number and the difficulty of determining their rights, will probably be a tedious matter. In the Indian appropriation bill for next year, which is pending in the senate now, there is an item providing that this roll shall be prepared by the secretary of the interior. Very respectfully,

C. F. Larrabee,
"Acting Commissioner."

As soon as Congressman McLaughlin received data upon which to work he investigated the matter and made every attempt to find out just what money was due the Indians of his state, and he was rewarded by finding that the court of claims had finally taken the matter up and rendered judgment. While the two red skins, Jim Paul of Omena, and Simon Kigigobinasu of Harbor Springs, were in Washington, Mr. McLaughlin made many trips to the bureau of Indian affairs in company with the Indians and was indefatigable in his efforts to secure for them their rights. Senator William Alden Smith also took the Indians in tow and visited the bureau.

It will be necessary for the secretary of the interior to prepare a roll of the beneficiaries and in order to do this a special agent will probably be appointed to visit this section and other sections where the Indians are located, to secure the list of names of the tribes. An interpreter will also be appointed, who will probably be selected from among the educated Indians of the tribes.

A HEART TO HEART TALK

After two more issues we will be compelled to cut from our list all those subscribers who are in arrears one year or more. This is no bluff; it is the edict of the government of the United States, and must be obeyed. By April first, we must either have all our subscriptions paid up until after April 1, 1907, or satisfactory arrangements made for payment, or else cut their names from the list.

We don't want to lose a single one of you. We want to keep you all with us. We want you all to stay, and we promise you our best efforts shall be devoted to making your favorite home paper better in the future than it has been in the past.

Are you with us? Will you work with us? If so, give this matter your prompt attention. The time is short.

A STEP IN ADVANCE

The Question of the Abolishment of the Board of Public Works.

Geo. A. McCartney Tells Some of the Reasons Why the People Should Consider the Matter.

Editor Courier:

As I believe the affairs of our city are not receiving the intelligent investigation and consideration they should, I wish to trespass briefly upon your space, to the end that discussion may be provoked concerning a matter of present interest to all our citizens, namely: The petition for the calling of an election to ascertain the will of the people regarding our board of public works.

It is insinuated that the movement for the abolishment of this board is fathered, in a vengeful spirit, by those who have been forced to pay long overdue light and water accounts, by having their service cut off. Now the regulations governing such matters were made a long time ago, by the common council and amended as appeared necessary. If the board of public works is to be credited with the enforcement of these regulations, it is apparent that they should also be charged with the negligence which permitted bills to reach such proportions. I do not consider either side of this matter an argument for or against the board.

In my opinion the city of Charlevoix needs a board of public works just about as much as a man with one driving horse needs to maintain a veterinary surgeon.

The tendency in large cities where such boards may be said to be indispensible, is toward the abolishment of the cumbersome board, for the smaller, commission, or commissioner and many small cities are doing just what is being attempted here, and abolishing the boards altogether.

In a small city it is difficult to find really capable men willing to take the offices and perform the duties connected therewith; and in Charlevoix it would seem to be much easier to find six good men for the council than to find eleven for council and board of public works.

The councilmen are elected directly by the people to serve two years, only one half the council being elected each year, and are directly responsible to the people. The board is appointed one member each year to serve five years, so that only one-fifth of the board is retired each year, and while nominally responsible to the council four-fifths of the board may be entirely antagonistic to the council to which it is responsible, and in a position to block any plans made by that body along lines which most nearly concern the taxpayers and citizens generally.

On the other hand the council committee of three members is much more likely to work in harmony, is directly responsible to the people; is in the nature of things bound to be in sympathy with the plans of the people as expressed by their representatives on the council; and its members are and should be willing to bear the responsibility for their acts. With the board of public works, there are so many shoulders upon which to place blame for any measure obnoxious to the people, that while the burden may be lightened for all it is practically an impossibility to so place the blame that public desires may be respected and complied with."

It is understood that the next council is to receive a salary, so that it is no argument to say that they should be relieved of the dog jail work which falls to the share of the board of public works; if, indeed, the board does not rather complicate and multiply instead of lightening the work of the councilmen. And the argument that the board of public works costs the city nothing, while fallacious in the first instance, loses entirely its force when it is considered that it is as easy to vote a salary for members of the board as for aldermen, and is fully as much justified.

Last but not least the voters have never had an opportunity to express their will or desires with regard to whether we should have a board of public works or not, and it is left for the opponents of the board to give the taxpayers that voice in the affairs of their own government which is rightly the prerogative of free citizens of a popular form of government.

BAY SHORE INVADED

By Round Lake Lodge I. O. O. F. Fifty Strong Tuesday Night.

An Evening of Fraternity, Song, Feasting and Pleasure.

Tuesday night Round Lake Lodge, No. 283, I. O. O. F. accepted an invitation to visit the lodge at Bay Shore and confer the second degree. When all arrived and noses were counted, it was found that about fifty were present from Charlevoix, and an equally large number from Bay Shore and vicinity.

After the conferring of the second degree on one candidate by Captain Frank Wood and his team from Round Lake Lodge, the Bay Shore brothers set a table and invited all to fall to, then the magnet which had drawn so many out was shown, for of the good things to eat, Bay Shore went the limit.

The Charlevoix boys, not to be out done, tried their hands at speech making. George Marsac, Chas. Jefferies, Lon Hanshew and Richard Lewis showing their oratorical powers, but the hit of the evening was the songs by Will Johnson and Andrew Ross.

The principal feature of the evening was the warm spirit of brotherhood, and fraternity which was shown, all coming away better Oddfellows and hoping that the trip might be repeated.

PARENTS' MEETING WELL ATTENDED

School Exhibit in Connection Held Friday Night.

MUSIC AND DRAWING DISCUSSED

Unanimously Voted That They Should Be Continued.

Next Meeting to Two Weeks to be Addressed by Commissioner Milford—Prof. Butler in Four Weeks.

The parents meeting and school exhibit, at the central school building Friday night, was well attended and much interest shown by all present in the work of the schools. On calling the meeting to order, Superintendent Woodley explained that Supt. Butler, of Central Lake who was advertised to deliver an address, was unable to be present and the meeting would consist of a general talking over of the announced subject, "Shall the Teaching of Music and Drawing be Discontinued in Our Schools."

A class in music from the seventh grade gave an illustration of the method of teaching music, which brought forth liberal applause.

A lively discussion of the subject took place, the nearly unanimous opinion of all present being that to strike music and drawing from the schools would be a step backward. Mr. Woodley explained the system of marking, and said all were expected to make an effort, and would be marked according to the effort made. More co-operation on the part of the board, teachers and parents was asked for, a talking over of the differences of opinion which might arise in regard to our schools.

A motion was made that the study of music and drawing be continued, which carried unanimously. After the meeting closed, the seventh grade served refreshments in the music room, where they also had an exhibit of their work. The different designs which they had worked out, and the specimens of map-drawing shown seemed to convince all of the great benefit derived from the study of drawing.

Next meeting will be held in two weeks, when Commissioner Milford will address the meeting on the "Three R's." In four weeks Superintendent Butler will be present and talk on the subject which was assigned to him at this meeting.

WAR IS SCOUTED BY WU TING FANG

Chinese Ambassador Arrives in Chicago on His Journey East.

TWENTY-SEVEN IN THE PARTY

Young Bloods Clothed in Latest American Style, in Strange Contrast with Elders.

Wu Ting Fang Declares the Trouble with Japan Will Never Develop into Any Kind of a Serious Break.

Chicago, March 6.—Scouting any possibility of a war between Japan and China, Wu Ting Fang, ambassador to the United States from China, arrived in Chicago on the Chicago and Northwestern "Overland Limited" train. The party consisted of twenty-seven Orientals, the second division of the suite brought from Asia by the Chinese ambassador. The majority will remain in Washington with Ambassador Wu.

WU TING FANG.

Raising his hands in deprecation, Mr. Wu, when told of the latest developments following the seizure of the Japanese boat, the Tatsu, declared with vehemence that the matter would never bring about any serious difficulties between the countries.

Japan and China Friendly.

"Japan and China are on the most friendly terms. This little incident will never bring about any serious breach. It is only a local matter. It only remains to be seen where the supposed munitions were to be sent and by whom. Then, if China is in the wrong, an apology is due," said the ambassador.

The Chinese party with the ambassador occupied an entire Pullman car on the "Overland Limited." The members left San Francisco last Tuesday, having arrived there from Shanghai.

With the members from the suite were a number of Chinese youths, relatives and friends of the diplomatic party, who came for the purpose of entering eastern colleges. In strange contrast to their elders, who were garbed according to the Chinese custom, the youths were clothed in latest American style. All appeared to have fresh hair cuts, probably purchased in San Francisco.

Wu's Diamond Missing.

The ambassador wore his black red-topped hat, but the brilliant diamond with which he surprised Washington society as minister here five years ago was missing. A brownish-blue silk blouse, blue silk trousers, and fine light leather shoes completed his attire. Other members of the party were dressed similarly, but without such grandeur.

"Well, I am awful glad to get back to the United States," declared the ambassador as he leaned back in his chair in his private room. I am especially glad to get back to Washington. I have many friends there."

The ambassador's appearance had changed little during his five years' absence. His short mustache is streaked with gray, but he had the same bland smile as he began to talk.

Viroqua, Wis., March 6.—Two men were seriously and one slightly injured at Victory, just south of LaCrosse, when a northbound through freight train on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad ran through an open switch and crashed into a way train on a side track. Alleged Counterfeiters Arrested.

Chicago, March 6.—Five men and one woman, alleged to be counterfeiters, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Foote and held to the federal grand jury. They were arrested in a series of raids by the police and United States secret service operatives. They were A. L. McIntosh, A. R. Rothe, Roscoe Tobias, William O'Neill, William Loquist and Mrs. Inez Stevens, the latter a sister of Tobias.

Elect Harahan Chief Again.

Chicago, March 7.—At a special meeting of the board of directors of the Illinois Central railroad J. T. Harahan was re-elected president, A. G. Hackstaff and L. G. Hawn, vice presidents, and D. R. Barbank, assistant secretary.

Smallpox Closes Schools.

Sterling, Ill., March 7.—Thirty-five cases of smallpox in Harlem Center, Stephenson county, have caused the closing of the schools, postponing of farm sales and the forbidding of church assemblages.

The explosive power of a sphere of water one inch in diameter is sufficient to burst a brass vessel having a resisting power of 27,000 pounds.

CARE OF SKIRTS.

How to Clean, Press and Lay Them Away Properly.

Here is a practical plan for cleaning and pressing skirts, says the New York American: Brush them first, then whisk off with a clean brush dampened in ammonia and warm water.

Any stain can be removed if rubbed out at once with a mixture of equal parts of ammonia, alcohol and water. After the skirt is thoroughly cleaned, brushed and dried lay it on the pressing table or board, pin each plait down in the proper fold, cover the skirt with a piece of dark woolen goods which has been previously dampened and then press.

To remove dust from silk skirts do not use a brush, but wipe them with a piece of velveteen, which will not wear the silk and will remove the dust very much more satisfactorily than a brush.

Silk or ruffled skirts should be fitted out with tapes sewed on the lower ruffles, by which they may be hung upside down. This prevents the skirt from sagging and the ruffles from drooping.

Gowns of delicate material should be put away in long boxes or drawers, each skirt being folded in plaits, into which it should fall when being worn. The bodices should be stuffed with tissue paper; also the sleeves and trimmings filled out with the paper.

Wash frocks should always be put away in trunks, boxes or drawers, whether they have been worn or not, for in hanging they grow stringy, are more easily affected by dampness and lose their freshness before they are worn.

Didn't Convince Him.

A well to do old Scotch lady one day said to her gardener: "Man Tammas, I wonder you don't get married. You have a nice house, and all you want to complete it is a wife. You know Adam, the first gardener that ever lived, had a wife."

"Quite reet, mussus," said Tammas, "quite reet. But he didna keep his nice, easy job lang after he got the wife."—Dundee Advertiser.

J. Z. Stanley, of Harriella, Mich., has a clay depoail on hia premiaes said to possess great medicinal qualilies, and a sanitarium at that place is in prospect. The Harriella Herald says: The deposit of clay referred to above lies just outside the village limits on the east and compriaes fifty acres, through which runs one of the linest little creeks of pure water. This, added to a fine building site, there is no reason why a sanitarium would not be a paying investment. Mr. Stanley keeps bottles of this clay medicine in his store and many are those who come daily to drink of it, because dozens of bottles have been given away for a test in numerous diseases with good results."

According to the report of Railroad Commissioner Glasgow, the 2c fare law has not caused the dire misfortunes the railroads claimed to fear would overtake them when the measure was pending. On the contrary, in spite of the fact that the new law went into effect about the same time the late panic did, the comparison between the months covered by the report and a similar period of the preceding year is very favorable to the railroads, notwithstanding the further fact that the excursion business was cut out. Everybody is glad the railroads seem likely to continue to prosper under the new conditions, as well as that the people can afford to and seem disposed to travel more under the new dispensation.

G. H. Turner, postmaster at Topinabee and proprietor of a general store, dropped dead of heart failure Friday.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

TELLS HOW TO MIX IT

Directions To Prepare Simple Home Mixture.

Tells You How to Overcome Rheumatism With Simple Recipe—Is Easily Mixed.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which anyone can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and being of vegetable extraction are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

The curt old doctor who told a nervous patient to stop talking and she would get well was more truthful than polite. There is no doubt that constant talking wastes vitality and wears upon the nervous system. Often one of the first signs of a nervous breakdown is unusual loquaciousness.

POSTOFFICE MEN ARE MADE LIABLE

Clerks at Milwaukee Accused of Improper Use of Frank.

ASSOCIATIONS IN A DISPUTE

Letters Sent Out by One of Them in an Effort to Gain New Members.

They In Turn Were Returned to the Sender Without Payment of Postage—Clerks May Lose Their Positions.

Milwaukee, March 7.—It is reported that federal authority may be asked to conduct an investigation into alleged illegal practices on the part of a number of postal clerks in the Milwaukee postoffice. It was maintained further that such an investigation may lead to the discharge of about fifteen clerks in the office.

The trouble has arisen over the friction said to be existing between the postal clerks' union and the national association of postal clerks. The specific charge which may be lodged against the members of the union at the postoffice is that they have returned literature, sent out by the national association, in government envelopes without having to pay postage.

Returned to the Secretary.

The literature has been returned to the secretary of the state association, it is claimed, because it had not borne the union label. It is held that for government employes to use boycott methods by using government stationery, constitutes an offense of a serious nature.

For some time past, it is alleged, the state secretary of the national postal clerks' association has been sending out literature in an effort to secure members for the new association. The state secretary is Carl McAssey, private secretary to Postmaster Keyes at Madison. Among others, copies of the leaflets have been sent to the Milwaukee clerks. It is now charged that the members of the labor union in the local office, after opening these letters, returned the literature to Mr. McAssey in government envelopes without paying postage.

May Use Letters as Evidence.

This, it is said, was done after it had been ascertained that the literature did not bear the union label. It is also said that Mr. McAssey has several of the returned letters in his possession and that these letters may be used as evidence if an investigation is conducted. Mr. McAssey has a list of all those to whom letters were sent.

There are two organizations among the local postal clerks. One represents organized labor, while the other represents a national association of postal clerks. It is said that the trouble may mean the suspension of a number of clerks, if an investigation is made. It is further maintained that Postmaster Keyes will report the affair to federal authorities if Postmaster Owen does not act.

Will Mediate in Wage Dispute.

Washington, March 7.—Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission and Commissioner of Labor Neill, who, under the Erdman law, are to act as mediators between the officials of the Southern railway and their employes, will begin their work in this city Tuesday. The conference will be private and it is said by the mediators that no statement concerning them will be made until definite conclusion has been reached. The conferences will involve purely the question of wages.

MONSTER GERMAN VESSEL LAUNCHED

Its Plunge into the Water Marks a New Era for the Navy of the Kaiser.

Wilhelmshaven, March 7. — Germany's first mammoth warship was successfully launched here and christened Nassau by the Grand Duchess of Baden. Emperor William, the Grand Duke of Baden, Prince Henry of Prussia, and Prince Henry of the Netherlands, as well as a brilliant assemblage of prominent officials, were present. Wilhelm von Hengstenberg, lord lieutenant of Hesse-Nassau, made a speech in which he greeted the new vessel as a welcome addition to Germany's sea power and a defender of the interests of the fatherland.

The launch of the giant battleship inaugurates a new era in the German navy. In size, armament, speed and installation she will be superior to any warship hitherto built in Germany.

Republican State Convention.

To the Republican Electors of the State of Michigan.

The state convention of the republicans of Michigan is hereby called to meet at Majestic Theater in the city of Grand Rapids,

TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1908,

at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of electing four delegates at large to the republican national convention to be held at Chicago, June 16, 1908; also for the purpose of nominating fourteen candidates for electors of president and vice president of the United States; also for the selection of a state central committee and a chairman thereof, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the convention.

In accordance with the provisions of law and the action of the republican state central committee, every county will be entitled to one delegate for each two hundred and fifty of the total vote cast therein for the republican candidate for secretary of state at the last election and one additional delegate for a majority of 126 votes or more.

Under the resolutions of 1858, no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the state convention who does not reside in the county he purposes to represent.

Under the call of the republican national committee, each congressional district is entitled to two delegates and two alternate delegates to the national convention, which delegates shall be chosen at least thirty days before the meeting of the national convention.

By order of the Republican State Central Committee:

GERRIT J. DIEKEMA, Chairman.
DENNIS E. ALWARD, Secretary.

Grand Rapids, February 12, 1908.

Charlevoix County is entitled to seven delegates.

MECOSTA county men have started a plan for the improvement of that county that might well be emulated by Charlevoix county. The land is being taken by real estate men who desire to exploit large unsettled areas with a view of interesting thrifty farmers in their purchase. No attempt has ever been made to advertise the land. As the statements of real estate men are not always taken seriously by the general public the plan as advocated is for the board of supervisors to publish several thousand folders setting forth in terse and concise language the essential facts pertaining to the that county, including the average temperature, rainfall, etc., the material to be furnished by the supervisors of the several townships.

These folders will be given wide distribution by the supervisors and other township officers, board of trade and by real estate men. It is believed the plan will prove valuable to Big Rapids and the county of Mecosta.

We clip the above from the Cadillac News and Express substituting Charlevoix for Wexford county. In previous issues we have told of the great field for development presented by our county. Now is the time to get busy.

THE series of parents' meetings and school exhibits being held at the central school, whereby the teachers and parents meet and talk over the differences, which may arise between them, and view the work which the pupils are doing, cannot help but be very beneficial to the school system of our city.

Too often it is customary for parents to know by actual knowledge little of what the teachers are aiming to do in their school work, and to kick on something they know little about. These meetings give them an opportunity to see the actual work which they are doing, and by the counseling together, difficulties are surmounted.

The subject, which is now being agitated, the dropping of music and drawing from the studies of the public schools, is a serious one. In the COURIER'S opinion it would be a long step back. While we all cannot be musicians or artists, all of us desire to be able to understand and enjoy music, to be able to enjoy looking at beautiful pictures and drawings, and no one is incapable of being taught, so they may have this knowledge, in the course of study in the schools.

While the other studies are essential to one in the struggle for existence, music and drawing are studies which are of equal importance, they are studies which bring out all there is in mankind, his recreation, that which takes his mind off from his business, and gives him that rest of body and mind which goes to make our life worth living. Shall our school children simply be taught those studies which are a part of the daily routine of life, or shall we add to that education, which the state owes to every boy and girl, something which will make not only for their enjoyment, but the enjoyment of all with whom they come in contact. That is the question. Ponder it well.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

For sale by F. N. Chapel & Co., Charlevoix.

Law Upheld by The Supreme Court.

There has been some question in the past whether the law prohibiting the sale of liquor to Indians as given below would stand, Indians being citizens. In a recent case from Cass county carried to the supreme court the law was upheld.

Sec. 5391 C. L. prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors to "any Indian, or any person of Indian descent," prohibits such sale to any person of mixed white and Indian blood, or to persons with Indian blood in their veins.

It is within the police power of the legislature to punish the sale of liquor to a citizen of the state and of the United States."

Prosecuting Attorney Clink wishes the liquor dealers attention called to this ruling and hereafter we can expect to see fewer drunken Indians on our streets.

An Ideal Laxative.

Physics and Cathartics which purge, unload the bowels, and give temporary relief, but irritate, and weaken the digestive and expulsive organs. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are as different in effect as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for children. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores.

To my Patrons:

As published in the news columns of this paper last week, I have purchased the Ward & Ward interest in the B. Brown Harness Company, and am now sole owner of the business, which I shall continue in the same location and under the same policies as heretofore.

While it is my intention to continue to extend credit to responsible patrons, it is necessary that I should make close collections, and I should have the money on all due and past due accounts at the earliest possible date, as it is only by the utmost promptness in my collections that I can maintain the extremely low prices I have been quoting, and it is to the interest of all the customers at my store that each one should be prompt in meeting his engagements with me.

I am making a strong effort to give my patrons greater value for their money than they can secure in any other store or any other city, and am succeeding, as witnessed by the men who drive long distances to trade with me, and are invariably able to save money by making the drive instead of trading elsewhere or sending to catalogue houses.

Thanking you for your past patronage, and assuring you that I shall endeavor to merit an increased custom in the future, I remain, Yours to command,

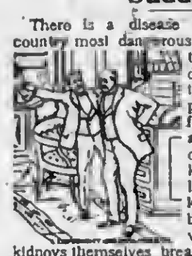
The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths



There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it,—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

ECZEMA

Cured in less than four weeks.

Those who have had experience with this stubborn disease can hardly believe at first that Wonderful Dream Salve can and does cure Eczema.

There is no doubt about the matter whatever. A great many letters are on file in our office from grateful patients, telling of the quick and easy way in which Wonderful Dream Salve has removed all traces of this torturing skin affliction.

Mr. John T. Kealey, a well-known business man, located in the Stevens Bldg., Detroit, Mich., was recently cured of a bad case of Eczema of fourteen years' standing. After treating with many doctors and taking many remedies without relief, Mr. Kealey was induced to try Wonderful Dream Salve, and in four weeks was entirely cured. He says:

"I certainly consider this a remarkable cure, inasmuch as I have spent hundreds of dollars in the fourteen years of annoyance with this troublesome itching skin ailment. I have since the cure of my case heard of other cures, some of them even more remarkable than mine, which go toward demonstrating the value of Wonderful Dream Salve as a great skin healer."

If you have Eczema, why not try a box of Wonderful Dream Salve. If it fails, your druggist will refund your money. Isn't that fair enough? Keep it in your home for Chilblains, Chapped hands, Piles, Cuts, Barns, Frost-bites, Boils and Sores of any kind. You will never use anything else. 25c a box at your druggist or mailed prepaid direct.

THE BARROW AT THE FRONT.

The barrow is coming into his own. Costly experience with swine disease, contracted at public market exhibitions despite all possible precautions, induced the management of the International show to abandon classes for breeding swine and open a show for barrows only, that go direct from the pens to the shambles. This idea did not suit some swine breeders. But the barrow show has caught the swing of success and will hereafter receive the support of some interests which have been fighting it. It has demonstrated the possibilities of such a show, and those who came to scoff will remain to pray—and exhibit. The perfection to which pork producing can be brought, mirrored in the exhibits of this section, is among the most absorbing features of this exhibition.

Hampshires Popular.

As heretofore, keen interest was shown in the exhibit of Hampshire barrows. Black hogs with white belts around their bodies at the girth appeal to the curious as well as to pork makers. They are odd, distinctive and flash in the show yard.

But it is not alone the peculiar color marking of Hampshires that accounts for their growing popularity. Packers esteem them for their dressing qualities. This fact has been emphasized in the decisions registered by packing house judges of fat barrows at this show. Each year has marked an increase in the number.

R. L. Bohman of Illinois was first for barrow under six months, the Ohio State university second and Atkinson & Stone, Illinois, third. It was a beautiful trio which took the prizes in this class. A deal of finish and quality was associated with rather heavy bone and coarseness of head. Hampshires made an especially strong pen showing.

Grade and cross bred fat barrows made an exceptionally strong exhibit. That certain breeds cross to excellent advantage from the feeder's standpoint was a patent fact in this collection.

Grand Championships.

The Ohio State university won the grand championship for pen of three barrows. Competition was as edged as a half dozen top notch rival pens could make it. It was the trio of pure bred Berkshires, all bred and fed by that institution, which achieved this distinguished honor. The grand champion single barrow was the mixed bred hog shown by Goodwine & Goonenough.

In breeding the grand champion barrow, from a litter of seven pigs, is three-fourths Duroc-Jersey, one-eighth Poland-China and one-eighth Hampshire. He was wonderfully made and wonderfully fed.

These interesting items and illustrations of a fine feature of the last international show are reproduced by the courtesy of the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago.

Hog Feed Rack.

The illustration herewith shows a form of rack which was designed and first used by a Mr. Davis of Michigan for feeding alfalfa to hogs which are following corn fed cattle. It has been highly indorsed by Professor H. R. Smith of the Nebraska experiment station. In some humid sections it might be well to construct a cover of some kind to go over the top of it. The rack may be of any length, but it should not be more than three or three and one-half feet wide, as the alfalfa would probably lodge in the center. The fencing board at the bottom should not be more than nine inches from the top to the ground. If higher the hogs will be likely to get their fore feet into the rack. The 2 by 4 at the bottom of the hopper should be six inches from outside line of the corner posts and at the bottom fourteen inches from the floor of the rack or eighteen inches from the ground.—Breeder's Gazette, Chicago.

FEEDING ALFALFA TO HOGS.

WITH THE FLOCK.

Breeding Value of Show Ram In Wool and Meat Making.

BY W. J. WILMER

At this season of the year, with "show" animals greatly in view, the question as to their breeding value naturally recurs. A sheep man of much experience says: A ram born and bred in the stable, artificially fed from its birth and forced to a precocious development cannot transmit to its descendants the qualities of robustness necessary to a range system of sheep breeding. The English breeds do not owe their good reputation to measures taken against nature, nor have their typical qualities been produced in this way, and the practice in breeding establishments whose only object is a great development is too artificial. It is true we ought not to neglect the breeding animals destined for exposition, and we ought to feed them with the best fodder, keep their fleece in the best condition and put into practice every legitimate art to present them in the most perfect way before the public. But it seems only reasonable nevertheless to allow them at least to breathe the pure air of the field and not the heavy atmosphere of a half closed and half dark stable, to oblige them to walk and to graze and, lastly, to always keep in mind in preparing them that the breeder produces wool and meat in God's pastures.

Carcass Competition.

Thirty-one wethers and fourteen lambs were entered in the contest of sheep carcasses at the late International show in Chicago, and prizes were awarded, as follows.

For wethers one year old and under two years—

Breed.	Live wgt.	Dressed wgt.	Per cent of Dressed yield
1. Pure Southdown	110	81	57.95
2. Pure Southdown	142	82	57.75
3. Grade Southdown	117	81	57.14
For lambs—
1. Pure Southdown	97	49	50.52
2. Hampshire-Rambouillet	117	72	61.50
3. Grade Southdown	101	56	55.00

It will be seen that Southdowns, including one grade, won all prizes except the second prize for lambs, which went to the crossbred Hampshire-Rambouillet shown by Robert Taylor of Nebraska. The Wisconsin Agricultural college took first prize for both wethers and lambs and second prize for wethers, while the Iowa college carried off both third prizes.

The wethers made a splendid exhibit of carcasses, but the lambs, excepting the prize winners, looked a very light finished lot.

The champion carcass—Southdown lamb—brought 50 cents a pound at the sale, and prices as a whole averaged very good.

Quarter Blood Wools.

It is stated by a trade paper that fine wools are not in supply to more than meet the demand of the spinners for the season, and the demand for the coarser grades, which has been somewhat slow, particularly quarter bloods, is certain to increase. This authority says:

In the past few years—in fact, ever since the worsted fabrics became so popular—there has been a ample demand for quarter-blood wools along in December, January and February that has practically cleared up merchantable supply, and no reason exists why the same demand should not materialize this winter. We feel that the unsettled markets are but a temporary matter.

STEER FEEDING.

Effect of Feed Upon Value of Manure Produced.

J. M. Bartlett of the Maine experiment station has recently reported the results of studies of the relation between fertilizing constituents in feed consumed and manure (solid and liquid) excreted by steers during digestion experiments with hay, wheat bran and cottonseed meal. His figures seem to show that in the purchase of feeds it is important to take into consideration not only their flesh forming value, but also their effect upon the value of the manure produced. Feeds like cottonseed meal, which are rich in nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, produce manure rich in those elements, while feeds poor in fertilizing constituents produce poor manure. If the manure is carefully saved and used it may therefore often be more economical to buy the higher priced feeds, rich in fertilizing constituents, because of the more valuable manure obtained.

Another important fact emphasized in these experiments is that a large part of the nitrogen, the most expensive fertilizing element, as well as the potash, is found in the urine. Not only are the fertilizing constituents found in large quantities in the liquid portion of the manure, but they are in more available form here than in the solid excreta. The liquid portion is therefore considered the most valuable part of the manure and should be carefully saved.

Hard Labor.

A story is told in the Boston Herald of a Vermonter, Joe B., who is a faithful attendant of the little group that gathers regularly for social conversation in the country store. The talk turning one day upon farm work, Joe remarked that he was sure no man present worked harder than he.

"How much do you do?" questioned the storekeeper.

"Me?" answered Joe. "Oh, I meelk nine cow every day."

"And do you have any one to help you?" pursued the merchant.

"Oh, yes," said Joe. "My wife, she help some."

"And how many does your wife milk?" continued the questioner.

"My wife?" responded Joe. "Oh, my wife she meelk eight."

Hemlock and Oak.

Over two-thirds of the tanbark consumed comes from hemlock and over one-fourth from oak; chestnut and other woods contribute the remainder. More extract is secured from chestnut, however, than from all other domestic woods combined. A small quantity of extract, or a little over a thousand barrels, comes from the roots of palmetto.—Forest Service.

A Double Elopement.

By ANNE HEILMAN.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

Hester Blake finished sweeping the snow from her front porch and then looked dubiously at the huge drifts lying across the road and the slaty sky above.

"They won't come," she assured herself. "Cousin Emma 'll never venture out such a day as this. It'll be the first Christmas I've ever spent alone." She sighed unconsciously as she reentered the silent house.

Mrs. Blake lived in the outskirts of the village of Clifton. She kept a boy to do the chores, had a cow and chickens and lived in a comfortable way on a tiny income. She was "Aunt Hester" to all the young people of her acquaintance, which was considerable, for she was popular, this worn woman of fifty. Her sad blue eyes and faded brown hair had a compelling charm even under the rusty black hat which she wore in winter and summer alike, and when she smiled your heart went out to her. You could have told her your most intimate troubles, sure of a tender understanding and sympathy and that the confidence would go no further.

The bright, shiny little kitchen had the inelpient smells of good things for dinner in it, and Mrs. Blake set to adding yet another savory odor.

"Might as well finish getting the dinner now I've started it," ran on her low monotone. She talked to herself for company. "Mercy me—sleigh bells!" hastily opening the door. "Charlie Brock and Elvie Lee of all people! Hurry in and I'll get you some hot coffee. It'll heat you up. Why, Elvie, what was your father thinking of to let you ride out in such weather?"

"Father doesn't know anything about it," faltered Elvie miserably.

Mrs. Blake's glance went from one to the other as she poured the steaming coffee. There were little humorous, indulgent creases in her face. "You are running away," she said.

Elvira hung her head and began to cry.

"Don't scold her, Aunt Hester," burst out Charlie. "It wasn't her fault I asked her to go."

"Well, what's she crying about?" questioned Mrs. Blake severely. "Didn't she consent, or did you carry her away by force, Charlie?"

"Of course he didn't," protested Elvira. "I said I'd go, but I wish I hadn't. I was sorry right after we started, and I—I made Charlie stop here instead of going to the minister's. I ought to go back home. I know father 'll be worried." And her lip began to quiver again.

"Well, he won't be worried long," said Charlie, turning from the window. "He's coming down the road now."

Elvira sprang to her feet.

"Don't let him come in, Aunt Hester!" she cried excitedly. "He'll be mad at Charlie!"

"Let him!" fiercely from Charlie. "I don't know's I care."

"Don't say anything hateful to him," pleaded the girl piteously, "will you, Charlie?"

"Don't worry, Elvie," replied the boy soothingly. "I won't hurt him."

"I didn't mean that!" cried Elvie, trembling and clinging to him. "I don't want him to hurt you!"

"Would you care, Elvie?"

Elvira sobbed hysterically, her face against his coat.

"Of course I'd care"—in muffled tones—"you know I'd care."

Meanwhile Mrs. Blake watched the floundering horse far down the road.

"He'll be here directly," she warned. "You'd better get ahead of him."

But Elvie shrank back.

"I don't want to run away," she wailed, still clinging to her lover.

Over her head Charlie looked with despairing eyes at the older woman. With swift determination to help him, she took the girl's trembling hands in hers. "Elvie," she demanded, "do you love Charlie Brock?"

"Of course I do," answered Elvie, looking at her in surprise.

"Well, then, I don't know's I ought to advise it, but your mother's dead, and your pa'll never let you marry Charlie, because he's too poor, but that's no reason for separatin' young hearts. You've both got love and health and strength, and, Elvie, you're twenty-four and ought to know your own mind, and if you love Charlie and ain't got the courage to stand up in front of the minister, why, just stay here and let your father take you back home. But if you want to marry him you'll go now and have the words said before your father can pull his horse out of the drift, and I'll get my wraps and go with you."

As she disappeared into the adjoining room Elvie looked up into her lover's face. "I'll do it, Charlie," she whispered. "Aunt Hester's right. She always is. I'll go—wherever you go."

"On second thoughts I've determined to stay and have it out with the squire," said Mrs. Blake as she hustled the young people out to the cutter and wrapped a warm rug around the trembling girl. "Don't worry, Elvie. I'll make it all right with your father. Mind you come straight back here for your dinner," she urged smilingly as they drove rapidly away.

But when Elvira's father faced her at her own fireside a few minutes later there was no smile on her tired face.

"Yes, I helped them," she said defiantly, breaking the silence of thirty years.

"It wasn't your business," Squire Lee blustered, but she stopped him with quiet dignity.

"Yes, it was, Samuel. It was my business not to let Elvira spoil her life as you spoiled yours, for you ain't been happy any more'n I have. I ain't sayin' that Elvie's mother wa'n't a good woman, but the Lord makes two people for each other and puts them into this world to meet and marry and die together, and if they go against his plannin' they suffer."

He started eagerly to speak, but she went on rapidly.

"I didn't have enough money for you, and you shilly shallied between me and Lida and finally married her without sayin' a word to any one, and so at last I married Isaac. He was a good husband." A sudden impulse of loyalty toward the dead surged within her.

"Hetty," a joyous warmth breaking into the squire's voice—"Hetty, you said—you said 'any more'n you were.' Do you mean that you've cared, too, all these years? Have you, Hetty?" with compelling eyes on hers.

"Yes," she answered simply. "I've cared. And there hasn't been a day in all these years when I've seen you growing harder and harder that I ain't said to myself, 'He'd been different if he'd married the woman he loved.' Elvie's just like you. She'd keep Charlie off and on, and some day she'd go and marry somebody else and be miserable."

"I didn't mean her to be miserable," the squire stammered slowly. A great wonder held him fast. Was this the quiet, self repressed woman who all these years had sat across the aisle from him every Sunday morning in church, this slender, vibrant creature trembling in the might of her demand for happiness for his motherless girl? Was this the woman whom he had believed without feeling?

"Hetty," he cried and held out his hand.

She took it and stood looking sadly up at him.

"Hetty, I didn't think you cared in that way. I thought you hated me for the way I'd treated you after goin' with you for two years. I never thought you missed me as I've missed you all these years. I'd give them all only to live over the two happy years when we kept company. How different"—

"You've remembered!" the widow cried, and her wan cheeks flushed. "I'm very lonesome here, Samuel, but I won't be any more when I know you've remembered. Now go out and put up your horse. Tommy's away for the holidays, and I'm all alone. The young folks are comin' back here for dinner, and you must join us, sociable like, and forgive them for runnin' away."

"Hetty," pleaded the squire, the light of determination in his eyes, "let's run away too! My horse is better'n Charlie's. We'll get to the parsonage most as quick as they do. Here, put on your wraps," he commanded.

"No, no, Samuel"—her face flaming—"not after the way I talked. It looks as though I was hintin'"—

"We've wasted altogether too much time already, Hetty. Put this scarf over your ears. It's too cold for a hunt."

"Oh, Samuel, we're too old to be so foolish," she faltered.

"We're not too old to love," he assured her as he tied on the scarf.

Happiness.

Many people go through life dissatisfied and unhappy because they do not have what their neighbors have. They allow themselves to be constantly nettled by comparing themselves with others better off.

Now, about as poor business as one can engage in is to go through life with one's eyes so fixed upon what others have that he cannot enjoy his own.

Everywhere we see prosperous people who are making a great deal of money, and yet they are dissatisfied, discontended, unhappy, restless. They rove about from place to place, trying to find pleasure in this thing or that, but always disappointed. They think if they could only get somewhere else than where they are, do something else than what they are doing, if they could only go abroad, travel over different countries in a touring car or in an automobile, they would be happy. Their eyes are always focused upon something in dreamland instead of something in the land of reality.

They mistake the very nature of happiness. They put the emphasis on the wrong things.

The secret of happiness is not in your fortune, but in your heart. It does not consist of having, but in being. It is a condition of mind.—Success Magazine.

Very Neighborly.

"Good afternoon," said Mrs. Nagg, with icy politeness, to her next door neighbor. "Would you mind not looking out when my visitors are passing? It makes the place look vulgar."

"Thought they were brokers' men," replied Mrs. Snapp pleasantly. "You and your sister, or charwoman, or whatever she is, are not the kind that men visitors run after much, are you?"

"Better than some people whose 'usbins have run away from them," observed her neighbor.

"What do you mean, ma'am?"

"I name no names; their 'usbins may be in prison or they may not. 'Ave you seen my doormat, by the bye? I missed it yesterday."

"When I become a thief, ma'am, I'll steal something that's clean."

"Well, I must go," said Mrs. Nagg cordially. "I wish I could stop, but I've got to call on a lady."

"And so, of course, you feel awkward. Going to ask for a place as cook, perhaps. Well, I shan't keep you, ma'am. Good evening!"—London Scraps.

MANY MILLIONS ARE EXTORTED

Charges Against Paper Trust Made to Attorney General Bonaparte.

HERMAN RIDDER THE ACCUSER

Letter from President American Newspaper Publishers' Association Made Public.

Tells the Attorney General How Members Are Mulcted by the Big Combine—Has Evidence to Support Charges.

Washington, March 7.—Charges that the paper trust has stifled competition and has added $60,000,000 per year to the burdens of publishers, together with light on the methods of the trust, are contained in a letter written by Herman Ridder, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, in reply to Attorney General Bonaparte's request for evidence of an unlawful combination in the paper trade.

Mr. Ridder says that seven groups of papermakers have held a meeting in New York within the last fortnight. These groups, he says, include pulp makers, makers of boards, tissue, book papers, news print paper, writing, manila and wrapping paper. He continues:

Aim of the Paper-Makers.

"All of these are subdivisions of the American Paper and Pulp association, a national organization, that has its headquarters and address at 309 Broadway, New York city. From a merely statistical body with a restricted purpose of discussion and interchange of ideas, it has become a center for seven divisions of papermakers who have undertaken to co-operate through it in a general restriction of production, a regulation of output and an advance in prices, through combinations so solidly organized as to control the market arbitrarily by pool agreements and penalties and restrictions.

"The paper-making business is so interdependent between these groups that the actions of many of them have contributed materially toward producing an artificial scarcity in news print paper and an abnormal and utterly unjustifiable increase in the price of news print paper and book and other paper."

Will Furnish Evidence.

Speaking for the publishers, Mr. Ridder informs the attorney general that they will furnish evidence that contracts and orders were shifted between mills located east and west, without knowledge or consent of the newspapers, and that this occurred between mills that had no known trade relations.

"News print paper mills that are not entirely modern," says Mr. Ridder, "are now making paper at figures that show a profit of more than $20 per ton on the paper prices just announced by the International Paper company ($72.50 per ton.) In other words for paper, say delivered in New York, up-to-date mills are making a profit of more than 60 per cent."

Tunnel to Cost $11,000,000.

Reno, Nev., March 6.—It is announced at Southern Pacific headquarters that the four and one half mile tunnel from Truckee to Blue Canyon, on the Southern Pacific, to cost $11,000,000, will be commenced this summer. Electric locomotives for the tunnel haul, which will save two miles of steep grade in the Sierras, will be a feature to insure pure air.

Will Run on Reduced Time.

Brockton, Mass., March 6.—The George E. Keith company, which operates shoe factories in this city, North Adams, and several other places throughout New England, have reduced the working hours in all their factories. For an indefinite period they will run on a seven hour schedule five days a week. The company employs 2,500 hands.

Speak Against Vivisection.

Paris, March 6.—A great mass-meeting was held here under the auspices of the International Anti-Vivisection association, to protest against the brutalities of vivisection and to demand restrictive legislation. The speakers included prominent members of anti-vivisection organizations in France, England, Germany, Holland, and Belgium.

Bank to Reopen March 30.

Kansas City, March 6.—It is officially announced after a meeting of the stockholders of the National Bank of Commerce of this city, that the bank would be reopened March 30. The stockholders sent a telegram to the comptroller of the currency informing him that the bank will have complied with all his requirements by March 25.

Go to Found a Republic.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 6.—A pioneer band of twelve boys and four girls and William R. George, founder of the George Junior Republic at Freeville, left here for San Fernandino, Cal., where a republic will be founded. The hope for a national organization of the work of the George Junior Republic is based on this movement.

Policeman Shoots a Burglar.

Chicago, March 7.—William A. Madsen, alias James Campbell, colored, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Policeman George Cluney of the Twenty-Second street station at 2 a. m., when he was caught in the act of robbing the cash register in the grocery of H. W. Zemansky & Co., 1555 Wabash avenue. He was taken to the People's hospital, where it was found that a bullet had entered his back and pierced his left lung.

Justice Dethroned by Wind.

Milwaukee, March 7.—Justice swayed in the wind, bowed before it, and—crashed to the roof of the courthouse. In other words, the blindfolded figure, bearing the sword and the scales of justice, that has topped the Milwaukee courthouse dome for years, was beaten down by the fifty mile gale that roared over the city. It was a wind such as the city has not experienced for five years.

Complaint of Shippers Heeded.

Lincoln, Neb., March 7.—The state railway commission has been notified by Assistant General Freight Agent Lane, of the Union Pacific, that the road will restore its daily freight trains on branch lines in Nebraska. These trains were recently taken off and complaint was made to the commission by shippers on the lines that the curtailed service worked a hardship.

USED BAPTISM AS RUSE TO WED

Alleged Deserter from the United States Army Works Trick and Returns to Cell.

Mishawaka, Ind., March 8.—Arrested here on the charge of deserting the Twelfth United States army corps, Edward L. Dawson begged the officers while in his cell that he be baptized. Under escort of Patrolman Anderson, Dawson was late at night taken to the Baptist church, where Rev. L. R. Bobbitt baptized him, and immediately there stepped forth in bridal raiment Miss Bernice Hodges, a musician known throughout this section as an impersonator and monologist.

In a few minutes, while the officers stood there in amazement, Miss Hodges became the bride of Dawson, the alleged deserter, who was then taken back to his cell.

EX-POSTMASTER KILLS HIMSELF

Elwood T. Hance of Detroit a Suicide—Distress Over Finances Probable Cause.

Detroit, Mich., March 6.—Elwood T. Hance, first vice president of the Union Trust company of this city and former postmaster of Detroit, shot and killed himself in his home. Friends say that he had been greatly depressed over his financial affairs for some time. Mr. Hance's health also had not been good and it is supposed that this aggravated the worry and impelled him to shoot himself.

Mr. Hance was born in Wilmington, Del., fifty-six years ago and came to Detroit in 1878. He was admitted to the bar and in 1889 was appointed postmaster. When the Union Trust company was organized he was made secretary and later vice president.

Driving Rod Destroys Cab.

Appleton, Wis., March 6.—While the passenger train that arrives in Neenah at 11:30 northbound was close to the village of Dale, both driving rods worked loose. The train was going at top speed and although the engineer at once closed the throttle it was impossible to stop the engine for some minutes. The cab of the engine was destroyed, but neither the engineer nor fireman was injured. They both stuck to their posts until the train was brought to a stop.

Woman Charged with Gem Theft.

New York, March 6.—Charged with the theft of jewels valued at $20,000 from Mrs. Evelyn Bell, one of her wealthy friends, Mrs. Jeanette Newmann, who lives at the Stratford House, was locked up at police headquarters. The police say Mrs. Newmann has made a full confession and told them she was actuated by her desire to keep her young son in a private school and to maintain her own social position.

Would Eliminate Grade Crossings.

Columbus, O., March 6.—The state railroad commission filed with the governor its report of the investigation of the grade crossing accident at Toledo, Feb. 15, when eight persons were killed by a steam locomotive striking a trolley car. The commission does not attempt to fix the blame for the accident, but urges as the only adequate remedy for such accidents the elimination of grade crossings.

Deportation of a Dane.

Pontiac, Mich., March 7. — Hans Yorkhusen, a Dane, has been deported with his wife and two sons. Yorkhusen has been a resident here since last May. For several months the father has been demented and he received treatment at the eastern Michigan asylum while his family were county charges.

Extravagant Man in Durance.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 7. — Oliver W. Barnes, whose extravagant expenditures in New York city last summer attracted much attention, has been committed to a detention hospital here on petition of his father, Edward H. Barnes, chief engineer of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad.

SUICIDE IS STARTLING

Elwood T. Hance, Well-Known Detroit Business Man, Tires of Existence.

ENDS IT ALL WITH A BULLET

Probably a Sudden Impulse Incited the Act—Remarkable Weather Reported—State Items.

Detroit, March 7.—Elwood T. Hance, ex-postmaster, vice president of the Union Trust company and a leader in the local financial world, shot himself dead in his home, 30 North Grand boulevard east, at 6 a. m. The act was done on the impulse of the moment, and without warning to any one in his immediate family. He had spent the evening before at home, played cards with his wife and his adopted daughter, Elsie, and retired for the night. In the morning he arose and went into an adjoining room. Almost immediately afterward the shot was heard that killed him.

Made Sure of His Death.

To make sure of his death Hance, with accurate aim, had fired the bullet into his mouth in an upward direction and, in this manner, literally blown a portion of his brains out through the back of his head, causing instantaneous death. President F. W. Blair, of the Union Trust company, and Henry Russell, one of the directors, deny emphatically that the affairs of the company are in any way involved by any of Hance's financial difficulties. Close friends say that Hance's personal financial affairs had been badly tangled for some time.

Not a Premeditated Act.

"I don't believe the suicide was premeditated, or that Mr. Hance had a thought of such a deed when he left the office Thursday," said Henry Russell, of the Union Trust board. Hance was an intensely nervous man, keyed up to high pitch every day, and taking hard and seriously many matters of detail that another would pass on to some one else.

Only Fifty-Eight Years Old.

Elwood T. Hance was born Aug. 28, 1850, at Concord, Delaware county, Pa. When three years of age his parents removed to Wilmington, Del., taking him with them. Here he remained, attending the public schools of that city and at the academy of Clarkson Taylor, a celebrated Quaker teacher. After graduating from this academy he came to Detroit, in 1870, and entered the law office of Charles Flowers as a student. In January, 1879, he was admitted to the Detroit bar, and immediately engaged in the practice of his profession. Since then he has been prominent in affairs in this city.

NO PANIC IN THESE CASES

Which Probably Prevented a Repetition of the Horror at the Collinwood School.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 7. — Grand Rapids was threatened with a repetition of Cleveland's tragedy on an even larger scale. Fire broke out in the laboratory of the Central high school, while 1,200 pupils were in the midst of the morning work. The signal for the fire drill was given and the children marched out in perfect order. The building was emptied in two and a half minutes.

The Central high school is overcrowded and the stairways are inadequate. Fears of a panic have long been felt, but the fire drill proved effective. The flames did comparatively little damage. That there was no panic in the school was due probably to the fact that a photographer had been taking flashlight pictures in the corridor a few minutes before the fire broke out and that the children had been warned not to be alarmed. When the firemen came and drill began they thought it was for another picture, and all of them marched out quietly.

St. Johns, Mich., March 7.—While smoke came up the flues into the schoolrooms and the halls of the Northward school the 125 pupils marched out without the vestige of a panic, despite the fact that the fire drill had not been given in some time. The fire was extinguished before serious damage was done.

Remarkable Phenomenon.

Marquette, Mich., March 7. — A natural phenomenon has occurred here. With a blizzard raging, and with freezing temperature prevailing, an electrical storm was experienced. Sharp flashes of lightning split the atmosphere and heavy peals of thunder rattled windows. At Munising thunder and lightning were features of a severe snowstorm. This is the first time snow was ever accompanied by an electrical display in northern Michigan.

How to Entertain Guests.

For an evening's entertainment take the names of some drugs or medicines, such as peppermint, chloroform or laudanum. Write each name on a slip of paper and cut between the letters; then wrap in white paper, powder fashion, each word forming a powder. Give one to each guest, together with paper and pencil, requesting them to write an article on the inclosed medicine, its uses and abuses. Appoint a judge to read the essays and pronounce judgment, the best to receive a prize. Of course the funnier they are the better. In one case peppermint was warranted to cure all aches, from headache to heartache.

OUR DUTY AS PATRONS

Paper Read Before Pomona at Boyne City by H. Batterbee

What is True Charity. Faith Hope and Fidelity. All depend on True Charity.

"A good patron places faith in God, nurtures hope, dispenses charity and is noted for fidelity." It is certain, as all will agree, that the only desirable patron is a good one, therefore it behooves us to consider well how best to have faith, nurture hope, dispense charity, and be noted for our fidelity.

Faith in God is absolutely indispensible, as hope and charity were originated by the Creator; thus man was created and given life and a home on earth, where all things were so arranged as to conduce to his perfect happiness, solely by the charity of his Maker, and it is to that charity that he depends for all the power and ingenuity, which has made the modern world a marvel to itself.

We are told in "Holy Writ," which is indisputably the foundation of grange work, that it is our own fault that such things as sickness, and sorrow, and death are the heritage of mankind, and charity, like the lost arts of the Egyptians, has never been fully recovered by the human race, since the day that man first sinned.

Now the question arises, what is true charity? My teacher used to tell me, "charity is love," but my observations have led me to conclude that that kind of charity is often a one sided affair, the definition is too narrow. Others have told me that it is charity to give to the poor—is it? Say rather, it is sometimes a charitable thing to do. I once heard a minister commend one of his flock, from the pulpit, for that kind of charity; of course, he received a full mead of praise, but the object of his charity, a widow, poor by no fault of her own, couldn't help feeling that she would rather work like the peasant women of Russia, than go to that church again and imagine, simply imagine, that everybody knew it was herself who had been so nobly helped. I said to myself, this is not charity, but when I saw that woman at the side of a sick man's cot; when I saw her go hungry that her children might eat, then I thought that I had found some of the "real coin."

My brothers and sisters, it was not so, as I had simply observed some of the fruits of true charity, which as an earthly virtue, exists only in the human heart, and is invisible.

Some of the other fruits of charity are "love", to do such work as the grange teaches, ability to return good for evil, or in other words, to remain in your heart a true and lasting friend to each and every one of our brothers and sisters, regardless of the unkind remark, the unfair decision, or the inability of our grange friends to understand our true motives. It is this kind of charity my friends which means life to our grange. It is this kind of charity, which, if it could be in the hearts of every one of our members, would make us the banner grange of the state. Charity of the heart, expressed in thought, word, and deed, but as I have said before, charity, as an earthly virtue is not what it was intended to be by its inventor, the vindictive jibe, the unkind retort, will spring to our lips, but let us remember this, charity, as taught by our ritual begets forgivness and it is a mistake for any member to leave the hall, harboring ill feeling against the grange or any member of it. We can at least try to always think first for the good of the order. Such charity as this will give us fidelity to the grange cause. "Fidelity", what a beautiful word, fidelity through the merits of which we reach the degree of usefulness in the order, the fourth degree.

What is fidelity to the grange cause? Why, it is simply faithfullness in grange work. Thus we see how closely the first and fourth degrees are related. Grange faith, is faith that we will receive divine help in learning more of charity. Grange hope, is hope that we may all see the time that grange faith and charity will triumph over all obstacles. How beautiful, how resplendent, how glorious, the visions begotten of hope. By the practice of faith, hope, and charity, we gain the requisite of fidelity, so necessary to successful grange work, and our duty as patrons is accomplished. Did you ever think like this, my friends? It is our duty to have faith. It is our duty to hope. It is faithful to do our duty, to hope is our duty done. How easy! Now the rest isn't so easy. Charity requires some effort, and is therefore less in evidence than either of the others.

But I fancy I hear someone say, "Oh, don't try to learn old dogs new tricks;" but I believe that, "Hearts don't change much after all, men are only boys grown tall," and it isn't so hard as it looks.

Try to be charitable; it is our true talisman of success. It is our duty to the grange and to our selves and let us bear this in mind, "It is always a very charitable thing to remember that it is as impossible for ninety-five or even twenty people to think alike, as for that many hens to lay one egg."

"In essentials, unity."

"In non-essentials, liberty."

"In all things, charity." Our code of honor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS NO. 4

Of the Baptist Church had Evening Party Wednesday.

Wednesday evening, March 4th, Sunday school class number 4, of the Baptist church, spent an enjoyable evening at the home of William Pople. The evening was spent in the playing of games and coasting. Delicious refreshments were served.

Spiking Her Guns.

"John, I think it was real mean of you to—"

John laid down his paper and, turning to his wife, said wearily: "Before you say any more, my dear, I admit that I am selfish, cruel, heartless and mercenary. I am devoted to my club, dislike my home, stay out late at night, do not consider your feelings, do not realize what a hard lot you have in life and get all the pleasure I can myself. Now, go ahead."

But there was nothing more to say.—Brooklyn Life.

NEW YORK JERSEYS.

Notable Achievements In a Fine, Pure Bred Herd.

When a New York state man talks about Jersey cows he commonly mentions Delaware county also, and Meridale herd in that county is likely to be spoken of when pure bred Jerseys are discussed.

What is known as Meridale Farms is a tract of land of some 1,400 acres, composed of a number of farms which have been purchased from time to time during the last thirty or more years.

The herd of pure bred Jerseys that may now be seen at Meridale is the topic of greatest interest to the visitor. In discussing this herd it is necessary to refer to a certain bull that was raised on the farms some years ago. His name was Matilda Fifth Stoke Pogis. This bull was purchased by a farmer residing some distance away to put into his dairy herd. He was known at Meridale to be an exceedingly fine animal, and several attempts were made to buy him back, but without avail.

The bull grew old and [illegible], leaving behind him a remarkable collection of his get not only [illegible] of his owner, but for some [illegible] surrounding country. At last accounts the stock came on the market in the settlement of his estate, and all of this line of stock was added to the Meridale herd. These were the daughters and granddaughters of Matilda V's Stoke Pogis. He had forcibly proved that he was a wonderful bull. Meridale has now about seventy females of that family. Josephine Hope 121,051 has a week's record of 20 pounds 5 ounces of milk and 22 pounds 1 ounce finished butter. Pogis P. A. 116329 has been tested several times and has made from 17 pounds 8 ounces to 18 pounds 10 ounces, the highest when she was past thirteen years old. She milked as high as 300 pounds in seven days, says H. H. Lyon in Hoard's Dairyman.

Common Cruelty.

Recently on an icy asphalt street we saw more cruelty to horses than in many years' attendance at races. Two horses, singly, were started up a grade with a load of express packages. After a heartbreaking struggle, in which he went to his knees several times, one smoothly shod horse went to the ground. The other was almost down several times, but was still on his feet and struggling when our teams pulled out. Humane societies should look after such cases.—Horse Breeder.

No Good In Frozen Grass.

Don't allow the sheep to run out and fill themselves with frozen grass if there is no snow on the ground, thinks Ing it will save feed. This grass has little food value and is positively injurious. Exercise is good for any breeding animal, but if the yards are too small let them out on the hard ground or if in the stubble fields only when their stomachs are full, says an eastern sheep man.

THE DAIRYMAN.

"I just want to give the result of an inquiry I made myself as to whether it pays better to raise beef cattle or pays better to raise dairy cattle. I made an investigation of this. I wrote letters to the Islands of Guernsey and Jersey, to Denmark and Holland, where, as I understand, the greatest dairy interests of the world are, to find out the actual cash value of agricultural lands in those countries. From Guernsey and Jersey I got the answer that the average cash value of agricultural lands was $1,250 an acre, from Holland and Denmark from $400 to $800 an acre. All those lands are devoted to dairying, and you will always find that the highest priced agricultural lands in the world are devoted to dairying and not to the raising of beef. That tells the story," said Judge Quarton of Iowa before the national dairy convention.

Running the Separator.

Three points worthy of attention when using the separator are specified by Professor Oscar Erf of Kansas:

First.—The speed of the bowl has an influence on the cream. A change in speed from one separation to another changes the per cent of fat of the cream.

Second.—The temperature of the milk affects the cream. If the milk is warm the cream will be thicker than if it is cold.

Third.—The amount separated per hour is another factor. This is especially important, for if the milk is unevenly fed into the bowl the thickness of the cream is vastly influenced.

Sterilized Wash Water For Butter.

The Kansas experiment station considers it both practical and economical to sterilize wash water for butter if it can be cooled and used immediately; otherwise, the practice is a useless expense.

Stable Disinfectant.

Whitewash is one of the cheapest disinfectants and can be easily and rapidly applied with a spray pump. It must be carefully strained before using in the pump, as any lumps will clog the spray nozzle.

Charlevoix Court House Repairs Practically Completed.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS WERE MADE

A Credit to the Contractor, County Officials and Building Committee.

Repair Work All Completed, but Some of the New Furniture Not Yet in Place—Looks Very Neat.

Monday morning, when the sheriff called the circuit court to order, he was able to say—here is the court house, ready for occupancy on the date set, a better building in every respect than the old, a credit alike to the committee from the board of supervisors, the contractor, Mr. Jones, Under Sheriff Weikel, who has superintended the work, and all the county officials who have been efficient helpers in the work.

Beginning in the basement, it was lowered eighteen inches and a new cement floor laid. The first story, which is occupied by the jail, county clerk, register and treasurer has been re-painted and plastered and the furniture and wainscoting re-varnished. Up stairs, the sheriff's room has been completely rearranged, so when used for a jury room its arrangements will be complete. New furniture has been put in this office, also a store room added above, which is reached by a pair of steps which can be raised out of the way.

The judge of probate has not as yet received his new furniture, but has ordered a new desk and filing cases, which the same as in all the offices will be of the latest improved pattern, and built for service.

Judge Mayne's room is furnished with an imitation hardwood floor, covered with bright rugs, and is well furnished, the rows of books which fill his cases showing here and there the damage received by the fire.

The particular pride of the building however is the court room, which equals any in the state. The judge's platform has been rearranged, the judge being flanked, on either side by the reporter and clerk. A new combination desk has been ordered and will be ready at the next term. Heavy cork matting covers all the upper floors, but the judge's office. The walls are calcimined in light colors and which are very pleasing to the eye. The audience room is furnished with opera chairs of the best pattern, furnished by S. M. See & Sons, who in order to have everything ready on time worked until 2:30 Monday morning.

New plumbing, closets and lavatories have been placed throughout the building and nothing has been left undone to make it handy and serviceable.

The citizens of Charlevoix county can well be proud of their building, and of the officials who had the work of re-construction under charge. The building committee was Supervisors Miller, Graff and W. J. Gallagher. Contractor Robert C. Jones. Under Sheriff Weikel has directed the work at all times, and deserves a large share of the praise for the splendid building as do all the officials who are housed in the building. Take them all together and we doubt if a better set of officials can be found in the state than Charlevoix county has at the present time.

COURT IN SESSION

Horton and Jodway Murder Case Now on Trial—Much Interest Shown.

The regular term of circuit court convened Monday. The case of the people against Horton and Jodway charged with murder, was the first case on call. Considerable difficulty was encountered in securing a jury, one not being gotten until Tuesday noon. Much interest is being shown, the court room being crowded to standing room only, as well as the hallways during the progress of the trial.

Prosecutor Clink is assisted by Judge J. M. Harris of Boyne, while the defense is being looked after by Attorneys Nicholas of East Jordan and Halstead of Petoskey.

The evidence so far as presented indicates acquital or a conviction on a minor charge.

The case will probably go to the jury either tonight or in the morning.

The matter was referred to the committee on streets, who will go over the matter and ascertain the city's interest in the road.

FOR AUDITOR GENERAL

Puss Palmer, the Popular Candidate Has Good Lead.

The Unique Way His Candidacy is Being Boomed by His Friends.

C. A. Palmer, of Manistee, that's his real name, but he is known far and wide as plain "Puss Palmer," and as such he will always be known to old friends and new, for is something in the nickname that attaches friends to him, as closely as the name itself has stuck to Mr. Palmer through his life.

Well, "Puss Palmer" is in the race for auditor general and is after the nomination on the republican ticket. He is popular everywhere, but unlike many other prominent citizens, he is most popular right at home, where he is best known. And thereby hangs this tale. The COURIER has received a very artistic postal card of the souvenir variety, bearing on the back the profile of a healthy looking American girl, who holds in her hand an American beauty rose, and from the center of the petals, the smiling face of Palmer looks out on the recipient of the card. The inscription beneath the picture is—"Miss Michigan with her American beauty, 'Puss' for auditor general." The whole is nicely colored, and makes a tasty campaign card.

And the pretty feature of it is, that the cards were designed, printed and are being sent out by an enthusiastic friend of Mr. Palmer, Harry Anron, one of Manistee's prominent young business men, who has taken this unique way of of booming his friend's candidacy, at his personal expense, Mr. Palmer not knowing of the plan until the cards were out.

The point in the card is this: When Judge McAlvay was nominated for the supreme bench, there were many distinguished gentlemen who aspired for the same office, and they were nominated in flowery words by the best campaign orators the state was supposed to boast. Then after they had all had their say and the chances for McAlvay were looking slim, "Puss Palmer" got the floor, in a ten minute's speech, turned loose what is said to have been the best nominating hit ever made on floor of a republican convention in this state. A particulary happy reference to his candidate as an "American Beauty" is contradistinction to some other flowery reference to other candidates by other speakers, caught the convention, and before he finished he had them all standing on the backs of chairs, and McAlvay's nomination was assured.

Aside from being an eloquent speaker, Mr. Palmer has the brains and the ability to make an excellent state official, and the COURIER hopes that he may land the job he is seeking.

Here's to Puss Palmer,
The man in the rose.
He's the right kind of timber,
As everyone knows.

SURPRISED MRS. STEAD

Several of Her Lady Friends Spend an Enjoyable Afternoon.

Last Wednesday afternoon about fifteen of Mrs. Phoebe Stead's lady friends from the different parts of town surprised her, some coming by sleigh and others on foot to spend the afternoon and enjoy a delicious supper which at 5:30 began to emerge from the baskets brought by the happy guests—Cold meat, baked beans, sandwiches, salads, cake, cream puffs, cookies, doughnuts, delicious cocoa and last of all confection were relished by all. A most pleasant afternoon and long to be remembered.

WAS SOCIAL SUCCESS

House Warming at the New Home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hubbard.

Addresses Made by Prominent Citizens—Smoker, Music and Refreshments.

One of the most complete and successful social events of the season was the house warming given by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Hubbard Tuesday night at their new home on Park avenue, which has lately been completed by Edward A. Burnett. The home which is a model of convenience, beauty and roomy comfort, was greatly admired by all the guests present. On making out their invitation lists, Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard found the many friends whom they had made during their residence in the city so numerous that the house warming was extended over into two nights. Seventy guests were present Tuesday night and about an equal number are expected tonight.

After admiring the new home, the gentlemen present enjoyed a smoker in the upper rooms, the ladies having a social time below.

After calling to order, appropriate remarks were made by Rev. R. A. Wright, Hon. H. L. Iddings followed in some humerous remarks. Editor Willard A. Smith made remarks in regard to the organization, objects and the work of the S. S. S. which was ably defended by Captains Finucan and Campbell. Indeed Captian Campbell as usual was very much in evidence all the evening and couldn't be kept down. The music was furnished by Mrs. B. C. Hubbard, of St. Louis, Mich., the guest of honor, Mrs. Davidson and Miss Fredrica Hubbard, also a quartette composed of Mrs. Hubbard, Mrs. Davidson, F. H. Hubbard, and Dr. F. H. Wilkinson.

The hostess was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. P. D. Campbell and Mrs. R. W. Elston.

Delightful refreshments were served and all the guests departed hoping that Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard might spend many pleasant years in their new home and continue as residents of our city.

A NEW INDUSTRY

Charlevoix Coal and Wood Co. Will Start Their Mill Next Week.

The Charlevoix Coal & Wood Co. expect to start their shingle mill next week. The mill, which is located in the old Crain & Whitford mill is composed of a portion of the mills at Norwood and Essex, and a large amount of new machinery.

It will employ twelve men in the shingle department besides a force of men in the saw mill department. If a night crew is put on double the number of men will be employed.

The company now has stock on hand to run about eight months.

ELECTION TIME COMING.

Candidates Are Beginning to Spring Their Booms.

Some Contests on the Republican Side—Labor People Are Quiet.

City politics are beginning to be discussed again, with the coming of the spring, and the candidates are announcing their ambitions.

We have been unable to ascertain who of our friends are willing to be led to sacrifice on the labor ticket.

On the republican ticket, we have heard no name mentioned for mayor save that of the present holder of that position, Dr. R. B. Armstrong, who while he was able to fulfill the duties of his office, made a mayor who was a credit to the city whose destinies he had in charge. During a portion of his term he was absent from the city, and on his return was stricken down with the long illness from which he has only recently recovered. His friends now urge that he again assume the position and be enabled to demonstrate to the people of Charlevoix his acknowledged fitness for the position of mayor for the next year.

For clerk, Will E. Hampton and the present clerk, Henry C. Cooper, are avowed candidates.

For treasurer, John Cook seems to be the only man in the race. Earlier in the month other names were suggested, but all withdrew on the announcement of Mr. Cook's candidacy.

For aldermen, the names of S. A. Marting and Dr. A. A. Swinton are being put forward in the First ward.

George A. McCartney is suggested as a candidate for the nomination in the Second.

In the Third the only name we have heard mentioned is that of Wilbur A. Cline.

The retiring aldermen are, Iram Z. Merriam, First ward; Alexander Cameron, Second ward; Amos Webster, Third ward.

A STRENUOUS WEEK

Mrs. E. M. Guard and Family Are Entertained Before Their Departure.

Mrs. E. M. Guard and family expect to leave for Pierce, Idaho, Thursday morning. Their numerous friends have been giving a series of farewell parties in their honor during the past week.

Thursday Mrs. Will Johnson entertained a number of ladies in honor of Mrs. Guard. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Blanchard gave a 5 o'clock tea in honor of the family on the same day. Saturday evening the ladies of the Baptist church gave a pot luck supper in honor of Mrs. Guard. Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Chas. See entertained about thirty-five ladies in honor of Mrs. Guard. To-night the family will be entertained by Mrs. F. J. Todd.

Last week, a number of young ladies were entertained by the Misses Elizabeth McClanathan and Miss Edith Lamoreaux at their homes, and Monday night, by Miss Minnie Payton, in honor of Miss Jennie Guard.

Owing to the play "Rebecca's Triumph on Friday evening, March 20, the party at Hotel Bartlett, scheduled for that night, will be held on Thursday evening, March 19th. 11-t-2

WHERE IT IS AN IMPROVEMENT

Extract From Speech of Leonard F. Knowles at East Jordan.

POINTS ON THE NEW CONSTITUTION

A Plain and Easily Understood Explanation of Changes.

State Census Abolished—Woman Suffrage—Salaries—Home Rule—Initiative and Referendum.

The COURIER this weeke presents extracts from the speech of Leonard F. Knowles delivered at the board of trade banquet at East Jordan. It explains in a plain manner the most important changes and should be read by every voter.

The constitutional convention of 1907-08 which was created by the legislative enactment has completed its work, and the people of state of Michigan are invited to consider a proposed revision of existing constitution.

The revised instrument follows closely the lines of the present constitution. The changes proposed are either necessary or expedient to meet the new conditions.

The proposition of extending to women elective privileges was well and carefully considered by the convention and it was thought by the majority of members that if the women of the state were given the opportunity to decide this question themselves the majority would not care to exercise that authority. But it was thought right and proper that when the expenditure of any money should take place in any municipality the women tax payers should have the right to vote on that proposition as they now have in school matters; so there is embodied in the revised constitution an article that provides that whenever any question is submitted to vote of the electors which involves the direct expenditure of the public money or the issue of bonds, every woman having the qualification of male electors, who has property assessed for taxes in any part of the district or territory to be affected by the result of such election shall be entitled to vote thereon. This extension of elective franchise to women tax payers is in keeping with the principle that no person's property shall be directly affected without the consent of the owner thereof. This right is also extended to women in an article of the revised constitution relating to local government. In this article women tax payers are allowed to vote upon the same conditions as male electors, when the city or village proposes to bond the municipality for the purpose of acquiring public utilities or borrowing money. The justice of this provision will at once be recognized and at the same time it will be experimenting in a sense with the great question of women's suffrage.

Section 4 of the revised constitution abolishes the state census and bases the apportionment of representatives upon the United States census. This state census has been a needless expense to the state and serves no useful purpose. The federal government takes a census every ten years and this can be well used by the state. Not only does the abolishment of this practice save the state of Michigan many thousands of dollars, but it also brings to an end, whatever political patronage could be established by the appointment of hundreds of employees that obtain service at that time.

The compensation of the legislators has been fixed at $800. No section received more extended discussion than did this section. The convention believed the increase in salary would make it possible for men to become candidates for the legislature, who could not possibly afford to do so under the existing per diem. It also will have a tendency to encourage very capable men to become members of the legislature, in that the salary is more adequate than is provided in the old constitution. It also fixes the salary of the legislators in the constitution definitely and the people are thus assured that it could not then be changed from time to

In these days when youth is the moving factor—when man has made his mark at thirty-five and is dubbed a "has been" at forty; when business houses pension the man we used to call "middle aged," rather than allow his lagging influence to intrude upon the modern commercial rush—a bald head is a serious handicap.

In the social world it is equally bad for a man, while for a woman—it is fatal.

Few people can afford a bald head. Even those who can—those who are fixed socially, financially and matrimonially—have no wish to do so. But afford it or not, thousands of us are bald, either partially or wholly.

What caused baldness—whether an inherited tendency; whether through undue mental effort, sickness, dandruff or other scalp disease—makes no difference. What we want is HAIR.

Millions of dollars have been spent in vain efforts to grow hair on bald heads. Other millions have been spent in an effort to restore faded gray hair to its natural shade, and still others to banish dandruff. And still dandruff declined to disappear; hair refused to grow; lost tints of brown, blonde and auburn failed to return.

All this, however, is of the past. Failures have give place to success. A real hair tonic has at last been found.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC is a positive cure for all hair and scalp troubles. It is not sticky or gummy, will not thicken on hair, does not become rancid, has no disagreeable odor. It is clean, agreeable and pleasant to use.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC

Cures all cases of dandruff, falling hair, irritation of the scalp, baldness, premature fading, scanty growth, and all those annoying affections of the scalp which scientists have found to be due to the presence of microbes. REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC restores the hair by first killing the microbes, by supplying a nutritive food element upon which the injured hairs may feed and regain health and stiength by cleansing the scalp and strengthening the hair follicles. It assists nature to restore the color by making the hair healthy and enabling it to draw its own coloring matter from the pigment glands in the scalp. It is not a dye.

Remember that dandruff is proof positive that microbes are at work on the roots of your hair. Then is the time to buy a bottle of REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC and begin treatment. Don't wait until you are bald.

"GREATLY ADDS TO BEAUTY."

"I can most highly recommend Rexall '93' Hair Tonic as the best of preparations for the preservation of the hair and the promotion of its healthy growth. It not only preserves the hair and stops it from falling, but it gives it a gloss and sweetness which greatly adds to its beauty. Every woman should use Rexall '93' Hair Tonic as a dressing to the hair if she desires to keep her hair in the best condition."
—Mrs. J. C. HALL, Palmyra, N. Y.

THE STORY OF REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC.

Before placing REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC on the market we realized that we had a formula of exceptional value, and yet we determined to give it a thorough trial before we offered it as a Rexall preparation. We therefore wrote to one hundred druggists in as many cities, asking the name of one customer who suffered from a disease of the hair and scalp. To each of these customers we sent three bottles of the hair tonic and asked them to try it and report upon it.

THE RESULT: Five reported no answer, two reported adversely and NINETY-THREE sent enthusiastic reports of the remedy and gave details of the splendid effect in each individual case.

We therefore selected "NINETY-THREE" HAIR TONIC as the name of this preparation, which we believe to be the best. Could any other name be so significant of merit? Any test have been more fair? Any results more encouraging?

In buying REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC you take no chances whatever. If after a trial you are not more than satisfied we will promptly and cheerfully refund your money.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should agree it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Fruit-ous Tablets never gripe, but strengthen the bowels, and otherwise aid the body organs to healthy activity. FIVE YEARS FOR JOHN R. WALSH Former Chicago Banker Loses in His Long Fight for Freedom.

JUDGE OVERRULES ALL POINTS

He Then Sentences the Defendant to Five Years in Leavenworth Prison.

Walsh Remains the Technical Prisoner of Deputy Marshals Until Appeal to Higher Court Has Been Perfected.

Chicago, March 13.—John R. Walsh, convicted wrecker of the Chicago National bank, has been sentenced to prison by Judge Anderson.

His term of imprisonment was fixed at five years. Sentence was imposed after Judge Anderson overruled a motion for a new trial. The ex-banker was taken into nominal custody by deputy United States marshals and will be a technical prisoner until an appeal has been perfected to the United States circuit court of appeals.

JOHN R. WALSH.

To Prison if He Fails.

Failing further relief, Walsh must go to the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. The banker took the sentence stoically; not a line on his face changed. There was a stir in the great crowd when sentence was imposed. Walsh was forced to stand during the ordeal of sentence.

The sentence was five years on each count on which the president of the old Chicgo National bank was convicted, but it is run concurrently. All the points raised by the attorneys for the defense in their plea for a new trial were overruled by the court, who, in his opinion, reviewed at some length the events during the trial and after the return of the verdict.

Motion to Arrest Judgment.

At the conclusion of the opinion and before the matter of sentence could be taken up, Attorney John S. Miller for Walsh made a motion for an arrest of judgment. The jurisdiction of the court was questioned, it being alleged that many of the offenses with which Walsh was charged were committed outside of this federal court district.

The court consented to hear arguments on this point, and Attorney Hart for the defense proceeded to show his authorities.

Recalls Palmer's Downbreak.

Judge Anderson devoted much of his time in his opinion to recounting the incidents connected with the return of the verdict against Walsh, when Juror Palmer caused a scene by almost collapsing in court. The judge quoted from the record of the proceedings at that time, including the many questions asked of Palmer in an effort to have him state specifically that the verdict was his.

SAYS CHARGES LACK SUPPORT

Governor Deneen Refutes Statement Concerning Milch Cows at Asylum for Feeble Minded.

Springfield, Ill., March 14.—Governor Deneen has issued a statement concerning the condition of milch cows at the Asylum for the Feeble Minded in which he says:

"During the visit of the investigating committee to the Asylum for Feeble Minded Children, a statement was published regarding the condition of the herd of milch cows from which milk is supplied to the inmates of that institution. According to the statement, which was given to the press and obtained wide publicity, this herd is so badly affected with tuberculosis that the use of the milk is a menace to the health and life of the inmates. The charge has not the slightest evidence to support it. Nevertheless, its publication is made the basis for the further charge that the state administration has been negligent in permitting the continuance of similar conditions at the other institutions, thus endangering the health and life of their inmates.

"The records of the state board of live stock commissioners, to which the investigating committee had access, prove the falsity of both charges and show that in the work of protecting the inmates of the state institutions against infection from this source, the state has been most painstaking. The records speaks for itself."

ILLINOIS BANKERS CONVENE IN JOLIET

Currency Reform Discussed by Group Four of the Illinois Association—Welcomed by Mayor.

Roberts, president of the Commercial National bank of Chicago, also delivered an address. Oscar G. Foreman, vice president of Foreman Bros. Banking company and chairman of the executive council of the Illinois Bankers' association, and a large number of other Chicago bankers attended the meeting.

To Abandon Port Los Angeles.

Santa Monica, Cal., March 14.—It will be a matter of only a few days until Port Los Angeles, with its mammoth pier, built by Collis P. Huntington at a cost of a million dollars, will be abandoned by the Southern Pacific as a commercial wharf. Coal in the bunkers is being transferred to Los Angeles for storage and movable equipment is being sent to San Pedro. Steamers of the Pacific Coast Steamship company are to omit this pier as a port of call.

Albuquerque, N. M., March 14.—Officials of the United States marshal's office and of a local brewing company have discovered that the company had been defrauded out of over $15,000 by the theft of barrels of beer upon which stolen revenue stamps were placed. R. A. Miller, a driver, is under arrest and several retail liquor men are being investigated in connection with the fraud. The thefts have been going on for two years.

Prohibitionists Win Long Fight.

Montgomery, Mo., March 13.—A four year contest against William C. Arnold, a Wellsville saloon keeper, has been decided in favor of the prohibitionists. The case attracted unusual attention because of the persistency of the temperance people in the face of defeat each year since 1901. The court gave him until March 28 to get rid of his stock.

Fenced in Public Lands.

Helena, Mont., March 13.—David Frat, of Billings, former president of the state board of stock commissioners and a wealthy cattleman, pleaded guilty to the illegal fencing of 7,000 acres of public land. The federal court sentenced him to serve forty-eight hours in jail and pay a fine of $250.

WHERE IT IS AN IMPROVEMENT

time by the legislators themselves. By a careful comparison we find that states with which Michigan could be properly compared pay more than our revised constitution provides for these members, yet at the same time the convention felt that the consideration specified would be an ample inducement to secure the best men the state could furnish.

Many of you are familiar with the dissatisfaction that exists in the fee system for paying sheriffs. In some counties it is necessary for a sheriff to spend much unnecessary time in investigating cases that possibly he would not spend if he were on a salary. In other counties, sheriffs have been earning by the fee system as much as ten thousand dollars per year when many good men would be pleased to secure the position for less than half or a third of that amount. Therefore it has been wisely provided that the boards of supervisors shall have exclusive authority to fix the salaries of all county officials not otherwise provided by law.

The legislature shall provide by a general law for the incorporation of villages; and under such general laws the electors of each city or village shall have power to frame, adopt and amend its charters and to pass all laws and ordinances, relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and the general laws of the state. This gives cities and villages, and also I might say, the similar law is given to counties, the right of home rule. It frees the cities and villages as well as the counties from the whims of the legislature and from the evils of local or special legislation.

No bill shall be passed or become a law at any regular session of the legislature until it has been printed in the possession of each house for at least five days.

There is not any single act that has brought past legislatures into disrepute more than the passage of local bills. The legislature should not have been blamed for this in that that was the practice. However, so disastrous has been the result of special legislation that a great reform has been provided, so that no local or special act of the legislature can be passed where a general act can be applicable. The evils of local or special legislation are familiar to all. It is expensive to the state, results in confusion of the law and ofttimes results in imposing on a community a law which does not meet the approval of a majority of those to be affected thereby. This provision is far reaching and beneficial and will shorten the session of the legislature and result in the uniformity of laws. No local or special act shall take effect until approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon in the district to be affected. This provision gives the people of the district to be affected by any local law the right of referendum. The right of the majority in that community to be final judges as to whether such proposed law shall become operative. The justice and wisdom of this provision can not be questioned.

Any bill passed by the legislature and approved by the governor, excepting emergency and appropriation bills, may be referred by the legislature to the qualified electors for their approval or disapproval and any bill so referred shall not become a law unless a majority of the electors voting thereon shall approve of it. This section which is entirely new authorizes the legislature to pass any law concerning which they may have grave doubts and then submit the proposition to the electors of the state. This enables bills to become laws which the legislature might otherwise refuse to pass when they were in doubt as to whether the result of the law would be approved by the people. It is a reform measure and in a way may be considered direct legislation. At the same time the law is first considered by the legislature and its provisions receives the careful consideration that any bill should receive by a deliberative body. This is one of the valuable advantages over the old constitution and will meet with general approval.

One method of amending the constitution is provided in the old constitution. In the present constitution we are given another method. When twenty per cent of the qualified electors of the state petition for the submission of the proposed amendment the same shall be submitted to the people, unless the legislature in joint session, by a majority, vote to veto the proposed amendment. It is believed that this veto power will never be exercised by the legislature, unless, in times of great stress or excitement, a petition might be presented which would be vicious or do violence to the structure of the government.

No legislature in the history of time ever refused to pass a law which was supported by a twenty per cent petition. In fact the majority of the most noteworthy bills have only been supported by a petition of from three to ten per cent. The safeguards that are thrown around the method of procuring this petition is the signing of them at the regular election and registration places under the supervision of the officials thereof, and the certifying to the genuineness of the signatures and to the fact that the signatures must be those of qualified electors all lend dignity to the petition and re-establishes the ancient and historic right to petition. It was thought by the convention that this method of amending the constitution would bring the people of the state and the legislature closer together: that they would be a more representative body than they have been in times past and by the authority vested in the people, would be more easily persuaded to the convictions of their constituency. By adopting this section which is a compromise between the so-called radicals and conservatives in the convention, the theory of republican form of government has not been infringed upon. At the same time an experimental practice, closely safeguarded, may be established whereby the good of the so-called initiative method of making laws may be at some future time worked out.

QUICKENED PUBLIC CONSCIENCE.

THE sentence of Banker Walsh, of Chicago, to five years in the penitentiary—the minimum, by reason of his seventy years—for illegally running the great institution of which he was the head in the interests of his own personal business, regardless of those of the stockholders and depositors; the conviction of three ex-state officers of Pennsylvania and the chief contractor on the charge of criminal conspiracy to defraud the state in the matter of its $4,000,000 capitol which, through graft, is alleged to have cost $13,000,000; the manner in which high banking, traction and other industrial and financial magnates are all the time being brought to book in New York and other business and financial centers throughout the country—including Michigan's own little housecleaning matter just being concluded by the Ingham grand jury—all tend to show that never at any previous time in the history of the country or the state has public opinion and the agencies of public justice been less disposed to tolerate public wrongs and abuses than they are today. In fact, there has been during the last half dozen years at least, such a progressive quickening of the public conscience that a fraud in the government, whether national, state or municipal, has come to be held equal in iniquity to a fraud on or robbery of private individual. And so, too, with the great illegal combination, by means of which devious ways, financial and industrial magnates so juggle matters that as to take to themselves the millions that are of right the property of thousands or thousands of others whose interests it is their duty to protect.

Possibly Banker Walsh and the Pennsylvania looters may never see the inside of prison walls, the law's delays and uncertainties are proverbial, and supreme courts may reverse the verdict, though unlikely. But, whatever the ultimate outcome in these particular cases, the moral gain is the same. Wrong doing in high places, whether within or without the letter of the law, has of late years been growing decidedly unfashionable by reason not only of its growing legal dangers, but also because of the clearer public recognition as iniquitous of practices years ago regarded either with toferance or mild condemnation—Grand Rapids Herald.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY LAND COMPANY

Name of New Company Recently Formed to Induce Settlers to Locate in this Section.

The Charlevoix County Land Co. is the name of a new company recently formed, by some of the officials of the West Michigan Sugar Co., to induce settlers to locate on our vacant lands and deserted farms. This company will sell lands, furnish tenants to those wishing to rent their farms, or men with families to occupy tenant houses and work farms.

Although the company has been organized but a short time, already they have over sixty applications on file for lands.

This is a move which means much for the agriculture development of our county and should be pushed by everybody.

In one milk bottling plant owned by a firm that runs a number of wagons the writer found a large truck loaded with bottles ready to be filled. These were not even washed clean. The means of cleaning were an almost hairless brush on a small turbine wheel. The bottles were placed in lukewarm water, given a whirl on the baldheaded brush and rinsed in an adjoining tank without ever being put into water hot enough to scald the hands of the workmen.—J. M. Trueman.

AN ARKANSAS MIX-UP

Clipping Received by a Charlevoix Lady From That State.

The following clipping from an Arkansas paper was received by a Charlevoix lady. It shows what a bad mix-up was made of an account of a wedding and auction sale.

Public sale: Wm. Smith, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Smith, was disposed of at public auction to Miss Lucy Anderson on my farm one mile east of Leonardville in the presence of seventy guests, including the following, to wit: Seven mules, twelve head of dehorned cattle, Rev. Jackson tied the nuptial knot, averaging 1250 pounds on the hoof.

The beautiful home of the bride was beautifully decorated with a blackhawk corn planter, one sulky hay rake, one feed grinder, one set double harness nearly new, and just before the ceremony was pronounced Mendelssohn's wedding march was softly given by one new milch cow five years old, one Jersey cow to be fresh next April, carrying a large bunch of flowers in her hand, and looking charming in a wedding gown made of white spring wagons, six shocks of corn, three ricks of hay, one grindstone. Monseline de soie trimmed about two bushels of wheat.

The groom is a well known and popular young man, and has always stood well in society circles of twelve Berkshire hogs, six Durocs, while the bride is a talented and accomplished teacher of a splendid drove of Poland-Chinas, pedigree furnished is desired.

Among the beautiful presents were two sets of silver knives and forks, one steam engine, one high chair, one riding plow, one go-cart, bob-sled, and other articles to numerous to mention.

The bridal couple left yesterday for an extended honeymoon trip. Terms: Ten months time to all responsible parties; other wise cash. Lunch will be served free, after which Mr. and Mrs. Smith will go to housekeeping in a cozy home near the corner of Main and Dr. Brady, auctioneer.

Cupid Turns The Tables.

By MARTHA COBB SANFORD.

Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.

It began on the Greenwich local. The man sitting beside Henrietta on the cross seat was reading a typewritten manuscript.

"Either as author or as editor," mused Henrietta and soon allowed her curiosity to get the better of her to the extent of looking over her neighbor's shoulder and reading the story with him.

It proved to be a love story, and as it progressed Henrietta stole a surreptitious glance at the man every now and then. But his expression gave no clew to the impression the story might be making.

Once, as he turned a page, he looked up suddenly and became aware that Henrietta was following the story.

She blushed and started to apologize, but he put her at her ease in quite an unexpected manner.

"I'm glad you've been reading the story," he said, with a friendly smile. "A woman wrote it, and I hope you'll give me your opinion when we've finished it."

So they read on together.

When they had reached the end they sat for a moment silent, each evidently absorbed in thought.

"Well," said the man at length, "that is perhaps what would happen in real life, but the ending isn't satisfactory from my viewpoint."

"And what is your viewpoint?" ventured Henrietta, her interest in the situation overpowering momentarily her natural shyness. "Are you judging it as just a plain man or as an editor?"

Her query seemed both to please and amuse him, and Henrietta was surprised to find herself answering his smile quite as if they were old acquaintances.

"I am judging it," he said, "as an editor who tries to imagine himself just a plain man. But what do you think about it?"

"I'm afraid I agree with the author," answered Henrietta, somewhat timidly, "but really my opinion doesn't count in the least, because"—

"On the other hand," interrupted the man, "it counts supremely. It is the opinions of just such casual readers as yourself that I have to study and learn to understand almost intuitively, as it were."

"But to get back to the point in question. You mean that love at first sight isn't worth writing about—that the type of woman who would consent to marry a man on short acquaintance isn't the stuff that heroines are made of?"

"Not exactly that perhaps. But any one could make the story end happily—have them marry, I mean. That would have been the ordinary way. It must have taken some courage to end it the other way, and it seems to me the story's strength for it."

"But you see," persisted the editor, "everything in the story goes to show that this man and woman, though they met just once casually, as you and I are meeting, were most remarkably en rapport. Why, then, does the author never have them meet again after making her reader feel that they ought, by all that is happy and harmonious, to belong to each other?"

Henrietta smiled at the man's earnestness.

"Well," she began defensively, "perhaps the author was trying to show that, although a man and a woman may meet by accident like that, and even feel and admit each to himself or herself that they really do belong to each other, yet neither one quite dares— Oh, I'm afraid I don't just know how to express it," she broke off, blushing consciously at having spoken so freely to an utter stranger.

"Thank you," said the man, and his manner was both sympathetic and thoughtful. "I begin to understand. But I'm still unconvinced as to its being the popular or natural viewpoint. If I could talk to the author herself, I feel quite sure that I could."

"Goodness!" said Henrietta, starting suddenly. "This is my station. Good night."

The more Henrietta let her thoughts dwell upon this unusual little discussion the more she found herself yielding to the editor's point of view. There was no real reason, after all, why the man and woman in the story shouldn't have married and continued to "live happily ever after."

Still that would be a most commonplace ending, after all, and she accused herself of being influenced, as was the editor, not by the artistic but by the commercial value of the story.

So she tried to think of new arguments to defend the author's denouement. The heroine, she imagined, was very much the same type of girl as herself and, like herself, therefore preferred to keep those few moments of chance acquaintanceship an idealized memory upon which she could look back forever and a day with joyful satisfaction.

An ordinary person might yield to the lead, but the heroine of that story was not ordinary. Upon that the author and Henrietta agreed perfectly.

She herself, for instance, in her own comparatively insignificant experience would probably never meet the editor again, and what would it matter? She had the memory of their pleasant interchange of thought, and he of course would never think of her again. But here the defiance weakened and hid her blushing face in her hands.

A few days later when Henrietta received a very courteous note from the editor of the New Fiction Magazine asking her to call at his office for the purpose of talking over her story she smiled archly, dressed herself most becomingly and made her way promptly, but more or less tremulously, to his august sanctum. It was a novel situation.

What if he had reversed his original opinion too? Would she or wouldn't she be pleased?

The editor's surprise proved intensely amusing to Henrietta at least.

"You—the author herself?" was all he was able to gasp. Then he broke out into a hearty laugh, in which Henrietta joined merrily.

"You still hold to your first opinion, I suppose?" Henrietta asked tentatively.

"More firmly than ever," was the editor's emphatic reply.

"Then the story is rejected?" queried Henrietta wistfully.

"Not if I can convince the author into my way of thinking," he answered brightly, "I have great confidence in my own powers of persuasion."

Henrietta looked skeptical. Since he chose to be so confident, she would never let him know that she was half persuaded already. She would defend her original ending of the story, just to keep him guessing.

And the arguments upon arguments that followed! Was ever the fate of a story held so long in the balance? And all the time that Henrietta was defending the story as it stood, in her own heart she was recasting it as the man willed and wanted.

A suspicion of the true state of affairs gradually convinced the editor that his best play was to confess himself vanquished.

Henrietta was radiant.

"There!" she cried triumphantly. "I've made you take it just as it is. You didn't win me over, after all."

"Didn't I?" was all the editor said, but looked straight into her eyes.

Henrietta lowered hers, but made no reply.

And then the editor did a very cruel thing.

"I suppose you are going to put your theories into practice, then, and never let me see you again? Of course you'd rather keep our acquaintance a memory and not let it be spoiled by any such commonplace thing as love and marriage."

"Please don't," begged Henrietta, struggling to keep back the tears. "I told you the very first time we met that it took courage to end the story that way. It may be that the woman isn't as strong as the author."

The editor smiled very tenderly.

"I accept them both," he said lovingly, folding her to him, "just as they are."

But Henrietta would not have it so.

"No," she whispered. "I'm going to rewrite the ending. I know now what it ought to be."

Everybody Suited.

He prided himself on having the largest general store in the county.

"If Man Wishes It and It Is Made I Have It," was the sign over his store and the motto which capped all his advertisements in the newspapers.

"Willino," said he one morning as he was giving instructions to a green clerk, "no one must ever leave this store without making a purchase. If a person doesn't know what he wants, suggest something. And, remember, we have everything, from carpet tacks to mansolemns."

William's first customer was a leisurely chap who gazed about curiously, but had no definite object in view.

"Just looking around," he explained.

"Wouldn't you like to take a look at our new line of post cards?" suggested the eager clerk.

"No, not this time," answered the stranger. "I'm just a little short this morning."

"Ah," urged the raw clerk, who was not familiar with the wonderful slang terms of the language, "then perhaps you'd like to look at our line of new and handsome stretchers." — Sketchy Bits.

The Swaying Skyscraper.

Through the chance perfect adjustment in the way of balance of a row of large photographs that hang on the wall of an office on the twenty-second floor of an office building downtown the clerks in the place have a good deal of quiet amusement with persons who visit the place for the first time. Owing to this balance the pictures are easily swayed by the wind that blows through the open windows, and since the office force goes in for fresh air the year round the pictures are never still. The joke lies in catching the horrified expression on the faces of the callers when they get a sight of the swinging frames. Then it is always explained with due solemnity if the boss is not around that the swaying of the frames is due to the oscillation of the structure. It usually takes some time for the object of the joke to see the point. Meanwhile he has suffered a considerable shock.—New York Press.

Rifle and Smooth Bore.

The main difference between a rifle and a smooth bore gun is that the inner surface of the rifle barrel has one or more spiral grooves cut into it. The object of this is to permit a portion of the material of the bullet or projectile to sink into the grooves. As the projectile is forced out of the barrel these projections into the grooves tend to remain there, thus giving rise to a spinning motion. In fact, it is not only going forward, but is rotating rapidly as it goes. The axis will tend—in accordance with the gyroscopic principle—to maintain without change its direction. But that is really saying that the projectile will tend to remain in its true course. So this is why a rifled gun shoots straighter than a smooth bore.—St. Nicholas.

The government inspection of renovated butter last year showed a total production of 63,000,000 pounds of such butter, an increase of 15 per cent over the preceding year.

SOCIAL DEMOCRACY.

Its Aim Is to End Wage Exploitation and Give Plenty to All.

Under the present system society is rapidly dividing into two classes—the rich and the poor, the capitalist class and the proletariat. The one toils without enjoying; the other enjoys without toiling.

In the wage earner of the cities and the farmer we recognize the types of the producing elements of this country. Under our present economic system both are exploited for the benefit of the capitalist class, the laborer on the sale of his labor power and the farmer on the sale of his products. Both are again exploited in the purchase of practically all the necessities of life.

The final aim of the Social Democracy is the emancipation of the producers and the abolition of the capitalistic system. For that purpose we organize the producing classes in city and country into a political party to take control of the powers of government.

The most characteristic expression of the present economic system is the trust and the monopoly.

Electricity, steam and many modern inventions have struck the deathblow at production on a small scale. Competition has wiped out competition. Production on a large scale makes monopoly a necessary condition. The trust and the monopoly are here, whether we wish it or not. The only question is whether they shall be public or private monopolies.

Private monopoly is a curse to the nation. Thus we see the coal trust making untold millions out of the sufferings of the poor, the oil trust piling up the greatest fortune the world has ever seen upon the ruin of innumerable small dealers and in defiance of all laws and courts of justice, the meat trust sending thousands of unsuspecting human beings to an early grave by selling diseased meat simply to make dividends and heap up millions. Similar statements could be proved against all the other trusts.

Therefore the Socialists demand that the production of this country shall be taken away from the control of a small number of irresponsible men whose only aim is to exploit us to the last limit of our endurance without regard to human life or welfare.

The Socialist party stands for every radical change that will bring more wealth, more culture and more security to the masses of the people, but the measures we urge are not a cure for all the existing evils, nor are they all Socialistic measures. They are to be viewed rather as palliatives, capable of being carried out even under the present conditions. Under no circumstances should the people rest content with palliatives of this kind. The people should move onward to the conquest of all public powers, to an entire change of the present system for one which will secure to the people collectively the ownership of the means of production and distribution and thereby the blessings of our modern inventions and a standard of civilization and culture hitherto unknown in history.

Understand Socialism.

With a suddenness that must be startling to those who note only the surface of events, Socialism has become a factor in our moral, political and industrial life. The Socialist vote for president last election attracted a good deal of attention—more perhaps than in itself it deserved—but it was in no way a measure of the importance of the Socialist movement. And year by year as science compels consolidations and co-operations on a scale impossible in the past the collectivist proposals formulated by the German Jew, Karl Marx, out of the theorizings of the great French economists of the eighteenth century are bound to receive more and more attention.

Whatever one believes about it, he must inform himself, for, while Mark Hanna's prediction that Socialism would be the storm center of the next great political battle in this country seemed exaggerated when he made it a few years ago, his farsightedness is already vindicated. To fight for Socialism you must understand it; to fight against Socialism you must understand it.—Saturday Evening Post.

Toil's Consciousness.

To the average man, especially when he chances to be a small capitalist, the term class consciousness spells the passion of sullen toil against all that world that lies above the grime and wretchedness of field and factory and throbs with the blind fury of the worker who knows no hope save in the ruin of things. He looks upon Socialism, therefore, as a dangerous force whose chief function is to stir up envy and hate in the brains of the working men against the rich in high places. Class consciousness in reality simply means the recognition of the basic equality of all labor as the source of wealth and the fundamental right of every man to the full product of his toil.—Father Hagerty.

The Two Roads.

You are now at the forks of the road. One leads to capitalistic monopoly, the other to Socialistic freedom. Which will you take?

The cutthroat competitive system means idleness, misery, poverty, suicides and murder. Socialism means plenty, contentment and freedom.

The plutocrats and their hirelings condemn every move for relief of the toiling masses.

Socialism gathers dignity from ridicule and grows under unjust persecution.

United States Lake Survey.

The United States lake survey reports the stages of the great lakes for the month of February, as follows:

Lakes	Feet above tide water, New York.
Superior	601.87
Michigan-Huron	580.51
Erie	572.13
Ontario	246.00

Since last month Lake Superior has fallen nearly three inches, and Lake Erie has fallen 4¾ inches. Lakes Michigan and Huron have risen an inch, and Lake Ontario has risen three inches. Ice in St. Clair river has held the water in Lakes Michigan and Huron, giving them a rise at the expense of Lake Erie, which has lowered in consequence.

In the next month Lake Superior is likely to fall about an inch, Michigan-Huron may rise an inch, and Lakes Erie and Ontario two inches.

Lake Superior is 10½ inches higher than in February, 1893, and 1½ inches higher than in 1899; and it is 2¼ inches lower than last year, 6¾ inches below the mean February stage of the past ten years.

Lakes Michigan and Huron are 1¾ inches lower than in February, last year, lower by 10½ inches than in 1877, and the same height as in 1891; but they are half a foot higher than the mean February stage of the past ten years, 8½ inches higher than in 1903, and 16 inches higher than in February, 1900.

Lake Erie is lower by four inches than in February last year, 6½ inches lower than in 1869, nearly a foot lower than in 1882; but it is 2½ inches higher than in February, 1900, 10 inches higher than the average February stage of the past ten years.

Lake Ontario is 6½ inches higher than in February last year, 10¾ inches higher than in 1900, 18 inches higher than in 1905, 25 inches higher than in 1904, 38 inches higher than 1890, and 21½ inches higher than the mean February stage of the past ten years. It shows the highest February stage since 1886; it was 8 inches higher in that year. Lake Ontario promises to show an exceedingly high stage for the coming season.

Says Home-Made Mixture is Easily Prepared and Cures Weak Kidneys and Bladder.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by a eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement in a New York daily newspaper that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe; try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and and Urinary structures, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all the uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

A Mean Trick.

When Queen Victoria paid her visit to Emperor Napoleon III., Baltard asked Baron Haussmann to present him to the British queen. The baron promised to do so if Baltard would shave off his beard, pretending that Victoria had a great prejudice against whiskered faces. Baltard had a beautiful beard, but he made the sacrifice. He appeared at the fete clean shaven and took up his place near the prefect, who, however, paid no attention to him despite Baltard's frantic attempts to attract his attention. At last the ceremony of presentation came to an end, and Baltard had not kissed the queen's hand. Haussman, instead of taking notice of his gesticulation, had deliberately looked the other way and finally, when the queen moved away, asked Baltard haughtily "what he meant by it."

"What I meant by it?" was the irate reply. "You promised to present me to the queen."

"Who are you?"

"I am Baltard."

"I am sorry," said Haussmann, "but, my dear fellow, I did not recognize you; you look like a scarecrow." Baltard never forgave him.

CONVICTED OF CAPITOL GRAFT

Four Men on Trial at Harrisburg, Pa., Found Guilty.

THREE ARE EX STATE OFFICIALS

Maximum Penalties Two Years Imprisonment and a Fine of $1,000.

Case One of the Longest Jury Trials in the History of Pennsylvania Courts—Other Trials Will Follow Soon.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 11.—The jury in the first of the capitol conspiracy cases returned a verdict of guilty as to all four men who had been on trial here for seven weeks. The men found guilty are: John H. Sanderson, contractor; William P. Snyder, former auditor general; W. L. Mathues, former state treasurer; James M. Shumaker, former superintendent of public buildings and grounds.

JOHN H. SANDERSON.

Motions for new trials were made in each case. Only Sanderson and Snyder were in court when the verdict was given, and neither would talk. None of the counsel for the defendants would say anything. The state's attorneys said they were pleased.

Result of Political Upheaval.

Maximum penalties for each defendant is two years' imprisonment and $1,000 fine. The men were convicted of defrauding the state in furnishing the new capitol, which cost $13,000,000, instead of $4,000,000, at which the contract was estimated. The case constituted one of the longest jury trials in the history of Pennsylvania courts.

The jury retired at 12:19 a. m. The judge's charge lasted one hour and nineteen minutes, and was regarded favorable to the prosecution. All other cases in which the defendants figure were continued until March 23 when the next trial will begin. The prosecution was the outcome of the political upheaval in Pennsylvania in 1905, which resulted in the election of William H. Berry, a Democrat, as state treasurer.

Three Times Amount of Contract.

Berry threw open the books of the treasury, and showed that the cost of building the capitol was over three times the amount of the contract. It is announced for the next case to be tried involves an alleged fraud of $17,789.70 in bills for metallic furniture. In this action, which is a charge of conspiracy, Congressman H. Burd Cassel, Architect J. M. Hnston, and Snyder, Mathues and Shumaker are named as defendants, with Frank Irvine, a traveling auditor, who made the measurements of the metal casing.

This trial will be followed in April by a case involving Charles G. Wetter, partner of George W. Payne, builder of the capitol. According to present plans, Wetter is charged with false pretenses.

HOBSON CAUSES STIR AT PROBE

Asserts That Electric Boat Company Agent Told Him They Had Influence with Cannon.

Washington, March 13.—Decided interest was added to the submarine boat investigation of charges brought by Congressman George L. Lilley by a special committee of the house, when Congressman Richmond P. Hobson admitted he had been approached in the interest of the Electric Boat Company of New Jersey by Lawrence Speer of New York, an agent of the company. Mr. Speer told him, he said, that the company had Speaker Cannon's influence to get Hobson on the naval committee "if he stood right on submarines."

Mr. Hobson said he had seen Mr. Speer since this conversation occurred and in reply to a question propounded by Mr. Littleton, who represented the Electric Boat company, said he and Speer had been classmates at Annapolis and that they had belonged to the same corps in the navy. Their relations had been cordial.

Speaker Cannon is angry, and his anger is not of the mild type. The attempt to connect his name and office with the submarine boat lobby is the cause of the speaker's wrath. Everything here understands the situation and Mr. Cannon stands exculpated as far as Washington is concerned, but the speaker is the angriest man in this city never-the-less.

ACTOR'S ACCUSER REPEATS STORY

Ellen Von Hagen Tells of Nights Spent with Hitchcock at His Home on Long Island.

New York, March 13.—Ellen Von Hagen, whose accusations resulted in the indictment of Raymond Hitchcock, the actor, repeated her story to a jury. The girl who is now in the care of the Gerry society, told of nights spent at the Hitchcock home at Great Neck, L. I., and of visits to a furnished room house in this city, where the defendant had temporary lodgings. On each of these excursions she was accompanied, she said, by either Flora Whilton or Elsie Voecks. At the time—more than a year ago—Flora was sixteen, the witness was fifteen, and Elsie was twelve years of age.

In his opening address, following the filling of the jury box, the prosecutor had charged that Hitchcock had been guilty of misconduct with all three of these children.

John B. Stanchfield, chief of counsel for Comedian Raymond Hitchcock, began a rigid cross-examination of the girl in an effort to show that she and her chums, Elsie Voeckes and Flora Whiston, are in a plot to blackmail the actor.

BANK BANDITS FIGHT A POSSE

First Rob a Bank at Tyro, Kan., by Which They Secure $2,500.

DEED DONE AT PISTOL'S POINT

President, Bookkeeper and Another Man Forced to Throw Up Hands.

After Taking All the Money in Sight the Robbers Escape, Followed by a Posse—Offer Fight When Overtaken.

Coffeyville, Kan., March 14.—Three bandits held up and robbed the bank at Tyro, Kan., this county, securing $2,500, after which they fled towards the Oklahoma line. One of the robbers guarded the outside while the other two secured the money. There were three people in the bank when the outlaws entered.

With drawn revolvers the bandits ordered the three to hold up their hands and the order was obeyed. The robbers then gathered up all the money in sight, rushed out of the bank and all three put spurs to their horses and rode away.

Posse After the Bandits.

A posse was formed and the bandits were only about a mile ahead of their pursuers. At a late hour at night the three bandits were headed for the Osage hills near Bartlesville, Okla., and gave battle to a posse which came upon them. Two horses belonging to the citizens were shot down and the bandits escaped, going west for a short distance and then turning south again.

City Marshal Lee, of Wann, was shot through the hand by the bandits. Posses are closing on the robbers from every direction and it is not believed they can escape. It is believed they will be intercepted when they reach the Caney river, north of Bartlesville, and that a battle will be fought there. A special train left Coffeyville for Dewey, Okla., with a hundred armed men determined to run down the outlaws.

Details of the Robbery.

When the bandits entered the bank they ordered the president, Joseph Lenhart, the bookkeeper, Miss Grace Dodson, and the Missouri Pacific agent, named Alexander, who happened to be in the bank, to throw up their hands. All did so at once. One of the bandits then levelled a pistol at the three while the others secured the available money in sight. The robbers then retreated out of the front door, joined the third bandit and the three rode away towards the south.

As soon as they left the bank an alarm was sounded and soon several posses were in pursuit. Word was sent to all the surrounding towns. One of the bandits was 5 feet 7 inches tall and had dark hair and eyes. Another was three inches taller, wore a dark suit and a slouch hat.

Recruiting Office Closed.

Milwaukee, March 14.—For the first time in the history of the national government, it is said, the naval recruiting office in Milwaukee has been closed. The action was taken upon orders received from Washington and is based upon the fact that the full complement of recruits has been reached. The office will remain closed until congress takes action increasing the number of recruits beyond the present allowance.

It is a good rule to pass lightly over the mistakes of others and pay a deal of attention to those you make yourself.—Atchison Globe.

TAB ON THE SALOONS

Grand Rapids Has a System That Shows the Sheep and the Goats.

COPS CARRY NOTEBOOKS ALONG

Write Down the Conduct of the Booze Depots They Pass—Disappearing Man Heard From.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 14.—Detroit can take a good tip from Grand Rapids on how to keep track of the saloonists to ascertain who is worthy of holding a license. In this city the police department keeps record of every saloon in the city and each spring when the common council takes up the question of approving bonds, the department reports on the record of the saloons for the year and recommends either the approval or the rejecting of the bonds.

Patrolmen Are Taking Notes

Of course the council is not bound to follow the recommendations of the police department and in many cases does not, but it does have before it information regarding the applicants which could not be secured in any other way. Under the system the patrolmen are provided with blank cards and take a supply out with them each time they go on duty. If a saloon is open after hours, if it is noisy, if toughs congregate there or if women make it a headquarters, a proper place on the blank is filled out. The officer fills out a card for each saloon he passes on his beat and he marks down the good as well as the bad behavior.

How the Cards Might Read.

Summarized a card might read: "John Doe, 41144 Blank street. People inside at 12:10. Curtains not pulled at 1:10. Women seen entering side door at 8:30. Called at 10:15 because of a fight. Arrested one man." Or on a good saloon keeper the report might be: "Richard Roe, 600 Nowhere street. Place closed 12 sharp. Curtains pulled and bar light burning. Place quiet and orderly at each passing."

Records Are Duly Filed.

These cards are turned in when the men come off duty and filed in a filing cabinet, thus preserving a permanent record of the saloon keepers of the city. In the spring the board of police commissioners go carefully over each one. The record is summarized in a special report on each saloonist which is presented to the council.

HABIT OF DISAPPEARING

Does It Twice in Forty-Eight Years and Now He Makes Inquiries for His Family.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 14. — A strange reunion will take place April 1, when Frank Sherman, formerly of Cooper, now in London, Ont., will return home to see his children after practically forty-eight years of absence. Sherman enlisted at the first call for volunteers in the civil war leaving a wife and two children. He was mustered out in 1865, came home for one night, and then disappeared. He was not seen then until twenty-five years ago, when he appeared again, but departed two days later, and it was thought he was dead.

Recently he wrote to Rev. R. S. MacGregor, of the Methodist church, asking about his family. He was informed that his wife died twenty-three years ago, and that his two daughters were married. They are Mrs. Thomas Walker, of Kalamazoo, and Mrs. Frank Brown, of Grand Rapids. Two days ago another letter was received announcing Sherman's intentions to come here April 1, and also regretting the fact that he had deserted his family.

The Way Gore Figures It.

Clare, Mich., March 14.—"Michigan Republicans are the best Republicans on earth. The trouble is there are too many of them — 300,000 too many," said Thomas P. Gore, the blind Oklahoma senator, at the Lewis Cass banquet. "They have as much sense as Democrats and use it as well. If they didn't Michigan would be Democratic by 200,000."

Fatally Shot His Wife's Mother.

Berrien Springs, Mich., March 14.—Murray Murphy, following the refusal of his wife to give him $100, shot and probably fatally wounded his mother-in-law, Mrs. Morgan, believing that Mrs. Morgan instructed her daughter to refuse the request for money. Murphy shot through a door panel with a shotgun.

Not for Kalamazoo, No.

Jackson, Mich., March 14. — The report sent out from Kalamazoo that the shops of the Michigan Central railroad at Jackson would be moved to Kalamazoo is positively denied by M. T. Wright, division superintendent at this point.

For Assaulting His Father.

Hart, Mich., March 14. — John J. Yaple, a farmer of Crystal township, is under arrest charged with assault with a chair on his father, who is an old soldier. But for the low ceiling the father would probably have been killed.

Fire Costs $100,000.

Winston Salem, N. C., March 14.—The Pickers building, warp and machine room of the Coolleemee Cotton Mills, in Davis county, were destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of over $100,000, which is fully covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

MAINTAINING FERTILITY

The Greatest Question Confronting the American People.

Says N. P. Hull—The Dairy Cow the Best Method to Retain Fertility.

N. P. Hull, overseer of the state grange, in his address at the Grand Traverse Dairy Association meeting at Traverse City last week, spoke in part as follows on maintaining soil fertility:

A man has a legal right to ruin the land by a villainous system of farming, but when you consider how much blood has been shed to build up the land, he has no moral right to ruin the land. The great basic principle of farming in this country is to renew the fertility of the land. The old system was to grow crop after crop without putting a thing back into the soil. The error was soon seen and as soon as it was reminded the crops continued with a uniform goodness.

The speaker said that if he were asked the greatest question confronting the American people he would say that it was that of maintaining the fertility of the soil. The deserted farms of the east and the plantations of the south are grim evidence of the poor system of farming. If the people continue to use these ruinous methods in 50 years the lands will be deserted and the nation will not be able to feed itself. The United States farmer has been the greatest land robber of the age.

Probably the best stock to keep on the farm to help in fertilization is the dairy cow. Beside the fertility the cow gets the full benefit of the food and the money put in a dairy cow is just as safe as that placed in a bank.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GRADES AND CROSSBREDS.

The development of grade and crossbred beef cattle has been a matter of interest at the Virginia experiment station recently, and here are some of the conclusions from the work carried on in this line that are of value to farmers:

The development of beef bred animals on skimmilk for the first three months was not satisfactory, but it should be remembered that these figures represent the most unfavorable period of development on skimmilk. The whole-milk calves from one to three months made much better gains and appeared to much better advantage.

The growth of the whole milk calves from one to three months, as shown by the measurements, was about equal to that from three to twelve months. The weights, however, do not show this same relation, as the gains from three to twelve months were about twice that from one to three months. The growth of the whole milk calves for the twelve month period was quite satisfactory. The measurements would indicate that the development of the framework was largely made during this period.

In finishing off five animals from nine months to the time of slaughtering the Shorthorn-Holstein led with an average daily gain of 2.18; the Hereford-Shorthorn came second with a gain of a little over two pounds, while the Jersey was last with a gain of less than 1.5 pounds per day. The two steers having dairy blood put on a pound of gain for somewhat less than those of the beef breeds. The slaughter test shows the Hereford-Shorthorn to be the best killer, with a per cent of good meat of 58.3; the grade Shorthorn was second, the grade Angus third, the Jersey fourth and the Shorthorn-Holstein last, with less than 50 per cent.

In quality of meat there was very little to choose between the Hereford-Shorthorn and the grade Shorthorn. The Hereford-Shorthorn was somewhat better, as he did not have the rolls of fat on the outside of his carcass that were shown on the grade Shorthorn. The Jersey and Holstein were poorest in this respect.

The value of live weight based on the percentage killed out shows the Hereford-Shorthorn to be the most valuable, with the grade Shorthorn second and the Jersey and the Shorthorn-Holstein the least valuable.

Holstein Beef.

While in character the Holstein-Friesians are essentially a dairy breed and are so regarded in America, yet as an all around dairy breed the matter of beef and veal must not be lost sight of, and in Holland those are very important points. There few cattle are allowed to pass their seventh year, but before they pass out of their prime they are fattened and sold as beef. The late Professor I. T. Roberts in speaking of Holstein-Friesian beef said, "I ate it for three weeks and the English beef for two, and, while not so fat as the Shorthorn, it was to my taste superior."—M. H. Gardner.

THE STOCKMAN.

Full husking has developed a poorer quality of corn even than was reported a month ago. The estimate of rate of yield is practically the same as reported in November, the crop aggregating 2,550,000,000 bushels, but the percentage of corn fit for commercial purposes is the lowest ever raised. In general character the crop is soft, damp and immature grain and the quality is so low that it dried out slowly and is keeping badly. It is particularly poor in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska.

The proportion of the crop which will be fed on the farm is far larger than usual, the reasons assigned being its unmerchantable quality, the scarcity of other grains, increased cattle and hog supplies and the inferior feeding value, necessitating the use of greater bulk to accomplish the same result. The crop is disappearing rapidly, and an unusually small part of it will appear in commercial channels.—Crop Report.

Character of Silage.

The feeding value of silage is in a large measure due to its comparative richness in nutrients especially suited for the nourishment of cattle, its ease of digestion as compared with dry foods, its palatability due to its aroma and succulence and the fact that it aids in feeding the system and keeping it free of effete material and keeping the circulation active.

Stall Feeding Versus Grass.

In some Virginia tests it cost nearly twice as much to make a pound of gain on cattle in the stall as where the animals were finished on grass.

Sir Leslie Stephen's familiar name for the Swiss Alps, "the Playground of Europe," takes on a somewhat sinister aspect when we realize that the Alps are responsible for over 400 accidents a year. So many of these are fatal that the London Lancet seems justified in saying that this "playground" has for many years been "a graveyard," a fact which experience from year to year emphasizes rather than modifies.

SCENES OF THE BOER WAR

Described In Letter From South Africa by Capt. Harry Gunyaw.

WRITTEN TO CHARLEVOIX FRIENDS

Description of Voyage of One Month From London to Cape Town.

South Africa Railroads—The Work of Civilizing and Christianizing Going On—A Fertile Field for Work.

The following interesting letter was recently received by a Charlevoix lady from Captain Harry Gunyaw, of the Salvation Army, who is well known in this city:

Cancel Farm, Mt. Frere, Cape Town, South Africa, February 9, 1908.

Dear Friend—You will undoubtedly be surprised to receive a letter from me, after so long a time without a word. I hope you will find it in your heart to forgive me for such neglect, although I really can't expect it. I am constantly running up to some new and fresh experience and having so much to learn that I have most shamefully neglected some of my friends, who were very kind to me when I was there. I am still a long distance from India and very little prospects of ever getting there, but Jesus is still my very best friend and I am still in his work.

I left London, England, on November 23, 1906, on the Union Castle S. S. Avondale Castle and had a very nice voyage out to Cape Town. We stopped at Teneriffe, Canary Isles (Spanish) and I went ashore to have a quiet walk on Spanish soil. We left there on the same day and touched at "Lobito Bay" a West African coast stop where I saw the first heathen natives of Africa. These poor people lived in very rude cabins or huts of lumber or bark and wore very few clothes as the sun was very scorching here. Sharks play near the shore waiting for some bold swimmer or careless one to come out a bit to far from the land where they would make a meal of them very quickly. I did not care to go bathing at this place. Ha! ha! We arrived in Cape Town on the evening of December 13 after very nearly a month on board ship. I was rather sorry in one way of the fact that I must leave the boat and seperate from those whose company I had had for so long a time. Although we passed through the famous Bay of Biscay and down the coast where frequent storms rage, I was very well all the voyage, having one short half hour of light sea sickness. Many suffered agonies for days. I usually escape with very little of the unpleasant sickness however, and manage to get much pleasure and profit out of my voyages.

Cape Town is a large up to date place with street cars, etc., now not unlike a large American city. But I was only priviledged to stay in or near this city for a few months, being sent up country 900 miles to a far different place which I shall try to describe as briefly as possible. I travelled from 8:30 Tuesday night until 6:00 Friday night on a narrow gauge and very crooked railroad, climbing thousands feet up great mountains and over long steep hills. At one place I alighted from one train (it was in full motion) and picked some blades of grass getting on again easily. Such is travelling on a South African train. We passed many scenes of the late Boer War. Many soldiers' graves can be seen near the tracks where they fell, while fighting in the cause of their country. I went into a real stone block house at one station where our train stopped and saw the dismal place where many brave men held forth to protect the little village against the attack of the Boers. Near this place the British suffered one of their crushing defeats, hundreds being killed I suppose.

Well at last I reached a small placed called Mackar; which was the end of the railway line. Here I stayed all night and at 6:00 a. m. Saturday, June 29, 1907, I mounted a horse, ordered for me, and with my guide, a native boy, started off over rivers, hills, valleys, mountains, etc., until at 8:45 p. m. of the same day I found myself at the Cancele Farm, a native mission station of the army. We had come on horse back (my first time in a saddle) just over forty-seven miles. In this ride we passed over steep mountains paths, where a single slip would send a person hundreds of feet down onto the rocks below. I must say that forty-seven miles from a railroad and nineteen miles from a post-office, three miles from another white person's house was rather a new thing to me. Now, however, I am quite well settled in my new home and am making brave efforts (not very successful so far) to learn the Kora Kaffir language. But as the necessary books would cost about $20 or more I can't get them at present and have to pick here and there a little of the language from our native help. The armys own about 3,000 acres here and we are farming some while the profits (when they come in) will help to build and maintain mission stations in our South African territory.

The raw Kaffirs or the uncivilized natives here are very low specimens of humanity. They live in mud or sod huts without stoves beds, tables, chairs or even dishes. A single iron kettle or pot with a small fire of sticks in the center of the hut floor is the way of cooking their meals (Indian Corn) which is stamped with a couple of sticks in a hollowed out block of wood. Their complete set of clothes consists of one blanket like our common bed blankets wrapped around them. They do very little work. Most of what is done, is done by the women, who are slaves, so to speak of their lazy husbands. One man sometimes has three or four wives. He buys these with ten to twenty cattle each, from her parents. These are surroundings quickly told.

Some time later I will try to describe more fully our black neighbors, their interesting customs and our work for the civilizing and christianizing of these poor lost races in Africa. The Wesleyan church has a mission school and station a few miles from here, but not a great many places of worship are to be found in this vast district. We are trying to spread the gospel of Jesus as fast as possible and hope to open another halt and native school on our borders shortly. The scenery here is simply grand to behold. Climate and water good and all the prospects of a great salvation work in the future. Pray for us here that in Christ's name we may win many to God.

I must close now, hoping you are all well and having good success in Charlevoix. Hoping you will forgive so long neglect, I will if possible write again.

Yours in Jesus, for Africa's salvation. HARRY GUNYAW, Captain.

NEW PRIMARY LAW

Republicans to Vote on Direct Nomination of State Senator

Board of Enrollment will be in Session April 4 How to Enroll.

Sufficient petitions having been received, the question of the direct nomination of candidates of the Republican party for state senator will be submitted to the enrolled voters of the Republican party at the April election.

The new law further requires that a primary election be held in every voting precinct in the state of Michigan on the first Tuesday in September for the nomination by each political party of candidates for governor, lieutenant governor and U. S. senator, in case a U. S. senator is to be elected at the next session of the legislature, it also provides that the boards of registration of every township in Michigan shall sit as a board of enrollment on the Saturday preceding the ensuing April election.

There are two ways in which proper application for enrollment may be made

First: A written application may be made and signed by the voter desiring enrollment in his own hand writing and presented in person to any member of the board of enrollment, composed of boards of registration in each ward and township, on any day before the day of enrollment. Blanks for this purpose can be had from any of the officers above named.

Second: On the day of enrollment application must be made in person.

It shall not be necessary for electors who were enrolled under act No. 181, public acts of 1905, to again enroll under the provisions of this act, if they reside in the same voting precinct.

Any person duly enrolled who has changed his residence to another voting precinct may be enrolled in the new precinct and vote therein, provided he has resided in the new precinct twenty days and obtain from a member of the enrollment board where he formerly resided a certificate stating that he was duly enrolled in such district and is entitled to enrollment in the new district.

PROCEEDINGS OF CIRCUIT COURT

Wm. Horton and Oliver Jodway Convicted of Manslaughter.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS TAKEN

Charles Hopkins Sent to Asylum for Criminal Insane.

Case Against Guy Laut Settled—Offenders Plead Guilty—Court will Continue Next Week.

As we went to press last week, the case of the people against William Horton and Oliver Jodway, the two young men from Bay Shore, charged with murder, was on trial. According to the testimony, brought out at the trial, in the latter part of September last, Horton and Jodway went to Bay Shore, where they met two other boys, by the name of Weise, all partaking of liquor until they became more or less intoxicated, and all starting for home in that condition. After awhile they sat down by the side of the road, to rest, when the Indian, Shagonagasee, came along and the boys proceeded to "clean up on him." Up to this point the testimony all agrees, now the differences arise, Horton and Jodway claiming that most of the beating was done by the oldest Weise boy, while the Weise boys claim that all the slugging was done by the defendants. At any rate, the dead body of the Indian was found by the road-side the next morning.

The case created much interest, the court room being packed during all stages. Prosecutor Clink was assisted by Judge J. M. Harris, of Boyne City. For defense was Nicholas & Nicholas, of East Jordan, and Hayden & Hayden, of Petoskey, and every inch of the ground was hotly contested.

The case was given to the jury Thursday and after about two hours, a verdict of manslaughter was returned. A stay of proceedings was taken which will be signed to-morrow.

The next case was that of Charles Hopkins, charged with assault with intent to commit murder, on the person of his wife, of Boyne City, last winter. After an insanity commission had passed on his case, he was committed to the asylum for the criminal insane, there to remain until his mind is restored, when he will be remanded to the authorities for trial

The case of the people vs. Laut, was nolle pros, the complaining witness paying all the costs.

Tuesday William Hanway, of Boyne City, and John Hinson, of Boyne Falls plead guilty to charges of indecent exposure.

Charles Neubert and Herman Meyers, Charlevoix saloon-keepers, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of selling liquor on a legal holiday. Sentence was deferred until May 1.

The case of Allan Roswell Steffer vs. A. B. Fleischer, assumpsit, tried Tuesday, resulted in a verdict of no cause of action.

To-day the case of the people against John Fritzoff, of Bay township, charged with killing a dog, was tried resulting in a verdict of not guilty.

Are Patent Medicines Frauds?

We are often asked the above question, and our answer has invariably been that no medicine that gives satisfactory results could be fraudulent. We could not afford to sell fraudulent medicines. Our business depends on pleased customers—in fact any business does. Therefore, we would take an enormous risk did we not fulfil every promise made our customers. We are very careful of what we guarantee, and when we do guarantee an article we must know it pretty well—what it contains and how it is made. We have in mind the Rexall line of remedies, particularly Rexall Muco-Tone, of which we are selling large quantities at this time of the year. Muco-Tone is one article that we can recommend over our counter and know that ninety-eight per cent. of its purchasers are going to be benefited and will return to our store pleased customers. Muco-Tone is a positive cure for internal scrofula or what is commonly called Catarrh. It is without a doubt the peer of all tonics for any one who is suffering from a run-down condition, can't work, feels constantly tired or suffering from the more plainly described symptoms of Catarrh—such as stopping of the nose, cold in the head or bad cough."

It must be remembered that Catarrh is not confined to the nose and throat. It usually starts there, but it leads more often to serious trouble, particularly the wasting of tissues; as in the case of little Miss Dillon, of Albany. Here is a letter from her father:

"My little girl had catarrh so badly that the disease had begun to eat into the cartilage of the nose. Snuff, and instruments failed to do more than give temporary relief. I saw the advertisements of Rexall Muco-Tone, but I could not believe that anything taken in the stomach could cure the sore membranes of the nose. However, I took advantage of your free trial offer and my girl began taking your remedy according to directions. I want to say right here that Muco-Tone is certainly the greatest medical discovery of the times, and to thank you for the liberal offer that first induced me to give it a trial. Muco-Tone has cured my daughter's catarrh completely. The discharge has stopped altogether, and her breath is as sweet as can be. Again thanking you, MATT. DILLON, 24 N. Swan St., Albany, N. Y."

We are selling a large trial bottle of Muco-Tone for fifty cents on the famous Rexall guarantee of your money back if you are not satisfied. We promise that one bottle will put flesh on your bones and bring new vitality to your system.

A REASON

The United Drug Company, manufacturers of the Rexall Remedies, for whose preparations we are agents in this city, make 200 remedies, one for each ill. Each one is especially prepared to cure one disease, and that only. This is an age of specialists. You don't contract with a plumber to build your whole house, do you? Why should you contract with one proprietary medicine to cure all your troubles?

Oftentimes you run across a building contractor who has a separate plumbing department, his own plastering department, and so on, all of which dovetail together and build the house. This is just what the United Drug Company is doing for you in the medicine line. They have cut down profits; they manufacture Rexall Remedies for over 2,000 retail druggists. These druggists are the only intermediate profit that stand between The United Drug Company and the patient.

Could the United Drug Company, of which we are a member, afford to make one poor medicine in this line? Does not common sense tell you that one poor medicine would ruin the sale of the other 199 preparations? If you bought a Rexall preparation and it didn't do for you what we claim it will, would you buy another one of our articles? We believe not. Therefore each preparation must be good—it is good. We who are in the drug business know the formulas of these Rexall preparations. We believe in them so implicitly that we stand back of them, with our guarantee to refund you your money if they do not benefit you.

For hauling what is declared to have been the biggest load of timber hauled in the Michigan pineries in years, the G. M. Mashek logging camp near Alfred, Delta county, and of which Micheal Gordan is foreman, lays claim to the championship belt. There were 10,500 feet of white pine on the 16-foot bunks of the sleigh, and it was hauled to the landing, five miles distant, by one team of horses weighing 3,000 pounds. In 35 days this one camp with only four teams of horses in service, has delivered a million and a half feet of logs. This is a big work considering the five-mile haul, and is believed to establish a record.

IN CONFERENCE AT WHITE HOUSE

Aldrich, Payne, Dalzell and Hepburn in Attendance.

LEGISLATION IS THE SUBJECT

Important Measures Intended to Receive the Attention of Congress.

Mystery in a Midnight Conference Held at the White House with Western Board of Trade Men.

Washington, March 21.—An important conference was held at the White House during the forenoon, the president having summoned Senator Aldrich and Representatives Payne, Dalzell and Hepburn to consider the legislative program, which, it is understood, includes measures amendatory of the employers' liability act, the bill modifying the power of injunction, the Aldrich financial bill, the Hepburn proposition to amend the Sherman anti-trust law and the proposal to prosecute a tariff inquiry during the recess of congress.

Mystery in Night Conference.

The conference was suspended at noon to allow the participants to attend the session of congress, and an announcement of the conclusions reached was withheld for the present. Diligent effort fails to disclose the nature of the business of Festus J. Wade and A. E. Smith, the western board of trade men who were called to Washington for a midnight conference at the White House. Mr. Smith was with the president again in the forenoon and it was intimated that a formal statement as to the nature of the business in hand would be given out later in the day.

Waterways Involved.

In the case of Mr. Wade, who went to the Philippine Islands several months ago in connection with the disposal of certain church lands and properties, it is believed that at least a part of his business in Washington relates to that matter. But it is known that both Wade and Smith have been deeply interested in the inland waterways project, and a suggestion that meets with favor is that the president sent for them to determine personally their availability for service on the waterways commission, and perhaps to obtain their co-operation in having legislation enacted to initiate this great project.

TRAIN DERAILED BY ROBBER BAND

Illinois Central Diamond Special Leaves Rails but the Bandits Flee.

Springfield, Ill., March 21.—The Diamond express special on the Illinois Central was wrecked two and one-half miles south of Springfield early in the day and it is believed by railway officials that an attempt was made to hold up the train. Although the engine and two of the express cars left the tracks, no one was injured.

The derailment occurred at one of the most lonely spots on the St. Louis line of the Illinois Central. When the cars left the track the express messengers seized rifles and revolvers to repel robbers. No one appeared, however, as the bandits became frightened and fled.

That it was an attempted holdup was shown when it was discovered that the bolts which connected the rails had been withdrawn and the rails separated for several feet. A crowbar and other evidence that the spikes had been removed were found by the side of the track. It was evidently the intention of the robbers to derail the entire train and enter the express car.

FLOODS CAUSE MUCH DISTRESS

Measures of Relief Being Put Through by the Wheeling, W. Va., Board of Trade.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 21.—The fourth flood in the Wheeling district within five weeks reached its crest with 39 feet 6 inches. After remaining stationary for three hours a slight drop was shown, and the flood will rapidly recede. There is much distress among the poor of the city and vicinity and measures for relief are being put through by the board of trade and the city authorities. Fortunately the weather has moderated and the suffering is not so great as a month ago. Funds are being subscribed liberally.

Trolley lines, some of the steam roads and many industries are interfered with by the high water and the city's jobbing business is at a standstill. Over a thousand residences are entered by the high water. In Benwood, the flood gates have worked satisfactorily and the lower lying portion of that suburb, five feet below the flood-level, is dry.

ONLY ONE MAN IS FOR BRYAN

All Others of the New York State Democratic Committee for Uninstructed Delegates.

New York, March 20.—As predicted by Chairman Conners the Democratic state committee voted almost solidly in favor of an uninstructed delegation to the national convention. But one voice was raised in opposition, that of Charles P. Williams, of Lyons, who subsequently explained that he stood for William J. Bryan, and if Williams could have had his way the birthday gifts to the Nebraskan [Bryan was forty-eight years old yesterday] would have included the promise of united support by the Democracy of New York state.

The prevailing sentiment was expressed in a resolution which, after setting forth that the interests of country and party demand the selection as presidential candidates of men who at the time and place of the national gathering shall appeal most strongly to the intelligence and judgment of the whole body, calls upon the Democratic electors of the state to choose as delegates the strongest and ablest men in their ranks, and send them to the national convention, "unfettered by conditions and unpledged and uninstructed as to candidates."

The meeting lasted just eight minutes. Each of the fifty-one members was either present or represented by proxy. Upon the motion of Thomas W. Flaherty, of Rochester, it was unanimously agreed to hold the state convention in Carnegie hall, this city, April 14. At that time four delegates-at-large to the national convention will be elected. The resolution for unpledged delegates was introduced by Fletcher C. Peck, and was responded to by a roar of "ayes," followed by a single emphatic "no"—Williams.

Shortage Wrecks Fraternity.

Port Huron, Mich., March 20.—An investigation into the affairs of the United Home Protectors' Fraternity of this city, ordered by the state banking commissioner, ended with the announcement that Supreme Secretary W. L. Wilson of this city is short a sum in excess of $75,000. He was arrested on the charge of embezzlement. The fraternity is said to be insolvent owing to the shortage and a receiver will be asked for.

Feats for Overdue Steamer.

Plymouth, England, March 20.—The British steamer Accra, from Sierra Leone March 2, with 156 men and women, including a detachment of a West Indian regiment on board, is three days overdue. Much anxiety is expressed for her safety. On her voyage up from Sierra Leone she put in at the Canard Islands, from which place she sailed March 10.

Stoessel Challenged to Duel.

Berlin, March 20.—St. Petersburg dispatches say that, in addition to the further challenge of General Gorbatowski to fight a duel with General Fock, it is reported that Admiral Nebogatoff, from his quarters in the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress, has challenged General Stoessel to deadly combat in the yard of the famous prison.

Milk Drivers Firm for a Raise.

Chicago, March 20.—Twelve hundred milk wagon drivers in a special meeting held in Brand's Hall instructed their officers to "stand pat" on the demands for increased wages and make no further overtures to the employers. Unless the dealers seek another conference the union will take a strike vote at its regular meeting next Thursday night.

Farmer Killed by Night Riders.

Carlisle, Ky., March 21.—A band of night riders shot and killed Harlan Hedges, a farmer, seven miles northwest of this place. This is the first murder by the night riders in the bluegrass region of Kentucky. Hedges was awakened by shouts shortly after 2 o'clock. Apprehending trouble he went to his front door with a shotgun and fired once. The night riders replied with a volley, which killed Hedges just as his wife reached his side.

Bust of a Pope Stolen.

Rome, March 21.—Thieves broke into the magnificent Villa Aldobrandini at Frascati, which dates from the sixteenth century, and carried off a valuable bust in Carthidian bronze of Pope Clement VIII. The thieves obtained access by breaking a window, and removed the bust, which weighs 561 pounds, from its position in the central hall of the villa.

Credited with 3,000 Sprees.

Chicago, March 20.—Drunk 3,000 times in ten years! That was the blissful experience accredited to John T. Reddington by Mrs. Elizabeth M. Reddington in her testimony before Judge Barnes, when she sought a decree of divorce. She said that she had known Reddington ten years and that in that time he was intoxicated at least 300 times each year. Judge Barnes computed the total, then granted the divorce.

Smallpox in Central Illinois.

Bloomington, Ill., March 21.—After being suppressed for a year, smallpox is again obtaining a foothold in central Illinois. Much concern is expressed over the rapid spread of the scourge. Five cases were reported in Lincoln, three each in Chenoa and Eureka, while Fairbury and numerous other central cities reported one or more cases.

POLICE MAKE BIG RAID IN CHICAGO

Round Up One Hundred and Fifty Alleged Crooks During Night.

INSPECTOR M'CANN IN COMMAND

Cells of the Police Stations in His District Overcrowded with Suspects.

Several Fierce Fights Take Place Between the Officers and Alleged Crooks—Object of the Big Raid.

Chicago, March 21.—One hundred and fifty suspicious characters, many of whom are wanted for serious crimes, the police say, were rounded up during the night in the Desplaines street district by Inspector Edward McCann at the head of thirty picked detectives in the biggest general police raid in years.

A dozen patrol wagons were pressed into service by the inspector to carry the prisoners to the various west side stations and before the raid was concluded the Desplaines street, West Lake street and Warren avenue stations were crammed with inmates. In many instances there were six or seven men in a cell.

Resistance by Armed Crooks.

Every poolroom, cheap saloon and opium den in the district was visited by the police and all of the inmates who could not give good accounts of themselves arrested. In many cases the men arrested were armed with revolvers and knives and several fierce fights between the police and the alleged crooks occurred during the night.

The raid took the inhabitants of the west side levee completely by surprise. Inspector McCann, who was recently promoted from a captaincy and transferred from the Twenty-Second street station to Desplaines street, ordered his men to assemble at the station at 8 p. m. None of the detectives knew what was in the air.

Told Off Into Squads.

When the men had all assembled the inspector told them off into squads of three and four men each. He headed one squad personally, while other squads were put under the commands of Lieutenant Augustus White, Detective Sergeant O'Malley, Sergeant Stephen Barry, Sergeant Bowler and Detective Mulvihill.

The raiders had not been out in the district thirty minutes before the denizens of the vicinity were panic-stricken. Scores of alleged crooks fled hastily from their favorite haunts at the approach of one squad, only to run into the outstretched arms of another squad in another section of the district.

Only a Prelude, Says McCann.

At the conclusion of the raid Inspector McCann expressed himself as well pleased with the night's work.

"I am going to clean up this district," he said. "I promised the chief to do so and I intend to do so. Thieves and crooks who have found this a good resting place in the past had better clear out for I am going to get them if they don't. The raid was only a prelude to what is to come and I will send out flying squadrons every night in the week if necessary to rid the west side of vice. I expect that many hold-ups and other crooks will be cleared up as a result of the raids."

LABOR PRESENTS AN ULTIMATUM

Threatens Reprisals If Desired Legislation Is Not Enacted by the Present Congress.

Washington, March 20.—Organized labor has made its formal demand on congress for such legislation as is desired, coupled with a veiled threat of reprisals in the elections this fall if its requests go unheeded.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, representing eighty-seven national and international trade and labor organizations and farmers association now in conference in this city, presented the ultimatum of the unions of America. Heading a delegation chosen by the conference he appeared at the capitol to lay before the house of representatives, through the speaker, a memorial entitled "Labor's Protest to Congress."

Both Speaker Cannon and Vice President Fairbanks assured the delegation that in their opinion the present congress would pass an employers' liability act which will meet the constitutional objections to the present law pointed out by the supreme court.

Wed Twice to Beat Hoodoo.

New York, March 21.—As a balm to the ruffled tempers of their relatives and to overcome the possible boodoo of having been married on Friday, the 13th, by a justice of the peace at Bridgeport, young Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Hanna consented to go to Watertown, Conn., where the ceremony nailing them was repeated, this time by Rev. H. N. Cunningham, an Episcopalian minister. Mr. Hanna is a grandson of the late Marcus A. Hanna.

Dispensary System in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., March 21.—Both houses of the legislature passed the state dispensary system measure with the emergency clause. An amendment by Speaker Murray of the house provides that a special election shall be held this year to vote on the dispensary bill. The vote will be taken after the dispensary system is established. The governor will sign the bill. There will be a dispensary in every town of two thousand or more and in every county seat.

Runaway Fatal to Two.

Sharon, Pa. March 21.—Mrs. Ell Palmer, aged forty-five and Joseph Rosenbaum, aged fifty-five were drowned in the Shenang river. Rosenbaum was driving and Mrs. Palmer asked him for a ride. The horse became frightened at a pile of ashes and plunged over an embankment into the swift current. Both clung to the wagon but their fingers soon were benumbed in the icy water and they lost their hold and perished.

President to Receive Methodists.

Washington, March 21.—President Roosevelt, through Bishop Cranston, has promised to receive the members of the approaching general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, meeting in Baltimore, in May, at the site of the American university, in this city, on Saturday, May 16. Seunton Dolliver and others will make brief addresses.

Lyle is alleged to have converted to his own use the funds of the new Elks temple which were raised at a recent bazar.

Lodge Loses All the Funds.

He was treasurer of the lodge and deposited the money in his own bank. When the bank failed a few weeks ago the organization lost practically all of the funds. Lyle was arrested at the train as he was leaving for Chicago.

Angry Mob in Action.

President Lyle and Vice President Ira B. Gage, of the closed bank, were followed by an angry mob of nearly a thousand jeering citizens, hurling stones, lemons and other missiles at the one-time popular bank officers as they drove from town at a gallop in the custody of police officials on their way to the county jail at Cassopolis.

Another Charge Against Lyle.

A second charge has been preferred against Lyle, that of receiving deposits in his bank after the bank was insolvent, and is preferred by Martin Gephart, a merchant who deposited $200 a few minutes before the bank closed. Lyle canvassed the town thoroughly without being able to secure bail and Gage made no attempt to obtain bondsmen.

Wilson Refuses to Plead.

Port Huron, Mich., March 21.—William L. Wilson, supreme secretary of the United Home Protectors' fraternity, was arraigned on the charge of embezzling $75,000 of the fraternity's funds. He refused to plead and Justice Benedict directed that a plea of not guilty be entered. Wilson waived the reading of the information and his examination was set for March 21. He was sent to jail with bail fixed at $50,000.

Must Not Limit the Service.

Lansing, Mich., March 21.—As a result of the nine hour law Michigan railroads are beginning to curtail their service. Each day the railroad commission is in receipt of letters from people living at small stations where agent or operator has been taken away and sent to some larger place. Chairman Glasgow said: "We are inclined to be lenient for sixty or ninety days and then will compel the railroads to obey the law and give proper service."

Ten Cars of Freight in a Pile.

Greenville, Mich., March 21. — An open switch caused the wreck of a Pere Marquette freight train at the P. S. and M. junction, North Greenville. The engineer and fireman were both slightly injured in jumping. Ten freight cars, loaded with merchandise, were piled up on the tracks. The engine left the track and toppled over on its side in the ditch.

He was 66 years old. Charles Gardner received a term of from 14 to 15 years at Jackson for felonious assault. James Stanley, found guilty of assault with intent to kill, was sent to Ionia for a term of from nine to ten years. He was 67 years old.

Since the grand jury investigation and the indictment of two members of the legislature for alleged graft there is considerable discussion in Lansing of legislature expenses. Some interesting figures, showing the expenses of the last legislature, are found in fiscal year ending last June.

It is shown that the total expenses of the state senate were $56,912.53, of which only $18,258 was the per diem of members. The remainder was for the pay of employes, mileage and incidental expenses, so that the salaries of the senators was really only about one-third the cost of the session. The report shows that while there are but 32 senators there are 61 employes attached to the senate staff, and that while the salaries of the senators aggregated $18,528, those of the employes amounted to $30,751.

Senators received $557 each, which was at the rate of $3 per day for every day of the week, from the beginning of the session to the end, not a senator being "docked" for absence or for Sundays, although the constitution says that members shall be allowed $3 per day for the time actually in attendance or when absent on account of sickness.

The house expenses were $101,551.67, the members being paid $61,702.20 and the officers of the body $35,935, the balance being for incidental expenses. The total cost of the legislative session was $164,103.20, of which about $76,000 was for the salaries of members. Members received pay for 179 days.

SCHOOL FRATS DEFIANT

Nearly All of Them at Muskegon Ignore the Mandate of the City School Board.

Muskegon, Mich., March 21.—Only six of the 112 members of secret fraternities in the city schools have complied with the mandate of the board of education that all pupils must sever their connection with Greek letter societies. The board had given the students until yesterday to decide.

The six students who resigned from the societies did so at the direction of their parents, while many who did not resign also had parental support. The senior class of the high school and all the athletic teams are composed almost completely of fraternity members. The board of education has arranged a special meeting to take action on the situation.

ABOLISH BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

The council at the session on Monday evening acted upon the petition which had been previously presented, signed by 111 freeholders, and voted to submit the proposition to abolish the board of public works, to the voters at the coming city election.

There is a very prevalent sentiment in favor of doing away with the board of public works, and giving the control of all municipal matters to the council, where in our opinion, it properly belongs. There is no desire on the part of the COURIER to criticise the members of the board of public works, for they have served without pay and undoubtedly acted to the best of their judgments. But in a city of the size of this, we believe that the simpler, and better plan, in every respect, is to give the council entire control of all city affairs, and thus make the power that raises the moneys, responsible for all expenditures. In the same way the council should have power to direct the management of the public utilities. Under the present plan, the authority is divided, and often the citizen does not know "where he is at" when he seeks redress, or desires action on some matter important to him and to the public. It is an old saying that what is everybody's business is nobody's business. Too many cooks spoil the broth. It is easier to secure six good men to look after the business of the city, than it is to secure eleven. Where there is a chance to shoulder responsibility off upon another department, expenditures are apt to be less closely guarded, than if the authority to incur and pay expenses was confined to the council alone.

The movement to abolish the board of public works is not a partisan movement; it is not a movement to legislate any man or set of men out of office; it is not a reflection upon any man or set of men; it is simply the opinion, crystalized into action, of a great many of our prominent citizens and heavy tax payers, that the present system is cumbersome, ineffective, and less advantageous than the simpler plan of giving full control to the council. And those who circulated the petition did so because they were asked to start the ball rolling.

We believe that it will be a step in advance to do away with the two headed plan of government, and a reform that will produce better results, financially and in the way of efficiency, to turn the entire power over to the council.

The council is chosen by the people. Half of the council go out of office each year, and the people can soon change the entire ensemble of their representatives if they wish. The board of public works is an appointive body, and it would take five years to change its personnel. Those who favor direct representation, may find an added argument in this, for abolishing the board and returning all power to the council, and thus to the people.

A Famous Old Mansion.

Hall-Barn, in Bucks county, England, is a big square house in Queen Anne style, with stone facings and pilasters. It was originally the home of the poet Waller, and the great statesman, Edmund Burke, spent many holidays there. The dagger which Burke threw down on the floor of the house of commons in 1790 during his speech in support of his aliens bill is in the hall. It was in the dining room at Hall Barn that Oliver Cromwell in a temper flung his napkin in the face of Waller's royalist mother for reproaching him with the execution of Charles I. The most perfect Turkish bath in the kingdom is another remarkable feature of the house. In the lovely old world flower garden is an ancient summer house, in which Milton is said to have composed a great part of "Paradise Regained."

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day to put those the child with sahe or some pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear our little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Native Iron-ola Tonic Laxative aids and strengthens the bowels, and stimulates all the little organs to healthy activity. Children like to take it, as it is sweet, never gripes or nauseates. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

"America in the Sky."

It was Dr. Max Wolf of Heidelberg who photographed a remarkable nebula in the constellation Cygnus, which on account of its shape he called the "America nebula." This was the first time that such an object had been named for any of the continental divisions of the earth. Dr. Wolf's photograph shows a really striking likeness to an outline map of North America. The nebula represents the form of the confluent surrounded by the dark background of the heavens as by an ocean. The narrowing toward the south, the huge gap of the gulf of Mexico and the graceful curve of the coast of Central America and the isthmus are to be seen.—St. Louis Republic.

French Married Life.

The high average of reasonably happy marriages in France, where marriage is mostly a family arrangement, is not so inexplicable as we might think. One thing, we suppose, the foreigner will never be able to explain, and that is how the French girl passes from her obscure and untried existence before marriage to the wisdom and self possession of the young French married woman, who seems to wield the experience of all the ages. The adaptability of Frenchwomen is beyond praise, as it is beyond explanation.—London Spectator.

State Chairman Wm. A. Taylor will be present and address the convention and also a mass meeting in the evening. Leading prohibitionists of the county will address both of the meetings.

The prohibition cause was never as encouraging as it is today. It is the time for action, and every prohibitionist should be present and help make the convention a success. Free entertainment will be given those from a distance.

A LADY MACCABEE TRIUMPH

Was the Play "Rebecca's Triumph" at Charlevoix Theater Friday Night.

Last Friday night a full house greeted the lady Maccabees at the Charlevoix Theater, when they presented "Rebecca's Triumph."

The players were well chosen for their respective parts, and showed evidence of skillful and painstaking training, as well as faithful work in the learning of the dialogue.

Mrs. Maggie Lampheare as Mrs. Roseman, played the "grande dame" to perfection and Mrs. Una Campbell was the personification of a motherly widow.

Mrs. Flavia Powers, as Meg, and Mrs. Anna Cartier, as Rebecca, the foundling, showed much ability as well as abundant effort to please in the characters assigned them.

Mrs. Ella Tillotson and Mrs. Lena Cram as Kate, the Irish maid and Gyp, the colored girl, respectively, were excellent comediennes, while Clarissa Codman, in the person of Mrs. Mabel Dishlow, was irresistable.

The young matrons composing the cooking club, made as pretty a lot of girls as one could wish to meet and all handled their parts in splendid shape.

The specialties were good, Mrs. Tillotson proving herself a song and dance artist irresistably funny. Little Dick Jarvis in blackface song and dance brought down the house, and was encored to the limit.

Altogether the event was a splendid success in every way for the lady Maccabees, the participants in the play and Mrs. Agnes Jarvis whose ability as drill mistress was so largely responsible for the excellent entertainment furnished.

Her Birthday Violets.

By NELL SPEED.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Jessie Morgan.

Naturally the new boarder had been seated beside the landlady's favorite, Miss Imogene Goldberg. Mrs. De Lancey firmly believed that Miss Goldberg's high blood pompadour and rhinestone dog collar lent eclat to her establishment.

But, oddly enough, June Williams, whose hair was parted demurely in the middle and who wore her grandmother's old fashioned locket under her plain pongee shirt waist, realized that the fine gray eyes of the new boarder were looking her way frequently and intently.

She tried to analyze her feelings with the salad, and when the coffee—such thick yet spiritless coffee—was served she decided that it was embarrassment and not a memory which stirred her whenever the gray eyes glanced her way.

Still at the conclusion of the meal she climbed three uncompromising flights of poorly carpeted stairs to her hall room and drew from her trunk her small but treasured box of photographs.

There they were; the father who had died the year of her graduation, the mother who had left her alone to fight the world only twelve months before, a couple of aunts who had forgotten her in the needs and pleasures of their own children, several teachers and three girls in her class at the high school.

But there was no picture with masculine eyes that could possibly have resembled the gray ones which had watched her gravely across the table in the dingy dining room.

"I am getting moody," she said to herself as she prepared for bed. "I must turn over a new leaf. Tomorrow is my birthday. I can't afford to turn sour and old maidish at twenty-one. When I go back to the office on Monday morning I'll be more pleasant and make friends with the other girls. I've been living too much in dreams of the past."

Yet when she fell asleep it was the dream again of the past. It was her birthday, the first party in celebration of that day which she could remember with any sort of distinctness.

She was dressed in pink tulle all spattered with paper stars, and there were pink candles on the birthday cake. No one knew why an ordinarily well behaved and mischievous child should do such a thing, but she suddenly decided to steal into the dining room and light the birthday cake before the "party came in."

The match sputtered and jumped. She tried to climb quickly from the chair, but the tiny flame was quicker still. In a flash the pretty pink tarlatan blazed up far above the candles, and then she forgot everything in her fright until she felt some one rolling her over and over on the carpet and battering her with his coat, and that had been Willie, the cavalier of her wee girlhood.

She remembered how her mother kissed Willie and cried over him, and he had "poohpoohed" with very red face and shuffling feet. Their adventure was handed down as one of the traditions of the town, but when she was twelve Willie went away to live with his Grandfather Grey in the far west.

Later they had gone to Mexico, and Jane had lost track of them, although never forgetting in her own hard struggle for a livelihood.

And Willie had big grey eyes, just like those of the new boarder. She woke with a start. Now she knew why this man had attracted her attention. Of course the world was full of men with gray eyes. There were not colors enough to go around. Some must be duplicated, and it was very silly of her to think about Willie any more. Doubtless he was married even now to some dusky senorita whose father owned valuable silver mines.

So she turned over and fell asleep again, not to awaken until some one tapped at her door and the maid, with new respect in her bearing, entered, carrying a huge purple box.

"This here package's for you, Miss Williams," she said, but nobling it as if loath to yield it to its rightful owner. "An' bein' as it's Sunday mornin' an' Miss De Lancey gone to church, I'll bring you a cup of coffee an' some toast up here."

For all the world loves a lover. And are not violets and lovers synonymous?

Jane sat up in bed and reached for the box.

"Never mind about the coffee. I've overslept, but I'll be down in a few minutes."

She was undoing the box with trembling fingers, and the maid, all unnoticed, lingered curiously. Out came a great bunch of California violets done up in the most approved fashion—purple fall, cord, tassel and all.

"For me? Impossible! And there is no card."

She turned to the lid of the box.

"Gabrielle."

The florist around the corner!

Oh, it had been a cruel mistake. No one in the great city knew it was her birthday, and none would care if they knew.

"Now, Jane Williams," she said as sternly as was possible with a mouth half full of hairpins, "right after breakfast you'll take that box back. It belongs to some other Miss Williams."

And it went back, the excited girl rushing right past the new boarder in her haste—and, yes, in her tiny heart an ache that the flowers were not meant for her.

"Gabrielle" spoke a most humorous dialect, and he did his little worst to make Jane understand that there had been no mistake. But Jane firmly refused to carry the flowers back with her, and, just to convince herself that she was satisfied with what she had done, she walked half an hour in the park, returning to find the box standing on her shabby bureau. Again she opened it, and this time an engraved card met her gaze. "Mr. Frederick W. Grey," and beneath was the pencilled legend: "Birthday wishes, and may I see you soon? I am waiting in the parlor now if you care to come down."

"Frederick W. Grey?"

That must be the red headed assistant bookkeeper who was "Freddy" to every one in the office save herself. She had never heard his last name. Of course she would see him and thank him, though she could not imagine how he had known about her birthday.

Tucking the lovely flowers into her belt and giving a few deft touches to tie and hair, she tripped down to the parlor.

But only the new boarder, he of the fine gray eyes, was there to greet her, and he certainly stood at attention as if waiting for her.

She held the card in her hand and looked about inquiringly.

"Jane—little Jane Williams—don't you know me?" demanded the new boarder.

Then suddenly something new and strange pulled at Jane's heartstrings and at memories long dead. Something new and wonderful bounded through her veins.

"Willie—little Willie," she almost sobbed. "Oh, if you'd tied the flowers with pink tarlatan I would have remembered!"

It took him so long to tell her all about it—of his wandering with his eccentric old grandfather from mining camp to mining camp, from Mexico to Peru and Chile, of fortune made and lost and found again and of how the grandfather, growing more and more bitter against the recreant husband of his only daughter, had insisted that the grandson have his name changed by the law from that of his father's family to his mother's.

Then followed the story of how he had gone back to the old town directly his grandfather had departed on the last long journey; how no one seemed to know where she had gone, and how he had finally traced her to Mrs. De Lancey's and had come there unannounced to make sure that he would be welcome—that she had not changed—and had not found some one else.

"Oh, Willie!" she sighed contentedly from a comfortable resting place on his shoulder. "Just as if there had ever been any one else since I lit the birthday candles!"

They had preempted the lady's cozy corner, and by that time Mrs. De Lancey had come back from church, donned her pink silk negligee and was staring at them accusingly from the center of the ugly red and green parlor.

But when you have fine gray eyes you generally have the courage to announce your intentions, and Frederick William Grey did it so effectively that Mrs. De Lancey wiped her tears on the flowing sleeve of her pink negligee and shook hands with them both; then, turning her back on the cozy corner, for once put to its legitimate use, she departed, murmuring: "Well, you never can tell what sort of girl will land a man. And her hair so plain and her face so pale too!"

When One Spends Money.

One would think that money would be saved in prosperous times when there is plenty of it about. But no; that is not the time when it is saved. It is then that it is spent. Everybody spends it—governments, railroads, corporations, capitalists, housekeepers, house builders, collectors. People expand their wants in such times and satisfy some of them, and then is when it is most of all impossible to live on anything a year. But after all the money has been spent a few times over and has come to be scarce and borrowing has come to be a serious matter and folks have much less to spend and no expectations then everybody groans and begins to save, not only trying desperately to squeeze back inside of the bounds of income, but to pay back what was spent in expectation of a time when saving would have become convenient. To most of us that time never comes. And yet there are things for which we spend more than we can afford, that really do justify our expenditures, so that after the money has been spent and we are pinched for the lack of it we would still rather have what it bought than have the money back.—Appleton's.

Napoleon at Dinner.

Napoleon was no epicure. He usually drank nothing but diluted chambertin and was no judge of wine. He liked plain dinners—boiled or roast chicken, mutton chops, grilled neck of mutton, haricot beans or lentils. His table manners were not very refined. He would use his finger in lieu of fork or spoon and would dip his bread in the sauce, the dish being then passed around to guests, who had to dispense with squeamishness. The bread had to be particularly good. He ate fast, quitting the table in twelve minutes and leaving Josephine and the company to take their time. When he dined alone he commonly took only eight or ten minutes. Indigestion was the natural consequence of this speed, and he had sometimes to stretch himself at full length on the carpet till the pain abated. He detested physic and professed to disbelieve in it, a subject of playful discussion with his doctors. Constant never knew him to be obliged to keep his bed a whole day. He was very sensitive to cold and had fires and warm beds all the year.

The Doctor—I well remember what a severe wrench it gave me to accept the theory of evolution. The Professor—Monkey wrench?—Chicago Tribune.

WHO IS A SOCIALIST?

Who is a Socialist? It is the man
Who strives to formulate or aid a plan
To better earth's conditions. It is he
Who, having ears to hear and eyes to see,
Is neither deaf nor blind when might, roughshod,
Treads down the privileges and rights which God
Means for all men—the privilege to toil,
To breathe pure air, to till the fertile soil;
The right to live, to love, to woo, to wed
And earn for hungry mouths their meed of bread.
The Socialist is he who claims no more
Than his own share from 'generous nature's store.
But that he asks, and asks, too, that no other
Shall claim the share of any weaker brother
And brand him beggar in his own domain
To glut a mad, inordinate lust for gain.
The Socialist is one who holds the best
Of all God's gifts is toil—the second, rest
He asks that all men learn the sweets of labor
And that no idler fatten on his neighbor;
That all men be allowed their share of leisure,
Nor thousands slave that one may seek his pleasure,
Who on the Golden Rule shall dare insist—
Behold in him the modern Socialist.

The above poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox needs this qualification: Socialism is not a patent plan or man devised scheme for a reform of society. Socialism is the next higher phase in civilization above capitalism if social evolution is not to be replaced by anarchy and chaos—civilization improved by going higher and higher in the scale. Barbarism, feudalism, capitalism—these stages of human progress have succeeded each other by natural development. Next comes Socialism, or Social Democracy, unless we turn society to the right about. Capitalism is built on the competitive principle. Socialism means the collective principle. As an indication that capitalism is already ceasing to be in benefit of mankind we see the effort of industry to move toward collective conditions. Mankind today largely produces collectively, but the ownership of industry is not collective; hence the distress of the working class.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Its Exaltation Is a Survival of the Doctrines of Mediævalism.

It is easy to see in the exaltation of the federal judiciary a survival of the old mediæval doctrine that the king can do no wrong. In fact, much the same attitude of mind which made monarchy possible may be seen in this country in our attitude toward the supreme court. As long as the people reverenced the king his irresponsible power rested on a secure foundation. To destroy the popular belief in his superior wisdom and virtue was to destroy the basis of his authority; hence all criticism of the king or his policy was regarded as an attack on the system itself and treated accordingly as a serious political crime. There are indications that popular faith in the infallibility of the supreme court has been much shaken in recent years.

It is but natural that the wealthy and influential classes who have been the chief beneficiaries of this system should have used every means at their command to exalt the supreme court and therefore secure general acquiescence in its assumption and exercise of legislative authority.—Professor J. Allen Smith, University of Washington.

Ruskin's View.

Neither the roads nor the railroads of any nation should belong to any private persons. All means of public transit should be provided at public expense, by public determination, where such means are needed, and the public should be its shareholder. Neither road nor railroad nor canal should ever pay dividends to anybody. They should pay their working expenses and no more. All dividends are simply a tax on the traveler and the goods levied by the persons to whom the road or canal belongs for the right of passing over his property, and this right should at once be purchased by the nation and the original cost of the roadway, be it of gravel, iron or adamant, at once defrayed by the nation, and then the whole work of the carriage of persons or goods done for ascertained prices by salaried officers, as the carriage of letters is done now.—John Ruskin, 1868.

Socialist Notes.

The poor make the rich rich, but the rich make the poor poor. An equal exchange is no robbery.

Those good people who belittle and repudiate this world are as reluctant to leave it as anybody.

Let the machinery do the work, but learn how to own the machinery, so you can get the benefit of what it does.

Business and its increase are not for the fellow who keeps busy. They are for the fellow who keeps him busy.

There is nothing wrong with the trusts—for those who own them—and when your national neighbors unite to own the trusts there will be nothing wrong with them to you.

By Another Name.

Jerome K. Jerome, the famous English author, unionist and lecturer, has turned Socialist. Jerome is out on a lecture tour, and the New York Times interviewed him. "I don't call my lectures Socialism," he said, "because people don't like the word, you know. But I manage to introduce the doctrine without their knowing what it is, and they always agree with me."

No Postoffice Bankruptcy.

And now that the panic times have come has any one heard of the failure of any postoffice? Have any of its employees received their salaries in scrip or unexchangeable checks or certificates? Has it refused to honor anywhere its money orders or required sixty days' notice before paying them? But then the public cannot do things.

A WORLD TO CONQUER.

Mission of Socialism Is to Win the Earth For Humanity.

The Socialist movement is as wide as the world, and its mission is to win the world, the whole world, from animalism and consecrate it to humanity.

What a tremendous task!

And what a royal privilege to share in it!

To win a world is worthy of a race of gods.

And in the winning men develop godlike attributes since all men are potential gods.

To the strained and vigilant eye of the Socialist on the watchtower all is well in point of outlook. Capitalism has had its day and carnage, and its crimson sun is slowly but surely sinking in the west.

What a madhouse the earth would seem today in the frenzied revelry of capitalism but for the light Socialistic philosophy sheds upon it—what Alpine peaks of wealth and what deserts of poverty, despair and death!

What man, unless his heart be adamant, can contemplate this awful scene and be content?

What man, unless his brain be atrophied and his vision blinded, can fail to perceive the impending crisis?

In the presence of this vast and terrible phenomenon, how satisfying to be enlisted in the Socialist movement, to understand its doubt dispelling social philosophy and to interpret passing events in the clear light of its science. —Eugene V. Debs.

HOUSE OF MAMMON.

Senate of the United States So Named by a Congressman.

"Fully 50 per cent of the members of the United States senate buy their way into that body."

This is the opening paragraph in an excellent interview with Congressman John A. M. Adair, who rises to excoriate the upper branch of the national congress as a house of Mammon. Nothing is said about a den of thieves. That is left to be inferred.

Mr. Adair proceeds in detail to make good his charge that half the members of the senate have their campaigns financed by the trusts and are in fact the creatures of these corporations and bound to do their bidding. Mr. Adair was not needed to impart this information, it being well known by all who have eyes to see and ears to hear, but it is well to have such a pointed and emphatic statement come from a member of congress itself. The charge is thus made direct—it leaves no room for doubt. Were it not true the senate would be prompt to relieve itself of such an imputation placed upon its honor by the member of a co-ordinate body.

What has the senate to say? What can it say? What dare it say?

The senate of the United States under capitalism is a house of dishonor. It is unclean. It has a rank smell.

It is in fact a buzzards' roost.

Socialism is marshaling the hosts that will disperse it.—Appeal to Reason.

A Philosopher's Socialism.

Unless men were disposed to co-operate, to lend each other mutual assistance, the talent and the time necessary to his own convenient maintenance would be wanting to every one, for all are not alike fit for every kind of work, and no one suffices to provide everything most indispensable even to himself.

The strength and the time, I say, would be wanting to him who alone and single handed should propose to plow, sow, reap, grind, bake, brew, weave, stitch, etc., too many things to mention, but which are all most necessary to the support of life. And I have said nothing of the arts and sciences, which are all indispensable for the improvement of mankind and for their comfort and well being.

We see those who live in a state of barbarism and without a polity passing miserable lives, but little raised in condition above the beasts of the field, and even they, wretched and unpolicied as they are, could not procure the few things they have without some kind of mutual assistance and co-operation.—Sphozn.

Jesus Led Revolution.

A remarkable sermon was preached recently, says the London Chronicle, at the City temple by the Rev. R. J. Campbell to an unusually large week day congregation from the text, "Now after that John was put in prison. Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God."

The keynote of his discourse was that John the Baptist was the forerunner of Jesus, not in the ordinarily accepted sense, but as the preacher of a social revolution.

It was no use, continued Mr. Campbell, saying that Jesus was not alive to the social wrong of his age, because he was, and it was this and the things he said and did which brought him to his death and accounted for the fear and hatred in which he was held by the respectable classes of his time.

Outlived His Usefulness.

There was a time when the capitalist did a useful service in organizing industry. That time is past; he has turned over to hired laborers every duty except that of drawing dividends, interests and rent. When the Socialist party comes into power it will relieve him of that duty and let him be a laborer like the rest of us, but he will be well off, for all the people will be well off. If every one worked four hours a day of useful work with the help of the best machinery, we should produce enough so that all could have as good food, clothing and shelter as those with large incomes have now.—Exchange.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition: beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's, Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Pengreave's Helping Hand.

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Homer Sprague.

Pengreave, coming slowly down the street, gave no heed to his surroundings. For twenty years he had been coming down the same street, sometimes a little earlier, sometimes very much later, but always he passed along with unseeing eyes, his thoughts fixed upon his business and his home.

At fifteen he had first turned into the side street from the main thoroughfare. Horse cars had run unevenly over the badly set rails, and flickering gas lamps had lighted all save the business streets. Now there were trolleys everywhere, and even the alleyways were lighted by electricity, but Richard Pengreave gave no heed to these changes.

It had been a good locality once. When Pengreave, in the glory of his first long trousers and his first "real" job, had sought a boarding place Mrs. Beldin's had been recommended as being in a "nice residential neighborhood."

It had been a well swept street then, lined with rows of three story brick houses and here and there a "brownstone front" to break the monotony. Now the homes had given way to five and six story tenements. Mud heaps and garbage barrels littered the unkempt pavement and the broken flagstones.

The Beldin house, too, had changed. Mrs. Beldin's daughter had assumed charge at her mother's death and had changed it to a furnished room house, declaring that the cares of a large kitchen weighed too heavily upon her. Then she married and had moved uptown, and some one else had taken over the shabby house, with its shabby furniture.

The change had annoyed Pengreave, and he had promptly purchased the place, for he was errand boy no longer, but the proprietor of a business. He had retained the first floor for his own use, and a real estate agent had rented the other floors. He handed Pengreave quarterly checks, and Pengreave worried no more.

"I SHALL HOLD YOU TO YOUR PROMISE!" SHE CRIED.

He was sure of a home, the only home he had known. He sat at his window in the summer evenings and looked across the square opposite and gave no heed to the children swarming in the street.

There had been few children when he had first come to Barrow street, and those were well dressed and orderly. Now the policeman on the beat had his hands full, and only Pengreave remained serene and unworried.

Once for nearly a year he had worried. It was when he was nineteen and he had fancied himself in love. But Lena had married a junk dealer on the corner below, and, after an unquiet month during which he drank seidles instead of the smaller glasses at the Bierhalle, Pengreave had recovered his placidity.

Since then it had pleased him to believe that his life had been wrecked, and so he kept Lena's faded photograph on the mantelpiece, and at times he took it down and sighed over it; also he avoided all feminine society.

At his uncle's death the latter's business had passed to him, and under his even administration it had grown greatly. He lunched at better places, and he also dined downtown. He bought a new suit of clothes whenever his old cashier discreetly hinted that one was needed.

The woman who acted as janitress for the house attended also to his rooms, and he found them always orderly. He asked nothing more.

But tonight a surprise waited for him at his very door. As he let himself in a voice from the darkness of the floor above roused him. It was a musical voice with the indefinable accent of good breeding, and it gave to the simple question the melody of a song.

"I am not the doctor," was his reply as he kept on up the stairs instead of turning into his own apartments on the first floor. "Is there need of a doctor?' Some one is ill?"

"Mrs. Brady," explained the voice. "She scalded her hand, and I sent a little girl for a doctor."

Pengreave turned up the tiny flicker of gas. The increased flame revealed a dainty feminine form in a simple tailored gown. Pengreave was conscious only that the girl was well dressed. It was the face that held him fascinated. The features were well cut and regular; the eyes were calm and unafraid and of a deep tender blue that moved Pengreave strangely.

"Where do you live?" he demanded. The girl smiled.

"I don't live here," she explained. "I am a visitor from the Helping Hand society."

Pengreave was puzzled.

"They need charity here?" he demanded. "I thought that was only with the very poor."

"These are the very poor," she said simply. "Don't you know?"

Pengreave shook his head in bewilderment. Twenty years he had lived there, and poverty had come to be his neighbor, but he did not know it.

"Had I known I should have given aid," he said quietly. "If there is need, come to me. The doctor—I will pay him. Send me his bill. I am sorry for Mrs—Mrs"—

"Brady," supplied the girl. "You are very good."

Then the physician hustled in, and Pengreave went downstairs to his rooms. In a little while there was a tapping at the door, and he opened it to discover the girl.

"Mrs. Brady asked me to thank you for your kindness," she said. "It pleased her so much that she almost forgot the hurt of her burn."

Pengreave smiled. He could not recall ever having been thanked before. He had never done anything to call for thanks because he did not know how.

"You must come again when you need help," he said warmly. "I am here always in the evenings. You have but to ask."

"I shall hold you to your promise," she said. "There is much good that you can do. We are so handicapped by lack of money, and there is so much that we want to do. You must see for yourself the misery about you. Good night."

She hurried down the hall, and Pengreave waited until the street door closed behind her before he shut his own.

He went back into the room, his head in a whirl. Dimly he was conscious that the street was not the same as it had been in his boyhood. The girl must be right. He was willing to see with her eyes, those eyes of the glorious blue.

Those eyes gave him much to think about. He was not yet forty, and more than half of his years had been given to the unwavering pursuit of business. True, there had been Lena, but now Pengreave knew how little Lena had really meant to him.

For the first time that he could remember he had met a woman of his own kind, and he felt the need of knowing more of the life he had missed. He remembered that he was still a comparatively young man, and those blue eyes had loosened something within his breast—his repressed boyhood, his unrealized need of the society of his fellows.

He was as one born again and, being born, saw the world in a new light. Methodically he removed the picture of Lena from its lawdry frame and tossed it upon the coals glowing in the open fire. He was rather well pleased with the reflection in the mirror above the mantel as he stood there.

"I must get some new clothes tomorrow," he said to the reflection; "also I must find a place where it is well to live, a house such as she will like. I, too, need a helping hand." And the reflection in the mirror smiled back at him. Now that Pengreave was awakened he knew it was well. The rest would follow in due course.

Camel Races.

Camel races are held regularly in the south of Algeria, where valuable prizes are offered for the encouragement of the breed of racers, and as much interest is taken in their preparation and performance as in that of race horses in this country. The racing camels are the result of very careful breeding through many generations, and in size, temper and appearance they are so different from the ordinary beast of burden that they might almost be considered a different race of animals.

Perhaps the most conspicuous characteristic of the ordinary camel is its extreme slowness. Nothing on earth will ever induce it to hurry. A twenty dollar note will buy a very fair specimen, but for a mehari, or racing camel, five or ten times that sum is required to effect a purchase.

The racer, however, can be depended on for nine or ten miles an hour kept up for sixteen or seventeen hours almost without a stop. The pace in a camel race is generally fast and furious at the beginning, when all the animals are together and seem to realize that a contest is in progress.

The Famous Basilisk.

According to the ancient writers, the basilisk—sometimes called cockatrice—was a monster to be greatly dreaded. Its breath filled the air with a deadly poison and burned up vegetation, and the glance of its eye was fatal to both man and beast. The only creature that could face it and live, they said, was the cock, and travelers were advised to take loud crowing cocks with them as a protection against the monster. So much for superstition. As a matter of fact the basilisk is a harmless lizard, living a quiet life in the woods and feeding on insects. Its appearance, however, is formidable, and it is this perhaps that gave it a bad name. It grows to a length of from twenty-five to thirty inches, including its tail, which is much longer than its body. Rising from its head and inclining backward is a broad, winglike expansion, which gives it some resemblance to the flying lizard. The crest of this expansion is formed somewhat like a crown, and that gave the basilisk its name, which is from the Greek word meaning "king."

received his education at Genesee college and was the valedictorian in the class of 1859. After graduation he attended the Garrett Biblical institute, where he took the degree of D. D. The Syracuse and Wesleyan universities conferred upon him the degree of LL. D. He studied law in Chicago in 1859, but never practiced the profession.

Pastor in Chicago Eleven Years.

For eleven years Dr. Fowler was a pastor in Chicago and from 1872 to 1876 was president of the Northwestern university. In 1876 he was appointed by the governor of Illinois a delegate to the centennial exposition at Philadelphia, where he delivered an oration, and the same year was chosen editor of the New York Christian Advocate.

For four years he acted as secretary for the missionary society of his church and in 1884 was elected a bishop. In 1888 Bishop Fowler toured Japan, Korea and China. He was the founder of the Pekin university and the Nankin university and organized the first M. E. church in St. Petersburg, Russia.

Missionary Work on Pacific Coast.

For eight years Bishop Fowler engaged in missionary work on the Pacific coast and organized the Machay College of Theology in southern California. He assisted in the founding of the Nebraska Wesleyan university at Lincoln.

Bishop Fowler in 1868 married Miss Myra A. Hitchcock, daughter of the Rev. Luke Hitchcock, of Chicago. Congressman Foss, of Chicago, recently introduced a bill in congress asking that body to confer a medal of honor upon the bishop for his work in connection with the saving of life from the wreck of the steamer Lady Elgin that occurred while he was at Northwestern university in 1860.

Makes Many Sensational Charges Against the Wealthy St. Louis Brewer.

St. Louis, Mo., March 20.—Mrs. William J. Lemp, Jr. has filed suit for divorce against the chief owner of one of the largest breweries in the world. In her petition Mrs. Lemp, who is a daughter of Alexander H. Handlan, 3700 Lindell boulevard, president of the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing company, and who is known in society as "The Lavender Lady" because of her fondness for dresses of that hue, makes many sensational charges against her husband.

She asks custody of their only child, William J. Lemp III., seven years old, who was the subject of habeas corpus proceedings instituted in the court of appeals recently by the father. Allowance of alimony also is asked. Mrs. Lemp states that her husband has property worth $1,500,000 and that his income is $50,000 yearly.

In the Interest of Labor.

Washington, March 21.—At the concluding session of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor it was decided to urge upon the house committee on labor the necessity for the passage of the pending bill creating a department of labor, the head of which shall be a member of the president's cabinet. It was decided to make a vigorous effort to secure the passage of laws by the various state legislatures for the abolition of child labor.

THE COURIER'S GRANGE COLUMN

The following from the Grand Rapids Herald, in regard to the initiative in Ohio will be of interest to our grange readers.

Not the initiative on constitutional amendments, as provided in the pending revised fundamental charter of Michigan, but the initiative and referendum on legislation—a matter not covered by our proposed constitution except that the legislature, at its option, can pass acts to take effect only when ratified by the people. The Buckeyes have not as yet secured these direct-legislation powers; but both the senate and house have by the required two-thirds vote provided for the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment granting them at the November election. Should the amendment be ratified, any law hereafter passed by the legislature must, on a petition of 5 per cent of the qualified voters, be submitted to the people for ratification or rejection; and any bill that the legislature fails to pass must be submitted to the people on petition therefor of 10 per cent of the voters. No bill can thus be forced before the people by the initiative until it has been refused passage by the legislature, a provision that will be conservative in its effect, by reducing to a minimum the occasions necessitating initiative petitions. For it will be rare, indeed, that a legislature will reject a measure asked by the people generally when its submission can be forced by a 10 per cent petition of voters.

MAKE THIS YOURSELF

Says Many Persons Here Can Be Made Happy Again.

Tells How Any One Can Prepare Simple Home-Made Mixture, Said to Overcome Rheumatism.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer.

Get from any good pharmacy one half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

FROM MARION.

Elmer Ingalls made a business trip to Traverse City Monday.

Sam Straw is home from Big Rapids, where he has been attending the Ferris school.

Miss Jennie Black, who was operated on for appendicitis, is still gaining as rapidly as could be expected.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Marion Center grange are planning for a warm sugar social at the grange hall Friday evening, April 3.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SPECIAL INSTITUTES

Will Be Held at Ellsworth, Ironton, Barnard and Marion.

Dairying and Sugar Beet Growing Topics to be Discussed by Speaker.

The superintendents of state farmers' institutes has planned a series of institutes to be held in this region. Next week four dates have been arranged for in this vicinity. Monday, March 30, at Ellsworth, afternoon and evening. Tuesday, March 31, morning and evening, at Ironton. Wednesday, April 1, afternoon, Barnard Grange hall, evening, Marion grange.

These institutes have been planned especially for the needs of this district. The topics to be discussed being dairying and sugar beet growing both of which are of vital importance to Charlevoix county. Everybody who is interested in the least in these industries should make it a point to attend and induce others to attend these meetings.

The state speaker will be H. B. Cannon, of Rochester, Mich., a man who is thoroughly qualified by experience to discuss these topics.

We hope that the farmers of Charlevoix county will shows by their attendance, their appreciation of the special effort being made by the state in their behalf.

It Does the Business.

Mr. E. E. Chamberlain of Chelon, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, "It does the business; I have used it for piles and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at F. G. Hines & Co.'s drug store.

Cowed the Gamblers.

Speaking of the action of a steamship captain who compelled three gamblers to return to fellow passengers the money which they had won on a trip across the Atlantic, a merchant who makes the ocean trip frequently said: "There are other ways than crying to the captain in such cases. Two years ago I was a passenger on a liner and sat in a game with some people who at first appeared to be all right. I lost and discovered that I was being done. I knew that a word to the captain would bring my money back, but I preferred to be my own champion. I wrote a note to the man who had made the largest winning from me and gave it to the smoking room steward to deliver. This was in the note: 'I am out. You will never be off unless you make good. Hand the bearer there 1 filled in the amount of my loss and 'll be even.' The crook knew I meant business and turned the amount over to the steward for me. No one was the wiser for my experience and the polite how with which the cad soon saluted me when we were ashore at Hoboken would have made any one think we were the best of friends."—New York Tribune.

Difficult Diet.

Henry Timrod, whom Richard Henry Stoddard called "the ablest poet that the south has yet produced," suffered severely in his fortunes in the destruction of Columbia, S. C., during the war. In his letters to his friend, the poet Hayne, says the author of "Representative Southern Poets," there is a grim humor in his description of his penniless condition. In one letter he writes:

"We have lived for a long period and are still living on the proceeds of the gradual sale of furniture and silver plate. We have, let me see, yes, we have already eaten two silver pitchers, one or two dozen silver forks, several sofas, innumerable chairs and a huge bedstead. As for supporting myself and large family, wife, mother, sister and nieces, by literary work, 'tis utterly preposterous. Little Jack Horner, who sung for his supper and got his plum cake, was a far more lucky minstrel than I am. To confess the truth, my dear Paul, I not only feel that I can write no more verse, but I am perfectly indifferent to the fate of what I have already composed. I would consign every line of it to eternal oblivion for $100 in hand."

Apple Well Preserved.

A man in Cape Coral, N. H., recently unearthed an apple in a perfect state of preservation while digging in his yard. It was sixty-four feet under ground and probably in some cask at time when was probably thrown away where the house was built several years ago.

REPUBLICAN CITY TICKET

A Strong Ticket is Named Headed by Mayor Armstrong.

COOPER IS RE-NOMINATED FOR CLERK

John Cook for Treasurer—No Opposition Except for Clerk.

The Ward Tickets are Composed of Winners, Who Will Add Strength to the City Ticket.

The republican convention held at the court room Thursday night was fairly well attended.

The caucus was called to order by W. E. Hampton, chairman of the republican city committee. F. J. Meech was chosen as chairman, A. L. Coulter secretary; A. A. Swinton, Lisle Shanahan and E. B. Ward tellers.

When nominations for mayor were called for Willard A. Smith, in a few words placed in nomination the name of Dr. R. B. Armstrong, who was unanimously nominated.

For clerk the name of Will E. Hampton was presented by A. L. Fitch. Andrew Ross performing a like service for Henry Cooper. A ballot was ordered resulting in a vote of Cooper 61, Hampton 40.

John Cook was nominated by acclamation for city treasurer.

A. L. Fitch was chosen in the same manner for chairman of the city committee.

FIRST WARD.

Andrew Ross was chairman of the first ward caucus; A. A. Swinton secretary. A. A. Swinton and F. J. Meech were nominated by acclamation for alderman and supervisor respectively. Percy Mirsa in the same manner for constable.

L. S. See, D. E. Meech and A. A. Swinton were elected delegates to the county convention. Harry Nichols and L. S. See members of the city committee.

SECOND WARD.

The second ward caucus was presided over by A. L. Coulter, C. L. Gonser secretary. A. L. Hanshew and E. A. Jefferies tellers.

George A. McCartney was the unanimous choice for alderman. Frank Hines was nominated for supervisor, receiving 23 votes to 8 for H. L. Iddings. John Dougherty was nominated for constable. A. L. Hanshew, A. L. Coulter, Lisle Shanahan and R. A. Emery were chosen as delegates to the county convention.

Lisle Shanahan and A. L. Hanshew city committeemen.

THIRD WARD.

The third ward caucus was presided over by Dr. R. B. Armstrong, L. E. Benton secretary. Wilbur A. Cline was nominated by acclamation for alderman. Richard Shapton for supervisor. Wright Ripley for constable.

W. J. Weikel, E. B. Ward and E. S. Stacks delegates to city convention.

L. E. Benton, R. B. Armstrong and Arthur Allcox members city committee.

Dr. R. B. Armstrong, who heads the ticket for mayor, needs no recomendation to the people of this city, during the time he has occupied the chair, he has shown that he possesses these qualities, which go to make up a successful head of municipalities, devotion to public duties, popularity and ability. He has been handicapped by a serious illness during the latter part of his team, but now with his election to another year, which is assured, his splendid plans for the betterment of his beloved city, can be brought to a successful conclusion.

Henry C. Cooper for clerk, showed by his victory over one of the most popular men in the city, Will E. Hanpton, that the people are satisfied with his administration of the office of clerk.

John Cook for treasurer is a power of strength, his ability as a vote getter, being demonstrated by the fact that no opposition to him was shown, either in the caucus, or in the ranks of the opposition.

In the wards, candidates for aldermen were named, who represent the progressive element of the city, and, with Mayor Armstrong, will make a strong council, especially if the propsaltion to abolish the Board of Public works carries.

Dr. A. A. Swinton, in the first, is recognized as one Charlevoix's most hustling business men, who would bring to the council the same abilities which have made him successful in his business career. He is familiar with the problems of government, with which the small cities of Michigan are confronted, his duties taking him to nearly all of them in the northern part of the state, and that knowledge would be of vast value to the city and his fellow councilmen. One of the heaviest taxpayers in the ward he would be careful in guarding its interests, and he has ample time to give to the duties of the position.

George A. McCartney, for alderman in the second, is in the prime of life, a hustler in whatever he undertakes. A firm believer in the principle, that a representative of the people should carry out their wishes, even if contrary to his own views, he would consult the wishes of his constituency and be in truth a representative of his ward. A member of the Typographical union since 1891, he should appeal to the laboring men of the ward particularly.

Wilbur A. Cline, in the third, is another one of Charlevoix's young men, who it is a pleasure to see take an active part in the affairs of the city, clean, able and progressive, he is the peer of the candidates named in the other wards. So far the only objection we have heard to his candidacy, is the fact that he is a church goer, but we don't believe that will be any detriment to a candidate for office in this city.

For supervisors careful and well qualified men were named as well as the candidates for constable.

NAMED THEIR TICKETS

Labor Party Name a Ticket in Each Ward Monday Night.

Simon M. Rose Their Choice for Mayor—No Candidate for Treasurer.

The labor party of Charlevoix held their caucus Monday night. The slate for the city officers going through without a hitch.

Simon M. Rose was chosen for mayor and Rollie L. Lewis for clerk, in each ward by acclamation. When it came to the office of treasurer, the popularity of the republican candidate, John Cook, was so impressed upon them, that the place on the ticket was left blank.

FIRST WARD.

Henry Sherman was chairman of the caucus, Rollie L. Lewis secretary. For alderman Dr. John B. Thielen was the unanimous choice, likewise Archie McNeil for supervisor and Grover Genlet for constable.

SECOND WARD.

Benj. Brown was chairman of the caucus in this ward, Karl Wardrop secretary.

Frank M. Glassford was chosen as the candidate for alderman, Charles Zeitler for supervisor, Silas J. Allcox for constable. All being named by acclamation.

THIRD WARD.

In this ward G. C. Geiken presided, while J. M. Saunders handled the pencil.

A surprise was sprung when Alderman Webster, who has made a good record as a member of the common council, was defeated for re-nomination by a vote of eleven to nine by G. C. Geiken. William H. Miller for supervisor, and Sam Hamilton for constable were unanimously chosen.

The COURIER has no desire to criticize the candidates of the labor party, all are good men, but we can see no reason why they should be chosen in preference to the splendid list of candidates who are on the republican list.

Notice to Electors.

To the electors of the second ward: I have accepted the nomination of the Republican party for alderman of my ward, and while I have no time for a personal campaign to solicit votes, I promise you that if elected I shall take all the time necessary to properly and thoroughly fulfill the duties of the office, in a manner for the best interest of the ward and of Charlevoix.

HINTS ON ROAD WORK

Office of Public Roads Tells How to Make and Maintain a Road.

Plow, Drag, Scraper, Road Grader. Split Log Drag, Tools Needed.

While American builders are as capable of constructing good roads as those of any country of the old world, they have not been as loyally supported as the men of those countries in maintaining the highways after completion, and the deplorable state of many hundred thousand miles of road is thus accounted for. County and township officials may at the outset stand the expense of having a road built, but they strenuously object when asked to provide funds to rebuild the road that has been allowed to go to ruin.

It is important that farmers learn of the benefits to be derived from good earth roads; that county boards be impressed with the need of a proper maintenance of the same, and that road builders and overseers learn how best to care for the roads in their charge.

The persistent and powerful enemies of earth roads are water and narrow tires, and the constant effort of the men in charge of the roads should be to guard against their destructive effects and remedy all damage as quickly as possible. The simple implements which have been found to be of greatest assistance in this work are the plow, the drag scraper, the wheel scraper, the road grader and the split log drag.

With a sandy soil and a subsoil of clay, or clay and gravel, deep plowing so as to raise and mix the clay with the surface soil and sand will prove beneficial. The combination forms a sand clay road at a trifling expense. On the other hand, if the road be entirely of sand a mistake will be made if it is plowed unless clay can be added. Such plowing would merely deepen the sand, and at the same time break up the small amount of hard surface material which may have formed. If the subsoil is clay and the surface scant in sand or gravel, plowing should not be resorted to, as it would result in a clay surface rather than one of sand or gravel. A road foreman must know not only what to plow and what not to plow, but how and when to plow. If the road is of the kind which according to the above instructions should be plowed over its whole width, the best method is to run the first furrow in the middle of the road and work out to the sides, thus forming a crown. Results from such plowing are greatest in the spring or early summer.

In ditches a plow can be used to good advantage, but should be followed by a scraper or grader. To make wide, deep ditches nothing better than the ordinary drag scraper has yet been devised. For hauls under 100 feet, or in making "fills" it is especially serviceable. It is a mistake, however to attempt to handle long haul material with this scraper, as the wheel scraper is better adapted to such work. For hauls of more than 800 feet a wagon should be used.

The machine most generally used in road work is the grader, or road machine. This machine is especially useful in smoothing and crowning the road and in opening ditches. A clay subsoil under a thin coating of soil should not be disturbed with a grader. It is also a mistake to use a grader indiscriminately and to pull material from ditches up on a sand clay road. Not infrequently turf, soil and silt from ditch banks are piled in the middle of the road in a ridge, making mudholes a certainty. It is important in using a grader to avoid building up the road too much at one time. A road gradually built up by frequent use of the grader will last better than if completed at one operation. The foreman frequently thinks his road must be high in the first instance. He piles up material from ten inches to a foot in depth only to learn, with the arrival of the first rain, that he has furnished the material for as many inches of mud. All material should be brought up in thin layers, each layer well puddled and firmly packed by roller or traffic before the next is added. A common mistake is to crown too high with the road machine on a narrow road.

The split log drag should be used to fill in ruts and smooth the road when not too badly washed. The drag possesses great merit and is so simple in construction and operation that every farmer should have one. A special article will be published later telling how to make use of the drag.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS

Summary in Regard to Their Purpose Make Up and Duties.

Published by the Common Council—How to Vote on the Question Monday.

Charlevoix, Mich., March 30, 1908.
To the Editor of the Charlevoix COURIER:

At the direction of the common council of the city I herewith hand you the following summary in regard to the purpose, make up and duties of the Board of Public Works with the request that you publish the same in order to give as accurate information as possible to all concerned with reference thereto in view of the fact that the question of whether the Board shall be continued or abolished is to be submitted at the coming city election.

The law relating to and governing the Board of Public Works will be found in chapter 33 of Act Number 215 of the Public Acts of 1895 as amended by Act Number 136 of the Public Acts of 1899.

The Board of Public Works consists of five members who must be freeholders and electors of the city and serve without compensation. It is to be non-partisan as near as may be, not more than three members to be appointed from one political party.

The term of office is five years. The Board is appointed by the Mayor by and with the consent of the Council, and are so appointed that one member retires every year.

The city clerk is ex-officio clerk of the Board.

To the Board of Public Works is committed the construction, management, supervision and control of

(1) The waterworks.

(2) The lighting plant.

(3) Sewers, sewerage and drainage system.

(4) Such other public improvements or works as the Common Council may by ordinance place under its management, supervision and control.

At the present time its duties are limited to the first three specifications, the Council not having extended its authority under the fourth specification. It also fixes the rates and prescribes regulations for water and lights and electric current, but in all things are subject to the direction of the Common Council, except that in construction or repairs where the expense does not exceed $200 they may proceed to do it without direction of the Council but all are audited by the Council and paid only after such audit.

It is also their duty to report at the proper time to the Council the estimates for the amount necessary in their judgment to be raised for the support of the various properties under their control for the ensuing year.

They are also empowered, subject to the approval of the Council, to employ all necessary officers, agents and workmen to operate, carry on and improve the works and duties entrusted to them.

The Board is also required to report to the Council from time to time concerning their doings.

Under the present arrangement the Council audits bills twice each month and the Board of Public Works presents its bill at these times.

The above is a brief summary of the law regarding the Board of Public Works.

In the matter of the vote on the proposition submitted to the electors at the coming election, the statute prescribes that the vote shall be by ballot and in the following language:

For the Board of Public Works—Yes [ ]

For the Board of Public Works—No [ ]

If you wish to retain and continue the Board of Public Works when voting place a cross in the brackets opposite the word "Yes." If you wish to abolish and do away with the Board of Public Works, put a cross in the bracket opposite the word "no."

City Attorney.

SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION

Charlevoix Masons Had a Very Successful Meeting—Grand Officers Present.

On Tuesday evening, March 26, a school of instruction was held at the Masonic hall by State Grand Lecturer Frank O. Gilbert, of Bay City, and Grand Master Chas E. Sweet, of Dowagiac. The meeting was a success in every particular and was much enjoyed by the large number of Masons who packed the hall almost to overflowing.

Boyne City Lodge was expected to be present and confer the first degree, but owing to the bad condition of the roads they were unable to get here. The third degree was exemplified by Charlevoix Lodge and they were complimented highly by the grand officers for the excellent manner in which the work was done. As is the case with all strangers, they were delighted with the beauties of Charlevoix and expressed a wish to spend some time here in the summer. Grand Master Sweet urged the fraternity to proceed with their new building as soon as possible and expressed a wish that he might lay the corner stone during his term of office.

The event was one that was much enjoyed and will be long remembered by the Masons of Charlevoix.

THE SALOONS ARE DOOMED

In Sunny Tennessee Says C. L. Peaslee in Letter to the Courier.

TEMPERANCE FORCES HARD AT WORK

A Visit to an Ice Factory—900 Ton of Ice Consumed Daily.

Memphis Now a City of Blossoms, as Well as a City of Shade Trees—A Very Beautiful City.

Memphis, Tenn., March 20, 1908.
Editor COURIER:

I will try once more to write you something of the sunny south, where we are. The thermometer ranges from 70 to 82 here these days. The peach, plum, pear and apple trees are in bloom and everything looks spring like. The weather is like summer weather in Charlevoix.

This is a city of blossoms now, as well as a city of shade trees. It is truly beautiful here now. I haven't been around as much as I would have liked to, because of the rainy weather we have had here this winter, but what I have been able to see of the city, it is a great business city; a city of great wealth; a city of great vice, estimated to have ten hundred and fifty saloons.

They say here "saloons must go." They are fighting the saloons and the liquor traffic hard here in the south. God hasten the day when there will not be a saloon in the United States. They are calculating now to have Tennessee free of saloons in 1909. Temperance people and churches are working together more than ever before and the W. C. T. U., which is a strong force here are all working together, shoulder to shoulder, and are making the saloon element tremble. I will not be surprised if Tennessee is numbered with the four other dry states in the south within the next year.

It would be quite a curiosity if some of our people in the north, could see the ice that is made here in the hottest weather. I suppose it would seem an impossibility, well it is a fact, and they make better ice than is cut out of the lakes and rivers in the north. The plant I was in makes about one hundred ton a day. There are six plants in the city with a capacity of nine hundred ton per day, and they can't meet the demand in the hottest weather. This may seem incredible to some, but it is what the clerk in the office told me. The cakes of ice are square as a brick, five feet long, eight inches thick and twenty inches or more wide and weigh four hundred pounds. They are made of pure water and are as clear as glass.

The trees are beginning to leave out very fast, so much of the city will soon be in the shade. We have been having the fine gale storm, but I guess it is over as it is clearing up this morning. While we have had rain, with heavy thunder, I suppose you have had snow.

We expect to be home the first of April.

Yours,
C. L. PEASLEE.

THOS. J. BROOKS

THOS. J. BROOKS

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 24, 1905.

Gentlemen:

Allow me to say a word endorsing the remarkable merits of your Rexall "93" Hair Tonic.

My attention was called to this remedy by one of your clerks, who guaranteed beyond question it would stop my hair falling out, and also put my scalp in healthy condition for new hair.

I hand you photograph before starting to use it, which shows me to be nearly bald. After using two bottles I saw decided improvement, so continued its use. I have used seven 50-cent bottles, and have a heavier suit of hair than I ever had in my life.

I also enclose photograph taken a few weeks ago, showing the wonderful results in a short time.

I take great pleasure in making this statement to you, gentlemen, endorsing your great Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, and will answer promptly all inquiries regarding it.

I am at present special agent of the Western and Southern Insurance Company, 21-22 Courier-Journal Office Building, this city.

Very respectfully,

Thos J Brooks

This is a remarkable case—an exception to the rule. We do not promise that "93" will grow hair on every bald head—but we do guarantee, because we know, that it will stop falling hair, cure dandruff, and give satisfaction to anyone needing a hair dressing. If it doesn't, bring back the bottle, and we'll refund the 50 cents you pay for it.

FIVE HUNDRED DEAD BY QUAKE

Two Cities and Three Villages in Mexico Are in Ruins.

SHOCK FELT OVER WIDE AREA

Between Two and Three Hundred People Killed in Chilapa Alone.

GREAT FISSURES IN STREETS

Troops Area on Guard and Perfect Order Prevails—Thirty-Four Shocks Recorded Inside of Twenty-Four Hours.

St. Louis, Mo., March 28.—A special cablegram to the Globe-Democrat from the City of Mexico says: Two cities and three villages completely destroyed and a number of villages and towns badly damaged is the result of the earthquake throughout the Mexican republic.

The cities destroyed are Chilpancingo and Chilapa. The villages are Concepcion, Tetillilla and Coatepec, each having a population of 1,000. Chilapa has a population of about 12,000, while Chilpancingo has 8,000. The greater part of Chilapa is burned.

Chilapa Dead May Be 300.

Estimates of the dead vary. It is known that between 200 and 300 persons lost their lives in Chilapa alone. At Chilpancingo, reports say, only a few lives were lost and that aid has been sent from there to Chilapa. In the villages so far as heard from there are only a few scattering dead. It is believed, however, that the death list will not exceed 500 throughout the republic.

In the City of Mexico 200 houses were shaken down, but no one was killed. A number of persons in the poorer quarters were badly injured. All day there have been slight shocks and the people are panic-stricken, many of them refusing to sleep in their homes. The news was brought to Chilpancingo by a runner. Government reports are minimizing, in so far as possible, news of the disaster.

Great Fissures in Streets.

Mexico City, March 28.—Details of the earthquake that destroyed Chilapa and other towns are coming in slowly. Great fissures were made in the streets and open fields. In the town of Coatepec the jail was destroyed and thirty prisoners made their escape. Troops guard the few public buildings still standing in Chilapa, but perfect order prevails.

Telegraph communication with Chilapa was severed by the earthquake and the town is two days by horseback from the nearest railway station. Couriers have been dispatched to Chilapa from Chilpancingo, forty-five miles distant.

Reports from various points in Mexico show that the earthquake was felt over a very wide area, but that in no place, with the possible exception of Chilapa, was there a considerable loss of life or property.

Thirty-Four Shocks Recorded.

Thirty-four shocks have been recorded during the past twenty-four hours by the seismograph at the national observatory at Tabuyuca. The greatest uneasiness prevails in Catholic circles here over the safety of the bishop of Guerrero, who has his headquarters at Chilapa. The church there is one of the oldest in the republic and it is feared the buildings of the monastery, which was badly damaged by the earthquake of April, 1907, have been razed in the present disaster.

Wheel Tax Is Upheld.

Chicago, March 28.—The validity of the wheel tax ordinance was upheld by Circuit Judge Carpenter in the suit for an injunction brought by the Harder Fireproof Storage and Van company to restrain the city from collecting the tax. Judge Carpenter sustained the demurrer of the city to the bill, and overruled the contention of the complainant that the ordinance was illegal on the ground that it attempted to levy a double or triple tax.

TWO WOMEN ARE BURNED TO DEATH

Fire in a Tenement House at Milford, Mass., Has Distressing Consequences.

Milford, Mass., March 28.—Two women were fatally burned, another received serious injuries, and two children were also seriously hurt in a fire which destroyed a tenement house at 60 Central street. Beyond the fact that the dead women were members of an Armenian family, their identity is unknown.

Many of the inmates were taken down ladders. In a room on the third floor the firemen found the two Armenian women, severely burned and half suffocated, shielding two small children from the flames by pressing them with their bodies into a corner of the room. The women died in the hospital ambulance, and the children are expected to succumb.

It is supposed that the fire started from the overturning of a lamp in the basement. It was said that a quarrel arose during a card party and during the excitement a lamp was upset.

BOY CONFESSES KILLING SISTER

Ten-Year-Old Michigan Lads Tells of the Distressing Affair After Lapse of Much Time.

Benton Harbor, Mich., March 27.—Opening his lips and breaking the silence which he had endured for eight months, Henry Orlaskey, a ten-year-old German boy, tearfully confessed to having fired the shot which killed his eight-year-old sister, Louise Orlaskey was shot accidentally July 26, 1907, dying the following day. She was playing in the yard of her home at the time with her young brother. Following the shooting the lad declared two unknown boys had fired the shot. For weeks officers hunted for the supposed guilty ones, but without success. One arrest was made, but the prisoner proved his alibi.

Investigation was resumed recently after a lapse of several months, and finally the boy confessed. He said that after the accident he induced his sister to promise not to tell who shot her. This promise the dying child honored despite every effort to make her explain the shooting.

LYNCHING POSSE CAPTURES A GIRL

Young Woman in Man's Attire Mistaken for Negro Murderer—Returned to Parents.

Pittsburg, March 27. — Catherine Rooks, twenty-three years old, was returned to her parents' home by the authorities of Lawrence county after a most exciting experience. Miss Rooks, while in man's attire, was chased by a sheriff's posse in Lawrence county which was in search of a negro who had fatally stabbed his wife. In the darkness the girl was mistaken for the much wanted negro, and she narrowly escaped lynching. Her voice saved her as she was about to be hoisted on a rope by the mob.

The girl, whose family is poor, has a brother sick in Chicago, and a few days since she got the idea that she might beat her way on freight trains to Chicago to help him had she but boy's attire. She had gotten as far as New Castle, where in the night she was mistaken for a negro and was captured after a lively chase.

WEATHER IN MICHIGAN

Two Varieties Prevail and Each Is the Very Worst Possible of Its Kind.

BLIZZARD IN THE NORTH HALF

Wind and Rain in the South—Blotting Students All Held — Sanatorium Gets $1,500,000.

Detroit, March 28.—A tornado near Jackson, in the southern part of the state, and a blizzard with heavy snow fall in the upper peninsula are the extremes of a general storm that has struck Michigan. The tornado did considerable damage to farm property around Blackman and Woodville, northwest and west of Jackson. Barns were split, windmills destroyed and orchards uprooted, but no loss of life has been reported.

Snow Driven in Big Drifts.

At Menominee, in the upper peninsula, a wind velocity of forty miles an hour is reported, driving the snow into huge drifts. Train and trolley service are seriously delayed in upper Michigan. Heavy rain and wind is reported from all parts of the state and telephone and telegraph communication is seriously interrupted.

Storm Overturns a Locomotive.

Near Battle Creek the southbound Michigan Central passenger train on the Goshen branch was wrecked by the overturning of the locomotive four miles south of Battle Creek when the train struck a bed of sand that had been washed over the track to the depth of a foot. The coaches remained on the track and the engine crew saved themselves by jumping. The passengers sustained a severe shaking up, but none were injured. They were returned to Battle Creek by another train.

Hit by Lightning in His Cab.

Near Jackson, Ben Huehnle, a freight fireman on the Grand Rapids division of the Michigan Central, was rendered unconscious in his cab, supposedly by a stroke of lightning. He was taken to a hospital in Jackson.

Chicago Milk Drivers to Strike.

Chicago, March 27.—By a practically unanimous vote the milk wagon drivers decided to strike to enforce their demands for a wage increase. The compromise offered by the milk dealers of a guarantee of $17 a week to men now receiving $15 and $16 was rejected by a vote of 942 to 81. The majority favoring a strike was even larger, as one out of the ballot showed 987 for and 67 against.

Cyclist Killed by a Car.

Chicago, March 27.—The bicycle of John Snyder, twenty-six years old, 2733 Archer avenue, swerved into the path of an Indiana street car at Oakley and Grand avenues, while he was riding to work, and he was run down and instantly killed. Snyder was caught in the rear trucks and it was necessary to raise the car to extricate the body.

BANDITS AWED WITH AIR RIFLE

Former Chicago Policeman, Lightly Armed, Makes a Capture.

PRISONERS HAD HELD UP MAN

More About the Trio Who Created a Reign of Terror While Riding in Cab.

Death of a Man at Chicago Believed To Be One of the Gang Which Robbed the Bank at Chrisman, Ill.

Chicago, March 27.—Armed with an air rifle, which might possibly have killed a sparrow or a mouse, William Kleinman, a former member of the Chicago police force, captured two highwaymen after an exciting chase. The prisoners, Michael Bendik, twenty-two years old, and Daniel Bobo, twenty-seven years old, both living at 10722 Torrence avenue, are said to have held up and robbed Barough Krane of $20. They ran and Krane's shouts were heard by Kleinman, who lives at 1201 Muskegon avenue.

The ex-policeman seized an air rifle and joined in the chase. The robbers fired repeatedly at Kleinman and Krane, and only surrendered when their revolvers were empty. With the air rifle menacing them, they put up their hands and awaited the arrival of the blue wagon.

Lay More Crimes to Gang.

While the police are hunting for Robert O'Brien, who, they believe, was one of three young thugs who caused a reign of terror Thursday morning, many reports are received of the operations of the gang which ended in the death of James Kane.

Gottfried Kriegels, thirty-eight years old, 625 May street, notified the Chinatown street police that he was beaten into insensibility and robbed of $18 and his watch by three men who jumped out of a cab and attacked him at West Eighteenth and Johnson streets.

The police believe that Kane; John Simmons, who is under arrest at the Harrison street station, and O'Brien committed this crime, with others previously reported.

Is Attacked by the Men.

"When I reached Eighteenth and Johnson streets," Kreige's told the police, "I saw a cab standing at the corner. The man on the seat called to two other men inside, and then all three jumped to the pavement. They surrounded me and told me to hold up my hands.

"I refused and started to run, but one of the men tripped me and I fell. The men kicked me in the face a number of times, and then two of them searched my clothes while the third man held me down. I saw the men get in the cab and hurry away."

Kriegel's description of the men, the police say, tallies with that of Kane, O'Brien and Simmons.

Man May Be Bank Robber.

The detective bureau received a telegram from Sheriff H. H. Winn, of Paris, Ill., stating that the president of the State Bank of Chrisman, Ill., is on his way to Chicago to attempt to identify Albert Miller, alias "Broughton" or "Houghton," who died in the Englewood Union hospital from a bullet wound. Miller is believed to have been one of three men who made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the bank at Chrisman on Wednesday morning, and that he may have been struck by one of the bullets fired by a watchman, who discovered them.

College Professor Attacked.

Professor Raymond Burnham, head of the mechanical engineering department of Armour Institute, was waylaid, beaten unconscious and robbed early in the day by two daring highwaymen at Lake avenue and Forty-Seventh street. With one eye dangerously injured and other wounds about his head, Professor Burnham was left dazed on the sidewalk. He recovered sufficiently to reach his home before any police officer passed.

Professor Burnham is a son of S. W. Burnham, the noted astronomer of the Yerkes observatory, and formerly clerk of the United States circuit court.

Misses Wade Declared Sane.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 27.—In a decision rendered Judge Houser of the superior court declared that the Misses Margaret and Anna Wade, heirs to a considerable estate in Chicago, were competent to manage their affairs and declined to appoint a commission to examine into their sanity. The Misses Wade have been under the guardianship of Dr. J. M. Holden, of Long Beach, who opposed the petition of Chicago relatives to have the women restored to competency.

Robbers in Illinois Postoffice.

Danville, Ill., March 27.—Robbers entered the postoffice of Westfield, Ill., during the night, blew the safe, obtained $150 and escaped before a posse, organized by the night operator of the telephone exchange, who heard the two explosions, could surround them. It is reported that the same men robbed the postoffice at Marshall, Ill., in the same manner. The Westfield postoffice was badly wrecked.

KEEPING FRESH EGGS.

How They Can Be Preserved in Good Condition For Months.

It may be news to many housewives that at the cost of only a cent a dozen, plus a little time and trouble, they can keep fresh eggs for several months and still have them come up to the strictly fresh standard, says the Washington Post. The spoiling of eggs is declared by scientific men to be due to the entrance of air, carrying germs of decomposition through the shells. Normally an eggshell has a coating of mucilaginous matter, not perceptible to the touch, but quite sufficient to make the shell air tight.

This coating will keep out germs for quite awhile, especially if the egg is carefully handled. But it is sure to become softened in time, either by washing or by friction with a case or with other eggs. Then the germ laden air gets in and the eggs begin to spoil.

This explains why eggs packed in lime or salt or placed in cold storage are very far from being fresh when they come on the market. According to experiments made at the government station in North Dakota, there really is one method of keeping fresh eggs which does preserve their freshness.

By this method eggs which were packed in August were opened three and one-half months later and "still appeared to be perfectly fresh." In most packed eggs after a little time the yolk settles to one side, and the egg is then inferior in quality. But in these three months' old eggs the yolk was in its normal position, and "in taste they were not to be distinguished from fresh, unpacked eggs."

This is worth knowing, if it is true. And there are other reports to the same effect. German experimenters tried twenty methods of preserving eggs. The three which were found most satisfactory were coating them with vaseline, preserving them in lime-water and preserving them in water glass. The vaseline was tedious, and the lime-water gave the eggs a disagreeable odor and taste.

So that of all the twenty methods employed the use of water glass seemed to be the best. There is one test of packed eggs with which most cooks are familiar. Such eggs do not beat up well for cake-making or for frosting. By this test the eggs kept in water glass solution seemed quite equal to the average fresh eggs of the market.

Water glass is a cheap product that should not cost more than 50 cents a gallon. One gallon would make enough solution to preserve fifty dozen eggs, so that the cost would be only a cent a dozen.

Water glass is a sodium or potassium silicate. To make the solution use ten quarts of pure water that has been thoroughly boiled and then cooled. Add one quart of water glass to the ten quarts of water.

How to Make Chop Suey.

To make chop suey to serve four persons you will require one pound of young clean pork cut into small pieces, two chicken livers and gizzards, one-half an ounce of green root ginger, two stalks of celery, four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one tablespoonful of vinegar, one-half cupful of boiling water, one teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt, red and black pepper to taste, a dash of cloves and cinnamon, a small can of mushrooms and one-half cupful of either bean sprouts, string beans, chopped fine, or French green peas. Saute the pork, chicken giblets, celery and ginger in a frying pan over a hot fire. Then add the olive oil, vinegar, water and seasoning. When nearly done, put in the mushrooms and sprouts or other vegetables. Serve with brown Soo Yu sauce that can be obtained at any Chinese grocery. The bean sprouts, too, must be purchased in Chinatown, though string beans or peas make fairly good substitutes.

How to Make a Button Bag.

Take a round piece of figured silk or silkoline eighteen inches in diameter, cut plain sateen the same size for lining, then sew nearly around on the wrong side, fastening in at intervals a dozen brass rings about three-fourths of an inch in diameter, turn right side out, finish sewing, spread on table, draw ribbon through the rings and draw up. The bag now is ready to hold the loose buttons cut from worn-out garments as well as those on cards, and by spreading the bag out flat on the table the desired buttons can be found easily and quickly.

How to Make Pies Brown.

Even when the oven is quite right and the pastry has been made moderately rich a woman will feel dissatisfied at the appearance of a pie because she misses the rich brown gloss that she has seen on pastry made by practical cooks. To obtain this gloss she needs a wrinkle. It is produced by egg wash. An egg is beaten up with a little sugar, and a small quantity of milk is added. With this wash the pie is brushed over after the pastry has been finished.

How to Clean a Bean Pot.

Instead of scraping and scouring an earthen pot in which beans have been baked put in one teaspoonful of baking soda and fill up with cold water. Cover well, so it can steam off all the black that adheres to the edges of the pot. Leave in the oven two hours or more. Your bean pot will be cleansed as if by magic.

How to Wash Ribbon.

The most satisfactory way to wash ribbon is to put it in a basin of warm water and rub it well with white soap, then wash as you would anything else. While wet iron it on the right side, and when dry rub it as if washing it until all of the stiffness has left it, then iron out the wrinkles. Washed in this way it will look like new ribbon.

SHAKE IT IN A BOTTLE

Noted Authority Gives a Simple Prescription.

Tells the Readers of This Paper How to Prepare the Mixture at Home and Other Advice.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounces Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sight of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

Dated Charlevoix, March 18, 1908.

THE republican county convention, which assembles in this city next Wednesday, for the purpose of electing delegates to the district and state conventions, is of greater importance than might appear on the surface, and every delegate should make it a point to be present. Not only does its importance lay in the purpose for which it is called, the selection of the men who will help to name the men who shall cast the vote of the State of Michigan, and of the eleventh district, for the people's choice, William H. Taft, for the republican nomination for president of the United States, but the district convention will afford an opportunity for the members of the party to consult together over the congressional situation in this district. Charlevoix county should send a strong delegation who will let it be known in no uncertain terms, that Charlevoix county is for George Covell.

For delegate to the national convention the name of Henry Hull, of Traverse City, will be presented as the choice of the northern counties and the COURIER heartily endorses his name.

From the southern portion the names of Judge Brown, of Big Rapids, and Mayor King, of Alma, will come before the convention. The COURIER'S choice is Mr. King. We know him to be a man of public spirit, a man of broad views, a business man who would fittingly and well represent this district.

GENERAL TOLL IS DEAD

Petoskey's Grand Old Man—Had Well Filled Many Official Positions.

General Isaac DeGraaf Toll, of Petoskey, died Friday morning, March 28, of pneumonia. While he had been confined to the house by the inclement weather of the past two months, his sudden death was unexpected.

General Toll was born in Glenville, New York, on the first day of December, 1818, and was therefore more than ninety years of age, yet was his eye bright, his intellect clear and vigorous, "neither were his natural forces abated." He was one of those men to whom everyone naturally turned for advice and help, and he was never known to fail in an emergency, for his judgment was of the highest and safest order, and he was well equipped for the emergencies of life, everyone turned to him at such times.

General Toll has filled every office, and conscientiously performed the duties thereof, from supervisor to state senator, and was always found a valuable manager. He was an efficient soldier and officer in the struggle of his nation with Mexico, and was rapidly promoted, after distinguished service, in which he was a number of times wounded.

At one time General Toll was examiner of patents at Washington, a position for which he was peculiarly fitted by his knowledge of inventions, and was offered many other places which he declined owing to press of business.

He was an intimate friend of Abraham Lincoln, and General Lewis Cass who deemed it an honor to count among their friends and advisors such a man as General Toll.

The funeral was held Monday at the Episcopal church, Rev. J. W. Bedford Jones officiating, the G. A. R. acting as an escort.

The Jumping Off Place.

"Consumption had me on its grasp; and I had almost reached the jumping off place when I was advised to try Dr King's New Discovery; and I want to say right now, it saved my life. Improvement began with the first bottle, and after taking one dozen bottles I was a well and happy man again," says George Moore, of Grimesland, N. C. As a remedy for coughs and colds and healer of weak, sore lungs and for preventing pneumonia New Discovery is supreme. 50c and $1 00 at F. G. Hines & Co's druggists. Trial bottle free.

A Correction

By an oversight last week we omitted mention of the excellent work done by a party of little girls at the Maccabee entertainment and the whistling of Mrs. Laycox was also omitted. Where so much that is really pleasurable is crowded into a brief evening's entertainment it is not surprising that some one should be overlooked in a write-up. The girls did especially well in their song and showed the results of much drill and effort.

To Cut Glass.

To cut letters out of glass is not so difficult an operation as the amateur glazier may be led to think. To conduct it successfully first with a little paint mark out the shape of the letters upon the sheet of glass; then heat a piece of thin iron wire until red hot and with it draw over all the outlines of the letters. The concluding item, should the glass letters not immediately separate themselves from their surroundings, is to carefully dip the sheet in a wide bath of cold water. The letters will then detach themselves without splintering.—Exchange.

TOLD BY A STUDENT

The Recent Riot at the Five Cent Theater at Ann Arbor.

Our Special Correspondent Writes Us of the Affair From a Student's Standpoint.

People ot large are very apt to gain a false impression of an affair of this kind and lay the blame to heavily on one side on the other. Let it be understood that the writer is not in favor of the actions of the students neither does he sanction the attitude of the proprietor towards the students. It was this attitude that led to the destruction of the theater.

Mr. Reynolds seems to have judged the students wrongly. He seemed to have expected trouble before it arose and had several specials in his building at all times. The students have been in the habit of going to the five-cent shows on Friday and Saturday evenings and on account of their number the little show houses are oftimes filled to overflowing. Where there are so many young men together, there is apt to be more or less jesting and laughter. This Mr. Reynolds seems to have taken as disorderly conduct and tried to treat it as such. He made almost insulting speeches before his audience, about being prepared to protect the ladies and upper classmen. He instructed his specials to light right into the first student who committed any offense. In this way he held a club over every student who entered his theater, so to speak and this was greatly resented. The specials he employed were anything but policemen. They probably only meant to preserve order, but like many other well meaning persons their knowledge of how to preserve order showed them wholly unfit for their positions. Because a student waved his hand to a girl in a moving picture he was chucked to the back of the neck and ordered to leave the place. He left. Many such little things occurred and gradually made the specials necessary. The feeling of resentment, in fact, grew faster than did Mr. Reynold's police force and the results were far from good. On Saturday evening one student was ordered out and while leaving had some words with Mr. Reynolds which resulted in the later being slapped. A special, standing there, clubbed the student inflicting a scalp wound. From that on things were in open warfare.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. BOMB THROWN IN NEW YORK RIOT

Ten Thousand Unemployed People Battle With the Police.

THEN ANARCHIST HURLS BOMB

Scene of the Wildest Excitement Follows the Terrific Explosion.

Two Men Are Left Dead on the Side Walk and the Man Who Threw the Bomb Is Horribly Mutilated.

New York, March 28.—Two men were killed in a battle with police. Ten thousand men and women gathered in Union square for a demonstration of the unemployed. The men were killed by a bomb thrown into the crowd by one of the demonstrators.

Immediately the wildest panic ensued and the people rushed in every direction. Many women were in the crowd, and these were trampled upon. The tragedy was enacted in Union square, and many of those hurt were standing on the curb watching the conflict.

Arrests are being made by the wholesale. All the police reserves are out, and the most elaborate precautions taken to prevent further disorder.

Carry Anarchist Banners.

A great crowd had gathered in the square, many carrying anarchist banners and wearing red hats. The police, 150 strong, rushed to the place to prevent disorder.

Conditions becoming more threatening, more mounted police were called. As they arrived the crowd began singing the "Marseillaise" under the leadership of several women.

In a moment all in the crowd had taken up the air, and the volume of song drowned out every other sound.

All this time the crowd appeared to be good natured and made little real resistance to the police efforts to force them back from the square.

The throng began to move away in different directions, to the sidewalks and to the side streets, and gradually the song died out. From time to time jeering, singing crowds would defy the police, only to break away and run for safety when the officers turned upon them. Within a few minutes the square was practically cleared, and it was believed the danger was passed.

Then Comes Bomb.

In a few moments, however, the crowd came back stronger than ever. As the mounted police thundered down upon the agitators there suddenly came a resounding crash, and the agitators made a mad effort to escape, turning in all directions.

A bomb had been hurled by a member of the new crowd of agitators which rushed into the square.

The crowd fled in the wildest terror and police came rushing to the scene from all directions. Many were left lying on the sidewalk. Two were found dead by the police.

The police arrested Selig Silverstein, thirty years old, of Brooklyn, and say he threw the bomb. He was prominent in the second crowd which rushed into the square. Two detectives say they saw him throw the missile.

Silverstein's right hand was blown off by the crush and one leg was almost severed from the body. He was found unconscious and bleeding on the sidewalk and was rushed to Bellevue hospital in a dying condition. The attendants say he can not recover.

Prison for Toledo Lumbermen.

Toledo, O., March 28.—The circuit court has affirmed the decision of the lower court in the cases of the twenty lumbermen of Toledo who last July were sentenced to the workhouse for six months under the Valentine anti-trust law. The supreme court having decided in the ice trust cases that imprisonment must be in the county jail instead of the workhouse, the lumbermen were sent to the lower court for resentence. The lumbermen include wealthy and prominent citizens of Toledo.

No Divorce for Vanderbilts.

New York, March 28.—Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt gave out a lengthy interview in which she absolutely denied she had taken any steps to obtain a divorce or was contemplating any such steps. But in much that she said, as well as in her manner, there was every indication that her husband and she have chosen separate paths. She said she was going abroad.

Mrs. Roosevelt at Vicksburg.

Vicksburg, Miss., March 28.—Mrs. Roosevelt and party arrived over the Alabama and Vicksburg railroad and at once started for a drive in the national military park. The Mayflower is expected to leave with the party for New Orleans during the afternoon.

General Horne Acquitted.

Kansas City, March 27.—General Richard C. Horne was acquitted of murdering H. J. Groves, managing editor of the Kansas City Post, by a jury in the criminal court here. The verdict stated that General Horne was insane when he shot Groves and has not fully recovered, and commits him to an asylum.

EDUCATION TRAIN TO START

Will Travel from Town to Town and Hold Farmers' Institutes on Board.

Lansing, Mich., March 28. — The state board of agriculture has obtained the co-operation of the Pere Marquette railroad for a series of farmers' institutes to be held in a special train furnished by the railroad company. The train will consist of two passenger coaches in which the meetings will be held and two baggage cars for the exhibits.

Lectures will be given on dairying, corn growing, fertilizers, fruit culture, poultry raising, etc., and the exhibits will include a milk tester, seed corn tester, samples of forage crops, coops of several breeds of poultry, incubators, spray pumps, samples of pruning, budding, grafting and of various insects and diseases of fruits. The train will stop for one hour at each point on the schedule.

Student Rioters Are All Held.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 28.—The justice court examinations of the University of Michigan students charged with rioting at the Star theater came to a sudden conclusion when the students who had not yet had their examination waived this formality in justice court and were held to the circuit court under $1,000 bail each which was supplied. The fifteen cases will come up for trial at the May term of the circuit court. Prosecutor Sawyer declared he would demand that all be students be held to the circuit court—that is, all students who remained in the crowd after it had been ordered to disperse.

Big Bequest for a Sanatorium.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 28. — Charles E. Wood, a Washington millionaire who died recently, left nearly $1,500,000 to the Battle Creek sanatorium on the condition that a branch be built at Atlantic City, N. J. Dr. John H. Kellogg, head of the sanitorium, having recently been expelled from the Adventist church, which had supported the institution, says the bequest makes the hospital independent. He had not expected the bequest to be more than $200,000.

Cadidates Come to Blows.

Bay City, Mich., March 28. — A fist fight between Under-Sheriff James P. Warfield and Court Officer Henry Cornell in the circuit court was averted only by the intervention of the janitor and a citizen, after Cornell had received a blow in the face. The two men are candidates for sheriff.

His Bath Didn't Save Him.

Plymouth, Mich., March 28.—Deputy Sheriff Vandecar detected three men in the act of breaking into a freight car. One of the men swam across the river. Vandecar was joined by several citizens and after a long pursuit the men were corralled.

Found Dying in a Barn.

Jackson, Mich., March 28. — A man giving the name of George H. Rogers died in the city hospital. He was found in the barn of William Cahoon, ill with pneumonia. It is believed he has a wife in Detroit.

Reform Wave at South Bend, Ind.

South Bend, Ind., March 28.—Forced to action by a committee of fifty prominent citizens, the common council ordered all questionable places, including gambling houses and alley saloons, closed immediately. During the last year South Bend has been the most wide-open city in Indiana.

General Greely Is Retired.

Washington, March 28.—Major General A. W. Greely of Arctic fame, having reached the age of sixty-four years, has been transferred to the retired list. He was recently relieved of command of the department of the lakes at Chicago and is now travelling in the Orient on leave of absence.

Home for Needy Miners Assured.

Des Moines, Ia., March 28.—A home for aged and needy Iowa coal miners probably will be established this year, and Des Moines is the most probable location for the institution. When the question is resubmitted this year the project probably will be carried by a large majority.

Pastor Wages His Salary Cut.

Boston, March 28.—Rev. Frederick B. Fisher, pastor of the Temple Street Methodist Episcopal church, has created a stir in the church world by sending a letter to his congregation asking that his salary be reduced from $5,200 to $1,200 a year.

Meat Shipped Back to America.

London, March 27.—Two million pounds of tinned meat, valued at $100,000, have been reshipped to New York from London during the last few weeks as a result of the scarcity of meat in America. As a consequence of the recent financial crisis, American farmers who were unable to effect loans placed their cattle on the markets instead of stall feeding them, with the result that the price of meat fell while its consumption increased.

Iowa's Delegates for Bryan.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 27.—William Jennings Bryan will receive the vote of Iowa's twenty-six delegates to the Democratic national convention. When the district delegates were indorsed and the delegates at large selected by the state convention they were bound by ironclad instructions to aid the Nebraskan's candidacy. The following delegates at large were elected: Claude R. Porter, J. H. Sullivan, C. F. Duncombe, E. G. Dunn.

TOLD BY A STUDENT

The Recent Riot at the Five Cent Theater at Ann Arbor.

Our Special Correspondent Writes Us of the Affair From a Student's Standpoint.

Monday night a crowd of students walked the street calling, "All out for the Star Theater," and their calls were answered by students from nearly every house. Down they swarmed until fully two thousand stood in the street in front of the theater. The city policemen soon made their appearance and many citizens were swarming for the evening. Some stones and bricks were thrown, that mostly eggs. The police did succeed in making eighteen arrests and landing their men in jail, but most of the arrests were frustrated by the crowd. A policeman would rush in and grab some one whom he saw, or thought he saw, throw something and other policemen would come to his assistance. He would succeed in hanging onto the offender about two minutes or less, then he would be torn away and lost in the crowd. All the policemen lost their hats, the boys taking them for souvenirs. In one instance the officer gave hot pursuit but failed to regain his helmet. Everybody laughed including the officer. A student then offered the officer his lid, which was accepted, and the crowd gave nine rahs for (the officer) Billy.

Suddenly around the corner swept one of the fire department's teams with the hose wagon. The firemen quickly laid three lengths of hose and attached one end to a hydrant. This was hardly completed before the three lengths lay uncoupled on the ground. The nozzel was then brought to the other end of the first length and water was turned on. The crowd scattered in a second and several young ladies were the only ones who got wet. Then the hose broke, drenching the firemen. That stunt was given up and the company retired. Gradually the great crowd pressed in on the theater and although the chief of police, with assistants guarded the entrance, they were brushed aside and the place demolished. This was wrong. There is no two ways about it and nine-tenths of the students, I believe will agree with my statement. But if they knew it was wrong, why did they do it may be asked and this is my explanation. It was a large unorganized body, they were angry because of the treatment received and as a whole showed the same characteristics of all large unorganized bodies of men or women. They did things, as a body, which probably none would have done alone, even though able to do so. In this instance the proprietor was not to be had, therefore, there seemed nothing to do but attack what was left, his theater.

This same almost uncontrolable trait is in evidence everywhere. It sends whole armies to battle almost as a single man and even at great revivals it sends hundreds in convertion. The difference in the two cases is that one means distruction and the other accomplishes good.

Please do not take this as an excuse for the wrong done, it is not meant for such. It is hard indeed to find an excuse for the destruction of property and I will not attempt it. It is done, and at the present time eighteen of the two thousand students are being held to account for the loss of property, etc. The total loss is probably nearly fifteen hundred dollars. What the law will say in regard to the arrested students will be shown later. Those eighteen students, however, will probably not average up a bit worse than any eighteen taken at random from the crowd, but their position throws them in a very bad light before the faculty as well as the law.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address:

Wilson Grange No. 719.

Wilson grange No. 719 met Saturday, March 28. Number present 32, visitors none. Secretary reports one application for membership, this being the tenth application received this quarter. Business session developed nothing further of importance.

Lecturer's program:

Recitation, Ethel Brintnall.

Reading, Harry Batterbee.

Reading, Robert Shephard.

Reading, Josephine Warden.

Discussion on the following questions were developed by the question box.

No. 1.—How much worse is the man who frequents saloons, than the woman who spends her time reading yellow backed novels?

No. 2.—How much worse is it for northern Michigan farmers to patronize mail order houses, than for local business men to use outside prices on perishable farm produce, as a lash to compel us to sell such produce at a loss?

No. 3.—Which is worth most to the farmer, the R. F. D. or the telephone?

Other questions were asked but not freely discussed. Strangely enough, the discussion on question No. 1 disclosed the fact that there were no offenders of the kinds mentioned on Wilson grange membership list.

Question No. 2 proved to be a very live one and the debate covered the whole field of mail order buying.

Some of the points developed were as follows:

The local retail merchant must send to distant cities approximately the same amount of money that the farmer uses in direct buying, for goods which he sells to the farmer at profits sufficiently large to pay his store rent and taxes, clothe himself and family, provide him with living expenses, (which are not usually small in town,) and perhaps enables him to keep carriage horses or an automobile. If this money were used in improving the farms of northern Michigan, would or wouldn't the local interests be benefited? We believe that the factory men and their employees together with the farmers are the true promoters of local prosperity and these three factors of society are in perfect accord in northern Michigan.

Discussing question No. 3 the unmarried members unanimously favored the telephone, also some of the older ones.

The woman's work committee announced a box social to be held at the hall Wednesday, April 8 and don't forget the date.

Meeting closed in form.

Barnard Grange No. 689.

Lecturer's hour was then taken up by Bro. Marting giving the members a talk on the best fertilizer for sugar beets, which was well taken by the members and visitors.

Receipts $2.00; members present 20; visitors 4, as follows: Bros. S. Marting and Thomas Shapton, Nat Burns, E. Ingals.

Grange closed in usual form to meet again in two weeks.

A Prescription for Constipation.

Eminent medical authorities agree that ninety per cent of their patients suffer from ailments due to clogged bowel (Constipation.)

The bowels become clogged with impurities and body poisons, causing biliousness, colds, stomach trouble, headache, rheumatism, deranged liver and kidneys, etc.

A Tonic Laxative is prescribed in nearly every case. Those who need a laxative may use this prescription with the assurance that no harmful results will follow its use. It has been given to the Public in tablet form and is known as Iron-ox (Laxative Iron-ox Tablets) and are put up in aluminum pocket cases.

The formula is wrapped around the case. The action of each ingredient is explained, that you may understand why Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are the safest Laxative to use; they strengthen the bowels, aid digestion, and keep the liver and kidneys healthy and active. We have secured the selling agency for Laxative Iron-ox Tablets and recommend them to our Customers. F. N. Chapel & Co.

Neighborhood Notes

"Sit still, don't run for the doors, that's the way people get killed in fires! Don't move till I tell you to," From the rostrum of her school room, Miss Jewel O'Conner, teacher in the Greilickville school three miles west of Traverse City, with the earnest appeal quoted, quieted a panic among the pupils, mostly small children, when fire was discovered eating a wall out of the building. The children sat still until one of the older boys brought enough water to extinguish the fire. The blaze caught from the chimney. The damage was slight.

The Pilot.

Original.

When Ben Paddock shipped with me for an able seaman he was absolutely disabled and sailed simply to be saved from himself. Ben had been a decent fellow and had a wife and two little children, but drink captured him, rendering him of no use to them and only a burden to himself. Indeed, he was a burden to them also till he left them.

Once aboard and subject to discipline he slowly righted, like a ship after a squall, and his own real identity reasserted itself. Fortunately for him, we were off for a long voyage, and there was not a drop of liquor aboard ship except under my charge, and I never gave Ben a drop from the time we sailed till we got back to the port we had left three years before. I liked Ben Paddock and did everything I could to help him get rid of the habit that had ruined him. I persuaded him not to take shore leave when we made ports, and at such times I often stayed aboard, keeping him company, that he should not get despondent and yield to temptation.

When Ben got back from the voyage he promised me he would observe certain rules I laid down for him to prevent a return of the thirst, then hurried to his wife and children, whom he never again left to the day of his death. He became a pilot for the port where he lived, and his services were in constant demand at good wages. He always declared that I had saved him and manifested unbounded gratitude.

Years passed. One December I was returning from a long voyage. I had promised my wife that if I made a successful trip I would sell my ship with the cargo and spend my old age with her at home. But all I possessed was in the ship and cargo. As I drew near port the wind began to blow a fierce gale from the east, and I feared that I would not be able to make an entry. If I could get in between the two tongues of land that formed the harbor's gateway I would be safe, but to do this I must have a pilot, and, even once entered, only a pilot could take the ship through the tortuous channel.

When I approached the harbor the wind was blowing right on shore. I looked about for a pilotboat, but saw only one, and it was scudding under jib and foretopsail to get in. I concluded to drop anchor and wait. In fact, it was all I could do, for I had approached too near to the shore. I had an confidence in being able to beat out in the teeth of the gale, and I feared the anchor wouldn't hold. It did not hold, and I soon saw that we were drifting ashore. It was growing dark, no succor was at hand, and within sight of the haven of rest I had so long worked for I must see the fruits of my labor lost, perhaps our lives.

The shore outline had been enfolded in the gloom when suddenly I saw the head of a man over the gunwale on the port side. Then came his body. Then he jumped down on to the deck.

"Ben Paddock," I exclaimed, "where did you come from?"

He cast a glance at the jib fluttering in the wind and at the foretop. I yelled to the men to get up sail(illegible) sail for steerage headway, and when the sails were up Ben was at the wheel. I ordered the anchor let go, and she came about head on to shore.

My fears allayed, I began to wonder how Ben had got aboard. I was sure no pilotboat was within miles of us or had been before the darkness fell. But, granting that one had neared us unnoticed, how could she have sent us a pilot over a sea in which no small boat could have lived? I was about to ask Ben for an explanation when I saw that we were about to make the entrance between the two tongues of land, and all his attention was concentrated on his work. My own attention, too, was directed to this hazardous entrance. Ben brought the ship around in a curve—a wonderful bit of steersmanship since the vessel was fairly flying—and just weathered the starboard point. For more than a mile from the points the land on both sides was low and the channel serpentine. There was full sweep for the wind, and the way was still dangerous. Indeed, I would not have believed that mortal man could keep the ship afloat. Ben stood calmly at the wheel, intent on his work, never uttering a sound, now whirling the wheel to port, now letting it fly to starboard. I began to stand in awe of one who could work such a wonder. I wanted to go and stand beside him, but somehow I couldn't do it. I made myself think that I feared to disconcert him in his critical work. This was not so. There was something uncanny about him that held me off.

At last we shot into the broad basin of the inner harbor. I called the men to lower an anchor—the one we had put out had been left on the bottom—and when I heard the chain rattle through the hawse pipes I turned to thank Ben for having saved us.

The wheel was deserted.

A light appeared on the water, and a boat approached. "How did you get in?" called a man in the bow.

"Ben Paddock—he piloted us."

"Ben Paddock! You're gone daft. He died a month ago."

Sticking to the Disagreeable Job.

It is the man who can stick to the disagreeable job, do it with energy and vim, the man who can force himself to do good work when he does not feel like doing it—in order words, the man who is master of himself, who has a great purpose and who holds himself to his aim, whether it is agreeable or disagreeable, whether he feels like it or does not feel like it—that wins.

It is easy to do what is agreeable, to keep at the thing we like and are enthusiastic about, but it takes real grit to try to put our whole soul into that which is distasteful and against which our nature protests, but which we are compelled to do for the sake of others who would suffer if we did not do it.

To go every morning with a stout heart and an elastic step, with courage and enthusiasm, to work which we are not fitted for and were not intended to do, work against which our very natures protest just because it is our duty, and to keep this up year in and year out require heroic qualities.—Success Magazine.

The Most Dangerous Fish.

The shark and the octopus are usually looked upon as the most dangerous among the denizens of the deep, but it appears that fishermen who frequent tropical waters have a much greater fear of the devilfish, the green moray and the swordfish. There seems to be unanimity of opinion that the shark and the octopus will not attack a boat, while the others which have been mentioned will. And, moreover, the attacks of the devilfish, the moray and the swordfish are a great deal more terrible than those of the shark and the octopus.

The devilfish is a large ray which infests the warm waters of the Atlantic. It attains a weight of a ton and a half, has horrible looking teeth and a barbed, poison holding spike in its tail which it uses with tremendous effect when it assails a party in a boat. The green moray is to be met with off the coast of Bermuda. It resembles a conger eel, but is green in color. The moray is reckoned the most savage inhabitant of any water.

Chicago, March 28.—Thirty-five persons were rescued from threatened death in flames, one man was severely burned and a co-operative store in which hundreds had invested their savings was burned early in the day, while frenzied men and women lovers knelt in the street and prayed that the store might be saved. The stock was destroyed and the building badly damaged, the total loss being $50,000.

The fire was in the Bohemian Co-Operative department store, known also as the Bohemian Bazaar, 531-533 Blue Island avenue. It spread so rapidly that a number of families in adjoining houses were cut off and were rescued by the firemen, while rapidly that a number of families to from their homes and crowded about the burning building. Many of them had their life savings invested in the store, and a number became hysterical as they saw their savings vanish in smoke and flames. The police had difficulty in keeping excited citizens at a safe distance from the fire.

The party will be very active in Michigan this year. Mr. Taylor is meeting with conventions every day. The plan is to concentrate all work in the places, where they think they have a chance to win out on legislative candidates. The Chautauqua plan, which is a series of tent meetings to continue a week in 50 counties in Michigan. The forming of National Issue clubs, the members being pledged to support only the candidates of parties having a prohibition plank in their platform.

Hon. A. Buttars, S. J. Allcox, J. M. Saunders and B. P. Wilkinson were elected delegates to the state convention, which meets at Kalamazoo April 15.

John Burns, Chas. Arnold, Herman Swift and Rev. Grigby alternates.

B. P. Wilkinson was elected chairman, J. M. Saunders secretary and S. J. Allcox treasurer of the county committee.

In the evening a mass meeting was held in the M. E. church, addressed by Mr. Taylor, on the subject "The Man Behind the Bar." He said, among other things that back of every bar was the bar tender, back of the bar-tender the saloon-keeper, back of the saloon-keeper the brewer and distiller, back of them the government of the United States; that before the war most of the liquors in the United States was sold at the corner grocery, that with the passing of the internal revenue law the traffic had grown rapidly until where in 1870, seven gallons per capita was consumed, in 1907 twenty-three gallons was consumed per capita.

As usual the prohibition party was going to win in the next four years according to the speaker, who made the usual rosy predictions, which they have made for the last generation, next time we'll win.

LABOR PARTY THE VICTORS

Elect All but Two of Their Candidates in Charlevoix City.

ROLLIE LEWIS CARRIES EVERY WARD

Proposition to Abolish the Board of Public Works Defeated.

Returns From the Different Precincts Indicate a Victory for Direct Nominations—Many Changes in Supervisors.

At the election Monday the republicans were not in it when the votes were counted. All they were able to save from the wreck being the alderman, supervisor and constable in the first ward.

One of the largest votes in the city was polled and everybody recognizes the result as a clear expression of the people's will. The proposition to abolish the board of public works was defeated by a large majority. The proposition providing for the direct nomination of the republican candidate for state senator in this district carried by an overwhelming majority in this county.

Simon M. Rose, the victor for mayor, is one of Charlevoix's best known residents, having resided here for fourteen years. He has had previous service on the council both as trustee and alderman.

As generally recognized leader of the labor party, as shown by his great run on the independent ticket for sheriff two years ago, he again demonstrated his ability as a vote getter Monday by his defeat of one of the most popular men in the city.

Rollie L. Lewis for clerk run like a scared deer, defeating the veteran, Henry C. Cooper in every ward.

Mr. Lewis is a product of Charlevoix, having been born here August 2, 1884. He graduated from the Charlevoix high school in 1903 and has spent three years in the law department of the U. of M.

John Cook for treasurer on the republican ticket and indorsed by the labor party, is an old and well known resident of the city.

The successful candidates for the ward positions are all well known residents, most of them having had previous experience.

Here follows the story of the battle, the republican candidate being the first named in each instance:

Alderman—Cline, 86; Geiken, 111. Majority, 25.

Constable—Coatta, 87; Hamilton, 101. Majority, 14.

Board of Public Works—For, 119; against, 73. Majority, 46.

Direct Nominations—For, 31; against, 4. Majority, 30.

While the COURIER naturally feels a little disappointed in the election results in the city, it believes that with the large vote which was polled Monday, there can be no question of the desire of the people to have the gentlemen who were on the labor ticket placed at the head of our city government, and to retain the board of public works.

The COURIER advocated the election of the republican ticket, because it believed that it was the equal, in every respect to the strong ticket placed in the field by the labor party. It has no occasion to change that opinion now, but with equally strong men on the other side, men who we believe will carefully guard the interests of the city, the labor ticket won and we believe it the duty of every good citizen to do all in their power to assist in making the administration of Mayor Rose and his colleagues one, which not only will be a credit to themselves and the party by which they were elected, but an administration which will mean much for the city of Charlevoix.

As far as the proposition to abolish the board of public works was concerned, we believed it was a question for the people to decide. They did so, and by a decisive majority, said they wished to retain the board in their service. In this connection we wish to congratulate the city on the appointment of Amos Webster to a place on the board. During his term of service on the council he has demonstrated that he has the qualities which go to make up good public servants and the city is fortunate in retaining his services.

In the townships many changes were made on the Board of Supervisors. The roll call of the new board will be as follows:

Bay—E. C. Chew.

Boyne Valley—Lloyd Robinson.

Boyne City—First ward, Hugh R. Miller; second ward, Walter Ware; third ward, George W. Bailey; fourth ward, George W. Baxter.

City of Charlevoix—First ward, F. J. Meech; second ward, Charles Zeitler; third ward, W. H. Miller.

Charlevoix township—E. W. Coulter.

Chandler—C. D. Osborn.

Evaline—Malcolm A. McDonald.

Evangeline—Charles Cranburn.

Hudson—Ralph Dye.

Marion—James H. Adams.

Melrose—Servetus A. Correll.

Hayes—Frank C. Burnett.

Norwood—John H. Bugbee.

St. James—W. J. Gallagher.

Peaine—W. D. Gallagher.

Wilson—Charles Hudkins.

South Arm—Jacob H. Graff.

Bay the present supervisor John C. Karchner on the prohibition ticket was defeated by E. C. Chew, republican.

Evaline elected the entire township ticket.

Direct nominations, yes 46; no 18.

In Hayes township there were some candidates running on slips, but the entire people's township ticket was elected as follows:

Supervisor—Frank C. Burnett.

Clerk—A. B. Chew, 79; E. E. Stroud, 55.

Treasurer—Moses Cooper.

Highway Commissioner—Platt Webster.

Overseer—Roy Kane.

School Inspector—Sam Long.

Board of Review—Oscar Tillotson

Justice of Peace—H. H. Smith.

MAN SHOT BY WOMAN

Warren Elliott, of Mancelona, Killed Last Wednesday.

Shot Fired by Mrs. Green—Coroner's Jury Say it was Justifiable.

Warren Elliott, aged 30 years, was shot twice and instantly killed Wednesday night by Mrs. Green, when he attempted to force his way into her home over Berry's bicycle repair shop.

Elliott came to the door at the foot of the stairs leading to her apartments, and tried to get in. She went down stairs and upon learning who it was, told him to go away, she declares, and threatened to shoot him if he did not. He persisted and she returned to her rooms, secured the revolver and went to a window. Again she told Elliott to go away, but he paid no heed to her warnings. She fired twice, the first shot hitting Elliott in the back and passing through a lung, the second penetrating his brain. He fell dead and was found a few minutes later by two high school boys who heard the report of the revolver and started to investigate.

Mrs. Green was arrested at once and admitted the shooting, telling the story as related above. Upon her arrest she sent for her husband, who is employed on the night shift at the chemical plant.

Elliott was a son of City Marshal Edwin Elliott and well known about town. It is supposed that he was intoxicated at the time of the shooting.

A coroner's jury was impaneled and brought in a verdict that the shooting was justifiable.

Elliott's parents are prostrated by the affair.

VALUE OF GOOD ROADS

The Direct Connection Between Good Roads abd Farm Values.

Good Roads Are the Greatest Factor in Securing Settlers on Unused Lands.

The direct connection between good roads and the value of farm lands is shown in a striking manner in Bulletin No. 38 of the United States Department of Agriculture. This bulletin gives the results of an investigation by the office of public roads of that department relating to public road mileage, revenues, improved roads, and expenditures in the United States in the year 1904, and the information contained therein is of great importance in connection with the movement on behalf of the systematic improvement of the public highways.

The returns from various states show that in nearly every case the states having the highest precentage of improved roads have the largest population per mile of road, thus showing that better roads are a powerful factor in encouraging the settlement of unused lands, especially in sparsely populated sections of the country. Good roads are also an important influence in retaining in the farming districts the desirable elements who might otherwise drift into the towns and cities. As the price of farm lands depends on their productivity, accessibility to markets and population engaged, or desiring to engage, in agricultural pursuits, it follows that road improvement, by attracting additional settlers and giving them better facilities for reaching their markets, directly tends to increase the values of all farm lands within the radius of the roads improved.

A comparison of the percentage of improved roads of the various states shows that the average percentage of the improved roads in all states where farm land is worth less than $20.00 per acre is only 1.9 per cent, whereas in the states where the acreage value is more than $20.00, improved roads constitute an average of 9 per cent of the total mileage.

While there may be minar causes of variations in the value of farm lands, it is an undoubted fact that, as a general rule, the higher values of certain states are largely due to their superior roads. Records on file in the office of public roads show that farm lands have been known to advance in value from 50 to 300 per cent on account of the improvement of the roads connecting them with market towns.

When the facts secured by the Department of Agriculture become known to the farmers of the country, and they realize that the establishment of a complete system of properly constructed public roads will have the direct effect of greatly increasing the value of their farms, they will be the foremost advocates of a broad, comprehensive policy of public road improvement by the nation, states, counties and townships—Harness Review, Chicago, March number.

Geneit and five men on board.

The Parmalee is reported safe at Northport.

William Kibbe, one of the life-saving force, who made the trip out, found when he returned, he had lost his watch, a very valuable one, which he prized very highly. Straight Talks on Patent Medicines

The "Rexall" Remedies are successful and this is why.

They were placed on the market three years ago. They have scored already the record of the greatest success ever known in the history of the drug business.

"Come and go" popularity may arise from any number of causes (hullabaloo advertising among them) and may or may not be founded on real worthiness. But the man, the plan, the idea, or the article that truly succeeds, does so because he or it deserves to succeed, and for no other reason.

The success of the "Rexall" Remedies is therefore the first evidence of their real merit. They sell because they cure, and they cure because each one of them is the best remedy known to medical science for the particular ailment it is made to relieve.

There are nearly 200 remedies sold under the "Rexall" name, each for one disease or one purpose. Each of these has been selected by a committee of experts from among all other remedies of its class, for manufacture and sale by The United Drug Company, a co-operative association of leading American druggists.

Wherever you see the name "Rexall," you may know that it stands for a formula scientifically correct and proved efficient in actual, long extended practice. We know these formulas and are glad to answer all inquiries regarding them, giving full information as to the ingredients.

Here are three famous members of the "Rexall" family:

FOR CATARRH—MUCU-TONE

The chief ingredients of Mucu-Tone are Gentian, Cubebs, Cascara Sagrada, Glycerine, and Sarsaparilla.

Gentian is recognized in medicine as one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It is the foundation on which Mucu-Tone is built. Gentian combines in high degree the tonic powers of all the known "bitters," with none of the disadvantages applying to them.

Cubebs have long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefit almost invariable. In whatever part of the body the inflamed or diseased condition of the mucous membrane exists, the use of Cubebs has been recommended by the best physicians for many generations.

Cascara Sagrada is especially intrnduced for its necessary laxative properties.

The combination of these with Glycerine and Sarsaparilla makes Mucu-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point, gradually restores and rebuilds the diseased tissues to their former health and strength, promotes digestion and creates a normal appetite. Bottle, 50c.

REXALL DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is largely due to the new and successful method of manufacture, whereby the well known properties of Bismuth Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with carminaitives and other agents.

Bismuth Subnitrate and Pepsin are recogaized by the entire medical profession as specifics for acute Indigestion or chronic dyspepsia.

The pepsin used is manufactured under a new process which develops its greatest efficiency. Pepsin not only supplies to the digestive machinery one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid, but it also tends to exert a tonic influence upon all the glands which supply all the other elements.

The carminitives add properties which promptly relieve pains caused by undigested food.

The combination of the whole makes a remedy absolutely invaluable to any man or woman suffering from Dyspepsia—and not only a remedy but a cure which works gradually rebuilding and stimulating the glands which perform the digestive functions. Package, 25c.

FOR NERVES—AMERICANITIS ELIXIR

The Rexall Americanitis Elixir is a tonic nerve food composed chiefly of free Phosphorus, Glycopbosphates, Iron Pyrophosphate and Calisaya.

The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorus to the nerve cells in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them. It is the only known preparation in which free Phosphorus—that is, Phosphorus which remains indefinitely unoxidized—is used.

The Glycophnsphates, actual nerve-tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to the field of this branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites.

The Iron Pyrophosphates is the most easily assimilated form of iron which gives tone and color, and the combined alkaloids of Calisaya Bark have a tonic effect on almost all the functions of the body.

In compounding these various elements, the very highest degree of pharmaceutical skill has been employed. 75c. and $1.50 a bottle.

This "Rexall" Guarantee Appears on each package:
"This preparation is guaranteed to give satisfaction. If it does not, come back and get your money. It belongs to you and we want you to have it."

APPOINTMENTS ARE MADE

By Mayor Armstrong at Monday Night's Meeting of the Council.

Several Other Matters of Importance Considered by Council.

At the meeting of the council Monday night, the resignations of Geik C. Geiken and Frank M. Glassford as members of the board of public works were received and accepted.

The mayor appointed Amos Webster as a member of the board to succeed Mr. Geiken which was confirmed by the council. The vacancy left by the resignation of Mr. Glassford was left unfilled.

The mayor also appointed Henry C. Cooper as city assessor, the appointment being confirmed by the council.

Chairman Ward, of the committee on streets, made a report relative to the proposition made by E. S. Stacks in regard to the leasing to Mr. Stacks of the city stone quarry. The question was referred back to the committee for further coniseration.

No further business of importance was transacted although several matters of interest were discussed.

Christian Science the Fashion.

The electric car was uncomfortably crowded, but at a corner only part way down town fully half the passengers alighted.

"What's going on?" demanded one man of another, who was moving past him. "Some sort of an entertainment?"

"No; church, that's all," responded the other with a smile.

"Church?" repeated the first man, incredulous. "What church?"

"Christian Science," the other responded, and passed on.

"Well, I'm darned!" grunted the first. "Some time I'm going to a Christian Science meeting just to find out what draws them so."

Very likely he did—as did I.

It was the Wednesday night meeting. Without a dozen autos had been rangedat the curb, and from north, east, west and south hail come ponring the people. I sat in the rear of the amphitheater. On my left was the pay-teller of the bank which holds my every cent; on my right, the senior partner in the furniture establishment which sold me my household gonds. I heard a ringing talk from the attorney whom I had recently empowered to pass upon some important titles.

With a feeling of foolishness I had entered the church. But were these men fools? Dared I intimate that they, whom I trusted in business, were less acute than myself? If so then I was a fool?

This particular church has a membership, I am told, of eight hundred; the seating capacity is two thousand; at this a mid-week meeting, virtually every seat was taken. Presuming that all the members were present (which could hardly have been the case,) then there were twelve hundred strangers.

Is there another denomination in the world which can thus fill its church in the summer, at a regular mid-week meeting? Sensationalism, you say? No; the Christian Science service has naught of the sensational; in fact, the complaint is freely made that it is dull and much cannot be understood by the unenlightened.

Curiosity? Yes—but not merely idle. It is that curiosity which eggs one on to investigate a movement whereby others are being benefitted. We none of us like to be on the "our side" of a "good thing." And gratitude; for it is declared that eighty per cent of the Christian Scientists have been brought into it through the healing of their physical ills; and they, it must be remembered, have friends and relatives.

Sneers at Christian Science have always arisen from ignorance. Now it is also a mark of bad taste. Christian Science is becoming the fashion. Will it not require all its divinity to keep it from yielding to humanity? The student of sociology will watch it with interest.—Edward L. Sabin in Lippincott's Magazine.

DUG OUT OF A HAYMOW

Three Thugs Run Down by a Posse After a Raid on a Store.

AGED WOMAN ACQUIT OF ARSON

Evidence Was Lacking—Gen. Grant's Army Cook Too Warlike—Luck in April Fool.

Lansing, Mich., April 4. — Bold cracksmen raided the general store of Young & Miller in Dansville, a small village about fifteen miles from here, and blew the safe open. They got little booty, but the noise of the explosion aroused some of the villagers. As they ran down the village street the men were fired upon by Charles Stead and returned his shots. No one was hit. A posse composed of Ingham county officers and citizens of the village was organized soon afterward, and heavily armed started after the robbers. Two hours later they traced three men to the barn of J. H. Davis, a White Oak township farmer. The men were found concealed in the hay. They are held on suspicion.

No Guilty of Arson.

Lapeer, Mich., April 4.—The case of Mrs. Priscilla Rice, aged seventy-odd, accused of arson, was dismissed because of lack of evidence. She was charged with burning her residence in Metamora after she had disposed of it, it being alleged that she retained the policy.

Aged Man's Attempted Crime.

Berrien Springs, Mich., April 4. — Christopher Ford, aged eighty-nine, an old resident of the place, while temporarily deranged attempted to kill his sister, Mrs. E. A. Graham, with an old army musket. The musket failed to discharge. Ford was taken before Judge Gorham for an examination as to his sanity.

Whipped by Whitecaps.

Escanaba, Mich., April 4. — James Ritchie, the alleged Ford River wife-beater, who was called from his home and severely whipped by a vigilance committee and ordered from the village, came to Escanaba and made complaint against six sons of prominent men. The arrested men pleaded guilty and were sent to jail for thirty days.

THOUGHT THE WAR STILL ON

Gen. Grant's Army Cook Had To Be Relieved of His Gun—Liked to Shoot Promiscuously.

Wayne, Mich., April 4. — General Grant's army cook, John Furling, has been compelled to surrender his trusty revolver and forego the taste for firearms that seems to have clung to him from the days of the civil war. The aged cook was convicted of threatening to shoot John Hopple for treading on the corner of Furling's lot. It took the jury only five minutes to find a verdict, but the tedious work of the trial came in the efforts to secure a jury.

Out of thirty talesmen called, twenty-four admitted prejudice, on the ground that Furling had at one time or another threatened to shoot them. So great was the interest in the trial that business in the village was practically suspended. Witnesses testified that Furling was accustomed to go out at night and fire his revolver, just to show his dexterity. Court reserved sentence for one week. The defendant's $200 bond was continued on condition that he surrender his revolver.

Second Woman the Lucky One.

Jackson, Mich., April 4.—A pocketbook which was not an April Fool's joke proved to be one to two persons. Detective Tobin first saw the purse lying on a walk in the business section, but believing it a joke, passed it by. A women next discovered it and carried it a short distance, when cries of April fool caused her to drop it. A second woman carried the purse into a store and on examination found it contained $15.

Fears Death in the West.

Corunna, Mich., April 4. — William Braods, owner of a sheep ranch in Montana, was the witness of two murders by cowboys near his ranch last fall and is wanted as a witness in both of the cases. Brands, however, fears that should he testify against the prisoners he would be marked for vengeance by their friends. In consequence he fears to return to the ranch until final disposal is made of the cases.

Farmers Return to the Fold.

Reed City, Mich., April 4. — At a convention here the Society of Equity of Michigan, having a membership of 1,000 farmers, voted to resume active affiliation with the American Society of Equity. The Michigan society withdrew from the national organization last December when it was thought the latter was about to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

Looks Like Infanticide.

De Tour, Mich., April 4.—Physicians say the child of Miss Mary Rnohmokl, found in a trunk in her house in Kreetao, a small Finnish colony on Drummond Island, bled to death. Prosecutor Hollen is investigating the alleged murder. The mother is postmistress of the town.

Milwaukee Bribe Case Fails.

Milwaukee, April 4.—Anthony V. Kleifish, clerk of the board of supervisors, and Fred C. Schultz, a former newspaper man, were found not guilty by a jury in the municipal court on the charge of bribing Otto Schiel, Jr., a former supervisor, for his vote on the sale of a piece of county property.

DEATH SUMMONS RILEY GRANNON

Pneumonia Ends Career of Former Big Better, Who Was on Road to Build Up Fortune.

Rawhide, Nev., April 4. — Riley Grannan is dead here of pneumonia. His relatives at Paris, Ky., have been asked as to the disposition of the remains. The specialists in attendance were hopeful to the last of his recovery, but every effort to save his life failed. Shortly before his death Grannon bought a saloon and an interest in a big gambling house. He had numerous mining and athletic deals when stricken and was in a fair way to build up another fortune.

The most spectacular incident in Grannan's career was his playing a book on the Henry of Navarre-Domino race at Brooklyn on Sept. 15, 1894. The result was a dead heat, and Grannan won $15,000. He stood to lose over $100,000 had Domino won. In 1895 Grannan invested much money in real estate in Lexington and at Louisville, but his fortune was swept away, and for two years he had many ups and downs.

DELAY SEEN IN LAKE OPENING

Vessel Owners Want Open Shop and Unions Are Defiant and Well Entrenched.

Chicago, April 4.—Opening of navigation on the great lakes may be postponed this season by reason of differences between the vessel owners and the unions of seamen and longshoremen. The vessel owners have determined on an open-shop policy, and they will openly announce their position at the annual conference of the Lake Carriers' association at Cleveland on April 9.

The Lake Seamens' union, which controls all the men on the big boats, with the exception of the engineers, was never as strongly entrenched as at the present time. It will resist any infringement on the privileges its members have enjoyed in past seasons.

High Honor for John Mitchell.

Indianapolis, April 3.—John Mitchell, ex-president of the miners of the country, is one of five Americans selected by President Roosevelt to be special guests of the big conference of state and territory governors to be held in Washington May 13. This conference will last three days. The five special guests will be: Grover Cleveland, ex-president of the United States; William Jennings Bryan, leader of the opposition political party; James J. Hill, railroad magnate; Andrew Carnegie, manufacturer; John Mitchell, miner.

Bill Aimed at Tobacco Trust.

Washington, April 3.—A hearing was begun before the house ways and means committee on a bill introduced by Tawney, of Minnesota, chairman of the appropriations committee, to impose an internal revenue tax of two cents on every prize coupon given away with tobacco, cigars, cigarettes or snuff sold in packages in the United States. The bill is aimed at the so-called tobacco trust and it purported design is to remove the gift coupons as a weapon to crush competition.

Killed Employ During Quarrel.

Baltimore, April 3.—Abraham Collier, a brother of Peter F. Collier, the New York millionaire and owner of Collier's Weekly, was locked up in jail at Belair charged with the murder of William Haughey, a lumberman employed in a camp on Collier's estate in Hartford county. Collier is accused of striking the man with a shovel during a quarrel. Collier collapsed when arrested.

Railway Will Pay Back Taxes.

Atlanta, Ga., April 3.—The Georgia railroad has agreed to pay to the state, the city of Augusta and to Richmond county $325,000 in back taxes which have been in litigation for a number of years. The litigation concerned 15,000 shares of the stock of the Western railway of Alabama and included tax on this stock for several years.

Body Strewn Along Track.

Superior, Wis., April 3.—Portions of a man's body, apparently that of a lumberman, were found scattered for about two miles along the Omaha railroad tracks this side of Rockmont by Superintendent Anton Johnson. The body and clothing were both so cut up that it was impossible to give any good description of the man.

WE shall hear as the campaign gets older many allegations as to unfair and even unworthy methode, but do we realize what enormous results efforts for cleaner politics have yielded within a comparatively few years?

There are forms of election frauds that have yet to be overcome, but they are of comparatively little importance and it has come about that campaigns for a general election are conducted under a reasonable assurance that the votes will be honestly counted and properly credited. More than this, there is juat as near an approach to certainty that only those entitled to franchise will be permitted to exercise it.

No more than a quarter of a century ago, every great election was proceded by a popular fear that the will of the people would not prevail. Through fraud, the lower wards of New York city were apt to determine the outcome in that state, which counts for so much in the electoral college.

Detroiters are not old who can recall the political trickery and cheating in vogue here, though this city was comparatively a clean one. On occasions men stood brazenly at the polls with money in their hands buying votes. The ignorant had a substitution of tickets practiced on them. The man who helped a ballot too often became a repeater, for every ticket that he arranged was for the men whom he supported, regardless of what the voter wanted.

Men were not only misled but actually bull-dozed the intimidated by force. A fair count was not to depended upon and the man with the fewest votes nut infrequently got the office. The Australian ballots and the banishment of barkers from the immediate vicinity of the polls have done so much to remedy this evil.

But an important agency to reform has been through radical changes in the naturalization laws. Formerly the great influx of foreigners were turned in streams to the old circuit, superior and United States courts. They swore as they were told to. Then they were herded to the polls and voted under dictation.

Now there are reasonable educational tests and it is noted all over the country that there is no such rush for natralization papers as of old, for the political handlers are put out of business and the more ignorant foreigners are not eligible.

Legislation has wrought a change which works admirably for the re-establishment of majority rule. Even bribery, direct or indirect, has been made very hazardous and is largely going out of vogue.—Detroit Free Press.

The ladies of the M. E. church will give their annual Easter supper, Wednesday, April 15, commencing at 5:30 p. m. Price twenty-five cents for adults and fifteen cents for children under eight years. Every one come and have a first class supper. 15 t 1

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE APRIL 17-18.

To teachers and patrons of Charlevoix county schools:

A teacher's institute will be held in Charlevoix on Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday morning, April 17-18, 1908.

This will be a regularly appointed institute under the direction of the state and we are anxious that every teacher in the county shall attend. We also wish that we could get a large number of the patrons to attend, and in a measure, become acquainted with some of the many problems that the teacher has to solve. The teacher needs, and to be successful, must have the co-operation of the parent. The disposition on the part of many patrons to allow the school to shift for itself has brought about, in many instances, the same result that similar methods will bring in any other line of work.

The program for this meeting will be full of good things. Dr. George Vincent, of Chicago, will give an address at each of the meetings and this feature alone will be worth the effort that it will cost any patron or teacher in the county to attend. Dr. Vincent is one of the ablest school men and one of the most pleasing speakers among our educators.

No person who is interested in our schools can afford to miss hearing Dr. Vincent's addresses in this meeting.

You are doubtless intending to be in Charlevoix sometime this spring. See if you cannot arrange to make that trip on April 17-18 and meet with the teachers. It will do us all good to get better acquainted with each other.

We have had some meetings similar to this which were very interesting but the discouraging feature of such work has been the lack of interest shown by the patrons and it seems to the teachers that they are the ones most vitally interested.

Break away from your work for a day and let us have the largest and most interesting meeting of this kind that the county has known.

PROGRAM.

Friday Afternoon.

Music by the association.

"What the Grades Should do the Student in English," Miss Himes.

"Some Problems in High School English," Prin. Vida Collins.

Discussion led by Prin. Fannie Coltrin.

Question box conducted by Supt. Woodley.

"The New Duty of the School," Dr. George E. Vincent, of the University of Chicago.

Friday Evening.
